After the address the candidates for degrees were presented by Dean Lindley and the degree of Bachelor of Arts was conferred by President Humphries upon twenty-six young men and young women. Four received the degree of Bachelor of Science in Business Administration. One received the degree of Bachelor of Science in Chemical Engineering, and two received the degree of Bachelor of Science in Home Economics. Five others are to receive degrees at the close of the summer school. Emma Carr Bivens and Adylene McCollum were graduated Magna Cum Laude, while Keron K. Canady, Oscar Lee Easter, W. Wilbur Hutchins and Jasper Lee Jones were graduated Cum Laude. The highest honors went to Emma Carr Bivens.

Mrs. Wrenn Gives Library Building

Following the presentation of the diplomas and the honors Dr. Humphries presented Mrs. M. J. Wrenn, a member of the Board of Trustees, who brought the audience to its feet with the announcement that she was erecting on the campus a library building in memory of her late husband, who was a member of the Board of Trustees from the beginning of the college and who loved the institution dearly. The announcement brought forth prolonged applause and some could not restrain the tears of joy as they contemplated the tremendous significance of such an announcement. Those who sensed the situation correctly were certain they saw more in the announcement than simply one library building, even though that is badly needed, but to many of us it was the beginning of bigger and better things for the institution that is dear to the hearts of the thirty thousand Methodist Protestants in this state. Mrs. Wrenn is saying to the world that she has faith in the institution and doubtless her faith will beget faith in others. To our way of thinking, it will be an incentive for other people of large means to do something worthwhile for the college. Since this is the only institution for higher education that High Point has, it will be perfectly natural for others to remember it in a substantial way. And what better monument can anyone establish than a building to serve in educating the youth of our land? It is a permanent, an enduring monument. Mr. Wrenn will live in the hearts of the people through this building as he could not live in any other way.

Dr. Albert Norman Ward

On our cover page we are presenting a likeness of that great preacher, scholar and Christian, Dr. Albert Norman Ward. The particular reason for presenting him at this time is that this is the fortieth anniversary of his graduation from Western Maryland College and the fifteenth anniversary of his election to the presidency of the same institution.

Dr. Ward is so well known to the Methodist Protestant church that it is hardly necessary to spend much time in introducing him. For forty years he has been one of the outstanding leaders of the church. He served some of the outstanding appointments in the Maryland conference, served as Chancellor of Kansas City University for some years, and gave several years to the pastorate of the First Methodist Protestant church in Seattle, Wash. Fifteen years ago he was elected president of Western Maryland College at Westminster, Md., the largest college the denomination has. During his administration the college plant has been greatly enlarged and beautified and the enrollment has grown by leaps and bounds. While there is much that we could say about Dr. Ward, we prefer to let others tell you about him. The first tribute is from Dr. William J. Thompson, formerly professor of Religious Psychology and Pedagogy, Drew Theological Seminary: "Dr. Ward has the spirit of a crusader who works with all his might, counting not his life dear unto himself. He has integrated his gifts and talents and consecrated them to making his 'vision splendid' of a greater Western Maryland College a substantiality. A substantiality which through countless years at each commencement will pay huge dividends."

Dr. H. L. Elderdice, President Emeritus of the Westminster Theological Seminary, says this of Dr. Ward: "As a Christian leader his influence is not confined to the limits of his local church, his Annual and General Conference affiliations; but is felt in every one of his many fields of activity. As the administrative head of a large and rapidly growing college, he assures parents, students and all whom it may concern that no teacher will be tolerated who may repudiate the Christian religion. Nor is this the ipse dixit of a bigoted sectarian, but of a man so liberal in his creed that he would not permit any member of his faculty to try to change the belief of any student from the Articles of Faith of his church at home."

We wish to join the great number of Dr. Ward's friends who are congratulating him on this great occasion and wish for him many more years of outstanding achievement in the interest of the church, the kingdom and humanity in general.

Responsibility, Response, Reckoning, Reward

That might be the first, secondly, thirdly, and fourthly f a sermon. But it isn't. It is just a suggestion that when ou read this what has happened to your church's part of he McCulloch Fund will have passed in review. The responsibility became yours when the Annual Conference accepted he report of the HERALD committee, which recommended the cceptance of the debt on the HERALD as a moral obligation, nd set up a committee to raise it. Your response has been eceived, if you have sent in the money for your apportionment. If you have met the apportionment in full, you will e reckoned faithful and will receive a reward in the shape f a certificate. If you—and I mean by that, your church, f which you are a part—have failed to respond to the obligation, you will be reckoned unfaithful—and there will be o reward. And Friday morning at High Point College is he time and place.

Fortunately, for those who have failed, there will be another chance. We will take a little time at the Annual Conference to award the rest of the certificates—to those churches that still want to be counted faithful. In the meantime the Honor Roll in the HERALD is open for the enrolling of the names of all such. It is a goodly list; but it includes, so far, only about one-fourth of all the churches in the conference. I know that a good many churches not in the list are working toward that honor. Some will not arrive until the end of the year; and some are almost in sight of the goal.

But all praise to the churches that have reached the goal at the half-way date! Considering everything, I think we have done wonderfully well to reach beyond the half-way mark at the half-way date. But it was done only because some church members, and some pastors, have been keenly interested in putting their churches over the top.

Next week I hope to have a statement of the amounts received from the churches and charges to the end of the half-year.

The Fund stands as follows

Previously reported	$1,644.48
Macedonia, Seagrove	1.00
Fairgrove, Seagrove	3.00
Love Joy, Seagrove	7.00
Seagrove	8.00
Henderson (additional)	19.00
Harris Chapel, Vance (additional)	.75
New Hope, Vance	6.00
Winston, First (additional)	16.75
Bethel, Mocksville	5.00
Spring Hill, N. Davidson	1.00
Canaan, N. Davidson	2.35
Total to date	$1,714.33

I am hoping to give my own church a certificate Friday. It would be too bad if the Chairman couldn't do that. We lack about six dollars of having it in hand; but if I can find time to go after it, I know I can get it.

$1,714.33. Wish that was mine. I'm sorta like the fellow who hollered, "Water, water, everywhere, but not a drop to drink." Well, I'm glad I've had something to do with helping the boys (McCulloch and Swain) to get out of the hole—the hole the Conference put them in. But they are not all the way out yet, won't be until we pay every cent we owe them. But they're beginning to see some daylight—thanks to those who have seen their need and our responsibility.

C. W. BATES, Chairman, M. M. Fund.

International C. E. Convention to Meet in Philadelphia

The thirty-fifth International Christian Endeavor convention will meet in Philadelphia July 2-7. A large number of outstanding speakers and leaders are on the program.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord.

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

We are running this week a list of the churches which have paid any claim in full or have paid the pastor to date. This list will be exhibited at the midyear meet next Friday. We fear it will not be correct in many instances, since some pastors failed to indicate just what conference claims had been paid to date or in full. However, we are leaving out any mention of what has been paid on World Service because we are unable to give it. We shall take pleasure in making corrections, where there are such, in the HERALD next week. Please let me know.

Rockingham Charge, Rev. H. W. Bell, Pastor

This is a four-point charge, Pageland, Melton's Grove, Rockingham and Bethesda. I visited Bethesda and Rockingham. I traveled 125 miles to my first appointment Sunday morning and had ample time to do it in. Good roads have greatly added to the pleasure of travel. Our first appointment was at Bethesda church. This is located in South Carolina some 10 or 15 miles from Cheraw. It is truly in the sandhills. But we have some very loyal people here. There was a good congregation present and the people were interested in the message. This church has greatly suffered in recent years but we hope it has a brighter future. The pastor had been paid up to date here and the people speak well of the services of Bro. Bell.

We were at Rockingham at night. Here I received a surprise. Had a splendid congregation present and a most interesting service. A C. E. society has been reorganized and had a fine meeting—a large attendance. All remained for the preaching service, which is better than some Christian Endeavorers do. A sustaining wall has been built in front of the church and the church grounds are to be beautified in the near future. Rockingham has paid pastor to date and college apportionment.

Rev. J. O. Fry has been released from Shelby-Caroleen charge and appointed pastor of Democrat-Pensacola charges. He is entering upon the work there at once.

Plan of Appointments

May 31—Midyear Meet.

June 2—Friendship church; Porter, afternoon; Albemarle at night.

June 9—Gideon's Grove—dedication service, 11 a. m.; St. Paul at night.

June 16—Kannapolis, 11 a. m.; at night, State Street Church.

June 23—Mt. Pleasant, 11 a. m.; W. Thomasville at night.

WHAT THE BIBLE SAYS ABOUT PEACE

By Rev. T. M. Johnson, D. D.

One cannot go very far into history in the study of peace without running into war, with which the pages of history of all nations are cluttered, including even the history of the Hebrews as recorded in the Old Testament. My first impressions in the study of history were that it was an almost unbroken account of battles long drawn out, so written as to glorify war.

If I understand in any degree the temper of the populace in our day, it is that they prefer to think peace and experience peace rather than war. If so, it must be eminently true in this particular that "the voice of the people is the voice of God."

A Better Way Than by War

It seems that God made strenuous effort to show the Hebrew people by their own experience during the childhood of the race that there was a better way than the way of war. Under the leadership of God by Moses they came, without the drawing of a sword, from under the bondage, slavery, of that powerful warring nation under the Pharaohs. Probably they did not have a sword. Probably they would have been better off if they had never had one. "And Moses said unto the people, Remember this day (of commemoration of the Passover) in which ye came out from Egypt, out of the house of bondage; for by strength of hand the Lord brought you out from this place." Ex. 13:3.

Peace Is of Rare Beauty—

But rare in reality. Like a charming, coy maiden, bashful and blushing, Peace plays in and out among the numerous wars that harass the race, but can find no permanent abiding place. When the Hebrews, under the leadership of Joshua, fighting their way into Canaan, had destroyed Jericho, and by the fiercest of fighting had also destroyed Ai, "Joshua made peace with the Gibeonites, and made a league with them, to let them live." Joshua 9:15. But, lo, that peace agreement provoked the alliance of five kings, who "gathered themselves together, and went up, they and all their hosts, and encamped before Gibeon, and made war against it." Josh. 10:5. The men of Gibeon sent a hurried message to Joshua for help. Joshua went in haste with the army of Israel and slew the hosts of the five kings "with a great slaughter." So fierce was the battle that heaven responded with hailstones, and "they were more which died with hailstones than they whom the children of Israel slew with the sword." Josh. 10:11. Where was Peace?

However, Peace showed her coy self from time to time. "And the land rested from war." Josh. 11:23. And again, "And the land rested from war." Josh. 14:15. "And it came to pass a long time after that the Lord had given rest unto Israel from all their enemies roundabout, that Joshua was old and stricken in age." Josh. 23:1.

But abiding peace was not yet. Years later David wanted to build the temple, but the word of the Lord came to him saying, "Thou hast shed blood abundantly, and hast made great wars: thou shalt not build an house unto my name, because thou hast shed much blood upon the earth in my sight." I Chron. 22:8.

In the Days of the Prophets

Like a breath of spring, a breeze of peace is felt as one reads the more hopeful utterances of the Prophets. Yet it seems that to those promoters of righteousness the thought of permanent peace was a dream rather than a vision. "How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him that bringeth good tidings, that publisheth peace; that bringeth good tidings of good, that publisheth salvation; that saith unto Zion, Thy God reigneth!" Isa. 52:7. "I the Lord will be their God. And I will make with them a covenant of peace . . . and they shall dwell safely." Ezek. 34:24, 25. But this note of positiveness: "They shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning hooks: nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more." Isa. 2:4. May the "God of peace" hasten the day!

In Old Testament Times

The idea in Old Testament times, Pagan and Hebrew, seems to have been that it was a conflict between the gods of the respective nations that were at war. When the Hebrews had been routed by the Philistines, they brought to the battlefield the "ark of the Lord of hosts, which dwelleth between the Cherubim." I Sam. 4:4. That to the mind of the Hebrew and of the Philistian meant that the God of the Hebrews was entering the battle. "And the Philistians were afraid: for they said, God is come into the camp . . . Woe unto us! Who shall deliver us out of the hand of these mighty gods?" I Sam. 4:7, 8.

The remainder of Chapter 4 and Chapters 5 and 6 indicate that the conflict between God and Dagon continued after the army of the Hebrews had been routed; and that the Hebrew God outdid the Philistian god, although the Philistian army had outdone the Hebrew army. Accordingly the problem of peace was to make peace between the gods!

The New Testament Idea

Coming into the New Testament is like coming into a different world. The phrase "the God of peace" is of frequent occurrence. This in contrast with such Old Testament expressions as "the Lord mighty in battle," "the Lord is a man of war," etc.

Memorial Day is now at hand. The people I have been associating with (arranging a memorial service) are longing for peace, talking peace, praying for peace. One Bible student and teacher said to me: "War and the teaching of Jesus cannot be reconciled." But, asks one: "Did not Jesus say, 'Wars and rumors of wars'?" Even so, but that is not the teachings of Jesus, He was not endorsing it, He was only stating what combative, pugnacious humanity will continue to do until saved from itself by the power of God. I would ask the questioner, "Did not Jesus say, Put up again thy sword into his place: for all they that take the sword shall perish with the sword?" Matt. 26:52. Again, did not Jesus say, "Love your enemies"? Matt. 5:44. Once more, "Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shall be called the children of God." Matt. 5:9.

The Hebrew and the Indian

The ancient Hebrew offered peace offerings often; the American Indian (savage, we say) smoked the pipe of peace. The Hebrew meant peace between himself and God. If this Hebrew practice, in our day in the spirit of Jesus, would become unanimous, would not there be peace between man and man, between nation and nation? The Indian did not afterward say his peace pact was "only a whiff of smoke" or, in modern parlance, "only a scrap of paper."

We Thought Their Problem Was Solved

"The increase in public drunkenness since the opening of the ABC stores represents a serious threat to the future of state control. Some increase was to be expected when men, for the first time in many years, could get liquor as they wanted it. Other individuals, as always, misuse their liberty. Employers will deal sternly with drunkenness among their own workers, but all of us must combat excessive drinking. Unless we do, we may expect a public uprising, especially against drunken drivers. And if an uprising should come, Virginia may swing back to prohibition. For it is characteristic of the American people, when they have a grievance, to magnify the evils they endure and to minimize those they may create by changing the law."—Richmond News-Leader.

To Improve Radio Programs

We are in receipt of a copy of the new regulations governing broadcasting by the Columbia Broadcasting Company and we give these rules our hearty endorsement. No contracts are being accepted for the future where there is any description of the function of any internal organ of the human body. Also, no contract is being accepted which advertises the effects of any medicine to be taken internally. The reasons for these changes as given are: The radio usually ministers to mixed audiences at social functions as well as to the family at home. Also many restaurants and hotels like to have the radio on during the time that meals are being served.

Some whom we know to be Methodist Protestants who were in the graduating class at High Point College Monday are: Nat Graham Bethea, Oscar Lee Easter, James Henry Hight, Lucy Clyde Ross and Mary Ward Johnson. Very likely there were several others, but we do not know.

OUR STORY PAGE

GLADYS ANN'S LITTLE MOTHER

Betty Jean liked to go to school, and she loved her teacher. But now something had happened which made her quite unhappy. The teacher had announced that there would be a doll-party on Friday, and every little girl was to bring her favorite doll and every little boy an animal toy of some kind. Betty Jean wanted very much to stay at home and miss the party, but she was afraid that her mother would not allow that.

Betty Jean was a wee mite ashamed of her favorite and only doll and a whole lot ashamed of being ashamed at all, which made her very uncomfortable. Gladys Ann was made out of odds and ends, her body was soft old stockings, the eyes and nose and mouth embroidered on her face in wool, her hair taken from a ripped place in the mattress, which made it really truly hair although it never grew on a human head. Gladys Ann was a home-made rag doll. How Betty Jean did wish that some magic would change her rag doll into a store doll with golden hair and blue eyes before the party happened.

As Mother was making a new dress for the homemade doll, Betty Jean began to wonder if her very own mother would be ashamed of her little girl if she had shoe-button eyes or mattress hair.

"Mother, if I looked perfectly horrible, twisted, or with only one eye, would you love me?" she asked.

"Why, of course I would love you just as much as I do now. Don't you know that to every real mother her ugly duckling is a swan?" laughed mother.

By the time Betty Jean had been told all about ugly ducklings and swans, Gladys Ann's dress was finished to the last tiny buttonhole.

"I do love you," whispered Betty Jean, cuddling her rag doll in her arms. "After this I am going to be like a real mother and love you just as much as if you had blue eyes and golden hair."

So Betty Jean and Gladys Ann went to the party. And the strangest thing happened. All the little girls left their grand store dolls and gathered about Gladys Ann. They admired her cunning little clothes with real pockets, and the real buttonholes, and the shoes and stockings which you could take off and put on.

"Oh, what a cute doll," cried the first little girl. "I wish I had one like it, she's so soft and cuddly."

"I'm going to ask my mamma to buy me one," said the second little girl. "She's much nicer than mine."

"My mother made Gladys Ann and I love her just as much as if she was a swan," proudly declared Betty Jean.

"A swan is only an old bird that lives in a pond in the park, but this sweet doll—" cried the third little girl, cuddling Gladys Ann to her heart.

And the very next day, along came the mother of the first little girl to ask Betty Jean's mother if she would make a Gladys Ann for her little girl. And every day another mother came with the same request, until all the odds and ends about the house were made up into rag dolls, but not one of them as lovely in Betty Jean's eyes as Gladys Ann.

"Honey, the ladies have paid me so well for my work that now I can buy you a store doll," said mother.

"But I don't want a store doll now," answered Betty Jean. "I love Gladys Ann just as she is, and I am ashamed to think that I ever was ashamed of her. No real mother would be."

"And always remember that it is loving that makes the world and everything in it beautiful," added mother.—Our Little Ones.

"I WILL NOT LEAVE THEE"

God is with us in our sorrows. There is no pang that rends the heart, I might almost say, not one which disturbs the body, but what Jesus Christ has been with us in it all. Feel you the sorrows of poverty? He "had not where to lay His head." Do you endure the griefs of bereavement? Jesus wept at the tomb of Lazarus. Have you been slandered for righteousness' sake, and has it vexed your spirit? He said, "Reproach hath broken mine heart." Have you been betrayed? Do not forget that He, too, had His familiar friend who sold Him for the price of a slave. On what stormy seas have you been tossed which have not roared about His boat? Never glen of adversity so dark, so deep, apparently so pathless, but what in stooping down you may discover the footprints of the Crucified One. In the fires and in the rivers, in the cold night and under the burning sun, He cries, "I am with thee: be not dismayed; for I am both thy Companion and thy God."—Spurgeon.

THE OPEN DOOR

Dr. T. C. Horton entered an elevator one day and called for the floor at which he wished to stop. Always ready to see an opportunity for rehearsing what God has done for a world of lost sinners, he turned to the elevator boy and asked, "Are you bound for heaven or hell?" "I—I don't know," the startled young man replied. When the desired floor was reached the door was opened, but Dr. Horton made no move to go. The elevator boy waited a moment, then said to him, "Why don't you go? The door is open." "So is the door to heaven," answered Dr. Horton, walking out and leaving the young man to make the very obvious application. —S. S. Times.

LOVELY ADVICE

Among the hundreds of communications, we received a lovely advice by F. B. Meyer, given to one of our regular contributors, or rather writers, for our publications, which the recipient has never forgotten, she says, although received a goodly number of years ago. It is as follows:

"It is a great pleasure to learn that I have been helpful to you. I think that none of us can really help others until we have fallen into the ground to die. So you must expect, if God is going to use your pen, that there is a cross which you must accept, and ultimately will learn to kiss. Then you will bear fruit, and God will open a wide ministry. We must go through Calvary to reach Pentecost."—Selected.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HELPS

LUTHER R. MEDLIN

Topic for Sunday, June 2, 1935:
"Jesus As a Man of Prayer" (Consecration)

Scripture Lesson—Mark 1:35, 11:20-26

Let us go to a little more than usual trouble to plan this meeting. Let us make it truly a consecration meeting. A meeting at which impressions will be made that will last. A meeting where the young people are given a chance to rededicate their livss to the service of the church. Lead them to a deeper meaning of the pledge; a deeper devotion to Christ and his church. Lead them to greater usefulness of prayer as a means of enriching Christian experience.

Study the prayer life of Jesus as a means of showing the heights to which prayer lifted Him, and by following His example we may be lifted to similar heights. "Prayer was more vital to Him than daily bread or sleep He had definite prayer habits."

Have some one discuss the topic, "Is prayer a constant presence in your life?"

The following is copied from the Christian Endeavor World Quarterly, "One day in Paris, a religious procession passes Voltaire, the brilliant French skeptic. Voltaire, who was generally regarded as an infidel, lifted his hat.

"What," exclaimed the friend, "Are you reconciled with God?"

And Voltaire with fine irony replied, "We salute, but we do not speak."

That phrase is a true description of many men's relationship with God. They believe that God is, they cannot explain the universe without Him; they are theists; but they maintain no personal relationship with Him. They salute—but they do not speak."

In definite contrast is the beautiful life of prayer and devotion of Dr. Wifred Grenfell, the man who brought healing and Christ to far off Labrador. Grenfell the most loved man in the world today, possibly, has this to say:

"In the quiet of home, in the heat of life and strife, in the face of death, the privilege of speech with God is inestimable. I value it more because it calls for nothing that a wayfaring man, though a fool cannot give. When I can neither see nor hear, nor speak, still I pray so God can hear. When I finally pass through the valley of the shadow of death, I expect to pass through it in conversation with Him."

A candle light consecration service would be most impressive as a part of the program.

Use as a solo, or other specialty, "Prayer is the Soul's Sincere Desire."

For consideration: How much time do you spend in prayer each day?

Jesus prayed before a task. Do you?

ARE V. C. SCHOOLS WORTHWHILE?

Maybe some of you are not familiar with Vacation Church Schools and are a bit dubious as to their value. Here are comments by various people from all over the United States, (clipped from May, 1935 "New Century Leader"):

* * *

CO-OPERATION PUTS IT ACROSS

When no church in the community has adequate facilities for the daily Vacation Bible School, why not divide it among several? That is what was done for the 1934 school at Napoleon, Ohio. If it had been held in any one of the village churches, the crowding would have been unpleasant. The Beginners had their session in the Evangelical Church, the Primary children at the Methodist Church, and the Juniors at the Presbyterian Church.

Each church provided a teaching staff and assumed responsibility for the work done in its building. The expense of materials, however, was equally divided among the three co-operating churches.—W. H. L.

CHURCH LOYALTY PROMOTED

When the two-weeks session of the daily vacation Bible school in the Southern Methodist Church at DeLand, Fla., ended, there was a fine exhibit of articles made by the various groups and all intended for use around the church. Wastebaskets and decorated vases had been made for each department room. For the kitchen, there was a pile of neatly hemmed tea towels and a good supply of attractive and useful pot holders. Window boxes to be used on several windows had been finished by a group of boys. Finally, there was an interesting assortment of scrapbooks and jig-saw puzzles made from Bible lesson pictures, which could be used in the younger departments.

Because the children were able to do something for their church in return for what the church was doing for them by providing such a delightful school, a lesson in church loyalty was taught.—Elizabeth Williams Sudlow.

A B C's FOR DAILY VACATION BIBLE SCHOOLS

Among the best helps in a Missouri daily vacation Bible school last summer were the card board alphabet sets which the children made. It seemed that their uses were almost without end. A set of plain, straight-line alphabet patterns was secured from a supply company, and on the first day of school the pupils started making alphabets, using heavy cardboard. The patterns were traced aroudn, then the letters cut out. Different colors of cardboard made the alphabets more attractive. As the vowels and some of the consonants are needed more frequently than other letters, these were made in larger quantities. Then began the fun of using the alphabets. Bible verses that had been memorized were spelled out with them; they were set up in the sand table to name the scenes depicted there; they designated different rooms or divisions of the school; they were pasted on posters and used to construct mottoes mounted on colored cardboard or cloth. Finally, the Junior boys became so interested in the letters that they decided to make some of wood with their scroll saws. They therefore proceeded to cut out a large number, which were saved with the permanent supplies of the school, to be used the next summer.—Lois A. Wayland.

EMPHASIZE THE CHRIST LIFE

For the last several years, the daily vacation Bible schools of Pasadena, Calif., have had an average annual enrollment of more than 2,500 pupils; 24,728 children, twenty-five different nationalities, and thirty to fifty denominations have been in attendance during thirteen years. From twenty to thirty schools are now being promoted by the Pasadena Council of Religious Education.

Careful selection of teachers is effected by the use of form applications which provide complete data as to technical and spiritual qualifications. After appointments are made early in spring, a teachers' institute is held for the staff and others who wish to share in it, where the most approved methods, courses, and materials are studied and selected.

Besides creating the strength that results from co-operation, the unified program and organization, with expert leadership, has noticeably reduced expenses. Concerted effort has led the church people to realize that the Christian training of children should be broader than the program of any single denomination.

The mingling of twenty-five different nationalities, of all racial colors, under Christianizing influences, has created wholesome attitudes which will do much for the cause of world peace. The contacts of children of different social standards have made for better friendship among the various economic classes.

The Pasadena vacation schools are evangelistic, creating actual Christian living conditions for four weeks, where children see Christian principles at work and catch something of the spirit of love and service behind it all. Hundreds of children with no church contacts make the enthusiastic discovery that they want to be followers of Christ, and afterwards join some Sunday school or church.—Homer H. Elliott.

REMINISCENCES

By Rev. N. G. Bethea, D.D.

Sunday morning the rain came down in torrents. I was not prepared for what took place that Sabbath morning. It had gotten out in the country round about what had happened on Saturday night. Of course "rag tag and bobtale" came that day, notwithstanding the rain. Oh, if people were only interested in real righteousness like they are in having their curiosity satisfied, there would be a real revival of interest in holy things.

When I got to church Sunday morning it was packed to the doors. These same two fellows were on the front seat advertising their wares just as on Saturday before. Bibles in their hands ready to sally forth if they got a half a chance.

I walked right up in the pulpit, read my scripture as if there had never been such a person as these, went through the usual program. Of course they punctured the services everywhere they could with amens, but not quite so frequently as the night before. Everybody was at high tension to see what would be done. I prayed hard and earnestly that the Lord might direct in all things. I had been there long enough to know that there were a few folks in that clan that would stoop to almost anything to carry their point. They were out to win, whether right or wrong.

The good Lord helped me wonderfully that day. I never changed my plan in the least for the services. I preached as if there had never been a cult. It was the last Sunday before Conference. I knew if there was anything in the world that would kill a thing like they were trying to put over it was a business meeting. So instead of having a prayer at the close of the sermon, I never took time to walk down into the altar. Here is about the way I proceeded: Brethren, this is the time to elect officers for the new conference year. Who will you have for trustees? Who for class leaders, stewards, etc. Come back tonight, 7:30; benediction.

I never gave them time to "crank up." I think that is a good name for it. These fellows shut up their Bibles and walked out like a dog does when he is whipped. Nuf said.

I never was bothered again. They called off their dogs. Had service somewhere in the community that night. Still it rained. My normal congregation were out that night. Wound up a good year's work, went back for two more years after that. But let me tell you some things that happened to some of those folks. One man who went off with them, a member of our church, and had lots of hard things to say about his church and pastor, two of his boys spent the following Christmas in jail in that county. He lost out by his criticisms. Moral: Be careful how you find fault with your church leaders before your children.

Now may I tell you an amusing thing that happened with these same folks the following summer? It was a mean trick, but those of us who were inclined to look on the humorous side enjoyed it. They were holding a tent meeting about three miles from the church; that was about as near as they ever came any more. A church that they did wreck of another denomination, absolutely took possession of it, became a feed barn for one of their members later. But you want to know about the funny thing, I am sure.

At their meetings I was told that they stayed till after midnight most of the time, if not all, having the holy dance on the platform and having a big time. One night their own boys, while the parents were indulging in the dance, took their babies that were asleep and swapped them around from one vehicle to another, and of course they were all so worn out that they did not notice the change till next morning. Then there was a howl that went up from that community that was heard far and near. They went in wagon loads, some having no means of getting about. So next morning there was a stir all over that section, mothers hunting for their babies, and it was some time before they got the proper exchanges made. Mean? To be sure. But they were getting repaid in kind for their disrespect for the church, and their own children did the dirty work.

TEN WEEKS OF TITHE EDUCATION

Any church may now put on a ten weeks' course of tithing education, right in the midst of its other activities, and at a ridiculously small cost.

The Layman Company, which has distributed many millions of pamphlets on the tithe, is now sending out an attractive new series, at so low a price that distribution to an entire church through ten weeks costs only three and a half cents per family.

A complete set of samples and full particulars will be sent for 30 cents. This includes two playlets, a Tithing Account Book, the Scriptural Basis for the Tithe, and Winning Financial Freedom.

Please give your denomination; also mention the Methodist Protestant Herald.

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY, MT. PLEASANT, MT. PLEASANT CHARGE

The Woman's Auxiliary held its regular monthly meeting Sunday, May 23, with the president, Miss Callene Phillips, presiding. After the devotional, the delegates who attended the Branch meeting completed their report, some of which had previously been given at a circle meeting. Mrs. Carl Curtis, Misses Sallie Amick and Ola Stafford were the delegates who went to Asheboro. Others attending the meeting were Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Braxton and Mrs. J. A. Burgess. From the reports of the delegates we feel that our Auxiliary has received some valuable missionary inspiration as well as information which can be used to help advance our work.

A business session followed the program. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the recording secretary, Miss Ola Stafford. Miss Sallie Amick, the treasurer, reported that she had received $82.23 in the past two months. It was stated that $32.23 of the above amount was the profit realized from a lawn party which was given at the church Saturday evening.

It was announced that the Business Girls' Circle will meet with Miss Callene Phillips Saturday evening, June 1.

DR. BURRUS CAME NEAR HAVING DOWNFALL

On Monday morning while Carl Goerch was delivering the address at High Point College commencement, the chair on which Dr. J. T. Burrus, of High Point, was sitting partially collapsed and Dr. Burrus came near going to the floor. The mighty fall just as hard and as fast as do the little fellows.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Love Joy, Seagrove-Love Joy Charge.—The second Sunday Mother's Day was observed. The oldest and the youngest mothers were asked to come to the front, where Miss Mary Hulin pinned a white flower on each one. The eldest was Mrs. Jane Hall, aged 86 years, the youngest was Mrs. Homer Suggs, aged 22 years. Our pastor, Rev. E. G. Cowan, preached a fine sermon, reading from the last chapter of Proverbs. He paid a beautiful tribute to the Christian mother. We had an all-day service with dinner on the ground. In the afternoon Rev. L. A. King preached a good sermon, and a short talk by Mr. A. W. Hulin was enjoyed by all.

The second Sunday in June the Montgomery county Sunday school convention will be held at Love Joy. It will be an all-day service with dinner on the ground. Everyone is invited to attend.

We are glad our superintendent is able to come back and fill his place again. It has been several weeks he has not been able to attend on account of ill health. We missed him very much.

Alamance Charge.—Our second quarterly conference met at Sapling Ridge recently, with all four churches represented. It was a harmonious session from beginning to end. Miss Marcie Foust and Mrs. Mabel Teague were elected as nominees for delegate to the next annual conference. Either one of them would make a good representative for Alamance charge.

Back in the early spring shrubbery was planted at Rock Creek church, a donation of Mr. James Spoon, who owns a nursery and whose family are members of this church. Pastor and people are grateful to him for this gift.

All four Sunday schools are doing good work. While the attendance could be larger, much interest is being manifested. Rev. G. W. Holmes teaches the men's Bible class at Bethel every Sunday. It is always a pleasure to the pastor to sit at the feet of this good man.

On Easter Sunday Mrs. Harvey Foust united with Bethel church by letter, coming from the Saxapahaw M. E. church, South. Her husband is one of the splendid young men of the church. On the afternoon of the same day Mrs. Coy Garrett, who before marriage was Miss Annie Foust, transferred her membership from Bethel to Rock Creek, which is near her home.

Some weeks ago Dr. R. M. Andrews visited Center and Sapling Ridge churches. He preached edifying sermons at both places.

Realizing that the supreme mission of the church is to save souls, 31 members of this charge have pledged themselves to try earnestly to win at least one soul to Christ this year.

Mrs. "Jot" McPherson, who spent several weeks in the Burlington hospital, has returned home much improved. Other faithful members are kept from church because of sickness. We trust that they will soon be restored to normal health.

Pine Bluff, Midland Charge.—Our pastor, Rev. J. H. Trolinger, filled his regular appointment last Sunday. He brought us an interesting sermon, every one enjoyed it.

Our Sunday school is improving rapidly, and we are hoping it will still improve. We also enjoyed the Bible class discussion. I think every one that was present enjoyed it. We are to meet again the first Sunday afternoon in June at 2:30 o'clock. We are also planning to have a home-coming the third Sunday in June. Every one has an invitation to come and enjoy the day.

Brother Trolinger insisted on us to appoint some from our church next Sunday to attend the convention at High Point. We are hoping it will be successful.

Friendship Chuch, Fallston Charge.—The annual memorial service was held at this church last Sunday. A large number of friends and former members returned for the occasion.

Mr. Fogleman preached in the morning, using as his subject, "Other men have labored, and ye have entered into their labors." Immediately after the sermon, the graves were decorated with flowers. Dinner was spread on the ground—picnic style.

The afternoon was given over to singing under the direction of Mr. C. A. Wright. Among the groups present were the Haynes quartet of Bethlehem church, the Lily Mill quartet of Shelby, the Fallston quartet, and a quartet composed of Mr. Wright and three of his children, Chloe, Theron, and Colon. Misses Helen and Frances Graham of Earl sang several duets. All of the singing was thoroughly enjoyed. In the morning service little Betty Hunter Glenn and Moton Glenn, Jr. ,sang a song in memory of their grandfather, S. R. P. Glenn, who passed away several months ago.

A number of people present for the day made pledges on the new church. We now have around $2,100 in cash available in addition to 2,000 feet of lumber donated by the membership. About 100 loads of rock have been placed on the grounds for the concrete work. Present plans are to tear the old church down at the close of our revival services the last of July. The new building will be brick veneer with a basement and ten or twelve Sunday school rooms.

The Woman's Auxiliary met with Mrs. D. L. Martin on Monday afternoon. Miss Velma Wright was in charge of the program. After the program, delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Martin, assisted by Miss Larue Hoyle. Last week the auxiliary was guest of the Knob Creek auxiliary at their regular meeting in the home of Mrs. A. J. Jeffries. All of the women enjoyed the visit.

Our church was pleased to have the Western Pastors' Federation meet here on Monday of last week. One of our own boys, Rev. E. A. Bingham, is president of this group.

A Children's Day program as sent out by the Board of Missions is being planned for next month. Misses Jessie Baxter and Nathalie Lackey are in charge.

Mr. Fogleman preached the baccalaureate sermon at the Fallston high school. Two members of our church, Misses Nettie and Clara Wright, were graduated. Nettie was valedictorian of her class. The following members of our denomination have been reelected in the Fallston school: Miss Nathalie Lackey, English and French; Harvey Warlick, history, and Miss Eva Wright, fourth grade. Prof. W. R. Gary, principal, was reelected for his eleventh year.

The C. E. society enjoyed a social at the parsonage Saturday night. About 50 members and guests were present.

Mrs. A. A. Lackey and son, Austin, Jr., and Miss Nathalie Lackey spent last week visiting Mrs. E. E. Elkins at Ramseur, Mrs. A. R. Reep at Burlington, and Miss Cerelda Lackey at High Point College.

Mt. Carmel, Lexington.—Rev. Mr. Isley filled his regular appointment Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. He delivered an excellent message to a large congregation.

Since my last report Mt. Carmel has been busy, beautifying the church. Two coats of paint have been added to the interior of the auditorium, and the pews have been stained and varnished. The third coat of paint is expected to be added shortly.

The ladies' auxiliary met Sunday just after preaching service, with a good attendance. Mrs. Hattie Isley, president of the auxiliary, presided over the meeting. The treasurer reported on the quilt and $105 had been raised by this method. We now have $132 in the treasury that will be used shortly for the purpose of buying a piano.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Swicegood have the sympathy of the community in losing their infant son. Funeral services were conducted from the home and church Monday afternoon, April 13, by Rev. Mr. Isley. Mr. and Mrs. Swicegood only have a little adopted daughter. This seemed to make the burden heavier, although they expressed themselves by saying, "The Lord never made a mistake."

The annual home-coming will be held at Mt. Carmel the first Sunday in August. At this time the church will be dedicated. A full program will be published later.

Denton.—Since our last report we have had a special Mother's Day program. It was given by the Junior Philathea Sunday school class, Mrs. A. L. Hill, teacher. The program was thoroughly enjoyed by all. Our pastor filled his regular appointment Sunlay, May 19. Both services were well attended. The young people's group in Christian Endeavor occupied the choir for the Sunday evening service. They have a splendid group and we offer our congratulations for the good work they are doing. The Christian Endeavor society has recently been divided into three groups. We feel by doing this our Endeavor society will do much better work.

The enrollment and interest are increasing in Sunday school. The goal of 200 members has been set. We feel this goal will be reached in a few more weeks. The Baraca class will have charge of the program the second Sunday in June. A visiting teacher is expected to take charge of that class and then he will go to Mt. Ebal in the afternoon where Home-Coming Day will be observed.

Rev. and Mrs. J. T. Bowman have had as their guest for the past week Miss Ruth Bowman, a niece of our pastor.

We are glad to have Miss Margaret Rogers back with us. She has been teaching in Red Springs. We are looking forward to the return of the college students. We need them.

Flag Spring Church, Why Not Charge.—Our pastor, Rev. C. H. Hill, filled his regular appointment at Flag Springs on Sunday, May 19, at 3 o'clock, and preached an inspiring sermon, his subjejct being "God Chasing the Soul," using two texts for his base, the first one, "Whither shall I go from thy spirit?" Psalms 139:7; the second, "Oh, that I knew where I might find him," Job 23:3.

In the first part Brother Hill presented the sinner as he is going away from God, and the Spirit of God is following him and seeking to bring him into the fold of God. In the second part he presented the sinner as he sees his lost condition and begins to seek God. At the close of the service a number of young people requested an interest in prayer.

Brother Hill is giving us two preaching services each month now, the first and third Sundays at 3 p.m. Our congregations have increased more than 50 per cent since the first of the year, also our Sunday school has more than doubled in attendance.

Flag Springs has been regarded by some as a dead church, but she is coming back; already there has been a rattling among the dry bones. We are looking forward to a great revival this fall. We ask for the prayers of all Christians to this end.

Spring Church Circuit Auxiliary.—On May 1 at 2:30 p.m. the auxiliary met in the home of Mrs. W. L. Mitchell, with the president, Mrs. G. J. Mitchell, in charge. There were 12 active members, one honorary member, two Precious Jewels, and three visitors present.

Splendid reports were given by the different committees. A total count of all money turned in for the day was $16.03.

New business for the day was as follows: The auxiliary voted to clothe a child at the Children's Home, and the treasurer was instructed to forward $2.00 to Mrs. Dixon for shoes for the child. The dress committee was instructed to buy the necessary material for the summer outfit for the little girl. The auxiliary voted to buy a lawn mower for the parsonage and a commitee of three was named to make investigations and purchase one. The lawn mower has already been bought and already used on the parsonage lawn, and has met a long felt need. It is answering two purposes; namely, giving the pastor something to do, and making the lawn more attractive. It is very much appreciated by the parsonage family.

During the meeeting, brief reports of the Branch Meeting were given by Mesdames G. J. Mitchell, J. M. Durham, and Wm. H. Neese. All reported an interesting time. We are hoping to make this year count more along missionary lines than the year just closed.

At the close of the meeting the pastor led the society in the closing prayer.

Delicious refreshments were served by Misses Hazel and Mildred Mitchell.

New Hope, Mecklenburg.—I am glad to say that our work has been improving some of late. Last Sunday we had 104 in Sunday school. Rev. P. E. Bingham brought us a good message Sunday morning. We are trusting that we may have a real revival.

Rockingham.—The members of our church were glad to have as a visitor Sunday night Dr. Andrews, president of the North Carolina Conference. He delivered a splendid sermon. The text was taken from a part of the 8th chapter of St. Mark: "For what shall it profit a man if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul?"

A good-sized audience was present at this service, and everyone enjoyed Dr. Andrews' sermon immensely.

We had a wonderful prayer meeting last Wednesday night. Around 65 persons were present. The Holy Spirit was present, and I'm sure everyone received a blessing from God.

Our Sunday school is steadily increasing. We have on roll at present 129 persons. We all hope that it will keep on the increase.

Our program on Mother's Day was a great success. All the mothers wore their bonnets. It was a beautiful and inspiring sight. One elderly mother, Mrs. John Perkins, had charge of the devotional part of the service. A quartet was sung by four of the young people, the name of which was "She'll Be There." Everyone present enjoyed this service very much.

Our revival will start the second Sunday in June. May we all be very much in prayer for the meeting.

Spencer-China Grove.—Since becoming pastor of this charge I have found quite a congenial group of people. Though small in number, they have proved their love for God and the church. Surely an organization will function if the members have the determination to press forward.

Our hearts rejoice at the presence of Mr. A. L. Moore, who has recently recovered from an illness of about five months. Mr. Moore is one of the leading members of Spencer church and he has been missed during this period.

The third Sunday in June will mark the beginning of our revival meeting at Spencer. Dr. T .M. Johnson will be the pulpit help.

On the first Sunday in June our revival will begin at China Grove. Due to the fact that this organization is very young and no church building has been available, we are expecting to have preaching in a store building in the South China Grove section. Rev. C G. Isley will occupy the pulpit at this place. We request the prayers of all Christians for the progress of these two churches.

LEE MOSER.

Ebenezer, Greensville Charge.—I haven't seen a report from this place in some time. But we are still moving on with our work. Our Sunday school is increasing in number and also in interest under the leadership of our faithful superintendent, Mr. J. B, Clements.

We are glad to welcome our new pastor into our midst. He was with us yesterday to fill his first appointment at this place, and brought us a very inspiring message taken from Acts 8:35: "Then Philip opened his mouth, and began at the same scripture and preached unto him Jesus."

We are hoping and praying that everyone will co-operate with Bro. Lamb to make the remaining part of this year a great success for the upbuilding of God's kingdom.

Our next appointment will be held the second Sunday in June at 11 a. m. and everybody come and enjoy the service with us.

MABEL PEARSON, Reporter.

Palestine, Flat Rock Circuit.—Our pastor, Rev. C. B. Way, filled his appointment Sunday. The attendance was very good. Brother Way preached a good sermon. At the close the Lord's Supper was administered to a goodly number. Our Sunday school is still going on, interest fine.

Uncle Calvin Tucker continues right feeble. Mr Odell Sharron has just had a serious operation in a Richmond, Va., hospital. Odell is one of our very best boys, having served as Sunday school teacher and steward for some time. He is now engaged in the grocery business in Mayodan. Pray for this young man that he may be fully restored to health.

Friendship Station.—We are moving along nicely at Friendship. Good attendance at the Sunday school hour and also at the preaching service. We have observed Easter and Mother's Day with splendid programs since our last report. We are now preparing our Children's Day program, with Jewel Furr and Margaret Fink as directors. We held our second quarterly conference last Thursday night. The business of the church was transacted in a very friendly spirit. The nomination of the delegates to the Annual Conference was held, these being Mr. O. L. Hatley, our efficient superintendent, and Mrs. D. W. Sides. The climax to one side of the car race which was started some time ago was held in the Millingport schoolhouse Friday night in the form of a noodle supper. A large crowd was present and a neat sum was collected. Music was furnished by Mrs. James Lisenby, of Albemarle. The opposite side in the race will have an ice cream supper on the parsonage lawn Saturday night, June 1. Everybody is invited.

Mr. M. L. Snotherly, of our vicinity, and Miss Betty Yow, of Midland, were married in the First Baptist church in Concord May 11. These popular yoong people have the wishes of this entire community in their future happiness.

We still have some sick ones in our community, Messrs. N. F. Hatley, J. A. Herlocker ant Mrs. J. H. Harkey.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Snotherly spent last week in High Point.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Reed and son, Bobby, spent the week-end at the parsonage.

Price Furr, of Statesville, spent Sunday here.

J. N. Snotherly, teacher in the High Point high school during the past year, is spending his vacation in the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Snotherly. REPORTER.

Shiloh, Liberty Charge.—On Mother's Day at 11 o'clock Mrs. W. C. Burrow, one of our oldest members, was laid to rest in the church cemetery. Mrs. Burrow was 81 years of age.

Sunday, May 26, Mr. George Bowman was buried in the church cemetery.

On Friday morning, May 24, Mr. Albert Jordan was found dead in bed. He passed quietly from his home here to one above to join his many friends and loved ones. Although he was not a member of our church, he worshiped with us as often as his health would allow him. He will be greatly missed. He was 61 years old. He was buried at Liberty Grove near Liberty, N. C.

Little Bobby Leach, who had the misfortune to fracture his leg, has recovered sufficiently to have the cast removed.

Miss Pauline Whitaker is slowly improving.

Our next Ladies' Aid meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Eli Garrett. We hope to have a large number present.

Miss Fern Garrett, who has been in New Jersey taking nurse training, is at home for a few days, visiting with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Garrett.

We are glad to have Misses Mattie and Novie Jordan and little nephew back at Sunday school.

We are glad to report that Mrs. Mollie Staley is much improved.

Those present at Mrs. J. A. Crowson's Sunday night, May 26, enjoyed the choir practice very much. REPORTER.

Corinth, Littleton Circuit.—Our pastor, Rev. R. L. Vickery, has been bringing us some very inspiring messages. Yesterday we held our annual memorial service here and our pastor preached a very good sermon. Someone said it was the best they had ever heard him preach. The cemetery had been cleaned and flowers were put on all the graves.

Dr. Andrews will preach for us the first Sunday in July at the 11 o'clock service. We hope to have a large crowd present.

Our oldest member, Mrs. Bettie Insco, mother of D. A. Insco, celebrated her 95th birthday anniversary on May 17. She attended services at church on Mother's Day and was presented a nice bouquet of flowers.

Mr. M. J. Morris, one of our good members, was given a surprise on May 19, his 68th birthday, when all his children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren met at his home and spent the day with him. This home has been blessed by the family circle not being broken. There were 11 children, 30 grandchildren and 3 great-grandchildren present for the occasion. Dinner was served picnic style in the grove. We wish for Mr. Morris many more happy birthdays.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Simpson are spending the summer with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Bobbitt. We are glad to have them back in Sunday school with us.

Our deepest sympathy goes out to a former member of this church, Mr. Richard Williams, in the loss by death of his wife on May 18.

Calvary, Greensboro.—Our revival meeting which began Sunday, May 19, came to a close Sunday evening. We feel that the meeting was quite a success. Never before have we had the privilege of listening to more wonderful sermons than those brought to us throughout the week by Dr. Paschall. An added feature of the revival was the effectiveness with which the singing was directed by Dr. Bethea. Dr. Bethea was so very faithful. He attended each service during the week and the service on Sunday evening, rendering a great work at each service.

Two of our church members are patients at the Wesley Long hospital, Mrs. W. M. Pike and Mrs. J. W. Tucker.

Mrs. Otis Campbell is still confined to her home by illness.

Dr. Pritchard wants to meet all the boys and girls who are interested in uniting with the church at the hut Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

Miss Annie Laurie Vestal, of Mount Vernon Springs, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. J. E. Pritchard, this week.

Circle No. 1 will sponsor a steak dinner at the Huntley-Stockton-Hill salon next Thursday. MRS. HOWARD R. NEECE.

Liberty Hill, Anderson Charge.—On second Sunday morning we were indeed glad to have our good president, Dr. Andrews, with us for the morning hour. He brought us a most splendid message for the occasion. May God bless him. That night a special program honoring mothers was given by the Christian Endeavor Society. This was a fine service, having been sponsored by Miss Lucille Davis.

Our Sunday school was "off" Sunday, but we hope this will not continue.

Our midweek prayer service is still existing, though sometimes it is just the faithful few. We can still have a prayer meeting and remember Jesus said, "Where a few are gathered together in my name there will I be also."

We were glad to see Brother Walker Smith, one of Liberty Hill's oldest members, in the congregation Sunday. Mr. Smith hasn't had good health for some time, so we are thankful God gave him strength to be with us Sunday.

We were also glad to have Mr. John Greene back with us recently. Mr. Greene has been critically ill this past winter and spring, but God restored him back again.

Mrs. R. T. Bennette and Mrs. W. R. Harrison are ill at this writing. We pray they may be restored to health soon.

Miss Thalia Foster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Foster, was seriously burned April 18 when the school bus in which she was coming home burned. She is getting along nicely now, although she hasn't been permitted to return to school. We are glad she is able to return to Sunday school. She is a member of the Intermediate Class. We hope she continues to improve and will soon have the use of her arm, which is where she was burned the worst.

We covet your prayers. REPORTER.

Shiloh, Shiloh Charge.—Our work is still moving along nicely. The monthly prayer meeting was conducted by Mrs. Protus Koonts, whose class, Mother's Class No. 2, was in charge. The attendance at that service was 104. The other organizations are doing very well but no special report is necessary at this time.

The hand of death has visited our ranks again and claimed another one of our faithful and loyal members, Mrs. Fannie Shoaf, wife of J. M. Shoaf. Mrs. Shoaf had been a patient at the Davidson hospital, Lexington, for two weeks for treatment of a broken leg and ankle suffered in an automobile accident May 5. She had apparently been recovering as rapidly as possible when a sudden heart attack, it is said, resulted in death. Her passing came as a sudden shock to her family, friends and church.

Gibsonville.—Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock Mr. D. L. Robinson preached for us. He used seven words from Gensis 1:10, "And God saw that it was good." We were happy to have Mr. Robinson with us. We are always glad to have visitors in our church. Sunday morning, May 19, we had with us Mrs. J. W. Hill and Mrs. Thomas, of Asheboro; Mr. and Mrs. Lance W. Jennings, of Waynesboro, Va.; Mr. Scott and Mr. Ephland, from Burlington.

Mrs. Sam T. Thacker, Jr., and little son, Sam III, arrived Thursday from Charleston, W. Va., to spend several weeks with her parents, Rev. and Mrs. Roland C. Stubbins.

Mrs. Paul Waynick was hostess Tuesday evening to the members of the Young Women's Auxiliary at the home of her parents. Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Yow. A large attendance was present. Mrs. Waynick, president, presided and conducted the devotional. Mrs. Walter Petty was in charge of the program. The four concluding chapters of the mission study book, "Builders of a New World," were reviewed by Mrs. Roland C. Stubbins.

The Woman's Auxiliary met Wednesday evening with Mrs. Carl Allen and Miss Nancy Rountree as joint hostesses at the home of Mrs. Allen. The June meeting will be a joint meeting of the two auxiliaries at the home of Mrs. D. M. Davidson, when a measuring party will be held for the benefit of the Young Women's Auxiliary.

I am glad to report that the Sunshine Circle won the banner at the state Branch meeting for the most outstanding work done during the past year. They are the most active organization in the church. Mrs. W. J. Jennings is their leader and has been since the beginning eight years ago. The names of the ones belonging to this circle are as follows: Jeanne Owen, Nellie Donald Lucas, Lucna Huffman, Ruth Ellen Yow, Agnes Adkins, Betsy Neil Hammer, Sarah Frances Vincent, Minnie Maye, J. F. Shelton, Jr., Frank R. Owen, Jr., and Lacy Pritchard.

The Girls' Bible Class are always in their places at church and Sunday school with their lessons well prepared. They love the good and beautiful, so they are being workers together with God in helping Him to make everything beautiful in its time. They are planting flowers around the church and hut that others too may share the beautiful with them.

Our church and community has been saddened by the death of one of our most loved members, Mrs. H. B. Owen, mother of Mr. A. B. Owen. While our loss is Heaven's gain, may her loved ones and many friends look to the Heavenly Father for comfort.

Shiloh C. E. Society, Shiloh Charge.—The C. E. Society seemingly has taken on new life within the last few weeks. Several of our old members were back with us Sunday evening, May 26, also several visitors. We were glad to welcome both old members and visitors.

The society is planning for a box supper on Saturday night, June 8, to be held at the home of Miss Grace Evans. Everyone is cordially invited. The proceeds are to be used in raising the C. E. budget for this year.

Programs for the past month have been very difficult but exceptionally interesting. It seems that those programs that require a little more study are best presented. The program for Sunday evening, May 19, was led by Miss Kathleen Lanning. Lesson for May 26 was led by Mr. Freel Berrier, and the lesson for Sunday evening, June 2, will be led by Mr. Homer Sink. We welcome you to our meetings each Sunday evening at 8 o'clock at the church. We, the president, the leader, and the entire society welcome each and everyone. Pray for us that we "may not grow weary in well doing."

First Church, Lexington.—Two weeks ago, on Sunday, May 19, Dr. A. L. Smoot, a Baraca organizer, and Prof. Seaford, both of Salisbury, were present and organized the Men's Bible Class into a Baraca class with 63 members present. Mr. Phonse Bean was elected teacher, Mr. J. J. Mallard president, Grady Lanning secretary, T. D. Westmoreland chairman of the welcoming committee, O. F. Johnson chairman of the sick committee, and Arvil Parker chairman of social committee. The purpose of this class is to have an enrollment of 100, and visitors are always welcome. We hope that they are successful in their purpose and we hope we may have more classes like this one.

Dr. Smoot and Prof. Seaford also organized the Ladies' Class No. 4 into a Philathea class the same Sunday, and a goodly number of members were present. We hope that this class will also be successful. There are three things the Baraca Class stands for. The three things are: (1) to get men to come to Sunday school; (2) to get them to stay for the preaching services, and (3) it stands for the pastor. May God bless this class and all the other classes and may all of them stand for these three rules.

Services Sunday night, May 19, and prayer services Wednesday night, May 22, were called off at First church and at most of the other churches in Lexington owing to the commencement exercises at Lexington high school. The baccalaureate sermon Sunday night was largely attended, and the graduation exercises Wednesday night were also largely attended. First church had three of its members in the graduating class this year, these being Paul Wallace, Roy Hamilton and David Yarborough. At the present, David Yarborough is in the Duke Hospital at Durham and we hope that he will soon be able to return home.

Miss Margaret Lea Swink continues ill at her home. We hope she will soon be well.

We are asking the prayers of our friends who read the reports by different churches. Our prayers are with all the other churches elsewhere.

Hebron, Orange Charge.—Although the reporter has not been reporting, the people of our church have been up and doing.

Some time ago we made money and bought new carpet and rubber matting for our church, which has greatly added to the appearance of the church.

Our Sunday school is progressing very nicely under the leadership of Mr. Warren McAdams. We still have many in our community that we want to attend.

Our pastor, Rev. B. M. Williams, has brought us some very helpful sermons since the last report.

Mother's Day was observed May 12 with a very impressive sermon from our pastor. Misses Evelyn and Rozelle Nicholson sang a duet, "I'll Wear a White Flower for You, Mother Dear."

We were very glad to have had Rev. G. W. Holmes preach to us some few Sundays ago. His sermon was very interesting and uplifting and was enjoyed by all. Come again, Mr. Holmes.

We are planning to have our Children's Day program the fourth Sunday in June. There will be two services—children's service in the morning at 11 o'clock and preaching in the afternoon. There will be dinner on the grounds. We will be glad to have any who can attend.

Asheville.—No news from us last week because those of us who were graduates of the Normal School took the day off to attend the baccalaureate service there. We are still on the map, though not kicking quite so enthusiastically as we have on some previous occasions. Things are, in truth, a bit slow; but Mr. Minnis, Miss Frances S. Cunningham and Miss Nancy Clouse are off this (Tuesday) morning to attend the South Regional Convention at High Point. We are expecting them to return with plenty of new ideas and enthusiasm enough to pep up all of us who could not go. You didn't know we were expecting so much, did you folk? Mrs. Minnis and the children went along and are going on from High Point to Mrs. Minnis' home for a vacation. We wish them a pleasant time.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Hanner and Mrs. Arline H. Nodine are leaving this week-end for Berea, Ky., to attend the graduating exercises at Berea Collge. Louise is a member of the graduating class there this year and will come home sometime next week with her parents. We shall be glad to have Louise home again. Miss Josie McNeill will also be arriving in the near future from our own High Point College. It gives us great pleasure to have these two young people return to our church. We need their enthusiasm and zeal.

Mrs. Joyner was a bit under the weather this past week-end. We missed her. Mrs. Bolick was unable to be out because Jennie had just had her tonsils taken out and was confined to her bed. Jennie is getting on fine now, so we shall see them next Sunday. Mrs. Wilson and Margaret were back on Sunday, we are pleased to report. Margaret seems to have completely recovered from her recent illness. Mr. and Mrs. Hanner and Mr. and Mrs. Moore were missing too on Sunday morning. We trust they will soon be back with us again, and also Mrs. Y. D. and Nan Eller and Mrs. Sam Hendrickson.

The Senior Christian Endeavor group enjoyed their picnic at Camp Powhatan last Friday evening.

A Christian Endeavor rally for the southwestern district is scheduled to be held on Sunday coming, 4 p. m., at our church. All groups are urged to be present. A registration fee of 10 cents will be taken at the door to help pay the expenses of the speaker. A picnic supper will follow. Let's all be present.

Plans are going forward for a Children's Day to be held June 9. At the morning hour each class will have a part in the program directed by the respective teachers. A chance will be given by the pastor for any child or adult to unite at that time with the church. We earnestly trust those of you who are not members will unite with us at this time. The night service will be under the direction of Miss Nancy Clouse, with the following children taking part: Polly Gentry, Lola Johnson, Betty Marlowe, Virginia Taylor, Lorene Moser, James Clouse, Bruce and Dick Barrett, Billy and Jack Bailey and Melvin Baker, and others who will assist by singing in the choir. Let's make this the best Children's Day we have ever had. M. L. B.

Mill Grove, Midland Charge.—The stewards of Mill Grove church are now ready to post our chart tacked up in the church showing what each member has paid for the month of May. We invite all to see what he or she has paid. Folks, we don't expect each one to give as much as some others. But how many of us are so broke we can't get snuff or tobacco, cold drinks or ice cream. I see many spending money for things of that kind that say when you approach them for five cents for the pastor that they are broke. Can we have faith in people like that? Can we as church people throw away our word of honor to avoid doing what we can? It looks bad to see this chart showing blank opposite your name. Pay five cents per week is better than nothing. Some have paid one month a little and no more. We thank you for that. But you pay a little more. If you will divide your income, let it be small or great. The steward is watching you. And the world is watching us. Let's do better every day. We never stay the same. We are advancing or going backwards.

Brother J. T. Voncannon, of Pine Bluff, and Sister J. Springer, of Mill Grove, were nominated delegates to Annual Conference. Either elected will do their duty as required, I am sure. I forgot to make mention of this in last write-up. They were nominated at last quarterly conference, held at Mill Grove. Sisters O. B. Furr and J. E. Little, members at Mill Grove and Love's Grove, have been in serious condition for past while. Sister Furr, we hope, is improving. Sister Little was operated on May 20 at Presbyterian Hospital, Charlotte, and is still in the hospital. She has been in serious condition but she, too, we hope, will soon be able to return home. We ask the special prayers of all Christian people for them. L. W. McCOY, Reporter.

ONE OBITUARY SUFFICIENT

Our correspondents will pardon us for not printing obituaries sent in by them in cases where the pastor has already sent one. In so far as we know the Herald is the only church paper that does not place some kind of limit on the length of obituaries. Since we do not and since we have difficulty finding space for all, it seems that one is enough for each deceased person. In most cases obituaries are very similar, and since they are, it is somewhat of a repetition to have more than one.

REPORT OF WESTERN PASTORS' FEDERATION MEETING

The Western Pastors' Federation met at Friendship church, Fallston charge, on May 13, and the theme, "Christ and the Great Commission," was the basis for the various addresses. The program began at 10:30 with the devotional in charge of Rev. J. L. Love, and the first speaker was Rev. J. T. Bowman, who spoke on the teaching program of the church. This was followed by an address by Dr. R. M. Andrews, who spoke on the subject, "Four Answers to the Age-old Question, What Shall I Do With Jesus?" This was a very timely message, fitting into our day, and dealing with answers people continue to give to this important question.

Brother Fogleman was host to the meeting, and the good ladies of the church served a most delightful picnic lunch. The chairman of the federation, Rev. E. A. Bingham, had charge of the program, and presided in his most pleasing manner. In the afternoon Rev. H. F. Foglyeman had charge of the devotional, and the first speaker was Mrs. J. T. Bowman, who spoke on "Organizing the Women of the Church." This was followed by Dr. T. M. Johnson, who spoke on "Organizing the Men of the Church."

The closing session was held at Shelby M. P. church beginning at 7:30. The devotional service was conducted by Rev. R. S. Troxler, and the first speaker for the evening was Rev. Kenneth P. Holt, who spoke on Christian Endeavor and World Service. This was followed by Rev. C. E. Ridge, who spoke on the Gospel of Christ in the Great Commission. It should be stated that the ladies of Shelby church provided splendid entertainment for all who went there for the evening service.

The federation voted to hold the fall meeting at Chapel Hill camp ground on Davidson charge. Thirteen of our ministers were present for the meeting.

C. E. RIDGE, Secretary.

MRS. HAMMER AND MRS. BROWN INJURED

On last Thursday afternoon as Dr. and Mrs. George R. Brown and Mrs. W. C. Hammer were returning from the General Missionary Convention and the annual meeting of the Board of Missions, Dr. Brown's car had a blow-out near Rocky Mount, Va., and went down a steep place into a river. Mrs. Hammer suffered a broken arm and at first it was thought she had several broken ribs. Later, however, it was decided the ribs were not broken but were badly bruised. Mrs. Brown suffered a bad cut over the eye. Dr. Brown was not badly hurt. Mrs. Hammer was taken to Duke University Hospital on Friday, while Mrs. Brown was removed to her home at Reidsville. How much worse it might have been!

THE PASTORS' SCHOOL

While we have not been able to attend any of the classes for ministers being conducted at High Point College this week, yet we have heard that several men are in attendance.

—Mrs. W. C. Kennett, notwithstanding her 87 years, attended Sunday school and the morning church service at Calvary last Sunday morning.

MARRIED

Garrett-Coble

On May 4 in the Tabernacle parsonage in the presence of a few intimate friends, Miss Kate Garrett and Mr. Neat Coble were married as the vows of the beautiful marriage service of the Methodist Protestant church were given and received in the presence of Rev. Geo. L. Curry, pastor of Tabernacle church. Mrs. Coble is the beautiful and accomplished daughter of Mrs. Ola Garrett and one of the finest young women of Tabernacle church. Mr. Coble is the son of Mr. Jacob Coble and is a faithful member of Coble's Lutheran church. After the marriage the happy couple visited Asheville and other cities. They are now at home in their beautiful new residence on the Greensboro-Liberty road. We wish for them the joys of a long and happy life. GEO. L. CURRY.

Williams-Madison

On Wednesday evening, May 15, at 8:30 o'clock, Miss Helen Williams and Mr. Blaine M. Madison were united in marriage in the home of the bride's father. The ring ceremony of the Methodist Protestant church was used. T. Glenn Madison, brother of the groom, was the officiating minister, assisted by Rev. D. F. Davis, pastor of the bride. A large number of friends and relatives was present.

Mrs. Madison is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Carter Williams, of Yadkinville, N. C. She is a graduate of Woman's College of the University of North Carolina, and for several years has taught in the Union Grove high school.

Mr. Madison is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Madison, of Union Grove. He is a graduate of High Point College and for the past two years has been principal of the Cool Springs high school.

They will make their home at Cool Springs.

T. G. MADISON.

DR. BETHEA AVAILABLE

We now have the privilege of announcing that Dr. N. G. Bethea, the pastor of West End church in Greensboro, is available for assistance in leading the singing in evangelistic meetings. We are particularly pleased to make this announcement, because Dr. Bethea has just finished an engagement in Calvary church, Greensboro. To our way of thinking, someone to lead the right kind of music in the right way is even more important these days than having assistance in preaching. A great many pastors could hold successful meetings, they themselves doing the preaching, if they had someone to direct the worship.

ERROR IN CALVARY'S PAYMENT TO COLLEGE

In setting up the payments to the college last week the figure 5 was left off of Calvary's payment, making it read $5.00 when it should have been $55.00. The total amount of the assessment was $80.00, but the Woman's Auxiliary raised $25.00. Errors are always bad, but when they come right home to the editor they are very bad, indeed.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Allred

Brother and Sister Dewitt Allred have the sympathy of the entire community of Bethel church in the loss of their infant daughter, Margaret Irvin. She was born May 1, but lived only about eight hours. "Just budded on earth to bloom in heaven." They now have two children in heaven and three with them here. May these that have been taken be a drawing force for those who are still here, and thus help to make this an unbroken family in that land where there is no death.

May the God of all comfort bind up these broken hearts. May the mother, upon whom the sorrow falls most heavily, be comforted in the thought that her children are both safe in the arms of Jesus, waiting for mother to join them over there. G. L. REYNOLDS.

Allred

Charley Allred, son of Geo. S. Allred and Amanda Lineberry Allred, was born January 6. 1883, and died at his home in Gray's Chapel community, April 22, 1935. June 8, 1913, he was married to Miss Ollie Redding, also of this community To this union were born one daughter, Coleen, and one son, Charles, Jr. Besides his wife and children, he is survived by two sisters, Mrs. H. H. Elder, of Siler City, and Mrs. O. H. Kirkman, of Greenwood, S C. There are also three brothers, Jesse and Henry, of Siler City, and John, of High Point. He also leaves many friends and neighbors who join the family in mourning because he has been taken.

In early life he made a profession of religion and joined Gray's Chapel M. P. church and remained a member to the time of his death.

Just why this father and husband has been taken we cannot tell. But we know that the "Lord doeth all things well." Some day we shall know and understand. May the Lord bless and take care of the bereaved family, and give them grace to enable them to see His goodness and mercy in all that He does.

G. L. REYNOLDS.

Holder

Miss Edna Mae Holder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Albert Holder, was born April 3, 1908. She departed this life April 14, 1935. Her age was 27 years and 11 days.

I had but little opportunity to become intimately acquainted with the deceased, though I have known her father and mother for many years. When I became the pastor of the family six months ago I heard Miss Edna spoken of as a very excellent and capable young woman. My personal acquaintance with her since has led me to share the high esteem in which I found her to be held by those who had known her intimately for years.

At the age of 14 years she joined the Asheboro Methodist Protestant church, and for the remainder of her life she was a faithful and beloved member.

As a business woman, I understand that she was painstaking, accurate, and dependable.

In the home she was affectionately considerate of the other members of the family and shared unselfishly the family burdens.

The noble traits of a life so exemplary as hers, though short, and untimely ended, will linger with those who knew her best as a pleasing memory.

And now that she has gone from us, we can only commit her to One who understands the mysteries of life, and who knows all about the secret impulses, meanings, and purposes of the soul. We know that He is too wise to make any mistakes, and too good to be unjust in His dealings with frail humanity. This assurance comforts our hearts.

Besides the father and mother, the deceased is survived by two sisters, Misses Cleone and Evelyn, and three brothers, James, Ruby, and Cicero. For all of these sorrowing ones our heart is moved in tender sympathy. May the God of all comfort be gracious, and soothe their sorrowing hearts as only He can do.

The funeral was held at the Holder home on Monday, April 15. The writer was assisted in the service by Rev. H. T. Stevens, D. D., of the Baptist church, and Rev. R. S. Truesdale, D. D., of the M. E. church, South. Her body sleeps in the Asheboro cemetery, where it was lovingly placed beneath a covering of flowers to await the resurrection morn.

S. W. TAYLOR.

Smith

Mrs. T. A. Smith was a faithful member of the Burlington Methodist Protestant church for a number of years. She found great joy in attending the worship services of the church. She was interested in the success of the program of the church. However, during the last few years of her life her health did not permit her to attend the church services.

Mrs. Smith will be missed in the community, especially in her immediate neighborhood, for she was a good neighbor. She will be missed in the home and in her church. But her influence for good and right will live on. Such influence bears fruit throughout the years of time and the complete harvest will only be known in eternity.

Mrs. Smith was born on March 13, 1865, and passed to her reward on March 31, 1935, having lived 18 days more than 70 years.

May all the loved ones be comforted with the unfailing comfort of our heavenly Father.

FRED W. PASCHALL.

Nelson

Mrs. Fannie Nicholson Nelson passed from labor to reward May 9, 1935, aged 69 years and 6 days. She joined Mt. Hermon church at 13 years of age, later transferred to Hebron M. P. church, where she remained a faithful member until death.

Funeral services were held at Hebron on May 10, conducted by the writer, assisted by Revs. T. M. Johnson and G. W. Holmes, of our church, and J. D. Bundy, pastor of the Mebane M. E. church, South. Bros. Ballard and Paschall of our church, and Brown of the M. E. church, South, also attended these services, besides a large congregation of relatives and friends.

Near relatives remaining are as follows: Daughters, Mrs. Annie Brown, Mrs. A. K. McAdams, Mrs. Ed Foster, and Miss Matilda Nelson; sons, J. Sam and W. A. Nelson; sisters, Mrs. John Boone, Mrs. Sallie Foster, Mrs. L. C. Sykes; brothers, G. A., J. W., H. C., J. A. and A. F. Nicholson.

It furnished a ray of joy to hear the fine testimony of Bros. Holmes and Johnson to the memory of this good woman.

May God bless and comfort all the relatives and friends. B. M. WILLIAMS.

Shoaf

Fannie Walser Shoaf, daughter of Albert and Augusta Walser, was born February 17, 1882, and departed this life May 21, 1935, aged 53 years, 3 months and 4 days.

She was married to James M. Shoaf December 21, 1911. To this union were born one son and two daughters, namely, Hollis Wade, age 17; Eva Helen, age 16; Mary Frances, age 13. She professed faith in Christ at the age of about 12 years, and united with Shiloh M. P. church and remained a faithful member until death. She leaves to mourn their loss the husband, the children, five brothers, namely, J. Willard Walser, Lexington, Route 5; H. L. Walser, Winston-Salem; J. A. Walser, Lexington; Adam F. and Robert L. Walser, Salisbury. There are four sisters, Mrs. Joe Fritts, Lexington, Route 5; Mrs. T. L. Young, Lexington; Mrs. W. B. Swicegood, Lexington, Route 4; Mrs. O. J. Hedrick, Thomasville, and a large number of relatives and friends.

She was a good mother, a devoted companion, faithful to her home and church. The home has lost a good mother, the community has lost a good neighbor, the church has lost a most valued member. Our loss is heaven's gain.

> "A precious one from us has gone,
> A voice we loved is stilled;
> A place is vacant in our home,
> Which never can be filled.
> God in His wisdom has recalled
> The boon His love had given,
> And though the body slumbers here,
> The soul is safe in Heaven."

The funeral was held at Shiloh M. P. church on Thursday, May 23, 1935, in charge of the writer, assisted by Rev. R. S. Troxler, pastor of Cleveland charge, and Rev. E. C. Rouch, pastor of Reeds Baptist church. The congregation was large and the floral offering was large and beautiful.

The bereaved have our sympathy.

Petty

Bessie Lorene Perry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Granville Perry, was born in Chatham county March 31, 1912, and passed away in Duke Hospital, Durham, May 15, 1935. On July 7, 1927, she was married to Hiram Petty. This union was blessed with three children, two of which survive. Early in life she accepted Christ as her Savior and united with Sapling Ridge Methodist Protestant church, remaining a faithful member until death. Those who knew her best say she was a loving mother and faithful wife. We cannot understand with our finite minds why this young mother was taken when she was needed so much in the home to help train the two small children. But God makes no mistakes.

The funeral was held at New Salem Baptist church by the writer and Rev. B. L. Gupton. Burial took place in the church cemetery. H. L. ISLEY.

Those who have been following this column through the year can readily see that we have something to rave over this week as well as something to make us a little bit humble. But before we comment on the smallness of the receipts, let us take off our hats to Kannapolis and Asheville. Both of these places have been steadily plodding on during the year and this week both of them reach the goal. That is going some for two charges to go over the top at the same time. Well, let us extend our congratulations to all the folks who had anything to do with this great achievement. Henceforth both of these charges are to stand up before the world arrayed in capital letters. But we trust they will not cease to send in subscriptions simply because they have reached the goal.

And another thing that deserves special mention is that Roberta pays subsidy in full this week. All the rest of this year she will have a perfect record, for she had already gone over the top in subscriptions.

And now a word about receipts. For the past two weeks the receipts have fallen far below expenses. Of course we could not expect to hold the pace set the first half of the conference year; however, we do feel that it is early in the summer for receipts to be getting so low. This week, at the midyear meeting, sections of the mailing list will be handed to the pastors. Herald agents and pastors will please scan these lists, and where there is a subscription expiring please go and get the renewal. We must depend on the pastors and the agents. We do not want to cut any one off the mailing list and yet we have to pay for every copy that is printed. If people are not going to renew, then it is a loss to us to keep sending the papers. So, all together for a big week next week, like we had the first part of the year, and we will smile again. The receipts this week are $28.71, $21.21 being for subscriptions and $7.50 on subsidy.

VOLUME XLI GREENSBORO, N. C., JUNE 6, 1935 NUMBER 29

The Mid-Year Meeting

On Friday of last week quite a goodly number of pastors and laymen assembled at High Point College for the Mid-Year meeting sponsored by President Andrews. While we cannot write in detail about the meeting, yet there are a few things about it which we want to mention. The devotional service was conducted by Rev. S. K. Spahr, D. D., pastor emeritus of Grace church in Greensboro. Rev. J. Elwood Carroll, the pastor of Grace church, made a ringing speech on the subject, "Methodist Protestanism Before and After Unification." The address was full of things to make Methodist Protestants appreciate their denomination more. This was followed by a pageant in which the characters represented some phase of our Annual Conference work. This pageant was written and staged by Rev. and Mrs. Elwood Carroll. When the character representing a certain interest had spoken, then there would be read the list of churches that had made payments to that particular interest.

In the afternoon the outstanding feature was an address by Bishop Paul B. Kern, of the M. E. Church South, on some attainable goals in ministerial experience. The Bishop said that not all preachers could be classified as outstanding intellectual preachers but that every preacher ought to be able to take the gospel message and make it interesting. He also reminded his audience that it is possible for every minister to be a good man. He warned his hearers also against judging the work by the outward appearances, reminding them of the fact that many of the most enduring things of the church are things that cannot be put down with pen and ink but that they are spiritual values. His comments on the dreams of young preachers and how they expect to turn the world upside down were particularly interesting. One of the illustrations which he used in this connection had to do with a young college student who took a charge while in school. He came in from his charge one day and told the Bishop who was dean of the college at that time that he had heard that some women in his church were gossiping and that he prepared a sermon against such practice and that he preached it, expecting to stop the practice. Two weeks later he went back to the same church and to his utter surprise and dismay the women were still gossiping. How true to life this is! If one sermon could cure all the ills of any community, how quickly they could be blotted out. But those of us who have been preaching many years know all too well how that sometimes we see very few results from the sermons which we preach. The Bishop is a master at imitating people. His display of the eccentricities of some preachers kept his audience in a jovial frame of mind and made them wish that he would continue longer. In closing his address the Bishop said there were several other things he would like to say but that he would save them for the next time. President Andrews was quick to reply, "We will remember that and hold you to the promise."

And now, a few words about the value of these Mid-Year meetings. It seems to us that they have great possibilities. Of course it will be necessary to change the program from time to time, for anything will wear out, but with some new features added occasionally, it seems to us that much can be accomplished. By having reports in the middle of the year the men have their attention called to the fact of how much is yet to be done before the meeting of the Annual Conference. The Mid-Year meeting is in a sense a miniature Annual Conference, with the legislative side left off. When we come up to this meeting we can see the weakness of our work and in a sense we have another chance before the year is gone, whereas when we wait until the end of the year there is no more time to do anything about it. All in all, we would say that the meeting was stimulating and helpful and that those in attendance are in better position to finish the year than they could have been without the meeting.

To the Graduates

Now that the commencement exercises of our colleges are about over, it might not be out of place to say a few words to the graduates. If we could see all of the graduates that have gone out from the schools of North Carolina this year at one time, the number would be so large it would almost astonish us. These young men and young women have come up from a variety of homes. Some are homes of poverty where there is very little of the comforts of life. Others have come up from homes of plenty where there are not the problems of making a living that some of the poorer people have. But when these young people entered the colleges and the universities then they had to go to work. Parents could not learn their lessons for them. Each one had to dig for himself. To some, school days have been hard days. Everything learned has been learned at great cost, while others have found it comparatively easy to master the subjects studied. Some have won honors and others have not. Now, both of them are face to face with the realities of life. The high grades made in school will not be sufficient to carry the bright students very far in life. In some cases it has been a handicap for a student to make high grades. People expect so much of them when they get out of school. Quite frequently students find it quite different meeting the realities of life from what it is in learning a lesson from a textbook. Also, the young people who make poor grades sometimes place a low estimate on their own abilities which also makes it hard for them. But the question which the world wants to know is, What can you do? It makes some difference to have had advantages in the schools, but all the schools in the world cannot give a young person education enough for him to succeed without work. The person who has gone through college and has not learned to do anything is to be pitied. The world is going to expect service of him because of his opportunities, and he is going to come face to face with the fact that he is not ready to serve. By the time people get through college their habits in life ought to be well formed. The training which the young people have received ought to give them strength to resist the temptations of life. While training is helpful, there is one thing else needful and that is trust in a Higher Power. No one is thoroughly fitted for life until he has the consciousness that he is in harmony with the Ruler of the universe.

And now, to our graduates, we wish for you the best of everything. May the right kind of success attend your efforts and may life be rich, full and complete.

WHAT THE BIBLE SAYS ABOUT ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGES

By Rev. T. M. Johnson, D. D.

The drinking of alcoholic beverages, drunkenness, and the resultant disaster—a sort of three-in-one—has constituted a problem for the nations for ages past. The Greeks and the Romans each glorified (?) the practice by assigning one of their numerous gods to preside over that phase of life—Dionysus the Greek, Bacchus the Roman.

The hog was one form of sacrifice offered to Bacchus—very fitting. The Bacchanalia was one of the celebrated feasts in his honor, participated in by women only at first. Later, men were admitted. The orgy became so debauched in lasciviousness that the Roman senate in 186 B. C., pagan though they were, abolished it by a prohibition enactment. I do not know whether all subsequent crime was or was not blamed on prohibition.

The Earlier Hebrew Records

That the Hebrew people were not immune against the evils of alcoholic liquors is indicated by the fact that their leaders, for generations prior to the Greeks or Romans, had been hurling their shafts against those evils, as will be seen from quotations to appear later in this article.

However, it may be not without interest to note the fact that such terms as "wine," "strong drink," "drunkard," and "drunkenness" do not appear in the Bible prior to the flood. In a former study attention was called to the fact that Noah started the new civilization by building the first altar and offering the first burnt offering, of which the Bible gives record. Also he started the new civilization by being the first to make wine and the first to get drunk, so far as the Bible gives record. "And Noah began to be a husbandman, and he planted a vineyard: and he drank of the wine, and was drunken." Gen. 9:20, 21. It is strange what a medley a human life may become!

Wine, in the earlier life of the Hebrews, was a form of wealth. Isaac, conferring his blessing upon Jacob, said: "Therefore God give thee of the dew of heaven, and the fatness of the earth, and plenty of corn and wine." Gen. 27:28. Hence, along with other forms of wealth, was tithed, "The tithe of thy corn, of thy wine, and of thine oil, and the firstlings of thy herds and of thy flocks." Deut. 14:23. Wine was used as a drink offering unto the Lord. "And the drink offering thereof shall be of wine, the fourth part of an hin." Lev. 23:13. For the purpose of refreshing Abraham and his "trained servants" on their return from the rescuing of Lot, "Melchizedek, king of Salem (Jerusalem), brought forth bread and wine: and he was the priest of the most high God." Gen. 14:18.

A Dawning Sense of Danger

From such passages as those quoted above one might get the impression that wine was used as an article of diet and of commerce during that early history of the race, without the people knowing of the harmful possibilities it carried. But those ministering at the altar were forbidden to indulge. "And the Lord spoke unto Aaron, saying, "Do not drink wine or strong drink, thou, nor thy sons with thee, when ye go into the tabernacle of the congregation, lest ye die: it shall be a statute forever throughout your generations." Lev. 10:8, 9. Likewise the Nazarite was forbidden for a time to imbibe. "He (the Nazarite) shall separate himself from wine and strong drink, and shall drink no vinegar of wine, or vinegar of strong drink, neither shall he drink any liquor of grapes, nor eat moist grapes or dried." Num. 6:3.

Then, in addition to the ugly doing of Noah noted above, there was the revolting incident of the daughters of Lot (Gen. 19:31-38), both of which the Bible records without comment.

The Evils of Drinking Recorded

"But it came to pass in the morning when the wine was gone out of Nabal, and his wife had told him these things, that his heart died within him, and he became as a stone." 1 Sam. 25:37.

"Now Absalom had commanded his servants, saying, Mark ye now when Amnon's heart is merry with wine, and when I say unto you, Smite Amnon; then kill him . . . And the servants of Absalom did unto Amnon as Absalom had commanded." 2 Sam. 13:28, 29. The race was still in its childhood—perhaps somewhat advanced childhood.

The Leaders Note and Rebuke the Evils

"Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging: and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise." Prov. 20:1. "Who hath woe? who hath sorrow? who hath contentions? who hath babbling? who hath wounds without cause? who hath redness of eyes? They that tarry long at the wine; they that go to seek mixed wine. Look not thou upon the wine when it is red, when it giveth his colour in the cup, when it moveth itself aright. At the last it biteth like a serpent, and stingeth like an adder." Prov. 23:29-32.

The Shafts of the Prophets

"Whoredom and wine and new wine take away the heart." Hos. 4:11.

"And they have cast lots for my people; and have given a boy for a harlot, and sold a girl for wine, that they might drink." Joel 3:3.

"Awake, ye drunkards, and weep; and howl, all ye drinkers of wine, because of the new wine; for it is cut off from your mouth." Joel 1:5.

"And they have not cried unto me with their heart, when they howled upon their beds: they assembled themselves for corn and wine, and they rebel against me." Hos. 7:14.

"Woe to the crown of pride, to the drunkards of Ephraim, whose glorious beauty is a fading flower." Isa. 28:1.

"Yea also, because he transgresseth by wine, he is a proud man, neither keepeth at home, who enlargeth his desire as hell, and is as death, and cannot be satisfied." Hab. 2:5.

"Woe unto them that rise up early in the morning, that they may follow strong drink; that continue until night, until wine inflame them!" Isa. 5:11.

A Smile or a Sneer?

Is it a smile or a sneer that curls your lip when you hear someone pass by all the above, and much more of the same nature in the Bible, in an effort to justify the liquor traffic with all its attendant evils by quoting Paul to Timothy: "Drink no more water, but use a little wine for thy stomach's sake." 1 Tim. 5:23. Also they ignore in the same letter, "Not given to wine, no striker, not greedy of filthy lucre; but patient, not a brawler, not covetous . . . Likewise must the deacons be grave, not doubletongued, not given to much wine, not greedy of filthy lucre." 1 Tim. 3:3, 8. Incidentally, note the group, the characters, that huddle with wine in the thought of Paul—striker, greed, brawler, covetousness, doubletongue, much-wine.

A Note of Thanks

I want to express my appreciation of the many nice things that have been written me about my "Reminiscences." Then as I have come in contact wtih numbers of people over the state since this series began, they have said much that was encouraging. I had no idea of writing so much when I made the first attempt, but so many things came into mind that I decided to keep on. So that is why, with the encouragement received through the mail and by contact, this series continued so long.

I am hoping that it has proved profitable to some, informing to others, and may have, according to many statements, been entertaining. But you must give the editor, Dr. Pritchard, the credit if there is any. He suggested to me that I write such a series because of my varied experience. I undertook it with many misgivings, but am glad of it now.

With this I am discontinuing my notes for a while, though there are many things yet that might interest some to tell them. So after the extreme busy season and the time comes when the weather will not permit being out so much, I may give some other experiences that have enriched my life as well as many that have amused considerably. So until such a time, will say good-by and thank you.

Sincerely,
N. G. BETHEA.

GREAT GRACE

If sin be high treason against the Majesty in the heavens—and it is—Christ has died in the traitor's stead.

If sin be a capital crime against the government of God—and it is—Christ has borne the full punishment deserved by the offender.

If sin be a debt which man could never meet—and it is—Christ has paid the uttermost farthing, and the debtor may now go free.—Scattered Seed.

READY FOR ONE'S BEST

Rev. W. A. Ledford

Coleridge called the book of Romans "the profoundest book in existence," Meyer "the greatest and richest of all apostolic writings," and Codet spoke of it as "the cathedral of the Christian faith." Studying Romans led to the change in Martin Luther's life, with the Protestant Reformation as the result. Luther's preface to the Romans was being read in the Moravian service at Aldersgate the evening John Wesley's heart was "strangely warmed." The great doctrines of the Christian faith are rooted and grounded in this book. Eternity alone will reveal its far-reaching influences.

It is not my purpose to discuss the book generally, but to speak very briefly of its ready author. The theme of this paper is suggested by the 15th verse of the introduction to the book. The old Saxon king Ethelred is known as the "unready," and the Apostle Paul may properly be called the "ready." Readiness was an outstanding characteristic of his entire life. Before his conversion he was ready to persecute the Christians wherever he could hear of them. After his conversion he labored for his Lord more abundantly than all the apostles. When stricken on the Damascus road, he inquired, "Lord, what wilt thou have me do?" When hard pressed and threatened, and warned what would befall him at Jerusalem, he told his friends that he was not only willing to be bound there, but to die there for the name of the Lord Jesus. Was ready when he was finally offered up.

The grace of readiness serves to great advantage in all realms. The material realm is filled with heart-rending failures, because men and women were not ready to take advantage of the tide at flood time, which leads on to fortune. Many have reached sublime heights in the intellectual and moral realms by being ready to seize their opportunities as they came. The grace of readiness in the religious world is forcefully and dramatically expressed by our Lord in the Parable of the Ten Virginis. "They that were ready went in, and the door was shut." All believers should be cautioned to watch and to pray continually, and sinners prepare to meet God.

Paul shows that a minister may be ever so ready and eager; and yet be hindered in doing what he would like to do. That was not only the experience of Paul, but of a Greater than Paul, even our Master. Jesus was hindered in Nazareth from doing mighty works through the unbelief of the people; was hindered in His teachings because the apostles could not bear more then; and also in the work of salvation because of the unwillingness of the people. "O Jerusalem, O Jerusalem . . . how often I would . . . and ye would not."

I wonder if a little substitution in Romans 1:15 might not be sobering and helpful? Put the name of your city in the place of Rome, and your name in the place of Paul's, and examine it prayerfully, thoughtfully, and conscientiously. When I consider what Paul accomplished in spite of all his hindrances, handicaps and opposition, I don't feel like looking at my meager accomplishments and feeble efforts and saying, "I have done my best." Every minister should do his best to preach the gospel in his own parish, and reach the unsaved.

Not Our Error

We have received several notices saying that we left off certain items paid by churches to the various interests in the list run in the HERALD last week. Some have asked us to make corrections this week. In reply we will say that this was not our list. It was furnished us by President Andrews and we understand that the list was made up from the quarterly reports of the pastors to the president. Since Dr. Andrews, at the Mid-Year meeting, asked all pastors to report any omissions to him, we are not making any corrections.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord.

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

Honor Roll of Churches

In addition to those published last week we are pleased to submit the following, which through some misunderstanding failed to appear last week:

Gibsonville has paid all A. C. budget, i. e., A. C. Ex., Ch. Ext., Superannuates, A. C. Debt, High Point College.

Shiloh church has paid pastor to date, all conference claims together with World Service, Subsidy, and contributes to Home.

Matthews Chapel, Greensville Ct., has paid A. C. Expenses and Ch. Ext. Hobbs Chapel has paid Ch. Ext.

So. Winston and Kernersville churches paid college and paid pastor to date.

Saxapahaw Ct., Salem Ch. paid A. C. Expenses; Concord paid Subsidy, Orange Chapel paid Subsidy, Saxapahaw paid Ch. Ext., A. C. Expenses and College.

New Hope, Mecklenburg Ct., paid College.

Bethesda Ch., State St. Ct., has paid half W. S., College in full, A. C. expenses in full, has paid more than 50 per cent of all claims; Sunday school contributes to Home.

State St. Church S. S. contributes to Home, paid more than half W. S.; paid College, Ch. Ext., A. C. expenses and A. C. debt; has paid more than half of all claims.

Hickory Grove and Fairfield paid Superannuates apportionment.

Orange Ct. paid 80 per cent College, 70 per cent McCulloch Memorial Fund, all Sunday schools contribute to Home except the Ridge.

All churches on Liberty Ct. paid pastor to date, all paid A. C. Debt in full; Shiloh paid all items in A. C. budget in full and paid McCulloch Memorial Fund apportionment in full.

Maple Springs, Hickory Ridge, Mt. Carmel, Union Ridge churches, Forsyth Ct., have paid High Point College apportionment in full; Union Ridge has paid A. C. expenses; all four contribute monthly to the Home.

Union Hill and Stony Knoll, W. Forsyth, paid A. C. expenses; Stony Knoll paid College and A. C. debt.

West End, Greensboro, paid College apportionment and Superannuates.

Pastor Assigned to Shelby-Caroleen

Bro. Forrest Wagoner, a student of Westminster Theological Seminary, has been assigned pastor of Shelby-Caroleen until he returns to the seminary in October. He entered upon the work last Sunday.

The A. C. Debt Retirement

In view of the fact that some of the people the conference owes money are in need of it and asking for it, I am calling upon all those churches which have not paid this claim in full to do it during the month of June. It is not a large allotment for any church. These debts were made in the lean years of the conference life and should be met. The conference has no way of meeting them except when the churches of the conference send in the money. Will you not see to it, dear reader, whatever position you occupy in the church, that the apportionment for your church is raised and sent in to Treasurer Allen during this month.

The Mid-Year Meet

Those who missed this meeting will hardly know what they missed. Their loss cannot be described to them by anyone who was present. But the day went off fine. Dr. Spahr gave us a high spiritual note in his devotional period. Mr. Carroll was fine in his address. The pageant prepared by Mrs. Carroll was just fine, and went over big. The reports from the churches were splendid; some few got left out but are being reported this week. Bishop Kern was just splendid. It was a message every preacher should hear, and hearing it should be greatly benefited. Dr. Humphreys made an optimistic report of the condition of the college, and Dr. F. W. Stephenson closed the program on Christian education. It was good to be there.

Friendship and Porter Stations, Rev. W. D. Reed, Pastor

I visited both these churches, at Friendship for the morning service and at Porter in the afternoon. Friendship closed a contest by which they were attempting to raise all the Annual Conference claims. They have raised two-thirds of the amount, and Pastor Reed expects the total to be reached later in the season when the farmer shall have more money for such claims. I arrived in time Saturday evening to participate in an ice cream supper, i. e., to eat some of the cream which was sold to boost these claims. The people turned out in large number and appeared to enjoy the occasion splendidly. The morning congregation was good, really better than I have seen there in some time. Pastor Reed is here for the third time, having served six years previously in three-year periods, and the people seem happy to have him serve them again.

Porter was also having a contest to raise their conference claims and were more than half out. The leaders asked for an extension of time, one month, when they expect to close it with every cent paid. There was a good congregation here for Porter. This church has had a hard time through the years, but it lacks a whole lot of being dead. There is a future for this church and we believe with the proper treatment it will grow and increase in efficiency. We believe the present arrangement for Porter is quite good. Friendship does not care to have preaching every Sunday, so Porter comes in for an equal share of the preaching appointments and should greatly profit by them. Friendship has a good parsonage and the work is well adapted to one who does not feel equal to do strenuous work. However, Pastor Reed is a very busy man, and his acquaintance with the people greatly relieves the tedium of his toil.

Albemarle, Rev. D. R. Williams, Pastor

I visited this church at night. Congregation good and good attention. A beautiful church and fine auditorium to speak in. The pastor had recently closed a revival meeting which ran for a week. I did not learn with what results. But this church has a place in the life of the town. There are in it some of our loyal people; it has an abiding interest in the hearts of thousands of our membership over the state. Our prayers are for this church. Our interest in it is deep and strong and we wish so much that we could solve its problems for it. Could we do it, there would be nothing left for those who love it there to desire but to rejoice in their newfound experience.

GETTING THINGS FROM FERTILE SOIL

By Luther K. Long

California has much fertile soil, together with millions of acres of mountain country and unproductive deserts.

The production of luscious fruits, wholesome vegetables and nourishing grains is large and profitable, while some other products are not of much value.

Here are many fine churches with outstanding ministers, large educational institutions with forward-looking instructors, and also beneficent social organizations working for the better days to come.

The climate here produces many small sectarian churches, usually of the extreme Fundamentalist type. It was on a mountain in Southern California that a group of some thousands of people gathered one February morning a few years ago to see the Lord return in person.

Following Upton Sinclair's failure to be elected governor of California last fall—with his widely heralded promise to end poverty in California in two years (EPIC)—the most widely publicized plan for social benefit is that of Dr. Townsend, of Long Beach, to bring back prosperity and end poverty in the entire country by granting to every person, 60 years old and over, a pension of $200 a month. This would take all those people out of industry and give their jobs to younger workers. Pensioners would be required to spend their allowance as it was received. This would start factories making clothing, furniture, autos, etc., and give employment to many workers, and do away with the necessity of the greater part of public and private charity.

The old doctor has been laughed at in Washington and his "plan" derided as the sum of all foolish dreams.

Yet many hundreds of Townsend clubs have been organized throughout California and other states, and even the administration in Washington has been constrained to think more seriously of the necessity of making some less inadequate provision for the security and comfort of loyal and needy old folks.

As I go through the country I am impressed with the number of old people, many of whom have been industrious and economical in their habits throughout their lives, who are now without resources and who face a succession of years of want. It is no more than just that something adequate be done for such.

Much less than $200 a month would be of great value. The amount should not be so large as to tempt ordinary folks to discontinue the good old habit of laying by something against a rainy day, and should be given to all of the required age, regardless of their need. The only requirements being that they withdraw from the competitive labor market and that they use the money for their own necessities and comforts.

California, or the fertile soil of some other state, will surely germinate the seed of another important "plan"—a "plan" to prevent the breeding of congenital insanity and criminality and of those so defective in mind or body that their offspring will inevitably be dependent on the community.

Mrs. Hammer Returns from Hospital

Mrs. W. C. Hammer, of Asheboro, who was injured in an automobile accident at Rocky Mount, Va., two weeks ago and who was taken to Duke University Hospital in Durham for treatment, was expected to be taken to her home on Tuesday of this week, where she is to remain for two weeks before returning to the hospital for further treatment.

OUR STORY PAGE

THE EASIER WAY

Donald and Joe were expected to dig the dandelions from the front lawn before they ran off to play. It was not a big task, but the morning was warm and the other boys on the block were planning a game which they invited Joe and Donald to share.

Donald selected one spot in the yard and sat down to work with a will. Joe darted hither and thither digging furiously for a few minutes. Then he sat down on the front step and grumbled. "It's hotter than hot. I wish we were rid of this job."

"I can tell you how to get rid of it, and it will not be so hard, either," said Donald.

"How?" asked Joe eagerly.

"Why, just jump into it and do it, without grumbling or fussing," laughed Donald.

Donald worked away a few minutes. Then he ran into the house to come back with a ball of string. He stretched one line from the house to the street a foot from the edge of the walk. Then he stretched another a foot from the walk on the other side.

"Take your choice," he said to Joe, "and I will take the other. Let's race to see who can do their strip first. But I warn you, I am not going to work faster than is comfortable in this heat."

The boys began up by the house and worked steadily down toward the street, taking every plant in the plot roped off by the cord as they went. When they finished one plot, they set the string over to mark a new plot. Joe was done and resting under a tree before Donald had his last yard or two done.

"You beat me in the race," said Donald. "You work faster than I."

"But you work without grumbling," said Joe generously. "I am going to learn to use my thinker. It's easier than fussing about it."—Dew Drops.

WE ARE EAGLES

The two Miller boys had gone over to Holland Dean's workshop where, with Mr. Dean's help, the boys were working on an airplane model.

"Let's call it the Eagle," Jack Miller suggested.

"That makes me think of a story," Mr. Dean said, "that I read the other day, of a great good Christian man in Africa."

"Is it a boy's story?" Hal asked, interested, for he liked above all the stories of boys his father could tell.

"It is a story Dr. Aggrey told some boys about an eagle. How a man caught a young eagle and put it among his fowls, giving it chicken food to eat. One day a naturalist passed by and said, 'That bird is not a chicken, it is an eagle.'

" 'Not now,' said the owner, 'for I have trained it to be a chicken.'

"But the naturalist persisted that it was an eagle still, because it had the heart of an eagle, and promised that he would make it soar high up in the heavens.

" 'It will never fly,' declared the owner, 'because it has become a chicken.'

"They agreed to a test. The naturalist held the bird high and said, 'Eagle, thou art an eagle; thou dost belong to the sky and not the earth. Stretch forth thy wings and fly!' But the eagle looked down at the chickens picking at their food, and flew down to them.

"The owner smiled. 'I told you it was a chicken.'

" 'No,' persisted the naturalist firmly, 'it is an eagle, give it another chance.' The next morning the naturalist carried the bird to the foot of a mountain. It was early dawn and the sun was just rising. 'Eagle,' he said again, 'thou art an eagle; thou dost belong to the sky and not this earth. Stretch forth thy wings and fly!' He held it high, but the bird only looked around and trembled, and did not try to fly. Then, knowing the ways of birds, he turned it until it faced the sun, and suddenly, with a wild scream of joy, it stretched its wings and mounted higher and higher, never to return."

The boys had forgotten their work, they were so interested in the story.

"I think the Eagle will be a fine name," Hal agreed.

"It will, indeed," Mr. Dean assured them, "for Dr. Aggrey made use of the story to impress on the people that we are created in the image of God, but that men have made us think we are chickens and not capable of improvement.

"We are eagles," he told them, "your home is in heaven. Stretch forth your wings by the power of God, and fly! Don't be content with chicken feed!"—The Sentinel.

RECEIVING THE SPIRIT

Is that a conscious profession? it will be asked. The answer is that, as a rule, it is so. The rule is not without exceptions. Many things are done by God in a man's heart which the man is not able to explain, or classify, or even name.

Practice is often beyond theory, especially in the holy life. But hundreds of Christians are able to testify to the change which came into their hearts when, in New Testament language, they "received the Holy Ghost"—between the old days when they labored in vain, and now when the Holy Spirit works through them. The change is great indeed, when it comes into the Christian life; and, as a rule, it brings its own evidence.—Dr. Elder Cumming.

MANY SHALL BE PURIFIED, AND MADE WHITE, AND TRIED

There is a mountain in Scotland called Cairngorm—literally "the blue mountain"—and on it are found valuable rock crystals. The way in which the Highlanders gather the stones called Cairngorms is this: When there is a sunburst after a violent shower, they go and look along the whole brow of the mountain for certain sparkling spots; the shower has washed away the loose earth, the sunbeams light upon and are reflected from the stones, and thus they are detected. It is just God's way of bringing forth His own—His "jewels." Affliction lays them bare.—Christ Life.

THE REGIONAL CONVENTION IS HISTORY

The South Regional Convention is history, largely written in the hearts and minds of those who were so fortunate to have been there. The label of a few findings of this great convention will no doubt find their way into the columns of the Herald through the editor. I say great convention, and I do not mean to say it just for effect. It was not, certainly as to number, for 135 registered delegates does not in any way represent the strength of the Methodist Protestants in the area. But it was great as to spirit, fellowship, thought, consecration, and faith. These are eternal qualities. Many who attended this convention will never be the same any more. They are determined by the grace of God to do more toward helping this world become a Kingdom of his Christ. Prayers were said, tears were shed, and many went home determined to be more spirit led.

This convention was largely the product of our own church family as previous published programs revealed. In the past we have contradicted ourselves to a degree, while encouraging the training of our own, when we desired to stage something spectacular we have discredited our own, going outside of the church to get our speakers. As in the local church, certainly it is true in the denomination, if we would develop leaders we must use them. And as a denomination we cannot be any larger than our leaders, in spite of our importations. The convention brought to the forefront both some of our recognized leaders and potential leaders. And it revealed our great possessions in this respect as they appeared in the process of growth and development.

Hidden beneath the structure and the thought of the whole program was the personality and untiring faith and labors of the associate secretary, Rev. F. L. Gibbs. Such a wonderful program was not born in a day, but behind it were weeks and months of thought and labor.

The convention is over, but it ought not to be over in our resolutions and determinations. God helping us, it will not.

Contrary to form, I have not made mention of those who played so well their respective places on the program. Eternity will reward them and if we do anything about it we will prove that it was worth while.

OUR SHARE IN BUILDING A CHRISTIAN WORLD

Findings of the South Regional Convention of the Board of Christian Education, M. P. Church, High Point College, North Carolina, May 29-31, 1935

The only kind of new world worth building must be a Christian-religious world, a world in which the people believe and practice the principles of the teachings of Jesus. This means Christian homes, homes in which God is worshiped and the members of the family enjoy happy relationship among themselves. Likewise churches, the members of which in heart and practice are very Christian. So also Christian communities and Christian nations, practicing the principles of Jesus within themselves and among themselves. To this end we dedicate our lives.

I. A Christian Person

A thoroughly Christian person is foundational and primal in the building of a Christian world. Evil environment must be changed; social injustice must be rectified; racial prejudice must be eradicated; war must be abolished; but these things can only become a reality as the individual's heart is pure. The Christian person is a new person in Christ Jesus. The old has been put off and the new has been put on through co-operation with God; this life is built not upon facts, but upon faith. This new creature in Jesus will have a vital, personal Christian experience; a strong Christian faith in the reality of God, the availability of God, the adequacy of God; a Christian philosophy of life which rightly determines his attitude toward himself, things, others, God; and a Christian hope for the world. The new person denies himself the right to rule his own life; he brings his will into harmnoy with the purpose of God; he follows Christ up into the will of God; and he follows Christ out into the world of service.

II. A Christian Home

The group entered into a free discussion of problems with a view to finding solutions. No set forms were prepared but the discussion was directed by suggestion.

The rearing of children is a home and community responsibility. A spirit of co-operation between homes is needed for mutual understanding. Wealthy homes which can give their children every luxury often handicap the poorer home which can not do so unless the children in the poorer home have been taught that there are certain things which they cannot have.

Commercialization of life has taken many mothers from the home and turned children over to nurses. Children should be taught that the business of the woman is the making of a home and that of the man is the making of a livelihood.

In building a home, build first an altar. Suggested qualities for every home: (1) Love, (2) co-operation, (3) sympathy, (4) fellowship, (5) mutual faith or loyalty; (6) unselfishness, (7) sharing of responsibility, (8) economy.

Members of the family should study the demands and phases of life so as to co-operate with the church, Sunday school, and public school. The home has a right to demand that the teaching of these agencies be sound.

III. A Christian Church

A new church must be brought about by rebuilding the church on the foundation of the New Testament principles and Peter's confession. The problems involved are: Building a program for a progressive church to meet the needs of new situations in a changing world, to carry out God's purpose in the individual life and society; making each worship service to embrace a consciousness of God's presence, a positive communion with God in prayer, reading the Bible and delivering the sermon in language understandable for all ages present, all taking part in singing, responsive reading and silent prayer, that all lives might be revitalized, and only Christ's ideals pictured. Each service either stimulates or stifles. The church is also an instrument for preparing and guiding its social and recreational activities, and a true teacher of the Christian religion.

IV. A Christian Community

In each community there is environment of good and bad. There should be co-operation in each community with all the forces that stand for the right things and principles that go to build a Christian community and develop Christlike character. There should be only wholesome recreation, and Christian leaders to supervise the social life of the community as a unit.

V. A Christian Nation and World

We find in our nation and world a spiritual slump, a lack of courage on the part of confessing Christians to really follow Christ, the economic system out of joint, an increase in the war spirit, an increase in drunkenness and immorality, and a failure to carry out the command of Christ to reach non-Christian groups.

We believe that the only solution to the ills of our nation and world is in Jesus Christ and His principles and we recommend the following definite program of action for our church groups:

The use of more Bible reading and prayer, use of our denominational literature, as the "Guide Book—Christ an Ongoing Companion of Our Way," "Launch Out into the Deep," and departments of spiritual life in our denominational papers; use of prayer calendar prepared by the Board of Missions, and the use of devotional books as "God's Minute" and "Meaning of Prayer."

An intensive study of economic conditions; work for constructive legislation; work for peace by making heroes of people who stand for peace rather than people who glorify war; asking schools to put on peace programs; making personal contacts in interest of peace, writing letters to senators and congressmen urging political action that would result in world peace, as reduction of armaments, promoting the use of emblems of peace as toys for children rather than implements of war, supervising the reading material of children and the motion pictures they see.

A constructive program of motion picture reform and temperance education.

In order to make the world Christian we must bring Christ to non-Christian groups by co-operating with the Board of Missions and Board of Christian Education in all of the projects launched by these agencies.

We specifically recommend the use of the following books: "Christ and Japan," by Kagawa; "The Christian Mission in America," by Kerr; "Christian Youth in Action," by Herriott; "Toward a Christian America," by Morse; "Under the Southern Cross" and "A Syllabus in Alcohol Education," by Palmer; "The New Dilemma," by Babson; "Christ's Alternative to Communism," by E. Stanley Jones.

The Date—As you know, the date of the school is June 24-29. It will not be long.

The Vacation Church School Course for Boys and Girls—This year we are offering a course for the boys and girls who are not old enough to take the young people's courses. Boys and girls 12 years of age will be eligible to attend if they will send a letter of recommendation from their pastor to me. Where parents are anxious to send their boys and girls under twelve years of age, we will be glad to have them register for this course. However, it must be understood that we will not consider registering anyone under eleven years of age. The group in this course will be under careful supervision from the time the boys and girls reach the campus until they leave. It is up to parents and pastors to see to it that they are in careful hands coming to and going from the college. See Miss Taylor's article in regard to this course.

Are you planning to attend the Leadership Training School this year? Last week at the regional convention a number of pastors told me that they are expecting to send large delegations to the school this year. Some talked in terms of 10 and 15 students. This sounds good. But remember our goal: "Every Church Sending at Least ONE Student to the Leadership Training School This Year." Would you like to be that one student from your church if there are no others who are planning to attend. If you want company, get someone to come with you.

More Information—Maybe you want some more information. If you do, write me and I will be glad to send you all of the information in regard to the school.

Total from all sources, last year, $6,339.05; this year, $7,769.77; increase, $1,431.10.

This shows a splendid increase for the first half of the conference year, and the showing would have been better but for the ten rainy Sundays during March, April and May. The decrease in the Duke Endowment gift was due to a decrease in their income for 1934.

The Brown estate near Pinnacle, N. C., has finally been settled in full. This puts a bit of money in the hands of our treasurer just now, and the trustees have directed that some much needed repairs be made on the buildings and paid for out of these funds.

Twenty-fifth Anniversary

For a quarter of a century the Methodist Protestant Children's Home has been rendering faithful services to dependent children More than 200 have been reared and trained within its walls, and 108 still remain in the Home. The Home has a record of splendid service. Nearly all of its sons and daughters are making good. A goodly number of them are married and are rearing families of their own.

On Thursday, August 22, the 25th anniversary will be celebrated on the grounds at the Home. An appropriate program will be arranged for the occasion. We are asking all the boys and girls to come back home for the day, and we want you and your people to come and meet with them. We want it to be a GREAT DAY for the Home in every way.

The Board of Trustees appointed a Finance Committee to lead in the planning for a silver offering on the silver anniversary of the Home, and they are asking Methodist Protestants and their friends everywhere to participate in that silver offering.

Our slogan for the year is "Twenty-five Thousand Dollars for the Home During Its Twenty-fifth Year of Service." And we believe the friends of the Children's Home will contribute that amount ere the year shall close.

The Pageant

We have a brand-new pageant, written by Dr. Louis Randall, of Baltimore, Md., which sets forth in a splendid way the life and work of the Home, and we are hoping that every church in the conference will put on this pageant some time during June or July, and at that time appoint your committees and lay your plans for the 25th anniversary silver offering. A letter goes out this week to pastors, Sunday school superintendents and Children's Home secretaries. We thank you in advance for your co-operation.

Respectfully submitted,

A. G. DIXON, Superintendent.

BROTHER MOSER, TOO, APPRECIATES THE HERALD

Brother H. O. Moser, in asking us to change his address from Shoals, N. C., to Walkertown, R. F. D. 1, sends along this good word: "If I did not take the Herald I would not know how to talk to Methodist Protestants who do take it, for I would know so little about what my church is doing."

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

MRS. J. E. PRITCHARD, Editor

TO ALL AUXILIARIES

I am giving you elsewhere a list of all Auxiliaries and their apportionments as made out by the Finance Committee. Since our budget was reduced $2,000 this year and put within our reach, I would like to urge each Auxiliary to put forth a special effort to raise its budget in full so we may be able to reach our financial goal for the year.

Please bear in mind that if your Auxiliary is going by the efficiency chart and you wish to be rated as a Standard Auxiliary, you must send in a remittance every month, even if it is a very small amount.

Last fall quilt squares were sent to about 40 Auxiliaries with the request that they raise $25 on each square for our medical work in India. Only 12 of these squares have been returned. Some have sent in a portion of the $25. One has to but read the letter from Dr. Lacy in the May Missionary Record to see the value of this work and the sacrifice she is making. Can we not rally to her support now as never before since she has shown us the actual need of medical work in India and the place the hospital is filling? This work is most urgent and if you have not already done so please send in your $25 at once, or any part of it that it is possible for you to raise at this time.

Sincerely,
BRONA APPLE,
Treasurer, N. C. Branch.

THE IMPORTANCE OF ORGANIZING THE YOUNG PEOPLE

(Recommendations by 13th District Woman's Auxiliary Meeting)

Organization is essential to the fullest development of the young people, because it provides opportunities which growing life demands.

The most outstanding need on the part of the youth today is organization. Every boy and girl should be at work in some organization of the church. There may be several organizations in connection with the church, but the Young People's Missionary Society should stand in the front. There are many reasons why, but I shall mention only some of the most important.

(1) It trains for leadership.

(2) It is educational and informational.

(3) It develops one socially and religiously, and,

(4) Therefore trains one for Christian service.

It has been said that nothing great has been accomplished only through organized effort.

It develops leadership by fixing responsibility. What is everybody's business is nobody's business. Organization makes each member share in the management and direction of its activities. A definite work is assigned to each member, and this creates more interest. At the same time it prepares one to assume more duties and responsibilities than before.

It is educational and informational. For example, in the missionary auxiliaries many things are studied. One month it may be India, the next China, or Japan, or the homeland. It may be the study of the people and their customs, or it may be the country and the historical places of interest. But whatever it is, it is always helpful and tends to enlarge the ideas and ideals of the young people.

Socially, it provides safe, sane amusements. The instinct for boys and girls to want to play is just as natural and normal as physical hunger. The world must live together, work together, and play together. Among those who live, work, and play, the young are the most eager. If the young people are organized, their play will be carefully organized also.

Religiously, it helps young people to grow spiritually, to find God through Bible study and mission study. In properly organized mission groups religious programs are carried out in an impressive way, and the young people are keenly alive to the call of the spirit.

Such organizations as the missionary auxiliaries will hep forward the kingdom to the last corner of the world. It is its duty. "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." This was the tremendous task that Jesus gave His disciples long ago, and now, after 20 centuries, the task is ours. Some parts of the world are still untouched. His plan was for them to start at Jerusalem and go to the uttermost parts of the earth. His promise was, "Lo, I am with you alway, even to the end of the world." The task, plan and promise is the same today as ever. A ripple has reached us, and it is our duty to send it on. The place to start to work is in the young people's missionary group, for this leads on to a better life—a life of spirit and service.

"Youth is the time for service,
Giving to Christ our all,
Grateful for all the blessings
Daily we may recall.
Youth is the time for service,
Deeds that will show our praise,
These will we give the Savior
In youthful days."

THE ROMANCE OF PRAYER

Harry Emerson Fosdick has told how he came to write his excellent, common-sense manual, "The Meaning of Prayer." Years ago he announced a series of sermons on prayer in his Montclair pulpit. He wondered whether he could make six sermons go on a subject so inward and so aloof from what he supposed his people considered practical. But he wanted to know what he himself thought about prayer.

The result surprised him. "People," he found. "were eager to learn how to pray, to learn what to expect from prayer, to hear about the reasonableness of prayer, its limits and possibilities." A year later he made prayer the topic for discussion in a series of midweek services. He learned from the experiences, problems, difficulties, doubts, and victories of his people. One day a member of Dr. Fosdick's church suggested to him that he write a book on prayer. He took the matter up, hesitatingly, with the publishers, and they agreed with him that the circulation would be small. "On the Maine coast one summer holiday," he tells, "in a little deserted cottage by the shore, where no human being came near me through long mornings of secluded work, I wrote down as best I could what I thought about prayer." No man was more astonished than he to discover that he had written a popular book, quickly to sell more than three hundred thousand copies He regards the sale of this book as evidence that people want vital religion, and will respond to simple, natural speech about the needs of the soul.

About ten years after Dr. Fosdick's book appeared, the Atlantic Monthly published an article by Glenn Clark entitled "The Soul's Sincere Desire." It caused such interest that the entire edition of the magazine containing it was sold out at once and hundreds of requests to reprint it were received. Professor Clark then wrote his book on prayer, giving it the same title as the inaugural article. He tells in the current issue of Religion in Life how he came to write the article destined to grow into a book. Early he had aspired to be an author, but his dream had not yet come true. He writes:

"As I looked at the boys and girls in my creative writing class it dawned on me that here were greater potential writers than I had ever been. Why cling to my selfish wish to make myself a writer? Why not unselfishly devote my energies to helping my students to become great writers? And so with the emphasis changed from 'self' to 'soul,' I gave myself to my teaching with redoubled faith and energy. Then, in an unconscious moment of pure desire to help another, I wrote down some ideas in response to his crying need. 'That is too good for me alone,' he said. 'Why don't you send it to the Atlantic?' I acted upon this advice and immediately back came a letter saying, 'Send us half a dozen more like it.' Thus my boyhood dream came true."

And so a Minnesota professor in a chair of English literature had an experience identical with that of a preacher in a New Jersey pulpit--his sincere ministry of dynamic service produced unexpectedly a most helpful book on prayer.—Roy Wallace Thomas, in Zion's Herald.

MR. AND MRS. MILLS VISIT IN GREENSBORO

Mr. and Mrs. J. Bibb Mills, of Birmingham, Ala., spent a few days the first of this week in Greensboro. Mrs. Mills is the former Miss Frances Sutton, of Greensboro. During her stay in Alabama she has been of great service to the church, being for a number of years the president of the Alabama Branch of Women's Work. Mr. Mills, we believe, is connected with the Anti-Saloon League of the state of Alabama.

MRS. GERRINGER AND MISS McCULLOCH TO SPEAK

Mrs. L. W. Gerringer, who attended the Women's Missionary Convention at Indianapolis and the South Regional Convention at High Point, and Miss Mary Wills McCulloch, who attended the regional meeting, will speak at Calvary church next Sunday evening at 8:00 o'clock.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Shiloh, Liberty Charge.—There will be a memorial service at Shiloh Sunday morning, June 9, Rev. Paul Kennett doing the preaching. Immediately after the sermon the graves will be decorated. Dinner will be on the grounds. In the afternoon there will be a singing. One or more visiting choirs will sing. Come and let us enjoy the day together.

We are sorry to bear of Mr. Robert Chilton's father being seriously ill. Hope that he shall speedily recover.

Miss Clarice Whitaker, who has been at N. C. College, Greensboro, is spending her vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Whitaker. REPORTER.

First Church, Burlington.—In the absence of our pastor on May 26 our pulpit was filled by Mr. Millard Stevens, a ministerial student of Elon College, and Rev. George Holmes. Both men brought inspiring and helpful messages. We were glad to have them, and we hope they will visit us again soon.

Last Sunday our Sunday school attendance was 402. We are glad to see our people attending the services of God's house in large numbers, and we are hoping that all of our church members will soon become active members.

We are glad that our general conference has taken a stand against war. We feel that our people need to be informed about the hideousness of war. Our pastor gave us a wonderful sermon on this subject.

MABEL THORNBURG, Reporter.

Flat Rock Charge.—The members and friends of Gideon's Grove church, on Flat Rock charge, are anticipating a most enjoyable day next Sunday. It will be the occasion for the dedication of the present church building. Dr. R. M. Andrews, president of the Annual Conference, will conduct the ceremonies of dedication and deliver the dedicatory sermon at 11 a. m. The Chislom sisters, well-known gospel singers of Thomasville, will be present and render special music. Dinner will be enjoyed during the noon recess. The afternoon program will consist of addresses by two former pastors, Rev. J. R. Hutton and Rev. J. P. Pegg. A brief historical sketch will be presented. Special music will be furnished during the afternoon program by the Chislom sisters and the Angel quartet of Stokesdale. We are expecting a large gathering of members, former members and friends of the church.

Funeral services were held at Flat Rock church on Monday, May 27, at 3 o'clock, for Mrs. Sarah F. Robinson, a member of Flat Rock church for many years. The pastor had charge of the service. An obitauary will appear later.

The pastor and family appreciate very much the gift of a 24-pound sack of flour from Bro. J. R. Haynes, of Flat Rock church. Bro. Haynes is the miller in the Flat Rock community and has been very loyal to our church, although his name is not on the membership roll. We also appreciate the gift of a strawberry shortcake from Mrs. J. A. Eller, a neighbor. Mrs. J. J. White, member of Gideon's Grove church, presented the pastor with a number of vegetables last week. Mrs. J. W. Flynt and Mrs. J. H. Pearman, neighbors, have donated supplies of milk from time to time. We are thankful for all these gifts.

The pastor and family had as their guests on Memorial Day the pastor's brother, J. H. Way, Mrs. Way and their son, Thomas Hardin Way, of Burlington. Mr. Way, being one of the R. F. D. mail carriers at Burlington, had a holiday on which to visit us.

The pastor and members of Flat Rock church are looking forward to the fourth Sunday in this month when the annual revival meeting will begin at that church. Rev. C. L. Grant, pastor of North Davidson charge, will assist in the services, doing the preaching beginning on Sunday night. Pray for the success of the meeting.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Union Chapel, Granville Circuit.—Mr. Spencer brought a splendid sermon Sunday morning, taken from Matthew 5:1-12, the text coming from the sixth verse, "Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness, for they shall be filled."

The Sunday school has on an attendance drive which has created great interest and caused many more people to attend. Thus far the older people are ahead, which means the children's classes must give them an ice cream supper soon.

The Missionary Auxiliary met in its regular meeting with Mrs. Alridge Woodlief on Friday evening at 8 o'clock.

Plans were made and a committee appointed Sunday morning for working up the annual Children's Day to be given sometime in June.

Mr. Spencer attended the pastors' conference at High Point last week.

We are proud to be able to get our church covered and a good start toward painting it.

The Christian Endeavor Society has been reorganized at our church. It is hoped that some good work will be done through this organization. MRS. E. C. HUFF, Reporter.

Bellemont, Mt. Hermon Charge.—Our pastor, Rev. Mr. Whitehead, preached a splendid sermon the second Sunday night. This being Mother's Day, he had a sermon especially prepared for the mothers of the congregation. Any woman who heard this message surely must have been inspired and uplifted by it.

The quarterly conference was held at Bellemont church last Wednesday evening, May 22. Some important matters of the charge were discussed. It was decided to have some much needed work done on the parsonage.

Eleven of our young people attended the banquet at Nathanael Greene school. Dr. P. E. Lindley, of High Point College, delivered the principal address at this banquet. There were some other talks made by the young people, all of which contained much food for thought.

Our annual memorial service was held last Sunday, May 26. Hon. W. L. Robinson, of Burlington and Gibsonville, preached the memorial sermon at 11 o'clock. At this service Miss Lula Riddle and Rev. Wayne Curtis gave us two vocal duets very appropriate for the occasion. In the afternoon Rev. Frank S. Blue, of Burlington, brought us a message on the very fitting text, "If a Man Die, Shall He Live Again?" Miss Nannie Coble and the Rev. Mr. Curtis favored us with some special music at this service. Officers for next year were elected as follows: Mr. Roy L. Sharpe, president; Mr. D. L. Linens, vice president; Miss Nannie Coble, recording secretary and treasurer; Miss Margaret Pickett, corresponding secretary.

We are very glad to have Rev. Lee Moser in our community again. He has been a student at High Point College the past year.

REPORTER.

Haw River Church, Glen Raven Charge.—Rev. J. P. Pegg filled his regular appointment here Sunday, May 26. We observed Memorial Day at the morning hour. Baskets of flowers were presented by the different churches of the community, at the beginning of the service, in honor of their dead members. Music was rendered by various choirs from other churches, accompanied by Miss Thelma Thompson. Our pastor then spoke in honor of those who have passed on. At the close of the service the roll of the dead of our church was called by Miss Espa Bullard.

This was a great service for our church. We are planning our revival to begin the fourth Sunday in September. Rev. F. W. Paschall, of Burlington, will be the visiting minister.

Our church is in good shape financially. Our claims are all paid up. T. S. COBLE.

Randolph Charge.—Our memorial service, held at Gray's Chapel the fourth Sunday, was very largely attended. We had the pleasure of having with us two former pastors, Rev. A. O. Lindley and Rev. W. F. Ashburn. Both these brethren assisted in the services and we thank them for their presence and help.

At the 11 o'clock hour Rev. U. S. Crowder, of Salem, Ore., a retired minister of the M. E. church, preached for us to the delight of the large congregation assembled under the arbor. Mr. Crowder was born not so very far from Gray's Chapel some 65 years ago and has had pastorates in 11 different states. He has many relatives in Randolph, Montgomery, and Guilford counties. His discourse has been very highly spoken of, and we hope he will come this way again. We also wish to thank Prof. E. C. Hamilton, of Greensboro, for his presence and for his leading the music. Prof. Hamilton is a music teacher of unusual ability, and for 27 consecutive years has led the music on memorial days at the chapel.

Recently we organized the young people of this church into a C. E. Society of 29 charter members. The choir is also reorganizing for practice. There is here an opportunity for great accomplishments, and by hearty co-operation we believe this church will be awakened.

The memorial service at Bethany the third Sunday was also largely attended. The pastor preached at the 11 o'clock hour. Dinner was served picnic style and there was plenty of it and to spare. Dr. Hinshaw, of High Point College, was the principal speaker in the afternoon and his message was well suited to the occasion and enjoyed by a large and attentive congregation. The junior choir furnished the music for the afternoon propram. Flowers were placed on all the graves in the large cemetery by the juniors, and the order observed in their march made it more attractive. We wish to thank Miss Grace Baldwin for her part in training the children. Bethany has a great future in these young folks who, even now, seem much interested in the work of the church. G. L. REYNOLDS.

Mt. Pleasant, North Davidson.—The fourth Sunday was Memorial Day at this church. Never before in the history of the Memorial Association at this church has there been so large a crowd present. The sermon and the address both were very appropriate for the occasion.

The first Sunday in June, Spring Hill Sunday school visited our Sunday school. Everyone enjoyed the worship together. We hope they will come again.

The revival begins the second Sunday in July. Rev. C. G. Isley will be the pulpit help. We are praying for a good meeting. REPORTER.

Enfield.—The week after Easter our former pastor and his wife, Rev. and Mrs. D. R. Williams, from Albemarle, came to us to conduct our special meeting. Mr. Williams came as a "live wire" and a "ray of sunshine" to brighten things up and show people where they stood. Mr. Williams was at his best and brought us soul-stirring messages each night. The whole church was made better as a result of these services and the large audiences was evidence that everyone was glad to see and hear again one who has served us so well. By special request he preached his railroad sermon the last night of the meeting and this was a wonderful sermon. It was a pleasure to have Mr. and Mrs. Williams with us for ten days and we want them to come again. The co-operation of the other churches and pastors in town during the meeting was very beautiful and we appreciate it. Our pastor, Rev. E. O. Peeler, has been giving us splendid sermons each time. His messages show deep thought and careful preparation, and they are an inspiration to us. Mother's Day was observed and Mr. Peeler preached a beautiful sermon. Mrs. Exum Bellamy and Mrs. Cecil Matthews sang a lovely duet. We were very happy to have two new members join the church, Mrs. John Davis and Miss Iodine Sykes.

Our Sunday school is getting along nicely now with splendid attendance each Sunday. Our Woman's Auxiliary held its last meeting in the home of Mrs. Walter Moon, with Mrs. Loyd Matthews and Mrs. S. C. Whitaker as joint hostesses. Our new president, Mrs. R. A. Jordan, presided. The Auxiliary is doing splendid work. A Mission Band with 12 members has been organized with Mrs. Walter Moon and Mrs. E. O. Peeler leaders.

Our hearts were saddened by the passing of one of our oldest and most faithful members, Mrs. Henrietta Braswell Holland Pike, May 3, 1935. She had been confined to her bed for almost three and a half years. We extend our heartfelt sympathy to her dear ones.

Mrs. Eli Bellamy and Mrs. Y. A. Spivey have been right sick but we are glad they are able to be out again.

Best wishes to Herald readers.

REPORTER.

West End, Greensboro.—Things are going along about as usual with us. On Sunday, May 26, Dr. Bethea preached on the subject, "Costly Living and Cheap Religion," at the 11 o'clock hour, and our congregation joined Calvary for the evening service.

The Teachers' Council held an outdoor meeting with picnic supper on Tuesday evening at the Public Service clubhouse. A good number of teachers attended and very encouraging reports were heard from heads of departments. A committee was appointed to promote interest in our Leadership Training School and secure registrations. A committee was also appointed to supervise and assist the different organizations of the church in their recreational activities during the summer months.

Our pastor was away the latter part of the week, attending commencement at High Point College, where one of his sons was graduated.

Sunday, June 2, Dr. Bethea started a new series of sermons. The morning hour will be given over to "Studies in the Life of Christ" and the evening to "The Lives of the Disciples of Christ, as Result of Following Christ."

The first in this series was "The Prayerful Christ," Luke 22:41: "And he kneeled down and prayed." We find that from a child He prayed all through His life, even to His last hours on earth, and the cross. At 8 o'clock, "Peter, the Man of Impulse," was the subject, with the text 2 Peter 1:16: "For we have not followed cunningly devised fables."

The circles meet at 8 o'clock on Monday evening, No. 1 with Mrs. R. R. Beeker, High Point Road; No. 2 with Mrs. W. W. Clement, 2208 Spring Garden Street. REPORTER.

Liberty.—The fourth Sunday morning Rev. Mr. Love brought another one of his splendid messages, and again at the evening hour. Mr. Love is very earnest and sincere and teaches by example as well as by precept.

Misses Marjorie Elkins and Mary Bowman Shepard have returned home from High Point College and rendered a beautiful duet at the morning worship hour last Sunday. It gives us great pleasure to have these two young people, also Miss Helen Dameron, who has returned to our church. We need their enthusiasm and help.

Our revival will begin the third Sunday in June with Dr. Fred Paschall as the visiting minister. We hope the neighboring churches all around Liberty will find time to come and join us in prayer and praise, and that we may all be abundantly blessed by attending this series of meetings. Friends, pray much for us.

Another one of our Methodist Protestants of Liberty has passed on since my last report, Mr. O. L. Hudson. He was a quiet, unassuming Christian citizen, and our church extends its heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family. May our Heavenly Father comfort them.

Our Children's Day program will be given the third Sunday morning.

Our pastor, Rev. Fred R. Love, is attending the pastors' conference at High Point College.

Our church banquet will be given the evening of June 15 from 6:30 to 8 o'clock. Dr. P. E. Lindley, of High Point College, will be the speaker.

Our Auxiliary has been serving dinner each Friday evening in May to the Rotarians of Liberty and realized quite a nice sum. Our Auxiliary president, Mrs. Wade Hardin, called the members together and they made a quilt for our Children's Home. The top was a gift by Miss Daisy Euliss. The same evening a quilt was made for Rev. and Mrs. Love.

Circle No. 1 met with Mrs. J. E. Cox at her attractive home on Fayetteville Street Wednesday afternoon for the May meeting. Mrs. Joe Swaim led the devotional. Circle No. 2 met with Mrs. Colon Brady the same afternoon at her home on Fayetteville Street. Mrs. J. N. Isley led the devotional.

O Father, clothe Thy church with power, through the affectionate brotherhood of men.

BERTINE SHEPARD, Reporter.

Lincolnton.—We are boasting a very good report this month. Our Sunday school has been fine. We have had good attendance and offerings. Our last Sunday offering was $28.97 and attendance 183.

Our Ladies' Aid is doing nicely. The ladies are taking a great interest in the work, which is benefiting not only them but the church also.

We haven't any report from our C. E. Society but we are sure they are doing nicely. They make up the working young people of our church.

Our prayer meetings are very good, the attendance varying from 15 to 30 in number.

It seems we are progressing in our preaching services. As our church is not a station, we do not have our pastor with us but once on Sunday, so he has made arrangements to have someone preach when he is not here. We have morning and night services, which we believe will be a great help.

Our pastor, Rev. J. R. Anderson, was with us Sunday morning and delivered a very interesting message from St. Matthew 28:16, "Then the eleven disciples went away into Galilee into a mountain where Jesus had appointed them." The subject, "Jesus Making Appointments," with His children at church, on bed of sickness, at death, in our secret prayers, in sorrow and in gladness.

We then assembled in remembrance of our Lord's coming at the Lord's Supper, where many gave an open confession that they were watching and waiting for our Lord Jesus Christ. REPORTER.

Asheville.—Miss Cunningham, Miss Clouse and Mr. Minnis are quite enthusiastic over their trip to High Point last week. They gave reports from the meetings during church service Sunday evening.

The Christian Endeavor rally was well attended on Sunday afternoon, and the speaker, Mr. Sam Wiley, from Hendersonville, was grand. Mr. John R. Brown, of Hendersonville, presided. Miss Nelle Gray presided over the business session. Miss Nancy Clouse, president of our Senior C. E. group, welcomed the representatives, and altogether the meeting was a great success.

Sunday school attendance was off somewhat. A good many of our folk are away or otherwise employed. We were glad to welcome Jennie Bolick back.

Children's Day is next Sunday. Come out, folks, and enjoy the day with the children. Everything will be done by the children as far as possible. Betty Jane Pratt and Jennie Bolick are to play the piano for the songs. Shirley Parker will render a piano solo and practically all of the children will have a part in the program either for the morning or evening service.

The young people's choir sang on Sunday past and did very well. Thanks to Miss Clouse and Mrs. J. H. Bailey, who practiced with them. Keep it up, young folk; we need your help.

Circle No. 1 of the Women's Auxiliary will meet Friday week, June 14, with Mrs. Y. D. Eller. It was postponed until then because of Children's Day practice. No announcement was made as regards Circle No. 2.

M. L. B.

Shiloh, Shiloh Charge.—Our Sunday school attendance last Sunday was 260, the enrollment for the quarter having reached 333. All classes seem to be doing very well. Rev. C. E. Ridge filled his regular appointment Sunday at 11 o'clock, preaching from the text Gen. 32 and the first part of the 24th verse. The election for delegate to the Annual Conference was held. The nominees are Mr. J. L. Evans, Shiloh, and Mr. Henry Shoaf, Friendship. The votes will be counted at the next quarterly conference. The Workers' Council held its regular meeting on Monday night with 26 present. The reports of the different organizations were given and business transacted. The trustees' report was probably most pleasing because they were able to report the parsonage completed. The pastor and family will move to the new home this week. Another report showed that all of our church claims have been met except the McCulloch Memorial Fund. We hope this will be paid at an early date. Pastor's salary is also paid to date.

Another marriage has taken place. Miss Mabel Leonard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Numa Leonard, and Mr. Gathney Leatherman, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Leatherman, were married May 25. We hope for them success through life.

Miss Inez Ridge, daughter of our pastor, was among the graduates at the recent commencement of High Point College. She has returned to the home of her parents and we are glad for her to link up with our Sunday school and young people's work.

CALVARY CLOSES TITHING CAMPAIGN

The tithing campaign which has been on at Calvary church for the months of April and May, has come to a close with good results. The agreement was that the people were to pay their regular church pledge out of their tithe and were to turn over the remainder of the tithe for the church debt. The combined offerings for the two months of April and May were $365.00 more than the combined offerings of February and March.

MRS. MOTON PASSES

At First Church, High Point, the funeral is being held this afternoon of Mrs. J. H. Moton, widow of Rev. J. H. Moton, who was for many years a minister in our conference.

THE FIRST METHODIST PROTESTANT CHURCH, DANVILLE, VA.

I am writing at this particular time to give a few facts, along with other comments, to the readers of the Herald, and more especially for the ones who like to keep up with historical facts about churches, and facts that we like to preserve for future reference. There are many churches that would like to turn back the pages of their histories and discover all about their organizations, and the history of progress made through the past years, which we always cherish so much. This we would like to have as a local church, and we pass it on for what it is worth to the readers of these columns.

Our Church

Previous to the orgasization of our church we had group meetings of all who were interested in the organization. Our first group meeting looking forward to organization was held in the Odd Fellows' hall, North Main Street, on Wednesday night, January 9, 1935. Dr. R. M. Andrews and Dr. George R. Brown were present, and gave us the information that we wanted about the M. P. church. There were 20 present at this meeting. These meetings continued from week to week in the form of prayer meetings, and were followed by discussions on the organization of a church. It was on Friday night, March 1, 1935, that we met at a vacant store at 639 North Main Street for permanent organization. The meeting was presided over by Dr. George R. Brown, of Reidsville, N. C., who duly instituted the church, and set us out on our journey. The charter membership was held over to Sunday, March 17, 1935, at the conclusion of which there were 37 members. Our opening day for the first service as an organization was held on Sunday, March 3, 1935. The subject for discussion by those present was: "My church: what I would like for it to be, and what I would like for it to do." There were 47 present in the morning service, and the evening congregation numbered 74. Our congregations are good, having anywhere from say 70 to 150, as has been estimated from time to time.

Our Sunday School

Our Sunday school superintendent, Joe W. Lamb, is the right man in the right place. On our first day, March 3, we had 60 present, and the offering was $6.72. Since the opening of our school we have had a steady growth, reaching our peak on last Sunday, June 2, when we had 103 present. If we had the equipment we believe we would have no difficulty in reaching the 200 mark in a short time. We have the interest, and we have the teachers and workers, but lack the equipment. We believe our school is headed for a steady growth. We are hoping to "push the walls out" and then erect a structure that will meet our requirements. We welcome suggestions from the brethren along these lines.

Organization

We have a fine Woman's Missionary Auxiliary. We have also just completed the organization of two groups of Christian Endeavors. These are interesting organizations, and while they are young, we believe they are going to do a good work, as the results seem to indicate at the present. You will hear more from these organizations later on. The following are our general officers: Trustees, Joe W. Lamb, G. H. Guerrant, Ira Elliott; stewards, Joe W. Stephens, L. W. Tanner, H. E. Lewis, D. S. Scearce, Ira Elliott; treasurer, A. E. Rice; secretary, Mrs. L. W. Tanner; superintendent of Sunday school, Joe W. Lamb; musical director, Mrs. Audrey Lamb; class leaders, S. H. Ladd, Mrs. J. W. Stephens, Mrs. Myrtle Thomas; Woman's Missionary Auxiliary president, Mrs. Ira Elliott; Christian Endeavor leaders, Mrs. Audrey Lamb, juniors; Miss Ora Whisenant, seniors.

Prayer Meetings

These meeetings are like the "oasis in the desert." We have had as many as 75 present (estimated) in these meetings recently. There is considerable interest in these services. They are truly meetings of fine fellowship, and our souls are fed as prayer, praise, and testimony are offered by those present.

Our Pastor

We have "a little boy preacher" for our pastor in the person of Clarence P. Morris. We love him. He meets the needs, and "fits in" in our little organization. We wish it were possible for him to continue with us through next year (and maybe he will, even though the Seminary is important). We believe we have the right man. He is consecrated, he lives what he preaches (and he preaches well), he is a good mixer, he is tactful, and he uses good judgment in church matters. By the way, he also mixes well at the table—we like him in our homes. Since his coming to us on May 2, he has been an inspiration to us by his life, and in the messages of the gospel that he has and is bringing us. He has contributed a great deal in helping the church to live up to its motto: "The homey church on the hill."

Finances

We have not as yet adopted an envelope system. We are at present using the free-will system of offerings, and we are doing, I think, very well for a beginner church. Since our first meeting, March 3, with May's report incomplete, we have raised approximately $450, and with a report from the treasurer that we have enough money to meet all bills, so far as we can now ascertain. Our church also has a novel feature in our offerings. We lay aside 10 per cent of all monies offered, both in the Sunday school and the church, for the poor and needy.

Conclusion

I am sure, Mr. Editor, you will pardon this long write-up (and more could be said), but here are some of the facts that we would like to see in print, and, of course, we thought of the church paper. If you, or any of the brethren happen to be passing this way, we are extending you a hearty invitation and a cordial welcome to the "homey church on the hill." Pray for us that we may be able to do just what God would have us do here at the new church in Danville, Va.

IRA ELLIOTT.

FRIENDS OF MR. WHITEHEAD GO TO GRADUATION

On Monday of this week Dr. Joy Harris Glascock, Mrs. L. W. Gerringer, and M. H. Waynick, Jr., of Greensboro; Dr. and Mrs. C. W. Bates, of Winston-Salem, and Rev. and Mrs. E. L. Ballard, of Mebane, went to Duke University Commencement exercises to see Rev. T. J. Whitehead graduate.

"A FORT TO HOLD"

Many of us have been inspired, and even thrilled, by the organized effort going on today in this country through the Christian Endeavor and other young people's organizations, to mobilize youth in a program of building for Christ—building a new self, a new home, a new church, a new community, a new world.

As older women, let us rejoice in this high, courageous and practical appeal to Youth; let us sponsor it in every way possible, but dare we merely stand on the sidelines and cheer, when we too have an immediate and challenging responsibility? For several years through our devotional books we have tried to emphasize the building of a new individual. This should not be pushed into the background. Some attention has been paid to the building of a new home through the rekindling of the fires on family altars and the reconstruction of a planned family life. A further emphasis on this is so important that I would plead with every group to use the May topic in our Guide Book as a basis, not only for the auxiliary meeting, but also for a campaign throughout the month of May for better homes in the real Christian sense.

But this is not enough. In the light of recent investigations, the need of our co-operation in the building of a better community is so important that as Christian women we cannot evade it. Will you agree with me when I say that church women have shown an astonishing lack of interest in problems vitally affecting community and national life? Will you further agree with me when I say that there are more Christian women who read articles to tell them how to change their daily menu than those who seek information how to cast an intelligent vote toward reforming their community? There are many Christian mothers who spend a large amount of thought on how to clothe the bodies of their children and give no thought as to how the magazines and movies are clothing their souls. It is not difficult to condemn the evils of militarism in Japan, but it takes courage sometimes to take a stand against the teaching of the tactics of war in our Christian colleges. One may bemoan child labor in China and ignore deplorable labor conditions that exist in one's own town. Is it not time for our church women to pray this prayer: "Lord, deliver us from the sin of faithless unconcern"?

The Department of Work is not the place to discuss the moral and religious problems that confront the community and nation, but it is within its province to remind you that in our organization set-up we have an officer whose name and whose duties could be enlarged so as to give the responsibility of promoting among our women all phases of Christian citizenship. We now call her the Secretary of Temperance, but I hope that the coming convention will give her the broader title of Secretary of Christian Citizenship, whether she holds the office in the convention, the Branch, the district, or the auxiliary, and that her duties shall include the directing of the thought and the activities of the women, not only along the lines of temperance, but on such questions as militerism, child labor, prevention of crime and moving picture reform. Because such problems admit of no postponement and are calling the Christian women to immediate action, I would ask every Secretary of Temperance to do, as some have already done, and to consider herself a Secretary of Christian Citizenship.

Taking it for granted that you will do this, I have a few suggestions. First, find out what the National Council of Federated Church Women is doing along the line of the problems suggested. Perhaps you are not familiar with this organization whose purpose is to mobilize the Christian women of our country, and blaze a trail for doing Christian things together on a national scale. For information concerning it you can write to our own Mrs. S. W. Rosenberger, Steubenville, Ohio, who, while not officially appointed, is representing Methodist Protestant women as a vice president of the Council.

Second, find out what your own Annual Conference is doing in these matters and how the women may co-operate. Third, discover what agencies in your state and city are working for moral reform and what legislation in the Congress or the Legislature or the City Council may require the support of Christian women.

To inform the women of your organization concerning moral problems, to arouse in them a sense of personal concern, to show them the necessary steps to take—these are the lines of procedure for a Secretary of Christian Citizenship.

"If I have sought for shelter in Thy fold,
When Thou hast given me some fort to hold,
O Lord, forgive."

—Mrs. Jas. W. Armstrong, in Missionary Record.

MISS PASCHALL COMING

By Miss Maxine Taylor

Miss Kathleen Paschall is to be with us in the Leadership School to offer a new course—one for the twelve- and thirteen-year-olds. Miss Paschall has had a good deal of experience in Vacation Church School work and in religious education in general. She holds a master's degree in religious education from Columbia University; she was for two years with the Department of Religious Education at Western Maryland College; and for the past year she has been working out a program of community recreation in Irvona, Pa. This work has been under the government, and the personal supervision of Mrs. Roosevelt. Several motion pictures have been made of the project.

Further particulars of the course she is to offer at High Point will be made later. In the meantime we want the boys and girls eligible to plan to be there!

Another V. C. School

Mr. Madison, of First church, Thomasville, is planning a school for the first two weeks of July. How about yours?

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Saunders

Elmer Vaughn Saunders, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Saunders, was born April 16, 1914, and at the time of his death on May 9, 1935, was 21 years and 24 days of age.

He was a faithful member of Love Joy Methodist Protestant church for some time, having united with the church on profession of faith during the camp meeting a year or so ago.

He leaves for a while his wife, Mrs. Ruby Thompson Saunders (to whom he had been married just four months), his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Saunders; four sisters, Mrs. A. A. Harris, Mrs. V. C. Harris, Misses Lucille and Edith Saunders; one brother, Howard Saunders; his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay Saunders, and Mrs. Margaret Thompson; four nieces and two nephews, with a great host of other relatives and a great number of friends.

Brother Saunders died very suddenly in a hospital in Albemarle, being sick only a couple of days. He will be sorely missed in the community, and especially in the home.

We extend our sympathy to the grief-stricken family, and may the God of all peace comfort and sustain them.

E. G. COWAN, Pastor.

MY MOTHER

Someone I love comes back to me
With every gentle face I see;
Beneath each wave of soft gray hair
I seem to see my mother there;
With every kindly glance and word
It seems as if I must have heard
Her speak, and felt her tender gaze
With all the love of other days.

And I am moved to take her hand,
And tell her now I understand
How tired she grew beneath the strain
Of feeling every loved one's pain;
No further burdens could she bear.
The promise of that land more fair
Alone could tempt her from her child.
And now, if I could keep her here,
No sacrifice would be too dear,
No tempered winds for her too mild.

Then I would smooth and kiss her face,
And by her side take my old place,
And sob my years and cares away.
The tears I have so long repressed
Would lose their ache upon her breast.
I think if I could feel her touch
Once more, it would not matter much
How sunny or how dark the day.

I love each mother that I see,
Who brings my own so near to me.
For though I nevermore may frame
Upon my lips that hallowed name,
To any who will draw me near,
And answer me with warm caress—
So long as there are mothers here,
No child can be quite motherless.

The above was given to the undersigned by Mrs. Charles H. Fields just after the death of her dear mother, Mrs. Charlotte Woodburn, who silently and peacefully passed to her reward on May 15, 1935. Mrs. Woodburn was more than 96 years old and she was one of the sweetest Christians the writer has ever known. For the last 16 years she had lived in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Fields. For a number of years, because of her advanced age, she had been confined to her bed—not sick but just old and weak. During all these years the daughter has with patience and gentleness, most untiringly and beautifully cared for the aged mother. Out of the love and devotion of a faithful daughter for a sainted mother the lines have been written for publication.

On May 16, in the presence of a large audience, the funeral was conducted by the pastor in Tabernacle church and the mortal remains were laid to rest in the family lot in the church cemetery.

GEO. L. CURRY, Pastor.

Owen

Mrs. Sallie Jane Lineberry Owen, age 81, wife of the late Henry B. Owen, passed from this life May 16, 1935. Mrs. Owen was the only daughter of Rev. Arlendo Lineberry, D. D., and Celia Gillespie Lineberry (both deceased).

The writer had known Mrs. Owen only a few months but found her to be a woman of culture and Christian character. She loved her church, her Bible, and her church paper, and always loved for her pastor to call so that she could talk over her past experiences in parsonage life with someone who could understand.

Her father, Dr. A. W. Lineberry, was a pioneer Methodist Protestant in this state, being born the same year the denomination came into existence.

Mrs. Owen is survived by one son, Arlendo B. Owen, of Gibsonville, and three brothers, Arlendo and Charles Lineberry, of Greensboro; James Lineberry, of High Point, and a whole host of friends and relatives who are deeply grieved at the going of this good woman. The funeral was held in the Gibsonville M. P. church of which she was a member, and her body laid to rest in the Gibsonville cemetery. The writer was assisted in the service by Rev. N. G. Bethea, of Greensboro, and Rev. Enoch Hite, of Gibsonville Lutheran church. R. C. STUBBINS.

Pike

Once again the death angel has entered the Enfield Methodist Protestant Auxiliary and called from labors and sufferings to her reward one of our oldest members. Mrs. Henrietta Braswell Holland Pike died May 3, 1935, at the age of 83 years. She was a charter member of our Missionary Society and Ladies' Aid, which in recent years has merged into an auxiliary. May her long life of service in Christ's Kingdom be an inspiration to higher and nobler living to all who have been associated with her.

In appreciation of her Christian life and loving service, we submit the following resolutions:

First, Resolved that as we bow in humble submission to the divine will of God, that we will follow her example of Christian faith and helpfulness. That we may be true to our Christian service, looking forward to the time when the Father of us all will say, Come up higher to the home prepared for the people of God.

Second, Resolved that we extend our heartfelt sympathy to her bereaved family and friends.

Third, Resolved that a copy of these resolutions be sent the family, that a copy be sent to the Methodist Protestant Herald, to the Enfield Progress, and that a copy be placed on file in secretary's book.

"The life she lived was true and honest,
Always glad to meet a friend,
Happy-hearted and contented,
Faithful to the end.

"Now her earthly strife is over,
No more sorrow, no more care;
Yet our hearts are sad and lonely,
For we miss her everywhere."

MRS. EGBERT BARNHILL,
MRS. ELI BELLAMY,
MRS. R. A. JORDAN.

Wilson

Henry A. Wilson passed to his reward May 29, 1935, after having lived more than 79 years. In early life he joined Mebane Presbyterian church. Later he transferred his membership to Hebron M. P. church. Here he remained a faithful member until death.

Funeral services were conducted in Mebane M. P. church May 30 by Rev. N. N. Flemming and the writer, after which the remains were placed in the Mebane cemetery.

The following near relatives remain: His companion; one daughter, Mrs. J. S. Gill; five sons, W. W., H. A., Jr., J. B., B. F. and H. C. Wilson; also 16 grandchildren, 2 great-grandchildren, 2 sisters and 1 brother.

May God's blessings be upon them all.

B. M. WILLIAMS.

Robinson

Mrs. Sarah F. Robinson, wife of the late E P. Robinson, was born July 10, 1860. She departed this life May 26, 1935, having attained the age of 74 years, 10 months and 16 days. Mrs. Robinson united with Flat Rock Methodist Protestant church at an early age and remained a faithful member until her transfer from the church militant to the Church Triumphant.

She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Harbard Parrish, and was born and reared near Flat Rock church, residing in Guilford county during her entire life. In 1900 she was united in marriage to E. P. Robinson, who preceded her in death 12 years ago.

Surviving are one sister, Mrs. A. G. Pegram; one stepdaughter, Miss Blanche Robinson; several nephews, nieces and other relatives, as well as a host of friends and neighbors.

Funeral services were conducted at Flat Rock Methodist Protestant church Monday, May 27, 1935, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, by the writer, and interment was beside the parents in Flat Rock cemetery.

The general comment from many sources was to the effect that Mrs. Robinson was a good woman, always manifesting an interest in religion and attending the church services when her health permitted. C. B. WAY.

—The letter concerning the McCulloch Memorial Fund and the Christian Endeavor Notes did not arrive this week.

gone on. We cannot believe that God is indifferent to what is going on in the world today. Wherever His children suffer we believe He is there and that He is interested in them. The fact that the church has God on its side is its only hope. Had it not been for this it would have been gone long ago. But with Him on its side, it shall be able to overcome and go on to victory.

Another thing in the church's favor is that it meets the universal need of the human soul. Many times men have tried to forget this and have tried to feel that they were independent, but after all, sooner or later, they were thrown back upon the fact that they needed God. And, contrary to the ways of man, God comes to the rescue and helps us out. He is more forgiving than we are and is long suffering toward His wayward children. After all, sooner or later, man realizes that he is a sinner and that he needs a Savior. He realizes that he is a social being and needs somebody to associate with. He realizes that life cannot be at its best or its highest without worship, and he needs to worship with others. So the church, which is a band of believers, can help him worship. All of these things ought to give us a deeper appreciation of the church. All of us ought to be able to say:

"I love thy church, O God,
Her walls before thee stand,
Dear as the apple of thine eye
And graven on thy hand.

"For her my tears shall fall,
For her my prayers ascend;
To her my cares and toils be given,
Till toils and cares shall end."

WHAT THE BIBLE SAYS ABOUT SIN

By Rev. T. M. Johnson, D.D.

The greatest problem is that of sin. The lure of sin is in that it promises a short cut to pleasure, a thing that man seeks. The Bible allows that there is a sort of pleasure experienced in sin. Note the words pleasures and enjoy in the following: "Moses, when he was come to years, refused to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter; choosing rather to suffer affliction with the people of God, than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season." (Heb. 11:24, 25.) The whole trend of Bible teaching is against the short cut to the sordid, temporary pleasure that sin offers.

What Sin Is

Sin is not breaking a law, but transgressing it. "Whosoever committeth sin transgresseth also the law: for sin is the transgression of the law." (I John 3:4.) The root idea of the word transgression is "stepping across"—that is, stepping across a line or barrier that separates between safety and danger, as the line that marks the middle of a highway, the banister of a bridge, the woven iron guard alongside the highway.

The purpose and spirit behind the "thou-shalt-not's" of the Bible is not a threat that a higher power will punish us if we do certain things, but is a warning that the doing of those things causes suffering, as the mother warns her child that the fire will burn if the child touches it. "But of the tree of knowledge of good and evil, thou shalt not eat of it: for in the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die," (Gen. 2:17) did not mean that God would come and kill them if they ate, but that it was the nature of that kind of fruit to kill those who ate it—not a threat but a warning.

Sin, the Perversion of Good Things

Can you, dear reader, think of any form of sin of commission, that is not a perversion of some good thing? That is, a misuse or excessive use of something the Creator intended for the use of man for man's benefit. It is a good thing to eat, but excessive eating is gluttony, a sin against the body. Alcohol is good to dissolve certain ingredients, to preserve specimens, for fuel in alcohol lamps or in alcohol motors; but to drink it is injurious—a sin against health, against posterity, against society, against God; that is, a misuse. "O full of all subtlety and all mischief, thou child of the devil, thou enemy of all righteousness, wilt thou not cease to pervert the right ways of the Lord?" (Acts 13:10.)

Sin Is Everywhere

Sin roams in fields and forest, lurks by the wayside, and rides upon the highway, sails upon the high seas and flies in the air, moves in high society and lives with the lowly, whirls with the gay and sits with the pensive, dwells in the mansion and in the hut, feeds upon the fat of the land and upon the crust of the poor, sleeps upon eider-down and upon beds of straw, is present in the busy marts of trade and in the huddle of the idle, in both office and shop of industrial plants, on both sides of the counter where goods are distributed, in the home and in the throng, in the courts of justice and in the rendezvous of criminals, in both pulpit and pew at church! The above does not mean there are no honest industrialists, no just judges, no happy homes, no sincere Christians. It does mean that sin intrudes itself, as often as allowed, into all situations of life. "So death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned." (Rom. 5:12.) "For I know your manifold transgressions and your mighty sins: they afflict the just, they take a bribe, and they turn aside the poor in the gate from their right." (Amos 5:12.) "The heads thereof judge for reward, and the priests thereof teach for hire, and the prophets thereof divine for money." (Micah 3:11.) "Behold, the hire of the labourers . . . which is of you kept back by fraud, crieth." (Jas. 5:4.)

Sin Does Damage

Note the terrific onslaughts of sin. "For in the day that thou eatest thereof thou shall surely die." (Gen. 2:17.) "The soul that sinneth, it shall die." (Ezek. 18:4.) 'The wages of sin is death." (Rom. 6:23.) "The wicked shall be turned into hell, and all the nation that forget God." (Ps. 9:17.) "And sin, when it is finished, bringeth forth death." (Jas. 1:15.)

What to Do About It

The provision in Old Testament times for staving off the awful consequences of sin was the making of a sin offering or trespass offering, this whether an individual or "the whole congregation of Israel." The "sin offering' to them seems to have been what the "mourners bench" is to us, or rather was to us when we used the mourner's bench. "And he shall do with the bullock as he did with the bullock for a sin offering, so shall he do with this: and the priest shall make an atonement for them, and it shall be forgiven them.'' (Lev. 4:20.)

The New Testament provision is repentance, a decided advance over the Old Testament plan. ''For it is not possible that the blood of bulls and of goats should take away sin.'' (Heb. 10:4.) ''I tell you, Nay: but, except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish.''—Jesus. A decided advance over that of repentance is ''that ye sin not.'' (I John 2:1.) Also, ''Whosoever abideth in him sinneth not'' (verse 6), and ''Whosoever is born of God doth not commit sin.'' (verse 9.)

is perhaps the most deadly among the fairly consistent followers of Jesus; that is, church members. The amazing indifference on the part of many is paralyzing, appalling. ''To him that knoweth to do good and doeth it not, to him it is sin.'' (Jas. 4:17.) ''These ought ye to have done, and not to leave the other undone.''—Jesus. ''Depart from me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire. . . I was an hungered, and ye gave me no meat: I was thirsty, and ye gave me no drink: I was a stranger, and ye took me not in: naked, and ye clothed me not: sick, and in prison, and ye visited me not . . . and these shall go away into everlasting punishment.'' (Matt. 25: 41-43, 46.) They omitted.

BOOTLEGGING AND THE BOOTLEGGER

By Rev. H. L. Powell, Thomasville, N. C.

Well, all I know is what I read in the papers: the lies and what little truth I hear.

It seems that the above caption puzzled our last North Carolina legislators quite a bit, who seemed to be personally dry but politically wet. They seemed to be very much concerned as to how to get rid of the bootleggers, and seemed to show great sympathy for the poor laboring man that could not get a drink withut a violation of the law. I am wondering how these legislators would like to ride on a train run by a drinking crew!

How to get rid of the bootlegger! Mr. Solon, there is one way to get rid of the bootlegger, and the only way I know: just repeal all the laws and make it tax-free. Let everyone make, sell, drink, and transport that wants to, without license or any restraint of law, and we will have no bootleggers in this particular line of industry.

There was a time in the days of our great-great-grandfathers when there were no licensed manufacturers; no law to restrain the hellish traffic in the liquor business. As long as we have laws to restrain and control the hellbroth that is impoverishing, demoralizing, damning, murdering, and destroying our civilization, we will have bootleggers. License the traffic and I ask with all seriousness, what do we have? A licensed bootlegger.

When the great-great-grandfathers lived there were no bootleggers. The liquor business became so intolerable that the good fathers and mothers formed temperance leagues and began to appeal to legislatures for laws to protect their homes, their churches, and their children.

Webster said, ''Rum, gin, brandy, and whisky have destroyed more lives than wars, earthquakes, famine, and pestilence.'' Laws have been passed and the fathers have tried every conceivable control law to control this mad raging bull, but he has no confinement. He has no respect or regard for the laws of God or man. All he wants is to control politics: fattens by filling his belly with the blood of human lives.

Finaly came prohibition, which came the nearest to control and the cutting off of the snake's head of anything that has been done in the 68 years of this writers lifetime.

Personally dry, as they claim, but politically wet, wanting to pass liquor control laws to bring about temperance. It reminds me of a father and mother putting all the children in a room, surrounding them with sticks, clubs, guns, pistols, knives, swords, and turning loose in the room with the children a few rattlesnakes and a few mad-dogs, then going off to church to pray God to keep them from danger and the bites of reptiles and mad-dogs.

A disguised serpent to get men, women who do not think and have had no experience or have forgotten conditions before the days of prohibition, to vote to get a little more tax money to feed these politicians, and to continue them in office.

They tell us prohibition has broken down, and that we have more liquor under prohibition than under a licensed system and control law. If prohibition gives them more liquor, havent they got what they want? It doesn't seem to me that they would want to break the fountain from which flows the largest stream. Any man who has lived during the old days and during the days of prohibition knows this is untrue. They have never proved their assertion.

The wets will claim everything. I remember 1908, the day before we won state prohibition by nearly 50,000 majority. I was in Greensboro. I met an old friend of mine, a schoolmate. He teasingly said, ''Parson, we are going to beat you tomorrow.'' I remarked to him, ''We'll carry the state by 40,000.'' A friend of his, a wet, from Baltimore, came up. I was introduced to him. He entered or joined in the argument, saying there were four well equipped barrooms right here in Greensboro. At that time Greensboro was under local option. I challenged him to show me just one barroom in the entire city. He said, ''You don't want to buy, do you?'' I assured him I would and pay for it. He then turned and said, ''I can go to any doctor in Greensboro and get a prescription for a quart.'' I took from my pocket a ten-dollar bill and placed it in the hands of my friend. Then I turned to him and gave names of five doctors whom I knew, two of them not three blocks away, and said, ''If you can get a prescription from either of the five doctors named, the ten-dollar bill is yours.'' He didn't go. Easy money, but he knew he couldn't do it, and I knew it too.

If the prohibition laws could not be enforced, what control laws can be? I answer, None.

The enforcement of the prohibition laws has been in the hands of its enemies since its enactment. The liquor business has come to the open and got decidedly worse since Al Smith jerked the dry plank out of the Democratic platform and ran on a wet plank—then came repeal.

WE'RE VERY PROUD

And some will say, stuck up.) But only about the fine showing of awards at the Mid-Year Conference. It reminded me of commencement, when the brethren came up and got their certificates. And sort of like getting a diploma, too. The student has to make an effort to apply himself to his studies; but it's the labor and sacrifice of the folks back home that makes it possible for him to get the diploma after all. Least wise, that's the way it is with most of 'em. Once in a while a feller has to work his way through, and deserves most of the credit for going it alone. And so with these certificates. It was the labor and sacrifice of the folks back home that made the award possible. Sixty-six certificates were given. Sorry the rest of you folks flunked on your exam. But we'll give you another chance. But you'd better get busy!

Not much gain since the last report. But every little bit taken from what we owe makes what we owe a little bit less. We've reached the top and are sliding down hill. We're on the home stretch. The goal's in sight. But it's yet afar off. Are you pressing toward the mark? Come on, folks, let's go!

C. W. Bates, Chairman.

TITHING

I just want to say a few words on tithing from experience. There are lots of things we hear and read about, but when we really know a thing and have tried it out, we know it is true.

I am not surprised at anything these days that comes upon us, for we have so many robbers. The Bible says, "Will a man rob God? Yet ye have robbed me. But ye say, wherein have we robbed thee? In tithes and offerings. Ye are cursed with a curse, for you have robbed me, even this whole nation." (Malachi 3:8, 9.)

Oh, if people would just stop and take time to hear that little voice that guides us day by day. I have been tithing for many years, and oh, I receive such great blessing since I have been doing it. If someone would walk up to me and say, "Here is ten thousand dollars; you can have it, but don't spend a penny except to build a house," I would say, "I will not have it, for if I can't take God's part out first I will not touch it." I never spend a dime unless I take out a penny. Oh, if people would just try it and see how God can stretch. I don't believe there has ever been a woman that can stretch a dollar bill any farther than myself, but God stretches it so it seems like he doubles it.

I was reading a piece in our town paper the other day in regards to the strike we had last fall, explaining what a terrible condition our town was in since the strike. He seemed to talk like it was almost heaven before the strike. But it almost makes your hair rise on your head to think we have around 9,000 people that don't belong to any church, and 3,000 that belong to the churches in Roanoke Rapids, and God only knows how many of them are Christians. There is a lot of difference in a church member and a Christian. Maybe the strike has done a lot of harm, but I know one thing, here is one that has not been hurt by the strike. My husband has not been back to the mill since the strike. We have seven in the family, lived all through the winter on $4.80, bought all our coal and fed two cows, but I took out the tenth first and today I have more clothes than I have had since I have been a married woman. Not only clothes, but blessing after blessings come upon us. A good lady the other day said to me, "Here ic $1.00, take it and spend it where you think it is best." I am so glad I got in this tithing way when I did. I would not go back and spend my money in the old way for anything. I just wish everyone that reads this article would just try it for a month. May God bless every Herald reader and make us a tithing church member.

Mrs. L. R. Pearson.

TOYING WITH SIN

Do you sometimes get tired sitting at home and "not having any fun at all"?

Do you once in a while compromise yourself and your stand as a Christian by doing something which down in your heart of hearts you believe to be wrong—at least not ethical for a Christian?

If you do, you are toying with sin, and there is a strong probability that it will become a fixed habit which you will find it hard to break.

It doesn't pay to toy with sin; it doesn't pay to compromise one's stand as a Christian, for in doing so you are compromising all of Christianity. People will judge all Christians and Christianity itself by the stand you, as a professed Christian, take upon certain practices in our social, political and economic life.

Don't do things you believe to be wrong, merely because you think there "isn't much harm in them."

Be careful of your actions, for others are watching you and judging Christianity through you. Influence their verdict for good!—The Covenanter Witness.

Bootlegging and the Bootleggers

I have passed up and down our streets of towns and cities in North and South Carolina in the days of the saloon and the dispensary, and have seen men staggering, lying on the ground vomiting, blocking streets in front of saloons and dispensaries,—men, women, blacks and whites, all drinking out of the same bottle.

Is it a fact that drinking girls all belong to prohibition days? No. In my young days, at dances, I've seen the musicians, young girls and young men, the majority intoxicated. I've seen young women taken from the floor and put to bed to sober up. No wonder Judge Webb said, "I would rather see ten thousand mad-dogs turned loose in the state of North Carolina than to see the return of the saloon."

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord.

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

Two Honor Rolls

We are proud to be able to set up these two lists of distinction-churches which have already paid in full their apportion for the W. S. budget and all the items in the Annual Conference budget. We hope to add to these as time passes. If your church should be in this list we will thank you to let us know, as the list will run at the head of my letter for a few weeks.

Honor Roll Number One

Churches which have met the quota for World Service: Shiloh Church, Shiloh Charge.

Honor Roll Number Two

Churches which have paid all items in the Annual Conference budget:

Mill Grove, Love Grove and Pine Bluff church, Midland charge; Shiloh church, Shiloh charge; Gibsonville church; Shiloh church, Liberty charge; Haw River church, Glen Raven charge; Mebane church.

This is fine indeed. It is yet five months until conference meets. We have a hope that next week we can add to both these. There was some misunderstanding about the lists. Many pastors did not give the names of the churches which had paid these claims in full in their reports to me; some did not get their reports to me. But now we can give every church the recognition it so much deserves, and we sincerely hope that the members as well as the pastors will see that it is done promptly.

The A. C. Debt Retirement Apportionment

Last week we called for this apportionment for June. We hope that the churches which have not paid this will arrange at once to pay it. The money is needed and it is not a burden to any church. Therefore, let's get it off the list and be ready for the next good deed.

A. C. Expenses

Many churches, when this allotment was called, were unable to pay it all. I would greatly appreciate it if you would now try to complete your apportionment and be sure to send it to Mr. Allen, for unless it reaches him it does not help the cause for which it was contributed.

Reading the Herald

It may not be pleasing to say so, but we still have people who subscribe for the Herald but rarely read it. It often crops out in conversations with some church official that he is unacquainted with what is going on in the denomination, not even in the conference. He does not know what has been reported in the church papers. Of course, this will ever be so, but the number should indeed be small. And I for one do not intend to belong to that list. Will you, dear pastor, try to enlist such in the affairs of your church?

Group Meetings

We are preparing to put on this summer several such meetings as were held last summer. We shall call them Official and Membership Meetings. At them we shall discuss the church. There will be four speakers. The subject will be "The Prevailing Church." The following topics will be discussed by different speakers:

1. The Tenets of the Prevailing Church. Under this topic the speaker will call to our attention those beliefs which have made the church strong and effective.

2. The Worship Program of the Prevailing Church. This explains itself.

3. What the Prevailing Church Should Know About Its Denomination. Under this topic the speaker will discuss the literature, etc., of the church.

4. The Program of the Prevailing Church. This will call for a full discussion of what the denomination is setting out to accomplish.

Already meetings have been set on Littleton circuit, Weaver's Chapel, for July 9, an all-day program; Halifax circuit, July 10; Spring Church circuit, Pleasant Hill church, July 11, and possibly in area of Henderson, some church, the 12th; Chapel Hill church, Davidson circuit, July 16. Other announcements will follow. In the meantime, if you want a meeting of this character, let me know and we will try to arrange for it. None will be held on Sunday, however. I am making no suggestion for the fifth Sunday meetings; I do hope they will be held and that chairmen will have the fullest co-operation of the pastors and people.

Gideon's Grove, Rev. C. B. Way, Pastor

This church was dedicated last Sunday. The present building was erected in 1923, the first one in 1896. The original membership was 16; there were three of those present last Sunday. The present building is frame, a one-room church. But I heard talk of brick-veneering the building, and when this is done Sunday school rooms will be added. There was a house well filled for the morning worship. This is a good rural church. Some of its members live in Stokesdale, but take great interest in the church work. We did not remain for the afternoon program, but several former pastors were expected, and Dr. Pritchard was also to speak. We enjoyed our visit, and sincerely hope that the church will grow in grace, knowledge, and good works as the years go by.

St. Paul, Greensboro, Rev. A. D. Shelton, Pastor

We were here for the evening program. There was a good night attendance. The people are really good listeners, which makes it easier for the preacher to deliver his sermon. The pastor has recently held a revival meeting with good results, altogether 21 have been received into the church since conference. Here I also heard talk of improvements; making rooms in the basement to help take care of the Sunday school, and painting the interior of the church. Both pastor and people appear happy in their relationship, and the work seems

OUR STORY PAGE

"BUT ONE WAS OUT ON THE HILLS"

"Chacob, I need you," called Mrs. Schantz, in her "Dutchified" vernacular, to her boy who was playing ball with some neighbor boys in the newly-mown hayfield nearby.

"All right, Movher," answered the chunky, curly-haired youth in just as Dutch a way as his mother. "Hurry up, poys; I must get home next strike. Movher vants me."

Jacob was such a jolly good fellow. All the boys liked him. And couldn't he play ball! He was always final authority when it came to deciding disputed points or to judging offenders.

"All right, Movher. Here I am. I could hardly stopf playing, but I couldn't disofbey you."

"Vell, chust to think of it, Chake. Many a mother I know vhat vould gif a whole lots to haf chust such a poy as you. Hurry quick, and fetch me some milk and butter from the spring-house; then you can go right away back to your game if you feel like it." This, then, was Jake at fourteen—innocent, comical, Dutch as sauerkraut, but outstandingly reliable and obedient.

Several weeks later the Schantz family left their farm—Mr. Schantz could no longer stand the work—and moved to town. Here the father did light work and the children went to school.

Now Jake was no longer the idol of his community. "Greenie," "country Jake," "sissy," and "Dutchie" he was to the upper classmen in the high school. That Dutch accent of his! How they laughed, and how he "vept!"

By the end of his freshman year, Jake had regained his old-time popularity. His kind personality had done most of the work, and his muscle put on the finishing touches.

That summer he worked in a tobacco factory. His mother, a Christian, always hoped and prayed that her boys might not contract the tobacco habit as their father had done. Nathan, the other boy, had resolved when just a little fellow not to touch the weed. Bu now—well, he wasn't a baby any more. He was sixteen, and earning money. Besides, a cigar or cigarette would add dignity to his personal bearing. Other boys did it. One day he puffed several times at a cigar he had just made. It made him dreadfully sick; in fact, as he told the boys, it "chust about made him vish to die." But the sensation wore off. Next time it went better. He didn't get very sick at all.

And so Nathan began smoking. His mother fainted when she found it out, but he insisted that he was not being harmed.

By the time he was seventeen, our once innocent, obedient boy of the country was ringleader of a gang of bad town boys.

One evening late in autumn Jake started away with his hat. His mother quickly called and asked him where he was going.

"Now, Mother, dear!" he said, "I'm not going to hurt myself. I'm big enough to take care of A—Number—One. I'll be back by morning."

An hour later he and his gang stole into the watermelon patch on the former Schantz farm. Jake knew that Mr. Garrison, the owner now, still raised melons there. He knew just where they were, too.

This party was such a success that the attempt was repeated a week later. This time the farmer was keeping watch, armed with a gun. It was very dark, and the robbers did not see the guard until they were only a few yards away. Now what?

"Good efening, Mr. Garrison," said Jake familiarly, mastering the situation at once.

"Good evening," hesitated the old man.

"Don't you know me? Chacob Schantz, what used to lif here."

"Oh, yes. Well, how are you anyway?"

"Just fine. Out for some fresh air. Thought I'd make my vay back to the old home place. Meet some of my friends." And he introduced each one, telling them that Mr. Garrison was a fine fellow, if he did carry a gun sometimes.

"Yes," admitted the other, dropping his weapon, "I'm on the lookout for watermelon thieves. They plundered my patch last week, but never again."

In the meantime Jake had gone to those of his gang who were standing farthest away, and whispered to them to go into the patch and carry melons to the road while he entertained the old man. Now they had had time enough, he thought, and he was ready to go.

"No, I don't blame you," said Jake, sympathetically. But only the darkness kept from view the scornful smile on his face.

"Vell, ve must be going," he broke away at last. They disappeared, each one grabbing a melon on the way, and off they scampered with their booty and Mr. Garrison's confidence.

Nor did Jake stop at stealing melons. He often smuggled tobacco home from the factory. And other thefts of such nature were not beyond him.

But all this time he could not get away from the fact that he knew better. For five years his whole nature rebelled against that inner "still small voice" that rebuked him, and for five years he turned deaf ears to it. His life became miserable. He wanted to do right, but could not. Will power, resolutions, determination, all left him without improvement. The fight was a losing one. No sooner had he made a new resolution than Satan came along and persuaded him to do the very thing he had declared he would not do.

Once he resolved to stop smoking. Next day the factory boys put on a contest. A five-dollar bill was to be given to the one who could blow the most perfect ring of smoke. Jake declined the invitation.

"I'm going to quit smoking," he confessed.

"How long?" they taunted, "till dinner?"

"Always," it took effort to say it.

"Now listen! We can't stage this contest without you. No one else can blow rings worth more than two and a half. Come on."

Making rings was Jake's favorite pastime.

"Vell," he said to himself, "guess I'll put off my resolution a day and take the prize." He did take the prize, and kept on smoking.

But Jake was unhappy. On the one hand he felt the bliss of being idolized by his friends; but oh! the fear, on the other hand, of that Living God! The battle between these two feelings sickened him at heart. He was growing tired of it all. Even reading the Bible aggravated things, for every verse seemed to condemn him.

Then one day the Light came. He saw himself as God saw him, and he was ashamed. He was sorry. He repented. He found peace, wonderful peace. Life came to him at last. It was good to live in that glorious freedom of the gospel, and wander no more "out on the hills away."

Now further duties and tasks came to him. He must make retribution at once. This was mortifying, to say the least. Those whom he had wronged, it seemed, were the very ones who had the most confidence in him, and to see their pained look of disappointment at his dishonorable conduct cut him even deeper than the pain it cost him to confess. But he was bound to straighten all his black tracks, regardless of cost.

Soon all was made right except the stolen watermelons. Must he bother about that? How could he tell the old man how he had cheated him so meanly? Yes, he must, somehow.

Jake approached Mr. Garrison one day like this:

"I've some important business. Not the kind you will think it to be, though."

"What other kind is there?" Mr. Garrison wondered.

"This kind," gulped Jake, handing him several legal tenders.

"I haven't any debt against you," the old man declined.

"Yes," insisted Jake, "I owe you for some thirty watermelons which my gang and I took from you last fall." And then the rest of his story followed.

"Rascal, you were. But you—why, I respect you now.

"Yes, I know. But not since Jesus found me. Please take the money."

"Can't do it. We're not on a financial level just now. We're on religion. I forgive you a thousand times, without any pay for it. I don't sell that kind of stuff. I give it away free—gratis."

It was the happiest moment in Jake's life when his past was checked off. Soon he was rescued from the tobacco factory and tobacco habit, and was promoted to mission work, and from thence to the evangelistic field. His life became a blessing to thousands of souls in need of light; and it was all because his life, his heart, his very soul breathed forth continually this resignation to God.

"Lord, anything—anywhere—any time—use me as it pleaseth Thee."—Youth's Christian Companion.

THE LORD WITH US

The Lord is with us—that is the fact of all other facts, a fact of supreme and priceless worth. It was this consciousness of the presence of God that nerved the hand and strengthened the heart of all the saints of God who from their labors rest, but who in their warfare have subdued kingdoms and obtained promises.

And Jehovah Jesus has not left us without the assurance of His abiding presence. "Lo, I am with you alway," is the guarantee of the presence of the Risen Lord, as He sends forth His disciples.—Rev. G. H. Lunn.

How to Reach the Herald by Mail

At different times during this year we have insisted on having mail for the HERALD addressed to 808 Brown street. Now we are announcing that those who cannot remember this house number can find it by looking in the masthead of the HERALD, which is found at the top of the last column on the last page, line 19, and this line reads this way: "All communications should be addressed to 808 Brown street." The postal authorities are very anxious these days to have correct street addresses on mail. Almost daily some postmaster somewhere notifies us that certain persons have moved; sometimes it is to another house in the same block, but the number must be corrected. In our own mail some is addressed to 1705 Asheboro street, which was the home of Dr. McCulloch, some is simply addressed to Asheboro street, some to Brown street, and some with no street address. Please get it correct,—808 BROWN STREET.

A Visit to Gideon's Grove Church

Last Sunday afternoon we drove out to Gideon's Grove church on the Flat Rock charge for the afternoon service. President Andrews had preached the dedicatory sermon at the morning hour. This was the editor's first visit to this church, and he was favorably impressed. While the church is not equipped with Sunday school rooms, the auditorium is neat and attractive. The people seemed to be friendly, and we had the opportunity of shaking hands with a number of people for the first time, although we had known some of them by reputation for several years. We could not be positive as to the percentage of the people of the congregation who are named Angel; however, it seems to us that at least four out of five bear that name. We enjoyed the afternoon very much.

MORE INFORMATION CONCERNING YOUNG PEOPLE'S CHOIRS

It is especially gratifying to observe the increased interest shown in the singing of young people's choirs on the first night of the Leadership Training School, High Point College, June 24th to 29th. Already five or six leaders or choirs have signified their intentions of being represented on the program, among whom are: Henderson, West End, Mt. Hermon, Vance, Concord.

Repeating, each choir should prepare two numbers, either sacred or secular. If the number of choirs participating is too large, for the time allotted, only one selection may be rendered. If not before, when we meet at the college will be time enough to grade your choir in accordance with a set of standards provided.

It is planned that two numbers by the combined choirs be sung, after each has rendered its separate selections. The pieces to be used for this part of the program are "Incline Thine Ear," an anthem by Himmel, and "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," to the tune of "Diadem," not the usual tune, "Coronation." If any choir director desires a number of copies of the anthem, please write and a small quantity will be sent.

Any other questions or suggestions? Please let us have them.

REPORT OF THE FINDINGS COMMITTEE, SOUTH REGIONAL CONFERENCE, HELD AT HIGH POINT COLLEGE MAY 29-31

VI. Youth Leaders

Tht Commission for Youth Leaders at the Southern Regional Convention at High Point College, May 29-31, 1935, came to the following definite conclusions:

1. There are definite principles that each youth leader must keep in mind.

a. Youth leaders must appreciate young people.

b. The ways in which the desires and aspirations of young people are developed determine their character.

c. It is recognized that young people have the capacity to yield to the enjoyment of worship and the beautiful.

d. The highest devotion of youth brings the highest pleasure.

2. The Commission concluded that there are certain practical applications of these principles which all youth leaders must ever keep in mind.

a. They must expect to see characteristics peculiar to the age groups.

b. Institutions must be organized that will draw out the desirable qualities in young people and appeal to the best that is to be found in them. One question which youth leaders must ask is this: Is our machinery adequate to meet the needs of young people?

3. The following is a definite program that we suggest for youth leaders:

a. Personal religious living needs to be the first objective. Leaders should stress private devotions, meditation, Bible study and good reading. In addition, leaders have a wonderful opportunity to lead young people to a wise use of leisure time.

b. The social side of the life of our young people must be considered also. In this program the objective must be neighborliness, good citizenship, right attitudes toward other cultural and racial groups and world peace.

VII. Christian Leadership Education

The program of education never rises above its leaders. This is particularly true with respect to Christian education. The importance of adequately trained leadership in the educational program of the church is clearly recognized, yet an entirely effective program from training has not been developed. A curriculum for leadership training should not be considered as final or perfect. The standard curriculum which has been used a while reveals some very strong as well as weak points. A careful study should be made in order to revise the curriculum to meet the needs of today. No doubt the task will be long and quite tedious, yet the undertaking will be a noble one. May the Great Teacher's Spirit accompany those who plan and carry to completion the program of Christian leadership training in respect to the individual, the home, the church, the community, the nation, and the world.

1935 INTERMEDIATE V. C. S. COURSE AT HIGH POINT

Miss Kathleen Paschall is offering the 1935 Intermediate Vacation Church School course of the International Council of Religious Education, "We All Need Each Other," by Mary Jenness. Miss Paschall attended a meeting of the International Council in Pittsburgh a few days ago. She met a number of the authors of our texts. The course is open to students of 12 to 14 years. We want you!

I'm suggesting to the Vacation Church School workers that this will be a great chance to observe an expert in the work, and I'm sure that Miss Paschall would be glad for you to do some practice teaching in it.

We have ordered two sets of the 1935 series and I shall have them with me at High Point.

Expenses

Several pastors have asked me what charge the Council is making for the materials we are supplying. The charge is $1.00 for every 25 members, or fraction thereof, in your Vacation Church School. For that we supply the texts, enrollment cards, and certificates, as well as the report blanks to be mailed to the Council. These latter we are awfully anxious to have full and complete, especially so far as suggestions for material is concerned. Let's put N. C. M. P. V. C. S. (North Carolina Methodist Protestant Vacation Church Schools) on the map!

MAXINE E. TAYLOR.

THE RIVALS OF CHRISTIAN EVANGELISM

While the proclamation of the Christian message is the task of the church in every age, it is peculiarly the crucial task of ours. For not since Christianity confronted a pagan Roman Empire in the first centuries of the Christian era has it been face to face with such a widely organized and radical denial of the Christian Gospel. Over great areas of the earth the basic conceptions of life for which the Gospel stands are today not merely treated with indifference but are subject to active opposition and an aggressive counter-propaganda.

Look at Russia. There one of the most powerful governments in the world has openly declared war on religion and is zealously seeking to rear a generation without any consciousness of God. By word of mouth, by press, by radio, by every device which we have thought of as instruments of Christian evangelism, an anti-Christian campaign is being waged on every front. That is in a country which was once the stronghold of the Greek Catholic faith.

Look at Mexico, for centuries a citadel of Roman Catholicism. While the testimony that comes from our Southern neighbor is still too conflicting for us to be able to speak with assurance, we shall probably soon see that the campaign of the Mexican government is not merely against grave abuses in the church but (as in Russia) against religion itself.

Look at Germany, the fatherland of the Reformation. There a new paganism, deliberately conceived as a substitute for Christianity, is being proclaimed by powerful voices, which are becoming more and more aggressive. At first the struggle in Germany seemed to center only around the efforts of the state to use the church for political ends, but now the battle has been joined against Christianity itself. A new popular religion is heralded, based not upon the revelation of God's saving love for all men in Christ, but upon the myth of "race" and "blood" and glorifying the old Teutonic deities as more congenial to the nationalism of Germany. No less a hero than General Ludendorff, on the eve of his 70th birthday, a few weeks ago, bluntly announced, "I am anti-Christian and a heathen."

For the first time in the modern world Christianity now faces the well-organized opposition of great corporate forces that propose to win mankind away from loyalty to Christ and the Christian view of life. These forces have the evangelistic drive, the crusading spirit, the propagandist zeal that have hitherto been associated with Christianity.

And yet there are Christians today who feel that Christian evangelism is unnecessary! Surely they are blind to the character of the day in which they live. They are Rip Van Winkles, fast asleep and oblivious of the great currents sweeping through the world. If men can be flaming evangelists for communism and nationalism, what a lasting reproach if we who know the Christian faith to hold the key to the world's salvation from the present chaos are tongue-tied and stammering! If ever there has been a time during the 19 centuries since our Lord said, "Ye shall be my witnesses," when we needed to bear our testimony effectively, that time is now.—Federal Council Bulletin.

Clothing and Other Gifts

Mrs. Ernest Rowe, Elkhart ,Ind., 2 quilts. Mrs. E. A. Isley and Mrs. H. L. Isley, 1 quilt. Missionary Society, N. Tarrytown, N. Y., 12 bath towels.

We express our very great appreciation for these gifts of money and substance. God bless all the givers.

The Pageants

Copies of the Children's Home pageant have been mailed to pastors, superintendents and Children's Home secretaries. Please see that they get into the hands of your proper workers and encourage your young people to put these pageants on in each local church.

The Birthday Boxes

These boxes will be mailed out just as soon as we get them, and they are promised for this week. The purpose is to put a box into each home where you have members. If we do not mail you enough boxes, please ask for more.

Cans for Produce

We have a number of cans all ready to go out. Please let us know how many the women of your community will take. Send for them if you can, but if you cannot then we will do our best to get them to you. Let us know early. Thank you.

Grain

Save some grain for us. Just any kind of grain will be helpful, but wheat especially will help us greatly. It takes nearly two bushels of wheat to make bread for our crowd one day. We will appreciate your help in any way given.

God bless and direct in all kingdom service.

Yours in His blessed service,

A. G. DIXON, Superintendent.

THE CHILDREN'S HOME PAGEANT

Some time ago it was announced that there was a pageant in the process of being written which would depict the history and growth of the M. P. Children's Home at High Point, N. C. That pageant, entitled "The Open Door," written by Dr. Louis Randall, of Baltimore, Md., is now off the press and can be secured for presentation from Dr. Dixon at the Home.

I have just finished reading "The Open Door" and find it to be very interesting. It is not a matter of facts and figures, but a touching drama of real life. A place is given, however, for the presentation of facts concerning the Home. The story gives us a clear picture of many of our depression-ridden homes, and, to add tragedy to pathos, three children are left as orphans. We are led to feel a new sense of gratitude for orphanages such as our own which come to the rescue in such pathetic situations.

This pageant, though some changes and adaptations may be necessary, should be presented with ease. It calls for only 14 characters and can be presented with less; the costuming is simple; there is not a great amount of memory work, and it can be staged within 30 to 45 minutes. With due practice it should be very effective. Let us hope that every church in our conference presents the pageant, "The Open Road," some time during June or July. J. C. MADISON.

25TH ANNIVERSARY OF OUR CHILDREN'S HOME

District chairmen, will you not help in any and every way you can the pastors to put over the celebration of this the 25th anniversary of Our Own Children's Home. This Home has rendered invaluable service to those dependent children that have been admitted to it. We through our gifts have had a part in this great work. Our superintendent and wife are giving of their lives to carry it on successfully. Let's make their hearts glad on Thursday, August 22, by being present with an offering from each church in North Carolina. The slogan is "Twenty-five Thousand Dollars for the Home During Its Twenty-fifth Year of Service."

We can if we will, and so let's will to do it and be at it.

MRS. H. C. NICHOLSON,
Member of Committee.

IT WILL NOT BE LONG NOW

It will not be long until we will be heading for High Point College and the annual Leadership Training School. Registration for the school will begin on Monday, June 24, at 2 p. m. Are you planning to be with us for the school? If you have not made your plans, there is plenty of time left. Make plans now.

The Outlook for the School

I have come in contact with people from various churches in the conference. Almost everywhere I go I hear of people who are planning to attend the school this year. It looks as if we are going to have the largest school we have ever held at High Point College. Surely you want to be a part of this big crowd.

Vacation Bible School Course

This is to be a new feature of the school this year. This course will be open for young people 12 and 13 years of age. Students of special ability and fine Christian character 11 years of age will be eligible to take this course. Expenses for this course will be the same that they are for the young people and standard courses.

Do You Remember?

The cost for the entire school is only $5.75 per student for the entire time, or $1.75 per student that comes in for classes and the evening services. Our goal this year is "Every church in the conference sending one student to the Leadership Training School."

Honor Roll

After the school, we will publish a list of the churches sending students to the school. Will your church be in the list? It is not too late to put it on the list.

A Word About Vacation Church Schools

The Conference Council of Religious Education has made arrangements whereby the local church may be helped in its vacation church school program. The Council will furnish textbooks, registration blanks, certificates, and other materials to churches that need help. Miss Maxine Taylor is superintendent of Vacation Church Schools. Her address is Enfield, N. C.

In order to support this phase of the Confesence Council program, the churches securing aid and materials are expected to pay $1.00 for every 25 students or fraction thereof enrolled in the school. This is a very small amount in comparison with the service rendered. Write Miss Taylor for further information.

KANNAPOLIS HOMECOMING

The members of the Kannapolis Methodist Protestant church extend a most sincere invitation to all who can to be present at the annual homecoming to be held next Sunday, June 16, 1935. There will be an all-day program and basket lunch will be enjoyed on the grounds of the church. The former pastors of the church and other pastors of the conference are especially invited to attend.

AUBERT M. SMITH, Pastor.

AN ADDITION TO MT. PLEASANT CHURCH

While at Mt. Pleasant yesterday we saw the addition to the church which is being built to the rear of the original building. The new building is for Sunday school purposes and will also have facilities for social purposes.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Gideon Grove Mission Band.—The Gideon Grove Mission Band held its regular monthly meeting Saturday, June 8, at the home of Mrs. R. W. Pegram, with Misses Pearl and Mary Pegram acting as joint hostesses.

Thirty-one members answered to roll call. A helpful and interesting program was rendered, during which we were glad to have Miss Irma Dell Hargrove, of Burlington, recite for us.

During the business session plans were made for a young people's choir to be organized. The choir will render selections during revival meetings.

We were pleased to have with us as visitors our leader's mother, Mrs. Thomas, and Miss Irma Dell Hargrove, of Burlington.

Delicious refreshments of ice cream and cake were served during the social hour by the hostess.

Our next meeting will be held at the home of Harrell Pegram.

ORELIA FRIDDLE, Reporter.

Shelby, Shelby-Caroleen.—Our small church seems to have taken on new interest. Everyone is very much impressed with our new pastor. Mr. Forest Wagner came here two weeks ago. He has preached only two sermons but the people certainly feel that he is a talented minister. The congregation was doubled at his second service. We hope it will continue to increase.

The Sunday school has taken on a new life. It is not as large as we would like for it to be, but think that more will come.

The church has bought a piano, which adds much to our services. Everyone responded nicely to the drive to pay for it.

MILDRED RAMSEY, Reporter.

Seagrove, Seagrove-Love Joy Charge.—Our pastor, Rev. E. G. Cowan, filled his regular appointment the first Sunday in June with one of his splendid, inspiring, helpful messages.

It seems that every sermon is better than the preceding one. And we believe much good will be accomplished by these messages.

We have a splendid Sunday school under the efficient management of Supt. S. G. Richardson, and the attendance is steadily gaining. We also have a good Christian Endeavor Society, with Miss Euna Walker president of the adult department and Mrs. L. A. King president of the junior department.

Our Sunday school enjoyed a weiner roast on May 25. This was given in honor of the class having the best attendance and gaining the most new members during a certain period of time. The beginners, taught by Mrs. W. C. Auman, were the winners.

Preparations are being made for Children's Day exercises which will be held the fifth Sunday night in June. We were glad to welcome back to Sunday school last Sunday Mrs. James Walker and Miss Davis King, who have been out several weeks on account of sickness.

Our Ladies' Auxiliary will meet next Friday night with Mrs. Cowan. The program will be led by Mrs. Nettie Allen. Pastor and Mrs. Cowan are away at this time at the bedside of Mrs. Cowan's mother, Mrs. Kirkman, at Pleasant Garden, who is seriously ill. We hope she will recover.

Paul Hamilton, of Troy, will preach for us next Sunday in the absence of our pastor. Paul is a young high school graduate preparing for the ministry, and a fine boy, and we are looking forward to his coming. We are looking forward to the district rally to be held in our church the fifth Sunday in June. This comprises several charges, and Dr. Taylor, of Asheboro, is president. We are expecting a large crowd and a good day. There will be all-day services.

MRS. NOAH WILLIAMS, Reporter.

Union Grove, Mocksville Charge.—Rev. R. L. Hethcox filled his regular appointment last Sunday at 11 a. m. The congregation was somewhat larger than usual. We all enjoy hearing Rev. Mr. Hethcox deliver sermons, they're so inspiring.

Our Sunday school is doing fine. Our superintendent, Fleet Madison, is away at school. We miss him lots, although we have a good substitute. Several of our Sunday school members are away going to school.

Our Christian Endeavor is taking new interest and we think it will be better in the coming quarter than in the past.

FLORA MAE WOOTEN, Reporter.

Stallings, Mecklenburg Charge.—Bro. Bingham preached us a wonderfully good sermon yesterday. At this service the Lord's Supper was observed. We had good attendance both at Sunday school and preaching. Our Sunday school keeps improving in membership.

Our Ladies' Aid Society met with Mrs. Bingham the first Thursday of this month. Mrs. M. L. Stallings read the devotional, after which Mr. Bingham prayed. Mrs. Bingham had charge of the program. Our topic was Worship. There were several interesting talks made on the topic. The secretary read the minutes on the last meeting and called the roll. Several of our members were absent on account of sickness. After our usual business, Mrs. Bingham served delicious refreshments. We adjourned with prayer by Mrs. Bingham. We are to meet with Mrs. P. D. Drye next month.

We are sorry to report that Mrs. H. B. Furr is sick at this time. We hope and pray that she soon will be well.

MRS. M. L. STALLINGS. Reporter.

Rankin Memorial, High Point.—Our pastor, Rev. Edw. Suits, brought us an inspiring message on the past Sunday at the 11 o'clock service, using as his subject "Fruit-Bearing," taking his text from the first Psalm, part of the third verse, "And he shall be like a tree planted by the rivers of water, that bringeth forth his fruit in his season." Our pastor's sermons are always helpful and uplifting ones.

We are glad to report that all of our organizations and church work seem to be going forward. Our Ladies' Aid Society is quite active. They recently held a chicken supper and realized a good sum. They keep busy all the time raising money for our new church. Their monthly meeting will be held on Thursday evening of this week with Mrs. S. R. Styres.

The children of the church will have a Bible training class each afternoon this week from 2 p. m. to 3:30 p. m. for the purpose of learning more about the Bible. Teachers and leaders in the church will have charge of the class.

On last Tuesday evening our Young Ladies' Philathea Class entertained the Young Men's Baraca Class at the Archdale playground with a weiner roast. This was the set-up given as a result of a recent contest between the two classes. Approximately 70 of the members of the classes and friends were present.

Our Senior C. E. Society met at the home of the Misses Iris, Artis and Faye Caudle on last Thursday evening for its monthly business meeting. New officers were elected at this time. A good number of Endeavorers were present at this meeting.

We are glad to report that two new members were received into our church just recently, Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Cates.

Mt. Lebanon, Randleman Charge.—We have been enjoying our pastor's sermons real well. Next Sunday, June 16, we are going to have homecoming day. We will have all-day services and dinner on the grounds. We will have special singing. We are expecting a large crowd and hope they all enjoy it.

MRS. J. M. KIRKMAN, Reporter.

Winston-Salem, First.—We had a good day yesterday. About the largest attendance yet. Reason? Children's Day! We had a unified service; that is, we ran the closing of the Sunday school and the opening of the preaching service together. Began at 10:45 and quit at 11:30. Recitations, songs by the Junior Choir, awards, offering. (Don't know how much.) Our thanks to those who got up the program and to those who took part. The rest of us sat back and enjoyed it.

I notice the new Methodist Hymnal is to be out in October. Our Sunshine Circle has set aside $10 toward a fund to purchase a supply for the church as soon as the book is off the press.

An interesting development in our church work is the naming of groups. One of the circles is calling itself the Eva Sapp Circle in honor of one of our living members. The other afternoon circle is named in honor of Mrs. Dorothy Pegram, who died about a year ago. The Baraca Class did a gracious thing last Sunday when it changed its name to the Cummings Baraca Class, honoring our Brother J. R. Cummings, for many years teacher of the class, but for the last few years confined to his room. (I am passing the suggestion on that, instead of numbering the circles and classes we give them names of missionaries or faithful workers, living or dead, in the church.)

For some reason or other our church failed to get credit for raising the college quota—$75.00. The amount was turned in sometime before the date it was due. And we have raised our McCulloch Memorial Fund apportionment in full. also.

The campaign to pay half-way out at the half-way date was not the success we had hoped; but we did make some gain by putting on the campaign. Thanks to those who made an effort to reach it.

Our Brother J. W. Hester had the misfortune to fall down the cellar steps a few days ago and crack his shoulder blade. He has it in a cast, and it is mending nicely. But we miss him from the Sunday school and church services. C. W. BATES.

First Church, High Point.—After three Sundays of unusual services at First church, we settled down again today to a house full of regular folks, to listen to our pastor's regular good sermon. If the pastor won't read this and get a swelled head. I'll tell the rest of the readers that there was no slump in the message today, if anybody expected it after such of the great in our pulpit on the last three Sundays as Drs. Lindley. Humphries, and Forlines.

The evening service today was very impressive. The Lord Is My Shepherd in song and story.

The Vacation Church School begins Monday morning at 9 o'clock and runs through the week, and next Sunday morning at Sunday school hour the commencement of the Vacation School and the Children's Day service will be combined.

The Laymen's Fellowship will hold its meeting for this month in the form of a picnic to which the women and lunch boxes are invited.

We are expecting an unusually large attendance at the auxiliary general meeting which takes the form of a birthday party celebrated annually at the home of our president, Mrs. C. C. Robbins. who has offered a prize to the circle bringing the largest offering.

We regret to report the death of Mrs. J. H. Moton, widow of a revered minister of the N. C. Conference and mother of our church organist, Miss Beulah Moton. Mrs. Moton was ill less than 48 hours.

MRS. R. M. ANDREWS. Reporter.

Bethesda Ch., State St.—The first Sunday in June was Young People's Day at our church. The older people sat back, giving the entire responsibilities over to them. They carried everything out nicely. It made us feel good to see our young people take the lead. We hope that this is just the beginning and that they will continue to carry on the Master's work. Sunday school officers were as follows: Superintendent, Garvey Everhart; secretary. Stokes Craver; pianist, Francis Wagner; choir leader. Banks Gobble; teachers were selected from the Christian Endeavor.

Our pastor was with us the second Sunday morning with a very inspiring message. Communion service was also observed.

Several of our people attended the mid-year conference at High Point College and report a very interesting and helpful service. The class making the highest average in attendance monthly, each scholar is presented a Bible, these being donated in memory of the late Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Leonard by their children.

Our hearts were again saddened when suddenly while at her usual work God called one of our oldest members. Mrs. A. R. Hinkle. It was a shock to the entire community and our heartfelt sympathy goes out to the family. MRS. J. O. EVERHART. Reporter.

Shiloh C. E. Society, Shiloh Charge.—The box supper that was mentioned in our last report was held last Saturday night and was an enjoyable occasion. The treasury realized a little over $20 from it. We thank all who helped make this event a success.

The society program Sunday evening was led by Mr. Frank Shoaf. The program was carried out as usual, after which Mr. H. Luther Leonard spoke to the society on the subject "Our Church." Mr. Leonard contrasted the difference in the work in the young people's organizations as carried on today and 25 years ago.

We were glad to have Mr. Leonard with us and hear this splendid talk, so we, as the entire C. E. Society, take this means of thanking him, and extending a hearty welcome for his return.

We as young people are always glad to have our parents and friends meet with us. We like for them to see and know what we are doing. It always encourages and reassures us that they are standing behind us ready to aid at all times.

Bethesda, Rockingham Charge.—History shows that for more than a hundred years there has been a church by the name of Bethesda Methodist Protestant church. This church was founded by good Christian men and women. In the church cemetery lie buried the bodies of those who have gone from labor to reward.

In the early days of this church prayer meetings were held in the homes of the people and people often were saved there. Then the church people would pray for them and extend to them the right hand of fellowship, and after they were received into the church would do everything possible to help them withstand the temptations of life.

In the early days there was no Sunday school literature except the Bible. This was taught the people by those who could read it. Many times the floor would be wet with the tears of the speakers who stood telling of the power of Christ to save.

In all the years since this church was established the doors have never been closed for the lack of church attendance. Epidemics have come to the community and swept away numbers of people, but there has always been left enough to carry on the work of the church.

One evidence of the esteem in which this church is held is the fact that the county officials have constructed good roads leading to the church from different directions.

Bethesda was received into the N. C. Annual Conference in 1896. Since that time some of the best pastors available have been sent to us and we have been very grateful for them. It was a great pleasure to have with us on Sunday, May 26. Dr. R. M. Andrews, president of the North Carolina Annual Conference. The splendid message he brought to us will bear fruit in the lives of the people who heard it, in the days to come.

Our highly esteemed pastor. Rev. H. W. Bell, has the holy fire burning in the lives of the members and we are expecting one of the best years in our history. His work is being observed all over Chesterfield county, this being the county in which the church is located. The county singing convention will be held here on June 30 at 1:30 p. m. We are hoping to have a good attendance. All are invited to be with us and can be assured of a hearty welcome.

Greensboro, St. Paul.—If silence is a sign of death, then St. Paul is twice dead, plucked up by the roots. Our reporter. Miss Lillian Wade, took unto herself a husband and went to Washington, D. C., to live. She is not only missed as reporter, but as pianist and Sunday school teacher.

We held our special meeting in May, beginning the first Sunday and closing the third Sunday night. We had good interest and attendance at the beginning and they continued to the close. The church was revived, and 17 members were received into the church, making 21 we have taken in this year. The pastor did the preaching, and he was delighted to have several of his ministerial brethren attend the services. Bro. Pritchard was present once. Bro. Bethea twice, and Bros. Hutton and Ashburn nearly every service. Bro. Ashburn preached twice.

We are about ready to begin covering the church. Material will be placed on the ground this week. After we get that done we want to beautify the interior.

Glad to have Dr. Andrews with us last Sunday night. He preached a good sermon.

Remember us when you pray.

A. D. SHELTON.

Union Ridge, Forsyth.—Our revival which ended last Sunday night, June 2, was a great success. A goodly number of people attended the meeting each night and several nights the auditorium was completely filled. There were 10 conversions during the revival, several of these being children. Rev. J. M. Morgan, of High Point, who was the pulpit help during the meeting, brought some very interesting and very inspiring sermons that touched the hearts of everyone listening. We hope that he will come back again soon. Special music during the revival meeting was furnished by the Montgomery family, Miss Bumgardner, and the male chorus of our church. We enjoyed their songs very much. On Sunday night. June 2, at the close of the meeting, the doors of the church were opened and six persons united with the church. Those joining were: Helen Cranford, Mary Rothrock, Christine Morris Mrs. A. F. Landreth, Elmer Kiser, and C. L. Bohanon, Jr.

The district meeting of the Women's Work was held at our church on Wednesday, May 29, with a large crowd present.

The Woman's Auxiliary held its regular meeting on Thursday, June 6, at the home of Mrs. H. L. Miller, with the president, Mrs. W. E. Mabry, in charge. There was a good attendance. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. J. L. Yountz.

The Christian Endeavor and Willing Worker Class of our church met at the home of Mrs. S. E. Kinnamon Tuesday night. Prayer was led by Rev. R. A. Hunter. Miss Helen Willard gave an interesting report on the Young People's Conference in High Point.

Leaders for the following month are Elsie Mock, Anna Tesh, Katherine Burns, and Elmer Kiser. The meeting was opened for general discussion and interesting talks were made by several persons.

The Baraca-Philathea Class plan was introduced to the Willing Workers with explanations by Misses Viola Parker, Evans and Jane Zimmerman. Tempting refreshments were served. DOROTHY MILLER, Reporter.

Gibsonville, Fountain Place.—Our Fountain Place reporter has not reported lately, so I will help out a bit.

Things at that church are running along very evenly. The nominees for delegate to conference are H. M. Scott and C. R. Ephland. The Woman's Auxiliary is putting on a rally to get ahead with its program. One of the outstanding features is the way the church rallies to the Children's Home. Other good things will be reported from this church later. The finances are doing fine, considering the load the church carries.

Gibsonville church is having good Sunday school and church attendance. A tithing plan for at least a month has been adopted by the church and the people are taking it steadily and seriously and without any special pressure—just willingly and gladly. It will be interesting to see the outcome. This church is keeping about up to date with all its finances. A committee has been appointed to work out details and plans for the new parsonage which we hope will soon be ready for occupation. A new electric refrigerator has recently been placed in the parsonage by this church.

Mr. D. M. Davidson and Mr. J. D. Roundtree are nominees for delegate to the Annual Conference from Gibsonville church.

It's hard to find a better working organization than the auxiliary of this church. There are many other things that should be reported from both churches but we will leave that to our reporter.

Flat Rock Charge.—Last Sunday was truly a good day for the people of Gideon's Grove church. The dedicatory services were held as scheduled. The program for the day started promptly at 11 o'clock. The service of dedication of a church provided in the Methodist Protestant Discipline was followed. The sermon was preached by Rev. R. M. Andrews, D. D., president of the Annual Conference. "The Glory of the Church" was the theme of the very practical and helpful sermon. The people brought lunch to church and this was enjoyed in the grove during the noon recess. The afternoon program began at 1:30 o'clock with a song service. Special music and two addresses were features of the program. The Angel quartet, of Stokesdale, and the Chislom Sisters, of Thomasville, rendered inspiring songs during the day. A brief history of the church was presented by the pastor, after which Dr. J. E. Pritchard, pastor of Calvary Methodist Protestant church, and editor of the Methodist Protestant Herald, and Rev. J. P. Pegg, of the Glen Raven charge, delivered brief addresses. Dr. Pritchard brought greetings from Calvary church and the Methodist Protestant Herald and gave expressions of congratulations and good wishes to Gideon's Grove people upon the occasion of the dedication of their church. The mission of the church paper was ably explained. Bro. Pegg closed the program with a brief address. presenting a few very timely thoughts relative to the church.

The congregation of Flat Rock church was delighted with a brief sermon delivered by Rev. J. P. Pegg at the regular preaching service there at 3:45 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Bro. Pegg, who served Flat Rock charge four years, is always a welcome visitor at any of the churches, and the people are always pleased with his gospel messages.

Chestnut Ridge, Orange Charge. — Sunday morning, June 9, we had our Children's Day program. This program was well prepared and each child rendered their part well. Much credit is due Misses Elevean Hayes and Mable Sykes for the preparation and training of the children.

Sunday evening our pastor brought us an inspiring message. We are glad to say that we have a McCulloch Memorial Fund honor roll certificate. Trust it will be framed and hung in the church soon.

Sunday school is doing very nicely. The superintendent seems to be doing his part. Come on, parents, and bring your children out to Sunday school, and let's have a bigger and better one than we have ever had.

Cedar Cliff, Mt. Hermon Charge.—Our regular preaching Sunday was enjoyed immensely today by those present. Rev. T. J. Whitehead brought us a very interesting sermon, his subject being "Be Ye Steadfast" (Daniel 3:13-17).

The evangelistic service for Cedar Cliff will be held this year the second Sunday in July and the week following. Rev. W. M. Howard will be pulpit help.

We are very glad to have Mrs. J. D. Payne with us again. Owing to illness she has been unable to attend church services for a time.

Pleasant Hill, Why Not Charge.—A memorial service was held at Pleasant Hill M. P. church Sunday, June 2. There was an all-day service. Rev. C. H. Hill preached the morning service at 11 o'clock. After the morning service the crowd marched out to the cemetery and circled around their relatives' graves for prayer. After prayer the choir sang "Sweet By and By." Rev. Mr. Hill preached at the afternoon service at 2 o'clock.

The members of our church have made up enough money to cover the cemetery with sand.

Rev. C. H. Hill filled his regular appointment Sunday, June 9, at 11 o'clock, with a large attendance to hear the interesting sermon on the subject, "God Is Everywhere." A wonderful text was chosen by the pastor, "If I ascend up into heaven, thou art there. If I make my bed in hell, thou art there." Psalm 139:8.

Our Sunday school is making great progress. The teachers are training the children the way they should go to be a follower of Christ.

Miss Daphne Beane has returned home from a High Point hospital where she underwent an operation recently. Her friends and Sunday school are glad to know she is at home again. We are all sorry she isn't able to be out with us to worship with us in Sunday school. We all extend our heartfelt wishes that Daphne will soon be out to Sunday school again.

Oak Grove, Cleveland Charge.—We have our new church complete enough to have services in it. We had our memorial service the fourth Sunday in May and Sunday school every Sunday since. We have also organized our Christian Endeavor Society. Not so many were present, but we hope to have a larger one before long.

The Woman's Auxiliary has $100 on our quilt. The money goes on our new church and the quilt to the Children's Home. The society also sponsored a fiddlers' convention at Polkville High School last Saturday night. We sold ice cream, candy, and cold drinks. The proceeds go to help on the church.

Our pastor, Rev. R. S. Troxler, is away on a ten-day trip.

Misses Emma and Florence Berrier, of Lexington, N. C., were the week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Troxler and family.

Rev. E. O. Peeler, Mrs. Peeler and Mrs. Ella Whisnant were visitors here last week. Mrs. Whisnant remained a few days with her son, Mr. E. C. McMurry.

Our church plans to talk up the baby bonds and the penny-a-year programs next Sunday, and work them up.

Mr. Chancey Hasting, one of our charter members, died recently.

We extend our heartiest welcome to everyone to our new church.

Friendship, Mt. Hermon Charge.—A large congregation, composed of members of Friendship church and several visitors, attended the memorial service at our church the first Sunday. Rev. T. J. Tribble, of Atlanta, Ga., preached the memorial sermon at 11 o'clock. At this service the Central and Riddle quartets of Burlington rendered several selections. At the close of the service, flowers were placed on each grave by the junior girls of the church. In the afternoon, Mrs. Ralph Garrett and Miss Georgia Huffins favored us with a very appropriate duet, and little Miss Madeline Wenningham sang a solo. The East Burlington boys' and girls' quartet also gave several selections. Everyone enjoyed hearing them sing and we hope they will come again. Officers for next year were elected as follows: Mr. G. R. Isley, president; Mr. Whitney Isley, vice president; Miss Elma Sharpe, secretary; Mr. Clifton Sharp, treasurer.

Rev. H. E. Fisher, pastor of the Alamance Lutheran church, will preach for us the third Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Our Children's Day service will be held the first Sunday morning in July at 11 o'clock. The program is being prepared by Mrs. H. A. Garrett and Mrs. D. I. Offman, with Mrs. J. M. Murray in charge of the music.

The Woman's Auxiliary will meet with Mrs. G. M. Isley on Saturday afternoon, June 15, at 2:30 o'clock.

Rev. and Mrs. T. J. Whitehead expect to move into the parsonage sometime this month. We will be glad to have them come to our community to live, and we extend to them a hearty welcome.

MADGE MURRAY, Reporter.

Rehoboth, Creswell Ct.—Rev. L. E. Mabry reached this work about a month ago. However, he was too late to fill the regular appointment at Rehoboth in May, met the appointments at the other churches, and reached us last Sunday. I was very sorry not to have been able to attend the services. Bro. C. V. White accompanied them over to see us in the afternoon. He said the congregation was large to what it generally is, and the sermon most excellent. People came to him after services and told him how much they enjoyed it, and liked the "new preacher." I pray we may have a successful year for the Master's work, and all dwell together in peace.

Mr. and Mrs. V. L. Everett and Vernon, Jr., from Norfolk, came to attend services Sunday, were disappointed to find they could not remain for services and get home in time for his work, wanting to see his preacher. We went to Creswell to see him; he was not at home; however, he hopes to be able to be here the next appointment.

MRS. G. L. DAVENPORT, Reporter.

Graham.—Our pastor gave us a fine message Sunday morning, using as his subject "The Vision of Youth." In the evening the children, directed by Misses Lizabel Foust and Emma Foushee, presented one of the best programs we have had this year. The attendance was unusually large and everyone enjoyed the children's program.

The Auxiliary met Monday evening, June 10, at the hut. A splendid program was given by the Lou Goley Circle, directed by Mrs. Auman.

We are planning to observe Father's Day next Sunday. Special music will be given and each one is asked to wear a flower as we do for Mother's Day. We are hoping to have good attendance. Each Sunday school class that has perfect attendance will be given a prize.

Circle No. 3 will give an ice cream supper on the church lawn Saturday evening, June 15.

We congratulate Mr. Lonnie B. Ezell, who was recently elected dean of Westminster College, Tehuacana, Texas. Our church is honored by this announcement.

REPORTER.

Pleasant Grove.—Mother's Day was observed at Pleasant Grove. The men of the church opened the Sunday school service with a special program honoring the mothers. On this day a mother, Mrs. J. R. Beasley, sent to the church a special gift—an artful quilt. When the gift was presented it was explained how Mrs. Beasley made the quilt to represent the birth of Christ based on the second chapter of Luke, verses 8 through 20. The quilt was accepted by Mr. Z. B. Morris and turned over to the Ladies' Class. The church is very grateful to this mother who had the love and patience to donate such a piece of art.

Memorial Day will be observed Sunday, June 16. An all-day service has been planned —the regular morning service, dinner on the grounds, and a special program in the afternoon.

Arrangements have been made in the church to begin a singing school on Tuesday night of this week directed by Mr. Clyde Conor, of the Wesleyan Methodist church of High Point.

On the third Sunday of July the revival meeting will begin. Rev. Mr. Powell will be assisted in these services by Rev. J. Clyde Auman, of Graham. It is hoped that this will be a great revival.

HAZEL AND YESABLE HEDRICK.

Grace Church.—Our period of Special Religious Emphasis was observed during the first week of June with Rev. Fred G. Holloway, D. D., president of Westminster Theological Seminary, Westminster, Md., as guest speaker. The central subject of the devotional messages was "The Church."

Dr. Holloway came to us on Sunday morning, June 2, and continued through the following Friday evening. His messages were concise, beautifully presented, and religious challenging. The services were highly enjoyed and appreciated by those who attended.

We were indeed glad to welcome a large number of visitors from other Methodist Protestant churches. Among the visitors were seen the following ministers: Drs. J. E. Pritchard and N. G. Bethea, and Revs. J. L. Trollinger, F. R. Love, T. F. McCulloch, and William Howard, Jr. Dr. C. E Forlines, professor of Systematic and Historical Theology in our seminary, also worshiped with us on Friday evening. Drs. Forlines and Holloway spent Friday night with Rev. and Mrs. J. Elwood Carroll, then drove back through the country on Saturday to Westminster.

Spring Church Charge.—Spring Church Circuit Auxiliary met in the home of Mrs. G. J. Mitchell Wednesday, June 5, at 2:30 p. m. with 14 active members and two Precious Jewels present and two visitors.

Mrs. Mitchell was devotional leader. She was assisted by Mesdames J. L. Glover, H. E. Vassar, Will Mitchell, and R. M. Robinson. It was decided to order another dozen hose for sale, also to secure material and make scrapbooks of our colleges and homes. The society decided to save their Sunday eggs and sell them and turn the money in to the Auxiliary treasury.

The July meeting is to be held at Spring church with a picnic supper and ice cream.

On last Sunday evening, Children's Day services were held at our Pleasant Hill church. A splendid program had been prepared by Misses Aubrey and Olie Crew.

The following young people are home from college for the summer vacation: Miss Katherine Crew, from W. C. U. N. C., Greensboro (Miss Crew was a senior this year): Misses Virginia Massey, Virginia Grant, and Sara Marie Neese, from High Point College (Miss Massey was a senior); and Messrs. James Massey and Lunsford Crew, Mr. Massey from High Point College and Mr. Crew from the University of North Carolina. We are glad to have these young folks at home.

MRS. WM. H. NEESE, Cor. Sec.

Asheville.—Our Children's Day programs were fine. The attendance was smaller than we had expected, but the children did splendidly. Those of us who practiced with them feel that our efforts were well rewarded. We believe we have the most co-operative bunch of children of any place, anyway.

Mr. Minnis was honored with a surprise birthday picnic Monday evening by the entire membership. Practically everyone attended and a good time was had by all.

A father-son banquet is scheduled for Wednesday of this week, and it is hoped a goodly number of fathers and sons will be present. The following ladies are planning the eats: Mrs. J. H. Bailey, Mrs. Louise Dillingham, Mrs. Hale Thomas, Mrs. H. L. Hanner, and Miss Nancy Clouse. Father's Day will be observed next Sunday.

Mrs. Robey Wilson, Mrs. S. M. Sullivan and Mrs. H. L. Waddell have each been somewhat indisposed recently, but are now improving.

We extend a welcome to Miss Josie McNeill and Miss Louise Hanner, both of whom have recently returned home from college. Miss Hanner graduated from Berea College, Berea, Kentucky.

FATHER'S DAY

By Victor P. Hammer

When we think about the matter
In a quiet, steady way,
There is much in calculating
What a fellow ought to say,
As we thrash around the subject
Of a real Father's Day;
And it's mighty nice, old comrade,
Thus to place you in array!

May-time yields its share of roses
And its floral wreaths entwine;
Hangs the sunrays out at morning
Just to drift along and shine;
Gives a zest to king and subject—
And I think it's very fine—
For my Dad is of the number;
What a man to set in line!

He just figures for the fellow
Who must, some day, fill his shoes;
In this way he strives and struggles,
Often with a case of blues;
But the way he does his smiling,
While his thoughts so much amuse,
Seems high time for celebrating—
And no whims of his refuse.

For a long time, shunned, neglected,
No attention he has had;
Very few seemed much affected,
Yet none thought that he was bad;
But in time some strange sensations,
Tears and faces very sad,
Brought about the dispensation
For a day for dear OLD DAD!

That a copy of these resolutions be sent to her family, to the Missionary Record, the Methodist Protestant Herald, and a copy be recorded in the minutes of our Auxiliary.

EIGHTEEN

By Victor P. Hammer

Another year has flown away
And left its triumphs here to stay;
 Has left them in impressive forms,
 Like beacons set to pierce the storms;
So tempered me, by slow degrees,
I do not dread Time's stern decrees;
 But, rather, rise, as to a guest,
 And pick my chance to do the best.

My smiles now hold the frowns at bay;
Life's sunbeams dance around each day;
 Discretion bears the lamp of fate—
 Its code of laws I emulate.
By Heaven's star I'm wending on,
Much wiser at this birthday dawn;
 With hopes set high and goal in sight,
 The road ahead is very bright.

My comrades—dearest friends of mine,
Whose lighted tapers brightly shine,
 Are walking side by side with me
 And striving for the things to be Triumphantly, in Christian grace.
How grand it seems to run the race,
 And look back o'er what I have seen
 In life and know I am eighteen!

GRAHAM	103
TABERNACLE	91
REIDSVILLE	90

See who is at the head of this column this week! For some time Graham has been getting nearer and nearer the goal, so this week she reaches it. Here is a fine example of what can be done with the plan of selling papers by the week. Last year Graham used this same plan and went over the top, and so she does it again. Tabernacle and Reidsville both stand still this week but still hold on to their relative standing because no other place was pressing them.

And now for the receipts column. Here again, Graham is at the head of the list. But while Graham is in the lead she is not far ahead of First church, Burlington. This church had already reached its goal, but Mrs. Durham, the agent, is not the kind to stop and sit down, so they are going on up. Burlington First is being followed closely by Rev. J. R. Anderson, of Lincolnton, who also has had considerable success selling papers by the week. Last year Brother Anderson put Albemarle over by this plan and this year he is going strong at Lincolnton. Let the good work go on.

Now a word about the receipts. Last week there was somewhat of a pickup, but this week we drop back again. Of course we know that there is usually somewhat of a slump at this season of the year, but we hope it does not continue too long. We are very grateful for what has been done and are not complaining. But we just ask everybody to do his best. There are a goodly number of charges that will reach the goal by the time of the Annual Conference. Reach it just as early as you can, agents, and then do like several of the charges are doing this week, go beyond your quota. Five of the charges that are sending in something this week had already reached the top.

The receipts this week amount to $34.00, all on subscriptions.

Patience

We are approaching the time of the year when a great deal of patience is required of the town and city pastor as well as the leaders of the churches which these pastors serve. For when the warm weather of summer comes, then there is a great temptation for the people of the towns and cities to scatter to the uttermost parts of the earth. And while it is true that a great deal of patience is required at all times, yet these times call for more than the ordinary patience. During the next few weeks the average town and city pastor will see his congregation shot to pieces and about the biggest thing that he will be able to see will be empty pews. And everybody that knows anything about preaching knows that there is not much inspiration in preaching to them. Sunday school superintendents and presidents of woman's auxiliaries will need some patience also in dealing with their work. Sunday school teachers as well as heads of departments will be taking themselves off to summer resorts and to the country to the all-day meetings. It is somewhat disconcerting to the Sunday school superintendent to go to his school on Sunday morning and find a lot of his helpers absent. Ministers who serve in the country can hardly realize what a problem it is to carry on in town during the summer months.

But why do we need to exercise patience? The answer is simple. Too many people, under circumstances which we have been describing, lose patience and in some cases say things which they afterwards regret. In other cases they become so discouraged that they resign their position and give up in despair. Either of these positions is unwise. Somebody must carry on in town and city during the summer, and those that are already at the helm had just as well stick to the job as for someone else to do it. The pastor must stick to his task, for if he does not, the chances are he will have nothing to do for a long time.

With a little bit of forethought and planning, this problem can be partially solved. Those who are going out to the country churches, in a great many cases, can stay for the morning service and then get out to the country church in time to greet their friends during the noon hour. It may take some loyalty to do this, but people are better when they make sacrifices. We have never believed that even the country church is helped much by having an overflow congregation at some special service. What we need to do is to cooperate rather than to compete. In the case of Sunday school teachers, the problem can be somewhat solved by each teacher having an assistant. Definite arrangements ought to be made by the regular teacher, with the assistant teacher to teach on some particular Sunday when the regular teacher is to be away. We see no reason why the teachers in a department could not get together and plan for some to go away at a certatin time while others would plan to stay and carry on.

But the question of patience is one that cannot be entirely solved by making plans for the morning church service or the Sunday school or any other features of the church work. There is need for patience everywhere, and too many times church leaders and pastors are lacking in the very thing which they need most. Anybody that deals with anybody else needs patience. In fact, a person needs patience in dealing with himself. You might take a man out on a lonely island and leave him there all alone, and he would need patience and perhaps need is just as badly or even more so than he would if he were with the multitude. The most of us have a hard time making things go our way. To us, Our Way is most important. The way of the other fellow can be overlooked, but we want our way. We want things to go according to our liking. Our program, our work, our pet schemes seem so much more important than do those which the other man is trying to put across. We have become so accustomed to speed in travel, in the art of making things, and in a thousand different ways, that it seems so slow to us to have to plod along and wait for our plans to mature or wait to see the things accomplished which we think ought to be accomplished. And the thing that makes it hard to so many people is that everybody is not interested in the thing we are trying to do. A great many people have difficulty in realizing that the work the other man is doing means much anyway. And perhaps it is well that people do put considerable emphasis upon the thing they are trying to do, for unless we can do that we will not be of much service to the cause which we represent. But the world is made up of many people and many interests. The work of the Kingdom is very broad and many workers are required for the completion of the task. It may be that the work the other man is doing is just as important in the sight of God as is ours.

Another place where patience is greatly needed is in dealing with people who see things differently from the way we see them. Too many people do not wait for the facts. They jump at conclusions. We have been greatly impressed with this fact since we have been dealing with a large number of people in this office. A great many of the sharpest letters that we have had have been from people who did not have patience to wait long enough to get the facts. The larger part of the misunderstandings of this world are caused by the lack of patience. If half a dozen of the nations that went to war that brought on the World War as we call it, had had a little more patience and had considered the thing a little more, all of the horrors of that conflict might have been avoided. Too many times when a man gets a letter that does not just suit him, he sits right down and frames a hot tempered reply without even reading the letter carefully enough to see what it says. One of the places where patience is needed more than anywhere else is in the home. If the members of the family would be a little less hasty in making reply, many tragic things could be avoided in our home life today. So we need patience. We need it in the church; we need it in dealing with our fellowmen; we need it in our homes and we need it everywhere. May we have it in abundance.

Our Welcome Song

We are reprinting this week the M. P. Herald Welcome Song, written by Mrs. R. M. Andrews and published in the issue of March 21, 1935. When Mrs. Andrews sent this song she said that she had written it in the hope that the young people in the Leadership Training School would sing it in the dining room and thus have their attention called to one of our own institutions, and furthermore, that they would sing this song rather than some that had been sung in the past. We join Mrs. Andrews in this wish. If the Herald is to survive, a generation must be taught to love it. There is no better way to do this than to sing about it.

Now, we are calling upon those who direct in the entertainment of our young people next week to see that this song is used. And we would suggest to our young people that they make a copy of this song and take it along to the Leadership school. We hope to go over in time some evening to hear this song in the dining room.

Children's Home Does Not Get $5,000

A couple of weeks ago the daily papers carried a story about the gifts of B. N. Duke to certain charitable institutions. Our Children's Home at High Point was listed as having received $5,000. Dr. Dixon, the Superintendent of our Home, calls and asks us to state that the money referred to was used in building the home for the Superintendent some years ago. These gifts made by Mr. Duke some years ago were recently listed in New York in order that the question might be determined as to the amount the state of New York could collect in taxes from the Duke estate after all bequests were taken out.

We wish very much that this were a new gift. It would help our Home very much. But since it is not a new gift, and since the money was used several years ago, it cannot be used again.

Dr. Plyler and Family Go to Europe

The daily press brings us the information that Rev. A. W. Plyler, D.D., one of the editors of the North Carolina Christian Advocate, and his wife and daughter will soon set sail on the mighty deep, and that they will visit the countries in northern and central Europe. We wish for these good friends a safe and pleasant voyage. We also congratulate them on being able to take such a trip. Furthermore, we would suggest that they make this an annual affair, and that they invite the editors of all other church papers in the state to go with them as their guests. Now all of you editors that agree with us say, Aye. The ayes have it!

WHAT THE BIBLE SAYS ABOUT THE BIBLE

By Rev. T. M. Johnson, D.D.

The Bible does not, by direct statement, say much about itself, just as a man of worth does not say much about himself. We know the value of a man by what he says, and especially by what he does, about other matters than himself. So also we know the spirit and value of the Bible by what it says about principles, attitudes, conditions, and conduct; and by what it does in the way of establishing right principles and proper attitudes, and in bettering conditions and inducing correct conduct, rather than by what it says about itself.

The Term "Bible"

The word Bible does not appear in the Bible except on the title page—"The Holy Bible." The term Bible was not applied to the sacred writings until they had been collected together, long after they were written over a period of more than a thousand years. The word Bible means book, as though it were one book, whereas there are sixty-six books—thirty-nine in the Old Testament and twenty-seven in the New Testament—bound together in one volume we call the Bible.

In the nature of the case no part of the Bible could say anything about the Bible as a whole. The most that could be done was what some part of it might say about such part as had been previously written. Hence most of what the Bible says about itself, that has any value in this study, is what the New Testament says about the Old Testament.

The Terms Used

Sometimes the Bible is referred to as the "Good Book" or the "Word of God." But the term commonly used by New Testament writers or speakers in referring to or quoting from the Old Testament is "The Scripture" or "The Scriptures," which means "the writings." They meant, of course, inspired writings, often quoting to give emphasis or authority to what they were saying. "And Paul, as his manner was, went in unto them, and three Sabbath days reasoned with them out of the Scriptures." (Acts 17:2.) Sometimes it was to point out that the Scriptures were being fulfilled. "And he began to say unto them, This day is this Scripture fulfilled in your ears." (Luke 4:21.) Sometimes the term "Word of God" was used. "Making the word of God of none effect through your tradition." (Mark 7:13.) The term Scripture appears only once in the Old Testament, Dan. 10:21.

Favorite Phrases

Two phrases used by Old Testament writers and speakers indicate that they were consciously confident that they were acting under inspiration. "The word of the Lord" was used rather freely by Isaiah and Jeremiah, though each of them sometimes varied the form of it. "The land shall be utterly emptied, and utterly spoiled: for the Lord hath spoken this word." (Isa. 24:3.)

Ezekiel used the phrase quite freely, and his favorite way of putting it was: "The word of the Lord came unto me." (Ezek. 17:11.) "Say now to the rebellious house, Know ye not what these things mean? tell them, Behold, the king of Babylon is come to Jerusalem, and hath taken the king thereof, and the princes thereof, and led them with him to Babylon." (Verse 12.) All the world knows how terribly that prophecy was fulfilled.

The minor prophets used the phrase rather sparsely, but with all the prophets it was a finality. The Lord said it, it could not be gainsaid.

The reader will keep in mind the fact that the Bible, by direct statement, says very little about itself. The above quotations and some that are to follow indicate that the writers of the Bible knew beyond peradventure that their writings were the word of God, hence through them incidentally and indirectly the Bible is saying the Bible is the word of God—the sum and substance of what the Bible says about the Bible.

The other favorite phrase of the prophets is, "Thus saith the Lord." This is true of those who wrote and of those whose sayings were recorded by others. This phrase was the thunder, and the lightning was always surely there. "Thus saith the Lord, Behold . . . the men shall cry, and all the inhabitants of the land shall howl." (Jer. 47:2.) "Son of man, prophesy and say, Thus saith the Lord God; howl ye, woe worth the day! For the day is near, even the day of the Lord is near." (Ezek. 30:2, 3.)

A third favorite phrase may be added, "It shall come to pass." "And it shall come to pass afterward, that I will pour out my spirit upon all flesh; and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, your old men shall dream dreams, your young men shall see visions. And also upon the servants and upon the handmaids in those days will I pour out my spirit." (Joel 2:28, 29.) The above will be recognized as the passage quoted by Peter on the day of Pentecost, Acts 2:17, 18. It did come to pass.

An Indestructible Structure

As one contemplates the numerous utterances of the prophets of God, utterances preceded or confirmed by such phrases as "The word of the Lord," "The word that the Lord hath spoken," "For the Lord hath spoken this word," "Thus saith the Lord," "Thus saith the Lord of hosts," "Thus saith the Lord God of Israel," "It shall come to pass," it is easy to think of them as building, of these oft repeated phrases, a structure built of material more durable than steel or granite and more valuable than silver or gold.

The Cope Stones of the Structure

The cope stones are placed by writers and speakers of the New Testament. Peter, preaching in the great revival, said: "God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." (Acts 3:21.)

Zacharias, filled with the Holy Ghost, said: "As he (God) spake by the mouth of his holy prophets, which have been since the world began." (Luke 1:70.) Paul to Timothy said: "All Scripture is given by inspiration of God." (2 Tim. 3:16.) Peter wrote: "For the prophecy came not in old time by the will of man: but holy men of God spoke as they were moved by the Holy Ghost." (2 Pet. 1:21.) "Jesus answered them, Is it not written in your law? . . . and the Scripture cannot be broken." (Jno. 10:34, 35.)

REFLECTIONS AFTER MOTHER'S DAY

By LUTHER K. LONG

Over the radio I heard a man speaking concerning Mother's Day.

"Twenty-seven years ago today," he was saying, "the first observance of Mother's Day was celebrated, and it has increased in popularity from year to year—largely due to the activity of flower-shops."

For a week or more before the celebration here the papers were full of such advertisements as these: "Send a bouquet to Mother," "Mother would love to have one of our fine potted plants," "We have a splendid assortment of Mother's Day cards, send your Mother one," "Send Mother a box of our special candies"—and so on almost without end.

This commercializing of the day does not make sons and daughters think that they adequately show honor to their mothers by sending them cards, candy, flowers and other gifts. Such gifts may help to express and develop feelings already present, but they can by no possibility create the disposition to honor and obey the mother that should have been implanted and cultivated from earliest infancy.

Entirely too much importance has been attached to the value of displaying the national flag, marching in processions and attending mass meetings. Mother's Day exercises may degenerate into a merely sentimental gesture.

I have before me a leading religious weekly. In it is a column of quotations from eminent persons in praise of mothers and motherhood. Of course they are largely extravagant.

The late Theodore Roosevelt is quoted as saying, "Into the woman's keeping is committed the destiny of the generations to come." While the mother of ex-President Roosevelt's boys is worthy of all honor as one of the finest women of the land, the fact remains that the father—though busily occupied with important affairs of state—did not leave the boys entirely to the care of their mother. He did his part as a good and responsible father. His volume of letters to his children is one of the best books he ever wrote and shows him as fully co-operating with his good wife.

I have lived long enough to see many families begin and proceed to various degrees of success or failure. It is seldom that a woman succeeds in bringing up her children well if her husband fails in intelligence, industry, disposition, and character—though if he is eliminated before too late in the game her chances for success are better alone.

At least three things should be constantly in the mind of every husband and father:

1. Disobedience and impudence on the part of children toward their mother should not be tolerated by him. His own fine feeling and bearing toward the wife and mother are a good basis on which to build the same sort of sentiment and bearing on the part of the children. Let no one think that this can be easily begun at any time in the child's life. When the boy or girl has reached the age of 8, 10, or 15 years it becomes exceedingly difficult to change bad habits into finer ways. I have more than once seen a child utterly disrespectful and disobedient toward its mother, while the father sat without showing any interest and even encouraged the child in its impudence.

The training of the child should begin as soon as it is born. It is soon susceptible to suggestions, can be influenced by the manner and tone of voice of its parents, and comes to realize that certain of its actions and attitudes pleases its parents while others of its ways are not to be tolerated. During these first weeks and months and years of the child's life many problems may be solved and many attitudes developed that will make for such a good understanding in the family relations as will prevent many a future personal difficulty.

2. Every child should early learn that teasing and begging and whining will not get it anywhere. If a child finds that teasing and crying, or throwing itself on the floor and kicking and screaming, will induce its parents to give what it wants or gain permission to go where it desires, it will surely use these methods. When it finds that such tactics not only do not work, but rather bring the displeasure of the parents and the application of a firm hand or a paddle to a certain appropriate part of its anatomy, it will cease whining and screaming. It is essential to develop as rapidly as possible the child's understanding and reasoning powers, thus making it possible for it to grow into a fit companion and friend for the rest of the family.

The mother, after long and trying days alone with the children, often finds it difficult to handle an obstreperous child. Many a father finds it difficult to be both stern and kind in dealing with his children—but a real man will make it his important business to do that very thing, and the children will later rise up to honor him as they honor their mother.

3. If women and mothers are to have an exalted place in the esteem of children and all men, boys must early be taught to respect and care for their small sisters and all girls; and girls must early learn to respect themselves and to bear themselves properly toward boys and other girls. Boys do not need to be sissies, but above all else they should not be mean or disrespectful toward a girl or to any younger or weaker person. Some boys may grow out of this mean way of acting, and seemingly become fine men, but I find it difficult to yield full respect and confidence to any male whom I have ever seen mean and impudent to his mother or sister, or to any other mother or sister. Scars and warts are always left on the characters of such persons.

As the years go by I am increasingly realizing the possibilities for joyful and rich living to be found in the home and family. Realizing also that there are many things in our modern ways of life that stand in the way of effective family discipline, I feel like urging upon parents the necessity for careful study and earnest effort toward making our homes and families the best possible.

Moton Family Expresses Appreciation

Miss Beulah Moton, of High Point, speaking for the family, has asked us to express on behalf of the family sincere thanks to the ministers in the School for Ministers at High Point College for flowers sent at the time of the death of Mrs. J. H. Moton.

THE SONG OF THE OLD MINISTER

By Rev. G. F. Millaway

When I was young I used my tongue
In sermon and in song;
And could teach and write and preach
And push church work along.
I had an active ministry
And there were many calls for me.

But now they say I'm bent and grey
And show a wrinkled face;
In wounded pride I've stepped aside
And given up my place;
My hands are shaky; yes, I know,
And all my steps are short and slow.

Well, so it seems my youthful dreams
Were castles in the air;
I'm plainly told I'm growing old,
And done with public care;
And now, the thing I cannot see
Is what the world will do with me.

Old horses, when they fail, like men,
Their useful day they pass,
Are gently told they are getting old;
They turn them out to grass;
As for me, I may go too,
But find the grass blades short and few.

I want to thank heartily all the brethren and sisters who contribute to the Superannuate Fund, for it is very helpful.

I was there every service except two. I also was in one of Brother Bethea's services at West End. Brother Shelton took me there. He has taken me to lots of places. He does not charge anything, though I wish I could pay for some of the gas. He is not stingy with gas. I have been helped in many ways by his kindness in taking me out over the country. Brother Garner used to take me out and that was helpful and was appreciated. Brother Ashburn helps by his many calls. He, too, has taken me to ride a few times. Thanks to these brethren.

Mrs. W. C. Hammer Improving

On Thursday of last week we saw Mrs. W. C. Hammer of Asheboro, president of the Women's Missionary Convention of our church, who was seriously injured in an automobile accident near Rocky Mount, Va., about a month ago as she was returning from the General Missionary Convention at Indianapolis and a meeting of the General Boards of our church in Pittsburgh, Pa. Her body and left arm are still in a cast, but she seems to be resting comfortably. She was expected to return to Duke University Hospital at Durham the first of this week for further treatment. Mrs. Hammer appreciates greatly the many courtesies extended to her by her large number of friends.

Additional Churches Paid College Claim

Kannapolis; First church, Charlotte; Lawndale, Oak Grove, Kistlers, Mt. Moriah and Mt. Pleasant churches, Cleveland circuit.

Honor Roll Number One

Churches which have paid apportionment for World Service in full: Shiloh, Shiloh circuit. You are next!

Honor Roll Number Two

Churches which have paid all Annual Conference claims in full: Mill Grove, Love Grove, Pine Bluff, Midland circuit; Shiloh, Friendship and Greer's Chapel, Shiloh circuit; Gibsonville; Haw River church; Mebane; Shiloh, Liberty circuit.

Another Honor Roll Proposed

I would like to set up and run in the HERALD a list of those churches which have had a numerical gain of ten per cent this year. A ten per cent net gain exceeds any net gain all the churches of the conference have made in recent years; however, there are a number of churches which make this gain. We want to list them as Honor Roll Number Three. We will depend upon the pastors to furnish this list. You will subtract all losses from total as reported last year in Journal and add the additions this year. By this process we will determine the gain.

Organized Christianity

The early Christian church was not an organization as we have it today. It is true that in the latter Apostolic days lay officials were created and given tasks to perform. But no local church "clicked" with the same precision the well organized church does today. The Apostle, the preacher, was not only the teacher, preacher, evangelist; he supported himself. It is difficult for the modern pastor to think in terms of preaching in the Apostolic days. We know, by experience, very little about how Paul, Timothy, Peter and others labored. The weakest, the least, organized church in our conference today would have been a joyous privilege to them as they sought places to preach the gospel. They had no organizations at all; no official boards, no houses, not even a friendly reception, oftentimes. So there has been great progress made in church work. Millions of laymen and laywomen are enlisted and give gladly of their time and means to carry on. And since there are many ready to serve, there must be plans, programs, assignments of tasks for the worker. This constitutes in part the organized Christianity we know. Apart from it, but little is attempted and less is done. The preacher without a denomination has but little chance of doing much, and a church without organization is a very weak unit in the denominational make-up. The pastor who fails to see the benefits of creating and maintaining an organization is really blind to his opportunity. Those who do not work with their organization, who ignore their official boards, who do not consult with their membership often about the major projects of their church, will find themselves standing alone when they most need help to carry forward the work which they have been given to do. Present-day Christianity in its best form is organized and functions without friction. Brother Pastor, do not be deceived in yourself; do not think that you are strong enough to discard your official board, and wise enough to disregard the counselling of your members and succeed; success does not come that way. "In union there is strength"—in church work as in statecraft.

Kannapolis, Rev. Aubert Smith, Pastor

Brother Smith graduated from High Point College last May, and is just entering fully upon the work as pastor. He served the unexpired term of Brother C. P. Morris last year, and has been supplying the work since conference.

This was the annual home-coming day of the church. It has gotten to be a custom with the congregation to invite former pastors and members to return and share with them the joys felt upon this occasion. Here is a church which has done remarkably well in its short life. Organized in 1927, we believe, by Rev. G. H. Hendry, today it has a membership of 195, and had present in the Sunday school 197 out of an expectation of 200 for the day. After housing three classes in other buildings, the little auditorium was so jammed and noisy in the recitation of the lesson that we marvelled at the success a teacher might have putting his message across.

But where there is love and such loyalty as we have here, it would be difficult for one to discourage them. So while they labor under such handicap for space, they are dreaming dreams of a better day they know will surely come when they will have a building that will take care of all who will worship and study with them.

The work is moving along smoothly. All Annual Conference claims met except the Superannuate apportionment; when it is met Kannapolis will go on our Honor Roll number two. The building had just been painted inside and out, which made it look new; pastor paid to date, and a building fund started and only a small amount to pay on building and loan when the congregation will be entirely out of debt. You may expect to hear good things from Kannapolis whenever they shall broadcast.

Yadkin College and State Street Churches, Rev. T. M. Johnson, Pastor

I visited Yadkin College church in the afternoon. There was but a small number present. They do not have a large congregation there. But it was a pleasure to preach. It was easy to preach; preachers will know what I mean.

This historic community has a past it can justly be proud of. Here resided through the years when the college was open, such men as R. H. Wills, C. A. Pickens, J. N. Garrett, G. W. Holmes, S. Simpson, and others whose names escape me at this moment. And here attended school Forlines, Taylor, J. D. Williams, Thompson, Curry, Lowdermilk, Powell, and others who have served churches in our conference. Brother Totten, who taught here for years, still resides in the village. "Old Yadkin" made a fine contribution to the North Carolina Conference. I had the privilege of visiting the mother of Dr. S. W. Taylor at this time. Ninety-one, I believe she said, blind, but as cheery as a youth. I came from her bedside feeling that there are some who resist the throttling hand of age, who maintain an attitude of youth despite physical decrepiude, and she is one. The children of such may well rise up and call them blessed. I was helped by my brief stay in her home.

State Street was our appointment for the night. Dr. Johnson feared the attendance might be off some because of a tent meeting which had begun to get under way, but said there was an average attendance.

Last year this church, through the generous contribution of Brother Walser, reduced its total indebtedness between two and three thousand dollars, and the same loyal member has made a challenge to the church which will doubtless be met and thereby reduce the indebtedness more this year; I am not sure of the amount. But this looks good, and is vital to the usefulness of the church. No church can do its best work when hampered by a big debt. We are so glad that the congregation is reducing the indebtedness now, and hope that soon the amount will be small enough to pay it off in a single year of self-denial on the part of the membership. The pastor is a busy man, meets with all the organizations of the church, and tries by every way to encourage and guide those who lead into the best channels of service. Several claims are met as were reported in the HERALD, and the pastor expects all others to be paid before conference meets.

M. P. HERALD WELCOME SONG

By MRS. R. M. ANDREWS

(Tune—"She'll be comin' 'round the mountain when she comes")

There's a friend we welcome gladly when it comes,
There's a friend we welcome gladly when it comes,
The Methodist Protestant Herald,
The Methodist Protestant Herald,
Is the friend we welcome gladly when it comes.

Oh, it's filled with information, read it through,
Tells the news of all creation unto you,
Brings it in from sea to mountain,
Flings it forth from molten fountain,
Oh, it's filled with information, read it through.

CHORUS

To be sung after two stanzas

(Tune—"Tramp, tramp, tramp, the boys are marching")

Hail! Hail! Meth'dist Protestant Herald,
How you fill our hearts with cheer!
Ever faithful, wise and true,
Leader, friend, and teacher, too,
Oh, we'll greet you and we'll hold you ever dear.

MUSIC

Music is an art given from God to His human beings. Even the criminal behind prison bars will listen to spiritual or sentimental music. God has no respect of race or person in this gift. Many people enjoy hearing the colored race sing. The vocal organs are one of the most wonderful gifts we possess. We notice people who love flowers love music and other beautiful things. Music and flowers are good for the soul. If we let our thoughts dwell on some favorite music or song, it cheers us up and makes our daily task and work easier and lightens the burden. When we listen to music attentively, we forget our burdens and sorrows. It drives the evil spirit away. It is something magical. It is close akin to nature. There is music in the ocean waves. They are ever singing the same sad song. The voice of the great Creator dwells in that mighty tone. We remember David played his harp of many strings before King Saul, and drove the evil spirit away. We remember how the angels' song at the birth of our Savior on that Christmas eve, was heard by the shepherds. Many lovers of music still cherish and possess the music, "Star of the East." It is very touching at that glad season.

Just what would this world be without music or friends? Almost a failure. We cannot hold any kind of service properly without spiritual or sentimental or secular music. Young people are falling behind in not studying it. They can get along through the world better with some knowledge of music than without it. Later in life they'll not miss the time they spent. It takes patience and practice. It is something that will leave you if you entirely neglect it. No one can give it to you. You have to get it yourself.

What is home without some kind of music? It brightens and cheers up the young and old. Home is not complete without some kind of music. Many people enjoy the bird's song. The canary and mocking-bird are the most noted songsters. What is more cheering on these summer mornings than the songs of birds? Perhaps many people do not notice them. Nature gave them to us; do we appreciate them as we should? We can listen while at our work. They are a gift.

The little spring frogs shake off the chilly blast of winter with their peeping song. Then comes the big bass frogs; they make the echoes ring near a stream of water. Many insects sing in their droll way. It is music, but not very melodious. Do we notice the chirping cricket on the hearthstone when the day is done? I enjoy the katy-did's song. Nature gave these insects their voice. They use them and don't say, like many of us say, I can't sing. It strengthens our faith to hear a solo sung of the Holy City, Jerusalem, and "We are marching on to Zion, the beautiful City of God."

Music has been degraded to some extent; in the revelry of the dance hall, and by the intoxicated person. He tries hard to sing, but fails. Music and alcohol don't mix. Ancient history tells us that Nero, the wicked emperor of Rome, played his violin while Rome burned. No doubt it soothed his wicked soul and drowned out the pitiful cry of humanity. What is more impressive than the memory of the funeral dirge of our loved ones? More interest is shown on these occasions than ever before.

The soldier in war picks up courage and new life when some familiar strain of music floats on the breeze. Such as "Home, Sweet Home." It freshens the memory of home ties. The soldiers enjoy the patriotic airs. In the Civil War the North enjoyed Yankey-Doodle; the South, Dixie.

The strains of some familiar ballad touch the heart of those who have left us and made their home in some far country. It makes them feel sad. It is good for us to be sad some of our time. By sadness the heart is touched. It is better to enter the house of mourning than the house of revelry and foolishness. "Follow the Gleam" is music written from the Gethsemane of Christ to the Cross. Today it is prized and possessed by many music lovers. Spiritual music makes us feel nearer to our Creator. Around the throne of glory happy children sing. The redeemed of the ages are singing in the heavenly choir. Surely music is a blessing to the world. The most ignorant mother's lullaby to her child in her arms, in a few moments puts it to sleep. Music has a soothing, alluring strain. It carries us from earthly scenes to a brighter and happier place. King David often speaks of music in the Psalms. He says, "Make a joyful noise unto God." Isaiah speaks of song in the redemption of Jacob. St. John says in his vision, "I heard a voice from heaven as the voice of many waters. I heard the voice of harpers harping with their harps. And they sang as it were a new song before the throne, and no man could learn that song but the redeemed from the earth." What is more soul-stirring than the strains of the pipe organ on a calm, peaceful, Sabbath morning at worship? Surely music is the builder of this instrument's soul. Music will be one of the main objects in heaven. Music is good for the blind. They love and study it. It was my privilege to hear a blind young man play and sing, "Oh, Some Morning When I See My Savior's Face." Its memory will ever stay with me. At this time much scripture is set to music. We frequently sing some of blind Fanny Crosby's poems in our Hymnal. Charles and Samuel Wesley and Isaac Wattts wrote most of the poems which have been set to music in our church hymnal. They and many of our composers of music have passed on to the better world. They left a goodly portion of their labor for the coming and present generations. Will we use it to brighten the world, or ignore it?

We country people enjoy the natural voice that Nature gave us rather than some of the cultivated voices. I do not mean harsh, shrill or rasping, but the calm, natural voice. The cultivated voice sounds to many of us so wobbly and shaky. We don't understand a word they sing. Give the poet credit for his work, as well as the composer of the music.

I hope I'm not criticised too severely for this.

DORA NEECE.

Recently Mrs. Neece was asked to read a paper on the subject of music at one of the regular meetings of the Tabernacle Auxiliary, and the above was the result. After the paper was read it was so much appreciated by the ladies present that Mrs. Neece was asked to allow it to be published. Mrs. Neece is one of the most faithful pianists the writer has ever known. She has been at her post for a great number of years, and is doing regular and efficient work in her church in a way that is greatly to be appreciated.

An Ancient Manuscript and a New Sermon

Brother J. F. Hunter of Arcola, a member of Bethesda church on Halifax circuit, has sent to the editor a very ancient and a very interesting document which reads as follows: "Received Feb. 1, 1876 of J. E. Hunter Ten (10) dollars as stock in the printing material of the Central Protestant office at Greensboro, N. C. J. L. Michaux, Editor Central Protestant."

Brother Hunter also reports a good day at Bethesda church the second Sunday when Memorial and Home-Coming day was celebrated. He states that Rev. N. M. Harrison gave the morning sermon.

Calvary's Tithing Campaign a Success

A couple of weeks ago we reported the results of the tithing campaign put on at Calvary church to run for the months of April and May. Since that time more tithe money has come in, so that now we say that the offerings for the two months of the campaign were more than $400 greater than they were the previous two months. Tithing is the solution to the financial problem of the church.

OUR STORY PAGE

"TEMPTATION RESISTED"

A boy not seventeen years of age was a clerk in a large mercantile house in a Southern city. He was an orphan and entirely alone in the world, with nothing to help him to keep to the right but the Christian influence of his sainted mother. She had loved her boy, her only child, and constantly prayed to God to help her guide aright the precious soul He had intrusted to her care. He was a bright, handsome boy, frank expression of his deep-blue eyes, his earnest endeavor to reach the top of the ladder, won for him the highest regard and admiration of his employers, while his cordial, hearty manner drew him closely by the bonds of fraternal feeling to his fellow workmen. Many times he was urged to join them in their gay reveries, and he might have been lured to the paths of vice but for the holy teachings of his beloved mother.

Albert Munroe was the most refined and virtuous young man of his acquaintance; and when, one evening, he invited Fred home with him, the young man gladly consented, for he spent many lonely hours with only his books and thoughts for company. The Munroe family consisted of father, mother, brother, and sister. Mr. Munroe was a fine-looking gentleman, very wealthy, and far on the road to fame. Mrs. Munroe was one of those affectionate, sympathetic, fascinating women who are sure to win the love and confidence of the young people. Eveline was a lovely young girl, rosy-cheeked, full of wit and pleasantry, and about Fred's own age.

It was a very happy family that gathered around the bountifully-spread table in the luxurious dining room of the Munroe mansion. After dinner had been served, wine was brought in. Gentle Mrs. Munroe poured it with her own hand, and with a winning smile passed a glass of the sparkling liquid to her visitor. He received it with hesitation and placed it on the table before him; the rest held theirs, waiting to pledge their guest.

''Why! Do you not drink wine?'' Mrs. Munroe asked, in her sweetest tones.

''I have been taught not to drink,'' said he, blushing.

''You have had good teaching, I know, and I honestly respect you for following it; but I think it makes a difference when and where you take it. I would not want Albert to go to the barroom in company with riotous men and drink, but here in the family circle it is different. Wine in moderation cannot hurt anyone; it is the excessive use of it that does harm. You had better drink yours. Such a little as that cannot hurt you.''

Eveline was sitting next to Fred, and turning her sweet face and pleading eyes to him, laid a timid hand on his arm and said, ''Drink it for my sake.''

Again he took the sparkling liquid; the glowing wine was tempting, and his companions more so. He raised the goblet to his lips. No! he could not drink it, for at that moment there rose before him a pale, sweet face with pleading eyes, the face of a sainted mother who had answered the great roll call. He put down the glass, and with steady glance and firm tones said: ''I cannot drink it. It was my mother's dying request that I should never taste of wine, and if I disregard it now, I fear greater temptations will follow. You must pardon my seeming discourtesy, but I dare not drink it.''

After a moment's silence, Mrs. Munroe said with a choked voice: ''Forgive me, my boy, for tempting you to violate your conscience. Would that all men held duty in as high regard as you do.''

''The boy is right,'' said Mr. Munroe, while all left their wine untasted.

''Drinking wine leads to greater temptations. We have done wrong to set such an example before our children.''

Having the wine removed, he continued, solemnly: ''Here, in the presence of you all, I make a solemn vow never to have any more wine on my table or drink it myself; and I earnestly pray that my influence and precepts may be as binding on my children as the request of this boy's mother to him. We are not drunkards or winebibbers here, my boy. I have always preached temperance to my children, but never realized before that an occasional glass of wine, taken in good society and the seclusion of home, would injure. I see it now; for when a man takes one glass of wine he is apt to take another and another, and it is hard to know where to draw the line. I thank you, Fred, for this lesson, and I will prove to those around me that I have as much manliness as a mere boy. My children, will you follow my example, and by the help of God pledge to abstain totally from the use of wine?''

''We will, father,'' was the reply, and the pledge has never been broken by any member of the Munroe family.

Years after, when Fred was a prosperous merchant and the lovely Eveline Munroe was his wife, they often spoke of the consequences which might have followed had he yielded to the first temptation.—Publisher Unknown.

LOVE OVERLEAPS THE POND

Love and faith are inseparable. When there is faith in the Lord Jesus, there will always be love toward all the saints, because faith is the faculty of taking God into the heart. Faith is God-receptiveness. Faith appropriates the nature of God, as the expanded lung does the mountain air, or as the child does the parent's gift. Faith, like a narrow channel, conveys God's ocean fullness into the lagoons of human needs. Wherever, therefore, faith links the believer to the Lord Jesus, His nature which is love, pure as mountain dew, begins to flow into the waiting, expectant heart, and then to flow out thence toward all saints.

The love of God knows no favorite sect. It singles out no special school; but, as the sun and wind of nature, breathes and shines on all. It is cosmopolitan and universal. You cannot imprison it within the walls of any one Christian community. It laughs at your restrictions, and with equal grace raises up witnesses and standard bearers from all parts of the church.

Thus, as we become more like God, our love overleaps the barrier of our little pond and passes out to greet all saints, and to expand itself on the great world of man.

It is only as we love that we apprehend Christ's love. —The Inner Life.

Burlington, N. C., R. 4

THE FINAL WORD FOR YOUNG PEOPLE'S CHOIRS

We hail another young people's choir, which has signified its intention of being represented on the program the first evening of the Leadership Training School next week, namely, Calvary, Greensboro. If there are others who have not given notice of their intended participation, come along, anyway.

As has already been stated, two numbers will be sung by the combined choirs, these being an anthem, "Incline Thine Ear," Himmel, and a hymn, "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," to the tune "Diadem." If you have these pieces, especially the hymn, please bring them with you. We trust all choirs will have learned these numbers, but if not, do not let that keep you from coming and singing your own individual selections.

We must have a rehearsal before the public appearance. The best time seems to be at 5 o'clock Monday afternoon, since supper will be too late to permit a rehearsal between the meal and the evening session. If possible, every choir please be present at that hour. If you are unable to remain the entire duration of the school, come in time to rehearse, enjoy a good meal at a reasonable price, and contact other young people like yourself from other churches.

Bring your own accompanist, if possible. However, either of the two L. T. School pianists, Miss Ernestine Voncannon or Mr. M. H. Waynick, Jr., of High Point and Greensboro, respectively, are competent to play any numbers you may use, provided they see them ahead of the time of rendition.

Choirs will be graded on the following points: Length of time organized, number of singing parts, usefulness within and outside of local church, etc. We shall expect to see you Monday afternoon.

METHODIST PROTESTANT REGIONAL CONVENTION COMES TO A CLOSE

The last of our five regional conventions closed with the one in the midwest at Sabina Friday evening, June 14. Four had been held previous to this one: East, Baltimore, Md., May 22-24; South, High Point College, High Point, N. C., May 29-31; Southwest, Grayson, La., June 1-4; West, Illinois Camp Grounds, Lewiston, Ill., June 5-7.

You have already received brief articles through the church paper telling something of the success of these conventions.

They were well attended with between 500 to 1,000 leaders and older young people sharing in commission groups and many others attending. All of our conferences except the mission, negro and one other were represented in these conventions. We feel that those who attended the conventions have gone back to their respective fields with a new determination to invest their lives in building a Christian world.

Financially the conventions were a success. It seems now that we may be able to pay all the expenses of this great project without drawing any funds from World Service.

To all those who shared in any way in making these conventions a success, I wish to express, on behalf of the Board of Christian Education, our sincere thanks.

The inspiration and force of these conventions are being carried over into our 31 summer camps and conferences. The Missouri school closed this week at Fordland, Mo., having had one of the best schools in the history of that conference. The following schools meet the week of June 17-23: Illinois at M. P. Camp, Lewiston, Ill.; Indiana at M. P. Camp, Marion, Ind.; Iowa-Missouri at Osceola, Iowa; Kentucky at Pine Ridge, Ky.

The Regular Offerings

We have to depend upon the regular monthly offerings ,and somehow the income has been exceedingly small during June. Please keep up good monthly offerings, and then the special in August will greatly help. But if the regular drops off that the special may be larger, then we will be the losers in the end.

August 22nd

All literature, the letter, the pageant and the suggestions for a special service in the interest of the Home have gone out. If extra copies of pageant are needed, please let us know and they will be sent promptly. Your pastor, your Sunday school superintendent and your Children's Home secretary should each have a copy. See them and learn the plans. We are anxious that every church in the conference put on this pageant. It will be easy to do. Will you do it?

Birthday Boxes

We mailed a supply of birthday boxes to each pastor the first moment possible after they reached us. Put one in each home, as nearly as possible, and it certainly seems reasonable to expect an average of $1 for every box thus placed. Many will have to bring in much more than a dollar to reach that average, but we are hoping that families will do that much and more.

Produce

We are anxiously awaiting your direction about glass jars to fill for us. Can you and will you send for them? If not, where may we leave them? We have lots of empties. We thank you and may God bless you.

A. G. DIXON, Superintendent.

METHODIST PROTESTANTS AND CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

Some idea of the important place that Methodist Protestants occupy in the Christian Endeavor movement may be had by reading the list of our people who were elected to some statewide office in the State C. Those in the state convention are: Past president, Rev. T. J. Whitehead, pastor of Mt. Hermon charge; president, Mrs. Glenn Lambert, of our Lebanon church, High Point; treasurer, Miss Gladys Routh, West End church in Greensboro; superintendent of quiet hour, Rev. Aubert Smith, pastor of our church at Kannapolis; denominational trustee, Rev. Luther Medlin, pastor of our church in Henderson.

Elwood Carroll, pastor Grace church; vice president, Ray Routh, West End; treasurer, Carl Jones, Jr., Grace church; intermediate superintendent, Miss Ruth Laughlin, Calvary church; alumni superintendent, Miss Gladys Routh, West End; junior superintendent, Mrs. J. Elwood Carroll, Grace church; publicity superintendent, Miss Margaret White, Grace church; pastor counselor, the pastor of Calvary church and editor of the Herald.

REBIRTH

The human heart is waiting
For Christ to come again,
To bind the wounds of selfishness
And free mankind from pain;

To open wide the door of love
That all may enter in
To harmony and holiness,
Freed from sense of sin;

Where gracious thought and honesty
Will gladden humankind,
Where goodness and humility
Enthrone the Christlike mind.

Christ, so full of selflessness,
So full of love divine,
Teach us to pray, "Thy kingdom come,"
Make love our only shrine.

—Elizabeth Kleiser.

REV. W. A. LEDFORD MOVED TO LAYTONSVILLE, MD.

Rev. W. A. Ledford, a North Carolinian who frequently writes for the Herald, has been moved by the Baltimore conference of the M. E. church from Paw Paw, W. Va., to Laytonsville, Md.

CALVARY CHURCH RECEIVES NEW MEMBERS

Calvary church had the pleasure of receiving Mrs. Maude Johnson and her sister, Miss Kate Woodburn, into membership last Sunday morning, these coming from Centenary M. E. church, South.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

MRS. J. E. PRITCHARD, Editor

TO THE AUXILIARIES OF THE M. P. CHURCHES

Information pertinent to the duties of the scholarship and workers secretaries will be sent to the Herald at a very early date. Please read your paper.

MRS. G. P. YOUNGINER,
Sec., Scholarship and Workers, N. C. Branch.

DR. SPAHR PAYS CALVARY A COMPLIMENT

Dr. S. K. Spahr, the pastor emeritus of Grace church, not only preached a fine sermon at Calvary last Sunday evening but paid Calvary church a fine compliment for furnishing the editor of the Herald something to live on while he edits the paper for the Annual Conference. Compliments of this nature have been so scarce this year that had the Calvary people not known Dr. Spahr so well, they might have done by him like the woman did by her husband who was not given to saying many kind things to his wife. One day he went to church and the minister urged all the husbands to tell their wives how much they appreciated them. This man went home and began to say nice things to his wife when suddenly she slipped out at the rear door and ran to the neighbor's house and said, "Come over to my house quickly, there is something the matter with my husband, he is acting very strangely." Dr. Spahr has cultivated the habit of seeing the good in others and he does not hesitate to say good things.

TWENTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY OF M. P. CHILDREN'S HOME

This celebration will take place at the Home August 22, 1935. Begin now to make your plans to be present. Begin now to plan for a large offering from your church.

One penny for each year of his or her age for each member of your church is a very small thing to ask, but if everyone will respond it will be no small amount. Place your boxes in a convenient place and ask your friends and the friends of the Home to contribute something.

May these children and the workers at this institution depend on you? We think so, and expect a large amount, even more than the $5,000 set as our goal.

MRS. H. C. NICHOLSON.

TO THOSE WHOSE HERALDS ARE LATE

To those who have written us that their paper was late at such and such a time we will say that since the Annual Conference took over the paper we have never failed to get the Herald in the postoffice on Thursday evening. After it is entered there our jurisdiction ends; however, we shall be glad to call the attention of the postal authorities here to your particular case, and if they can do anything about it we are sure they will be glad to do so.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Flat Rock Charge.—Last Sunday was another good day for Gideon's Grove church, with the annual reunion of the Angel families. We presume the reporter will give an account of the occasion.

The third quarterly conference for Flat Rock charge will be held at Palestine church on Saturday, July 13, beginning at 2 p. m. We urge all official members of the various churches to remember the time and place and be present. In addition to routine business reports of the election of delegate to the Annual Conference will be made and the results announced.

Since our last report the following gifts have been received, for which the pastor and family give thanks: Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Lemmons, a young chicken; Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Johnson, a young chicken; Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Thomas, supply of potatoes; Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Sharron, supply of new apples.

The pastor and family were delighted Sunday afternoon to see two automobiles drive into the parsonage yard, the cars containing an even dozen of the good people of Baltimore church, West Forsyth charge. It is always a pleasure to have our friends of a former charge to visit us. The group of friends consisted of Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Long, their daughter, Queen, and son, Jack; Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Long and children; Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Wooten and children.

We invite all of our friends living within reach of Flat Rock church to attend the revival services beginning there next Sunday morning. There will be three services Sunday, morning, aftrnoon and night. Rev. C. L. Grant, pastor of the North Davidson charge, will be the preacher during the services, which will continue through the week.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Shoals, Pinnacle and Mt. Zion Charge.—The second Sunday in May our pastor, Rev. J. D. Morris, filled his regular appointment at the 11 o'clock hour, and started preaching at nights on the second Sundays. We have a larger number to attend in the morning services than we do at night. Naturally we would, as the older people can not get out as well at night. But the attendance was very good; the young people showed up splendidly. Mr. Morris based his subject on Mother's Day and stressed a great number of splendid points concerning Mother's Day. I believe I could say it was the best sermon I have ever heard, and several others said the same words. Really, it was a very, very interesting sermon, and the people were very attentive to the sermon. He spent the day in Shoals, and I am sure the day was well spent with the pastor and wife and the homes they visited in.

The past Sunday we all had a lovely day. Starting at the 11 o'clock hour and continuing up into the afternoon. At 11 o'clock Lower Pilot gave a very interesting program. Then at noon all went out in the yard where a table had been built, so all that could carried their baskets out and spread their lunch. Then the crowd gathered around the table. Our pastor, Rev. Mr. Morris, returned thanks. Then all began eating. We had a delicious table of eats. So everyone seemed to enjoy it. We had a short recess, and after lunch we gave our program. Next, Friend Junior gave theirs and lost in the P. M. Fair View. I am sure all enjoyed the day. A very large number were present from all the church. Mr. Bennett gave a very interesting talk on "What Our Sunday Schools Should Be." Also, several other talks were enjoyed. Sunday afternoon Mr. Morris and wife spent the remainder of the afternoon and took supper with Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Keiger. Sunday night Mr. Morris preached a very interesting sermon. The next second Sunday, which will be the second Sunday in July, our revival starts at the 11 o'clock hour and extends all during the week. We are hoping the revival will be a great success and a large number will attend during the day services as well as night as much as possibe.

The Sunday school convention will be held at Lower Pilot next year, as the report was stated Sunday. We certainly did enjoy having all the different churches to join in with us, and sincerely hope they enjoyed the day together.

Sapling Ridge, Alamance Charge. — Our church is doing nicely under the pastorate of Rev. Hubert L. Isley. He is a very enthusiastic young man. We have preaching services twice each month, each first Sunday morning at 11 o'clock and each second Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. We are glad to have Mrs. Isley attend these services with her husband.

Our Sunday school is doing nicely. We are planning a Children's Day program for the second Sunday in July, which is the beginning of our revival meeting.

The Woman's Missionary Society of this church held its monthly meeting in the home of the president, Mrs. Mabel Teague. We had a very interesting meeting with a good number of its members present, also several visitors, including Mrs. Worth Woody, of Bryson City. After the meeting adjourned Mrs. Teague, assisted by Mrs. Roy Self, served refreshments.

China Grove.—Our revival meeting closed at China Grove on Sunday night, June 9. Before this meeting began, things looked very discouraging. When assigned pastor of the organization I found only two active members. For several months preaching services were held in various homes with a good number of people present, but most of them belonged to other churches.

Rev. C. G. Isley promised to help me in the revival meeting and the first day or two we were very much discouraged also. Mr. Isley stated that we would do our best and if the organization did not function the responsibility would not rest upon us. We had already secured Mr. Ernest Sloop's empty store building to meet in and then we borrowed a piano, a platform, a lectern, and song books to use in the meeting. Each day we went into the homes and invited the people out to preaching, and as a result the audience was larger each night.

Each time Rev. Mr. Isley preached inspirational sermons to a very attentive audience. Not only were the people delighted with his preaching, but they admired him as a true friend.

During the meeting 11 people were converted, and 15 expressed their desire to come into the organization. The following names were admitted: Mr. E. C. Carswell, Mr. R. L. Moore, Mr. W. O. Moore, Mr. W. B. Lee, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Willis, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Willis, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. Hight, Mrs. Leah Jones, Miss Thelma Jones and Miss Alliene Roberts. These new names make a total of 41 members.

New church and Sunday school officers were elected, and the services will be held in the Sloop store building until better arrangements are made. Plans are being made to build a Methodist Protestant church at China Grove and we hope it will be completed in the near future. If anyone is willing to donate something for this cause it will be greatly appreciated. LEE MOSER, Pastor.

Pensacola Church.—Our new pastor, Rev. J. O. Fry, preached for us the first Sunday night. Everyone enjoyed his sermon very much. All the members are well pleased with our new pastor. The members of the other churches in the community who were present complimented Rev. J. O. Fry's sermon a great deal.

M. H. Blankenship is renewing his subscription to the Herald, and L. B. Silver is a new subscriber.

Recently the following Sunday school officers were elected: M. H. Blankenship, superintendent; L. B. Silver, treasurer; Charles Silver, secretary; Lon Autry, choir director; Mrs. Emma Hensley, organist; and Mrs. Kenzie Wood, Miss Kathleen Hensley, A. G. Wilson, teachers. Our Sunday school is small but we hope it will grow larger all the time.

MRS. W. G. BLANKENSHIP.

Roberta.—We have been enjoying the Herald and the reports so much that we have forgotten to report. It seems that our reporter is also enjoying the reports and has forgotten to report also. We both will likely think of it at the same time.

We have had a busy week since the Pastors' Summer School at the college. We greatly enjoyed and appreciated the school, as well as the fellowship with the brethren, but we were glad to get back home and try to catch up with the work here.

It seems good to preach to the people again, since we had missed two Sundays. On May 26 we observed homecoming. This day was given over to the committee and their form of program, which was enjoyed by all present. An all-day service was conducted with much enjoyable music from friends of the church. On the next Sunday, the 2nd, Rev. Lloyd Love, pastor of Connelly Springs charge, preached at the morning hour. During the summer our congregation has increaed very much, the Sunday school having gone over the 300 mark.

The pastor and family enjoyed the evening of Saturday the 15th at a birthday celebration of Mrs. Laura Deese, which was given to her as a surprise by her children and friends. It was a most enjoyable afternoon.

At last we have gone over the top with our Herald subscriptions, and the subsidy. It was not as hard to do as the thought of it. I trust that we all may increase our efforts to support the Herald. It means more to us than we may imagine.

The good ladies of our church are having a hard struggle here this year, but they have just finished paying off some local expenses and turned over a small sum to the treasurer for the A. C. budget.

We are looking forward to our revival the first ten days in August. We are appealing to all our people and the friends of our people to pray earnestly for a great revival in our church and community. When many of you read this the writer will be in a revival at Caroleen, and we ask that all our friends will remember us when you pray.

EARL A. COOK, Pastor.

Democrat, Pensacola.—Have held services in three of the six churches on this work and have been gladly received at the places visited and find that there is plenty of work to do here. Have made about 60 visits and have found some who are interested in the church. The people from Pleasant Gap and Democrat stormed the parsonage on Tuesday night, June 11, and when the storm was over the pantry was filled with food. There were about 25 or 30 people in the party. A short service was held at the parsonage and all went away feeling that we knew each other better. We have been given a number of chickens, eggs, meat, canned goods, potatoes, meal, flour, lard, beans, and numerous other things. The pastor has not yet gone out and came back empty. We are now starting our plans for the revival meetings and we are trusting that much good may be done. This is a great field in which to work. We ask the prayers of the Herald family.

J. O. FRY, Pastor.

Davidson Charge.—The work is moving along smoothly on this charge. The average attendance is the best it has been for some time. The circuit and district rally held at Chapel Hill the third Sunday in May was well attended. Dr. Dixon and the children from the Home had charge of the 11 o'clock service. The children rendered a good service in song, and Dr. Dixon brought us a fine gospel message along with information about the Home. The afternoon service was in charge of Rev. J. T. Bowman, chairman of the district. Miss Flata Smith, chairman of the district for the Women's Work, spoke briefly. Mrs. J. T. Bowman then spoke on the work of the women, giving much information and encouragement. Mr. J. G. Rogers, chairman of the men of the district, introduced Mr. Boyles, of Thomasville, who brought us a profitable message on the Men's Fellowship.

We were glad to have as visitors the first Sunday in June Rev. H. W. Bell and Rev. Robert Short and family. In the morning Brother Short preached a good sermon at Lineberry. In the afternoon Brother Bell filled the regular appointment at Pleasant Grove, while the pastor assisted in the funeral service of Mrs. Elliott, mother of Charlie Elliott, of Denton. We thank these brethren and invite them to come again.

The third quarterly conference of Davidson charge will convene at Pine Hill church July 20 at 2 p. m. All members of the conference are urged to be present. On July 24 Dr. R. M. Andrews and three visiting pastors will hold a group meeting at Chapel Hill. There will be all-day services. All members and friends are invited to come and bring their lunch with them. The Women's Auxiliary of Lineberry at their last meeting voted to hold their next meeting at Chapel Hill on Saturday afternoon before the second Sunday in July. It is with the hope of interesting other churches in organizing.

We appreciate all the kind remembrances of the neighbors and friends of Davidson charge. We want especially to thank Mr. C. L. Surratt for a truck load of fine red clover hay. We have been in this community for several years, and the longer we stay the more we appreciate these good people.

E. A. BINGHAM.

Concord, Saxapahaw Charge.—Even though this church has not been heard from in some time, it does not mean that we are silent. We are still moving along very nicely.

Sunday morning we tried a new plan at this church with our preaching service. We had preaching at 10 o'clock, then Sunday school followed this service, which worked very well.

Miss Connor Winningham, our circuit steward, was with us Sunday morning after services. She met with the board of stewards and a committee that was appointed to get up our amount on the McCulloch Memorial Fund.

The township Sunday school convention will be held at this church the fifth Saturday evening and the fifth Sunday in this month.

Our revival meeting will begin the third Sunday in July with Brother Shelton as our pulpit help.

Plans are being made to paint our church on the inside and put up a new ceiling. We hope to get this done before we celebrate our hundredth birthday sometime soon.

Our Auxiliary is doing some very fine work now.

Brother J. L. Davis is very sick at this time. Hope he will soon be able to be back with us.

Mt. Pleasant, Mt. Pleasant.—The attendance at Sunday school has increased since spring. We are looking forward to the completion of our new Sunday school rooms in August. We had 251 present last Sunday. A recent survey shows that there are more than 150 people in our community who are not attending church services. Efforts are being made to reach these as the church needs them and they need the church.

"The Spirit of the River" was Mr. Braxton's theme for the last appointment. He compared life to a body of water in many instances, but the water always knows where it is going, while often in life we drift with the tide and give no thought to our destination.

Our community was grieved to learn of the death of Rev. E. G. Lowdermilk. The funeral was held here last Wednesday afternoon. The esteem in which he was held was shown by the many friends of the minister present. He had often worshiped in our midst, his wife being from our church.

We extend our congratulations to Miss Della Carr Causey, who received her B. S. degree from W. C. U. N. C. recently.

We are planning for our Children's Day exercise which will be the first Sunday in July.

A large number of our young people are planning to attend the Leadership Training School next week.

Mr. and Mrs. Braxton are planning to attend the International Christian Endeavor convention in Philadelphia, Pa., the first of July.

Friendship, Haw River Charge.—On Sunday morning, June 16, at 11:30 o'clock we had our Children's Day program. This program was well rendered and greatly enjoyed by a large congregation. We wish to thank Miss Josephine Hopkins and Mrs. George Maxwell for the time and effort spent in training the children for this program, and the children and young people for their co-operation.

Going out from this church on June 2 as pastor of Shelby-Caroleen charge was one of our boys, Forest Wagoner. Forest was reared in Friendship church and we would like for him to know that we are all interested in him and that this church is wishing him success wholeheartedly in his new field of labor.

In regard to our Sunday school, I wish to say we have a splendid school under the leadership of our superintendent, Bro. George Maxwell, with a very good attendance. We welcome our friends to services next Sunday morning at 10 o'clock.

MRS. WAGONER, Reporter.

Liberty, Davidson Charge.—As there has not been any report from our church in some time I decided to let you all know we are still striving for the kingdom of God. While I am not our reporter, I just wanted to say a few words. Our pastor, Bro. Bingham, filled his regular appointment yesterday evening with one of his soul-stirring sermons, his topic being "The Love of God Constrains Me."

He tried to impress upon the people the need of the love of God.

Our Sunday school is doing fine, while we could have a larger attendance if everybody would go.

May God's richest blessings rest upon each and every one, is my prayer.

MRS. P. L. WALKER.

West End, Greensboro.—Sunday, June 9, our pastor gave us some great truths in two more of a series of sermons he is preaching on the life of Christ and the life of the disciples. At the morning hour "The Indispensable Christ" was the subject, and in the evening "James, the Man of Silence." Those of us hearing these sermons are indeed gaining much in spiritual food and strength.

The Women's Auxiliary met on Monday evening at the church and after routine business the devotional study was conducted by Mrs. W. W. Clement. Following this Mrs. L. W. Gerringer spoke to us on her impressions of the convention held recently in Indianapolis. All who heard her most interesting account of the convention were profoundly interested and pledged themselves to take Christ as the "ongoing companion of their way" for greater service this year to our denominational interests.

Dr. Bethea visited in the eastern part of the state last week but was with us as usual for the Sunday appointments.

At 11 o'clock he preached on "The Aggressive Christ.." "We should be aggressive in things for good, if we would have success or wield an influence for uprightness of living," he said. At 8 o'clock "John, the Man of Temper" was the subject for another good sermon, showing what Christ can do for man.

A number of our young people attended the C. E. convention held at Elon College. Miss Gladys Routh, one of our members, is prominently identified with C. E. work, and was elected state treasurer last week.

The Philathea Class met Monday evening with Mrs. C. G. Monette, with more than 20 present. A number of plans were discussed for better service to the church and community and a contest is being started to boost summer attendance at Sunday school.

First Church, Burlington.—Our Sunday school attendance on Father's Day was 402. The children's class, a group of teen-age girls taught by Mrs. Paul Cobb, gave a very impressive program. The class gave gifts to the oldest and youngest fathers. Mr. Will Allen, age 76, received one gift, and Roy Petty, age 22, received the other gift.

A great number is attending the singing school directed by Professor Hamilton.

The church was beautifully decorated for Father's Day. Miss Arthula Cheek gave a lovely basket of flowers in memory of her father, F. S. Cheek.

The commencement of the Bible school will be held Friday night. We have an average attendance of 135 children in the Bible school. Mr. Milliard Stevens, a ministerial student of Elon College, is directing this work.

A good report was given at our last business meeting. Our three-month tithing campaign ended in May. All expenses of the church have been paid to date except the subsidy to the Herald, and we have a building fund of $500.

New Hope, Why Not Charge.—Sunday, June 16, was our pastor's regular appointment. He came with another of his inspiring sermons. His text being part of Joshua 5:14, "Nay: but as captain of the host of the Lord am I now come."

Mrs. Hill also came with him, and we were very glad to have her as one of our number. We hope she will come as many times as her health will permit.

Plans are being made to remodel the pulpit of the church and build it large enough to accommodate the choir and organ. Building committee were appointed to look after the work which, if notihng prevents, they expect to begin soon.

We were very glad to have Mrs. W. R. Williams back at church again after having her eye operated on. She is able to see very well and says she expects to see good when her eye heals enough to enable the specialist to fit her with glasses. She is very happy over being able to get back to her work and to church again.

Mr. T. L. VonCannon, one of the oldest citizens of this community, and a member of this church, has gone to visit his son near Hendersonville, N. C. He will be 85 years old next month and he really enjoys these trips, although the distance is about 250 miles, this being his fourth or fifth summer to make the trip. His health is fairly good for one of his age.

Our special meeting will begin the third Sunday in July at 11 o'clock. We covet your prayers for a successful meeting.

Pine Bluff, Midland Charge.—We had our homecoming last Sunday at Pine Bluff. We also had a nice time. Bro. Trolinger preached an interesting sermon Sunday morning at the 11 o'clock service. We had the Concord quartet to sing some before noon. We were very glad indeed to have Mr. W. D. Moore, from Darlington, S. C., with us Sunday. He made an interesting talk; everyone enjoyed it. He also taught the Sunday school class, which was enjoyed very much. In the afternoon Rev. D. I. Garner preached an interesting sermon. We had singing by the Concord quartet and the Mill Grove quartet. It was enjoyed by everyone. Bro. O. B. Furr was with us a little while and made an interesting talk. We were glad indeed to have all the friends with us Sunday. We want to give them an invitation to come back again. We surely did appreciate the nice donation which was gotten up Sunday. It was announced that our revival meeting will start the fourth Sunday in August. Everyone has an invitation to come and be with us.

Tabernacle-Julian.—On the first Sunday in June the Tabernacle Children's Day service was observed. It was one of the most successful services we have had at this church for a long time. The attendance was good, the parts were rendered beautifully, and the offering was the largest received for any special offering during the present pastorate. On the occasion of the Children's Day service one of the special features was to recognize those who had graduated at high school and those who had received special honors. This with us is an annual event.

At a recent service we were glad to receive as a new member of Tabernacle Mrs. Cecil M. Fields. She comes to us from the Christian Congregational church. Mrs. Fields has been taking interest in our church work since she has been in our community and we are sure her becoming a member will mean that she will be all the more interested. Brother Fields is our efficient Sunday school superintendent.

Among our teachers who are spending summer vacation among homefolks are Miss Elizabeth Hanner, of Bonlee, N. C., and Miss Ethel Fields, of Walburg, N. C. Miss Ezda Deviney, who is a member of the faculty of Florida State University for Women, spent a short time at her home in Julian but returned to Tallahassee to teach in the summer school. After the summer school is over she will again return to Julian.

Miss Jessie Curry, who is in training at the state sanatorium at Sanatorium, N. C., is spending her vacation at the Tabernacle parsonage.

Mrs. Emmaline Whiteley, one of the oldest and one of the most faithful of the Tabernacle church, has been sick, but we are indeed glad to report that she is now improving.

Mrs. Ralph Burk, of the Julian church, who recently underwent an operation at the Clinic Hospital in Greensboro, N. C., has recently returned to her home. She is now rapidly recovering.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Hanner and Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Coble have recently made a trip to Asheville and other cities of the western part of the state enjoying fine climate and beautiful scenery of this part of our state.

A number of our young people are now planning to attend the Leadership Training School at High Point College. There is no doubt that it justifies any church to invest in its young people in this great work.

GEO. L. CURRY.

Fallston Charge.—Sunday, June 16, was a good day for us. At Friendship church, Fallston, the children and young people of the church gave a Children's Day program as sent out by the Board of Missions at the regular 11 o'clock service. Around 75 children took part in the program, which was well rendered. The regular and special offering for the occasion totaled $22.80. Miss Jessie Baxter and Miss Nathalie Lackey trained the children.

Another encouraging feature of the day was the fine attendance at Sunday school and Christian Endeavor. Ray Wilson, secretary, reported exactly 200 present for Sunday school. Forty-six attended Christian Endeavor. In each case an attendance above the average. At least two other schools on the charge indicated an increase in attendance at Sunday school.

The missionary organizations on the charge recently held a joint meeting at the home of Mrs. Texie Boyles, president of the circle at Hebron church. Mrs. B. L. Heavener, district chairman, was present, spoke briefly concerning the Branch meeting, and called attention to the fifth Sunday rally which is to be held at Bess Chapel church Sunday, June 30. Miss Nathalie Lackey, Mrs. F. B. Toney and Mrs. Frank Houser, of our Auxiliary, have been given parts on the program.

The Friendship missionary group met this afternoon, Monday, with Mrs. R. A. Bingham. Mrs. F. B. Toney, the president, presided and planned the program. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Winslow Wright. Mrs. Kirk Boyles entertained the Macedonia Circle at her home last Saturday afternoon. Miss Inez Boyles had charge of the program.

Four of the five churches on the charge held memorial services during the latter part of May and early June. Apparently Knob Creek church has the most extended local history. A number of the markers in the cemetery go back a decade or more beyond the birth of our denomination. One of the oldest markers is to a minister, James Pauley; born 1740, died 1809. Friendship, Laurel Hill and Hebron all have histories running back toward the century mark.

Painters have recently finished the inside paint job at Laurel Hill church, which has added much to the appearance of the church. Members living at a distance who wish to contribute to our new church building at Fallston may send pledges or cash to Gettys Bingham, treasurer of our building fund, Fallston, N. C.

Ferman Wright, ministerial student at High Point College, is spending a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wright, before returning to High Point where he will work during the vacation period.

Rev. J. D. Morris and Mrs. Morris attended the Children's Day program at Friendship church Sunday morning. Brother Morris taught a class during the Sunday school period and led the opening prayer in our Children's Day program.

Two deaths should be recorded. John Henry, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Hull, was buried at Hebron church Tuesday, June 4, and Obe Britten, age 59, was buried at Friendship church on Wednesday, June 5.

H. F. FOGLEMAN, Pastor.

Macedonia Church, Fallston Charge.—For the past quarter of our Sunday school we have had right much interest in reading the Bible. Class No. 4 has so far the greatest number of chapters. Every girl and boy seems to take a great pleasure in reading the Bible, and we hope that they are getting something great out of it as they read it. The superintendent has promised the class that reads most of all a prize to each one of the class.

The Woman's Auxiliary met at Mrs. C. E. Boyles' on Saturday afternoon, June 15. Miss Inez Boyles was in charge of the program. We had several good papers read. After the program was finished several delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Boyles. The next meeting will be held with Mrs. Kemp Beam on Saturday afternoon, July 20, 1935. Mrs. H. F. Fogleman has charge of the program. The Woman's Auxiliary is planning on having an ice cream supper for the benefit of the Auxiliary very soon. We have not yet decided when and where it will be. But we want a large crowd out.

PAULINE BOYLES.

Mt. Hermon Church, Mt. Hermon Charge.—The third Sunday in May the memorial association of Mt. Hermon held the annual memorial service. The house was filled to overflowing when the service began at 10:30. Hon. L. P. McLendon, from Greensboro, delivered the address of the morning. Special singing for this service was rendered by Mr. Erlu Neese, Greensboro. In the afternoon Dr. Fred W. Paschall, of Burlington, preached the memorial sermon. The Alexander Wilson quartet sang two special numbers. Both morning and afternoon services were very much enjoyed by all present.

As it was necessary for our pastor, Rev. T. J. Whitehead, to be away last Sunday to attend the Christian Endeavor convention at Elon College, Prof. H. G. Self, principal of E. M. Holt high school, brought the message for the regular service. The message was very interesting and was greatly appreciated by the congregation. Mr. Self selected his Scripture from the sixth chapter of Romans, using as his topic "What Price Sin?" and as a text, "The Wages of Sin Is Death."

A committee has been appointed and is at work training the children for a Children's Day service. The date is not yet set.

Several of our young people are planning to attend the Leadership Training School at High Point.

The Kiwanis Club from Graham came out to our church lawn Friday evening, June 14, and enjoyed a picnic dinner with us. The dinner was sponsored by the Ladies' Auxiliary.

Rev. Mr. Whitehead will meet the regular service for the first Sunday in July on the fifth Sunday in June at 3 p. m.

Christian Endeavor is going fine and good programs are put on by these young people, and the attendance is very good.

The Ladies' Auxiliary will meet next Friday evening at 8 o'clock with Mrs. Ervin Bason.

MRS. L. P. HOLT, Reporter.

Asheboro.—The services of our church have been held regularly with very good attendance, considering the hot weather. The second Sunday service was observed as "Flower Day" at the 11 o'clock hour. Our pastor, Dr. Taylor, preached a beautiful sermon on "Consider the Lilies" and the choir rendered an appropriate anthem.

Last Sunday we had a very forceful sermon by our pastor on "Church Membership." In this discourse he stated the privileges and responsibilities of being a member of the church, the greatest and biggest institution in the world. After the sermon the doors of the church were opened for membership and three young people presented themselves, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Wayne Hughes and Mrs. Raeford Gaddis. Mr. Hughes was baptized and he and Mrs. Gaddis were received on confession of faith and Mrs. Hughes by letter from the Asheboro Presbyterian church. The church gladly receives these into our membership.

Dr. Taylor was in Durham last week enjoying the School of International Relations and went back Monday for the remainder of it this week. This was made possible by the Sunday school, for which he is greatly thankful.

The Woman's Bible Class and the Men's Class enjoyed an outing and picnic supper at the city pond last Thursday evening.

Mrs. Wm. C. Hammer went back to Duke Hospital Monday for further treatment for injuries sustained in a recent wreck, and is to be there for a few days.

Mrs. Rufus Routh is receiving treatment in the Randolph Hospital, Inc., this city.

The church expresses sympathy to Mrs. Charles F. Smith and family in the death of her brother, Rev. E. G. Lowdermilk.

LOLLIE JONES, Reporter.

Hawkins Chapel, Littleton Charge.—Rev. R. L. Vickery preached a fine sermon the fourth Sunday evening, his text being Romans 1:16, "For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth: to the Jew first, and also the Greek." He also filled his appointment the second Sunday.

The class leader, Mr. E. B. Pair, has put different programs on. Last first Sunday the topic was "What Music Means to the Church." The writer was leader, with several speakers and different kinds of music. Miss Mildred Hawkins was leader the third Sunday. The topic was "Unselfish Co-operation," and several speakers. Our superintendent, Mr. Edward Hawkins, will take charge of the first Sunday. Topic, "What a Good Choir Will Mean to the Church."

We are glad to report we are looking forward for our president, Dr. R. M. Andrews, the first Sunday evening to preach for us. Come to hear him; you are welcome.

Our Woman's Auxiliary met in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Baldy Green May 30, 1935. After the meeting Misses Dorothy and Eunice Green served ice cream and cake. We will hold our next meeting the fourth Sunday evening at Hawkins Chapel church at 7 o'clock, one hour before preaching service. Don't forget our service has been changed from first Sunday evening to the fourth.

We are glad we had several visitors Sunday in Sunday school.

Mr. R. L. Vickery and family were in the writer's home the second Sunday; also Mrs. J. D. Hawkins and little girl, Bessie Lue, and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hawkins and son, Louis.

Mrs. Jack Hawkins was the guest of her sister, Mrs. R. E. Green, the second Sunday.

We are sorry to note Miss Lillian Hawkins is very ill. Glad Laynette Hawkins, daughter of Tommie, is well from pneumonia and is spending this week with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Carpenter, of Roanoke Rapids.

Mrs. Martha Snipe, of Roanoke Rapids, spent Sunday with her sister, Mrs. J. W. Hale.

Miss Clara Hawkins went to Richmond, Va., one day last week. A few weeks ago she attempted to knock a splinter off a piece of wood so she could get it in the stove and a piece went into her eye. The doctor fears she will not be able to see out of that one any more.

Glad to have back from college Miss Mary Green and Mr. Leo Pittard.

MRS. CLAUDE HAWKINS, Reporter.

Charlotte, First Church.—Mrs. A. F. Love, our efficient reporter and Cradle Roll superintendent, is back in her place after recovering from a minor operation.

Rev. E. M. Graham, of our local church, brings a 10-minute message on stewardship each Sunday morning prior to the regular sermon by Mr. Hendry.

"Gospel Revere," a new type of Sunday evening service, is being held in the tabernacle hut, with special music by chorus. Recently the male quartet and chorus of Concord, N. C., was a special feature.

The midweek prayer service continued with splendid interest and attendance.

A Daily Vacation Bible School is now in progress with beginners through Intermediates.

Circle No. 1 met last Tuesday with Mrs. C. H. Deweese on Thomas avenue, Mrs. C. H. Daughtry, chairman. No. 2 met with Mrs. S. L. Craig, with Mrs. G. W. Stegall chairman. These circles are doing splendid work. The young people and business women met Tuesday evening with Mrs. Leon Blake on Central avenue. Mrs. D. A. Horne is chairman of the business group. These circles are not fully organized.

The Auxiliary meets Tuesday of this week at the church. The July Auxiliary meeting will be the third Tuesday evening at the church and will be entertained by Circle No. 1.

Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Younginer and daughters, Mildred, Felicia and Phylis, of Asheville, were recent visitors of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Stegall.

Joseph Little has returned from a two weeks' trip to Greenwood, Miss., and Asheville, where he accompanied the Charlotte Central high school band playing in the southern contest. The band and several individuals won honors. Joseph plays flute and piccolo and will receive two silver medals for band and one gold medal for piccolo solo.

Miss Gray Stiles, church pianist, is spending her vacation in Washington, D. C., and other places of interest. A MEMBER.

Graham.—Due to the fact that Graham has had a good reporter the pastor has not found it necessary to write. Mrs. Charles A. Cates (Ruth Bain) is our faithful reporter. Some time ago she and her husband had the misfortune to have their car stolen in Burlington. Some two weeks later it was found in Charlotte, pretty badly damaged, but having it insured, the insurance company took care of the necessary repairs.

We had our Children's Day service on the second Sunday in June. Miss Lizabel Foust had the service in charge and the highly entertaining service showed that she had put time in training of the children. We appreciate such willing service rendered in behalf of the church.

Last Sunday the church recognized "dear old Dad" in a special service. Mrs. P. H. Amick and Mrs. J. D. Linens had the preparation of this service in charge.

Five or six young people will go from the church to the High Point Leadership Training School. Two boys who desire to go but do not have sufficient money will sell ice cream on the church grounds and in front of the Travora mill office between the hours of 6 and 8 o'clock next Saturday, June 22. They invite you out to see who these boys are and do your bit.

Mrs. W. R. Goley is visiting her son, Dr. W. C. Goley, for a few weeks.

The mother of Brother Henry Rogers has been real sick but is much improved at this writing.

Two new members were received into the fellowship of the Graham church last Sunday morning. Mr. and Mrs. Finley Stewart, coming from the Mebane church.

Three of our young people graduated from the Graham high school this year, namely, Hazel Amick, Ruth Hunt, and Delilah Reid.

Our Sunday school grows in interest under the splendid management of our superintendent, Don S. Holt, and his co-workers.

Asheville.—The father-son banquet was reported to be a real success. Not being a father, I am not able to give first-hand information, but from all reports, all who attended enjoyed the evening immensely, especially the eats, which were excellently prepared and served. Mr. Minnis acted as master of ceremonies. The program was very simple; a toast to fathers given by Billy Bailey, the response given by Mr. Charles B. Baker, and several vocal selections rendered by Mr. J. H. Bailey, comprises, as far as I can ascertain, the program.

It was our good pleasure recently to welcome into our membership the following: Mrs. Gordon Parker, Shirley and Donald Parker, Edna Earle Moser, Jack Bailey, Billy Charnock, Dick and Bruce Barrett. Our entire membership extends to each of them real Christian fellowship.

Both church and Sunday school attendance picked up this week. The crowd on Sunday evening was the best in some time. It is gratifying to have it so; it is terribly difficult to speak to a lot of empty pews. We had several out-of-town visitors to worship with us, Mrs. C. W. Bates, Miss Mary E. Young and the Misses Mary Margaret and Helen Bates. Miss Young and the Misses Bates are attending summer school at the Asheville Normal. We are glad to have them among us.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Hanner had as their guests on Sunday Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Hanner and Mr. and Mrs. E. T Coble, all of Greensboro, Tabernacle church.

The Senior Christian Endeavors are sponsoring a play entitled "The Supreme Sacrifice" on Thursday evening of this week. It is expected a large crowd will be out to enjoy the evening. Those taking parts are: Mr. Minnis, Miss Nancy Clouse, Miss Betty Marlowe, and James Clouse.

Mrs. E. A. Bolick is ill again. We hope she will soon recover.

The Woman's Auxiliary will meet Thursday, 3:30 p. m., with Mrs. Hale Thomas, 169 Hillside street. All members are urged to be present. Mrs. J. S. Williams, vice president, will preside in the absence of Mrs. Minnis.

TODAY

I will start today serenely
 With a true and noble aim;
I will give unselfish service
 To enrich another's name.

I will speak a word of courage
 To a soul enslaved by fear;
I will dissipate drab discord
 With the sunshine of good cheer.

I will be sincere and humble
 In the work I have to do;
I will praise instead of censure
 And see the good in you.

I will keep my mind and body
 Sound and flexible and pure;
I will give my time and study
 To the things that long endure.

I will do what I am able
 To advance a worthy cause;
I will strive to lessen evil
 And obey God's righteous laws.

I will pray to him to guide me
 In the straight and narrow way;
I will shun false pride and folly,
 I will live my best today.

TABERNACLE	91
GIBSONVILLE	84

Now that Graham takes her permanent place in the column, arrayed in capital letters, Tabernacle takes first place, not because she did anything but just because there was nothing else for her to do. Reidsville takes second place, not because of anything that she did this week, but because nobody else did much. And see who takes third place, Gibsonville. This charge did not send in anything this week but she has been working and so she was the next in line for third place in the column of honor. Tabernacle and Reidsville have been in this column of honor long enough now and we hope somebody will come along next week and make them take a rear seat unless they are going on up. Of course for them to reach the goal would be the better thing to do.

Now, let us look at the receipts this week. Davidson charge heads the list. This is that charge that we have been telling you about that is selling papers each week this year. By doing this they have multiplied their credits of last year by somewhere between five hundred and a thousand per cent and the year is not yet ended.

Davidson is followed closely this week by Glen Raven, where papers are being sold by the week also. This is the Glen Raven charge but the church that is selling the papers is Haw River. Well, we are thankful for these and also for a few smaller amounts that have come in. But our receipts are the smallest this week since the Annual Conference bought the paper—only $18.29, $15.22 being on subscriptions and $3.07 on subsidy. And where did this subsidy come from? From Rock Creek church on the Alamance charge. We are glad that people have not forgotten the subsidy.

Now, have you ever heard of any people having to make bricks without straw? We have and we now know about what that means. If the receipts keep on falling off we will not be able to make any bricks very long. We trust they may pick up next week.

Dependable Ones

Some weeks ago a certain layman whom we have not had the privilege of meeting wrote to the HERALD saying that the charge to which his local church belongs would send two lists to the Annual Conference this year, one the dependable ones and the other the non-dependable ones. And he said that the charge would ask that its assessments be based upon the number on the dependable list. Without entering into the merits or demerits of this particular case, let us say that every charge has some of the dependable class and some of the non-dependable ones also. The tragic thing about it is that on every charge we have, there are a lot of church members who do nothing for the church. They may be good Christian people according to their standard, but judged by the standards of the discipline they are not rated very highly. There are some people who go to church fairly well but they do not give much for the support of the church. Some do not have much to give, and others do not give because they do not want to give. There are some few who do not go to church much but who will give something toward the support of the church. There are still others who can be depended on both to attend and to pay. They are the dependable ones. Now let us think for a moment how much these people are worth, both to the church and to the community. Their religious life is like the river that is fed by the melting snows of yonder mountainside. They are perennial Christians. When the Sabbath day dawns they are found making preparations to go to the church services. Company does not often keep them away, for people know they are church-goers and that if company goes to that home the company will have to go to church. When the time for the service to start arrives they are already in the pew. They have a hymn book already in hand so that they can enter immediately into the worship. When the worship is over and the minister is ready to take his text they are still there, both in mind and in body. Their minds are on the service and they are there to get as much as possible out of the service. While the minister preaches they listen with both ears open. It is a pleasure to preach to them. They have made their contribution to the church, both with their presence and their offering, and now they are ready to hear all that God has to say to them through the minister. When the minister makes a good point they are quick to catch it, for they are looking for it. When the service is over they are still dependable, for they feel some responsibility to the strangers and the visitors, and so they offer the glad hand of fellowship to those within the church building. Then they pass peacefully out at the door, go to their homes, and they are still dependable. They can be trusted during the week to carry on the work of the church in the community. The Sunday services are important, but the things that are done by the church during the week are also important. They are on the lookout during the week for new people for the church. They go into the homes of the people and while they are not ordained preachers yet they are messengers of Christ. They are a blessing to the homes they visit. They are not gossipers with the latest things that are going the rounds, but they are God's messengers, carrying the gospel of good cheer to people everywhere. They are interested in the good name of the church and they want the church to succeed. They are interested in the indifferent ones and want them aroused, and they do all they can do to bring the indifferent ones back to the church. They are interested in poor lost sinners and want to see them saved. They do all they can to influence people for Christ. They go the even tenor of their way, the preacher knows they can be depended on and so he does not have to worry about them. When the minister sits down to meditate they come into his mind and he thanks God for them and says to the other members of his family, "What a pleasure it would be to serve a whole church like these." The church is made better because they are a part of it, the community is richer because they live, people are saved to a better life because they came in contact with them. Finally, when faith is made perfect and God has been sufficiently glorified by their lives, He reaches down, lifts them up to His paradise, and they are with Him forevermore, all because they were dependable. God give us dependable church members!

WHAT THE BIBLE SAYS ABOUT FAITH

By REV. T. M. JOHNSON, D.D.

When one looks into the Bible to see what is there, he is likely to meet surprises. Jesus gives powerful emphasis to faith. You would naturally expect to find that He used the term a great many times, perhaps more than any other Bible speaker or Bible writer. But the writer of Hebrews uses the word faith more times than does Jesus, almost as many times in the 11th chapter (the Faith Chapter) as Jesus does in all His teachings. Paul uses the word more times in his epistle to the Romans than Jesus does altogether. In all of Paul's writings the word appears above a hundred times more than in all the teachings of Jesus.

In the Old Testament the word is found only twice,—Deut. 32:20 and Hab. 2:4.

The Apostle John looks deeper into the inner life of Jesus than the other gospel writers, yet, strange as it may seem, he does not use the word faith in his gospel. Each book of the New Testament contatins the word except John's gospel and the second and third epistles of John.

Another Term

John, in his gospel, expresses the idea by another term. He does much toward recording the emphasis Jesus gave to faith, by the use of the term believe, believed, believest, believeth. John uses the term believe—the four forms as above—more times than the other three gospel writers combined use the two terms faith and believe counted together.

Still Another Term

The Old Testament writers express the idea, faith, by still another term—trust. The Psalm writers used the term quite freely and with great confidence. Physical needs to be supplied with certainty: "Trust in the Lord, and do good; so shalt thou dwell in the land, and verily shalt thou be fed." (Psalm 37:3.) Course in life made sure: "Commit thy way unto the Lord; trust also in him; and he shall bring it to pass." (Psalm 37:5.) Blessedness, that is, happiness made sure: "O taste and see that the Lord is good: blessed is the man that trusteth in him." (Psalm 34:8.) Brings joy: "Let all those that put their trust in thee rejoice: let them shout for joy.'' (Psalm 5:11.) Similar assurances may be extended almost indefinitely.

Isaiah is considered the Faith-Prophet, as the first to condition salvation on faith. However, he used the word trust to convey the idea of faith. The prophet warns against trusting Egypt to save the nation from their enemies. ''Lo, thou trusteth in the staff of this broken reed, on Egypt; whereon if a man lean, it will go into his hand, and pierce it: so is Pharoah king of Egypt to all that trust in him.'' (Isa. 36:6.) The meaning is they should trust Jehovah for national salvation.

But personal salvation is well. ''Behold, God is my salvation; I will trust and not be afraid; for the Lord Jehovah is my strength and my song; he also is become my salvation.'' (Isa. 12:2.)

Jesus and Faith

There seems to have been no limit as to what Jesus and faith, or rather, Jesus by faith, could and would do. We should have clearly in mind that the power was not in faith but in Jesus. Faith only made the connection with the power that was in Him. Accordingly, faith was the limit and the only limit to the manifestation of that power. ''According to your faith be it unto you.'' (Matt. 9:29.) ''If ye have faith and doubt not.'' (Matt. 21:21.) And this: to my thinking faith never reached a sublimer height than in the case of the woman of Canaan. ''Then Jesus answered and said unto her, O woman, great is thy faith: be it unto thee even as thou wilt.'' (Matt. 15:28.) It must have been one of the happiest moments in the life of the Master, and ''happy'' would hardly express that which was experienced in that Syrophenician home, when the daughter was healed.

John Enriches the Doctrine of Faith

by use of the word believe. ''God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.'' (John 3:16.) John notes the ease with which some may believe. Nathanael, who expressed doubt by asking, ''Can there any good thing come out of Nazareth?'' (John 1:46) later said, ''Rabbi, thou art the Son of God'' (verse 49), because Jesus had said to him, ''I saw thee under the fig tree.'' (verse 50.)

John was himself an easy believer but steadfast. ''Then went in also that other disciple (John), which came first to the sepulchre, and he saw, and believed'' (John 20:8) on negative evidence, the empty tomb and the belongings lying orderly.

Faith More Difficult for Some

Thomas said, ''Except I shall see in his hands the print of the nails, and put my finger into the print of the nails, and thrust my hand into his side, I will not believe.'' (John 20:25.) Later, however, when Jesus appeared and invited Thomas to ''reach hither thy finger and behold my hands; and reach hither thy hand, and thrust it into my side . . . Thomas answered and said unto him, My Lord and my God.'' (verses 27, 28.) He saw and believed.

A father appealed pathetically to Jesus for help for his woefully afflicted son. ''Jesus said unto him, If thou canst believe . . . and straightway the father of the child cried out, and said with tears, Lord, I believe: help thou mine unbelief.'' (Mark 9:23, 24.) The father was not sure whether he could believe or not. It was not easy, but he tried and he did it, and the devil was cast out.

Even when the evidence was all in, ''some doubted.'' (Matt. 28:17.) ''But blessed are they that have not seen, and yet have believed.''—Jesus.

The Majesty and Power of Faith

The 11th chapter of Hebrews notes the majesty and power of faith from the time the ''worlds were framed by the word of God'' through the days of the antedeluvians, giving strength to the arm of Noah as he built the ark, giving confidence to Abram as he journeyed from Ur of the Chaldees by way of Haran to Canaan, figuring largely in the life of the Patriarchs, standing by the babe as his little ark floated on the river among the rushes, gave courage to Moses and Aaron as they stood before Pharoah, marched with the great leader across the Red Sea and through the wilderness, accompanied Joshua into Canaan and around the walls of Jericho. The writer waxes eloquent as he contemplates the great deeds of Gideon, Barak, Samson, Jephthah, David, Samuel and the prophets who subdued, wrought, obtained, stopped, quenched. Hebrews 11—the Faith Chapter.

DRAPER METHODIST PROTESTANT CHURCH

The Draper Methodist Protestant church was organized in 1921. The first building was a small one-room frame building. Later on some Sunday school rooms were added, and still later a small room was built onto the rear which was used for a Sunday school room and also used for the choir.

Through these years the congregation has been dreaming of a more modern building. Immediately after the close of the last Annual Conference the quarterly conference decided to build. Plans began to mature, and the fourth day of March, 1935, the contract was let and the work began, and the first Sunday in May we held our opening service.

The pastors that have served this church since its beginning are Rev. D. A. Morgan, founder and organizer, Rev. J. S. Riddle, Rev. W. T. Totten, Rev. R. L. Vickery, Rev. C. H. Hill, and the present pastor.

The church has had a steady growth and is filling an important place in the spiritual life of the community.

L. S. Helms, Pastor.

We are presenting this week on the front page the picture of our church at Draper, N. C. It has never been our good fortune to see this church; however, we formed the opinion a good while ago that this is one of the most active of our younger churches. The building has recently been brick veneered and we are told it is greatly improved. We trust this church may continue to make progress.

Old Mother Hubbard's Cupboard

You remember that old nursery rhyme:

> "Old Mother Hubbard went to her cupboard
> To get her poor dog a bone;
> But when she got there the cupboard was bare;
> And so the poor dog had none."

Well, the bones are getting pretty scarce in the McCulloch Fund cupboard, and—with apologies to McCulloch & Swain—the dogs are not finding much to eat in it. Only three "bones" in the last three weeks—a bone a week on the average—doesn't help to keep a fellow fat. And it certainly doesn't help very much in the payment of our debt to the boys.

There may be reasons for the sudden slump in the receipts for this fund. I suppose most folks are saving up for a vacation, and don't have much to share with the church and its interests. Or, perhaps, everybody made such an effort to get halfway out at the Mid-Year meet, or all the way out, that they overtaxed their strength, and have to have a breathing spell. Or, maybe, some are putting it off until fall. Whatever the cause, the money has stopped coming in. But, unfortunately, the obligations of McCulloch & Swain—which might be met with the money we owe them—are still going on. Those obligations don't take a vacation. So, I am urging you who read this, and who haven't yet raised your part, to get busy and DO IT NOW.

The fund stands as follows:

Previously acknowledged	$1,778.33
Pleasant Hill, Spring Church	3.00

It was not possible for me to make a report last week. If I had, the $3.00 from Pleasant Hill would have been, as it is this week, all there was to report. I probably will not make a report next week. But let's have a good report for the week following. "Ye did run well. Who did hinder ye?"

"CASTLES IN THE AIR"

By GRENVILLE KLEISER

Yes, it is worth while to build "castles in the air," provided you supplement your day-dreaming with hard work.

Whatever your present occupation, put your best self into it. What you are doing now is of vital importance, since it is training you for ultimately larger work. Do not mislead yourself with the thought that at some future time, in more agreeable surroundings, or amid greater opportunities, you will arouse your latent enthusiasm and do better work.

Today is the day to put forth the best that is in you.

If you think there is difficulty or hardship about your present work, congratulate yourself that in just such work you have one of the most important aids to the development of personal efficiency. It is through such discipline and experience that you can rise above mediocrity. Let the other man bemoan his limited opportunity if he will, but you should put increasing faith and enthusiasm into the work from which you expect to reap the best results.

Arouse yourself today by all the force of your nature, build "castles in the air" if need be, but arouse yourself. Believe in yourself, believe in your work, believe in your future, believe in those around you. Be eager, be earnest, be hopeful. Aspire greatly, anticipate much, and do your work with high purpose and enthusiasm. Let the spirit of enterprise characterize all your efforts.

Contrast in your mind the man who is eager, enterprising, and enthusiastic, with one who is languid, careless, and indifferent. You will have no hesitation in choosing which of the two men you would be. Galvanize your powers into actual use. Then still greater powers will be disclosed to you. You have all the essential qualities for great success, but you must use them in order to achieve satisfactory results.

THERE IS NOTHING that will so readily give you uniform enthusiasm and engrossing pleasure in your daily work as a sincere desire to achieve some useful purpose. When you have your eyes fixed upon a definite goal, you will be enthusiastic in your efforts to reach that goal. It is astonishing what you can accomplish when inspired by right motives.

Greatness of life is largely a product of lofty ambition and incessant labor.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord.

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

The Group Meetings

I am to be assisted in the group meetings held in eastern Carolina by Revs. W. H. Neese, E. O. Peeler and L. R. Medlin. Bro. Neese will speak on "The Creed of the Prevailing Church, or What the True Christian Church Believes"; Bro. Peeler will speak on "The Worship Program of the Prevailing Church," and Bro. Medlin will speak on "What the Prevailing Church Should Know About Its Denomination, or Its Literature and Educational Institutions"; "The Program of the Church" will be the subject of the president.

The dates and places of these meetings are as follows: July 9, Weaver's Chapel; July 10, Hollister church; July 11, Pleasant Hill church; July 12, Spring Valley church.

Meetings in Central Carolina

We are to be assisted in the meetings in this section by Bro. C. E. Ridge, who is to speak upon "What the Prevailing Church Believes"; Bro. Bowman on the "Worship Program"; Bro. Johnson on "What the Prevailing Church Should Know About Its Denomination"; the president of the conference will speak on the "Program of the Conference." Dates and places: July 24, Chapel Hill church, Davidson; July 26, Zion church, Liberty circuit.

Destruction That Wasteth at Noonday

Most of my readers are well acquainted with certain forms of death at work in the membership of the church. The services are continued; the preacher preaches; some of the loyal ones are there, but there is no life evident. What is attempted is only half-heartedly done. And if an investigation should be made of the cause the investigator will find one of these three forms of destruction at work in the membership.

There is "dry rot," a spiritual decadence, which is caused by the refusal of those in the lead to be moved by new ideas, or new methods in doing old things. They stand by the religion delivered unto them by the fathers, which is a wholly self-centered affair. They do nothing for missions, home or foreign; do not subscribe to or read the church papers; have nothing to do with any program of the Annual Conference or denomination. What is paid is paid to the pastor and all their prayers when they do pray are for themselves. This sort of a church is doomed. There is no chance for it, and really there is not much need for it.

Then there is the church with a fungus growth. It does things and pays some money from time to time, but it is a church with a hobby. It is moved by the unusual, the novel idea. It is the church which centers its efforts upon one thing. It may be singing. If so, then the choir has the right of way in the preaching services and has its hand in the purse of the church. That is the major movement and it often happens there is no minor movement there. Or it may be the life of the church gravitates around a big Sunday school. It takes the banner in county conventions; its organized classes have the most active members of the church leading in some form of activity. The community is scoured for new members, the music committee is constantly on the lookout for new singers, the Sunday lesson is often forgotten in the melee of music and fun. And when this is over, off they go—not ten per cent of them remain for church worship.

Or it may be that the major interest is a C. E. society. This duplicates the efforts of the organized classes in looking after the interest of the meetings of the society and soon as they are ended out they go; if just before the evening services they rush over those attending the church services with a never-a-care air of what is to be done there, notwithstanding every member has promised to attend the services of his own church. It is tragic to see things like this happen when these people could be worth so much more, if only they would take the same interest in the worship service of their church they do in these organizations.

Or the church may die of "pests." There are many of them. Kill off one kind and behold another comes. Fusses, feuds, proselyting by other congregations and pastors. The sting of some ism or ist that gets into a community by the marrying of some member to such. These pests are such because they live to irritate, to aggravate, to annoy, to keep up a controversy about the millennium or the day of the week to be observed as the Sabbath, or some fundamentalist's or modernist's foolishness. These come like the locusts upon Pharaoh and behold the destruction they work.

It is a serious reflection upon the intelligence of the leaders of a church that they do not foresee the results of such things and forestall them before they have destroyed the church. The church has the right to fight for its life as much as a nurseryman fights to save his trees from pests. He uses his head in doing this and succeeds. Oh that we had as much concern for the cause of Christ.

Mt. Pleasant Church, Rev. C. L. Grant, Pastor

I visited this church at the morning hour of worship. The church has six Sunday school rooms, therefore was well prepared to take care of the Sunday school. A good auditorium, easy to preach in, and taken as a whole it has a physical plant superior to most of the rural churches in our conference. The attendance was off some, I was told; but the people appeared interested in my message. The charge has been handicapped for a few years by the loss of two churches. It was a five-point circuit, but now has only three. However, the people on this work are a better class of people than is found in many communities where we have churches and could now do more than they are doing for pastor and conference interests. However, we think here is a group that should receive the attention of the Boundary Committee. Bro. Grant is serving his second year and reports that the parsonage debt is being paid off regularly and he hopes the claims will be met.

West Thomasville, Rev. Edw. Suits, Pastor

I was here at night. There was a very good congregation present. This church is coupled with Rankin Memorial, making a two-point charge. It is not a strong church financially; has a debt on the church building, no parsonage. I believe, however, the debt is being cared for regularly in building and loan, which means in the course of time it will be paid off. This congregation has had some "pests" this year which have interfered with the progress of the church, but the wise handling by the pastor, we believe, will bring them out in a sound condition.

Rankin Memorial walls are to go up right away, Pastor Suits tells me, and when this house is completed, if it is done for what the pastor says it can be done for, and I am not questioning it, every congregation in the conference which is planning to erect a new building should inquire of Pastor Suits how he did it.

A STATE-WIDE MOVE FOR SOBRIETY

Last week at the summer institutes at Duke University more than a hundred representatives of the various churches and women's organizations present worked out and approved a plan for teaching temperance and the hurt of alcohol in the homes and the schools and churches of North Carolina. The intention is to organize every county in the state, working through the religious and educational organizations in these counties. Ministers and other Christian leaders are expected to take the lead in this.

The plan worked out by a carefully selected committee of twelve submitted the following plan which was unanimously approved by the larger group:

The North Carolina Christian Union for Temperance Purpose

The purpose of this Christian Union for Temperance in North Carolina is to foster sobriety by teaching temperance in the home, the school, and the church. The ministers and all other Christian leaders of each community are expected to take the lead in this effort to guide the people in the ways of temperance and sobriety.

ORGANIZATION

1. There shall be a central committee composed of representatives from the several religious and educational organizations of the state, whose chief work will be to encourage the ministers and all other Christian leaders of each county in the state to organize for carrying out the purpose of this union.

2. The Central Union shall have a president, a vice-president, a secretary and a treasurer. These officers, with five additional members, shall constitute the executive committee. We nominate for officers of the Central Union:

For President—M. T. Plyler, Greensboro and Durham.

Vice-President—Dr. Trela Collins, Durham.

Secretary—Mrs. Josephine R. Davis, Guilford College.

Treasurer—to be appointed by executive committee.

3. The county unions shall be composed in the same way and organized after the same fashion as the Central Union. This makes for simplicity of organization and magnifies the functions of the county union in this effort for temperance and sobriety. We recommend that each county be asked to raise ten dollars or more and forward to the treasurer at Greensboro for the purpose of organizing the counties of the state, and carrying on the work of this organization.

METHODS OF PROCEDURE

Inevitably the pulpit and the school room will be of first importance in this educational effort to show forth the hurt of alcohol, but by no means all. The temperance pledge and the many organizations of the women in their churches and schools and club life can be made wonderfully effective. The methods of procedure will vary in the different sections of the state. These will appear as the work develops.

The executive committee of this union is instructed to find what is the present status of temperance education in the public schools of North Carolina and then inform the public, especially the county unions of this organization.

The central committee with headquarters at Greensboro is to foster temperance education and to encourage the county organizations. The success of the Christian Union for Temperance will depend upon the work done in the several counties. Let these organizations, with names and addresses of officers, and remittances of money to carry on the work, be sent to the Christian Union (Advocate Building), Greensboro. Due acknowledgment will be made. Who will be the first to report?

At an early day, the executive committee will be announced and the names of the central committee will be made public. More than sixty names are already on the list. Let the work of organization in the counties proceed at once.—North Carolina Christian Advocate.

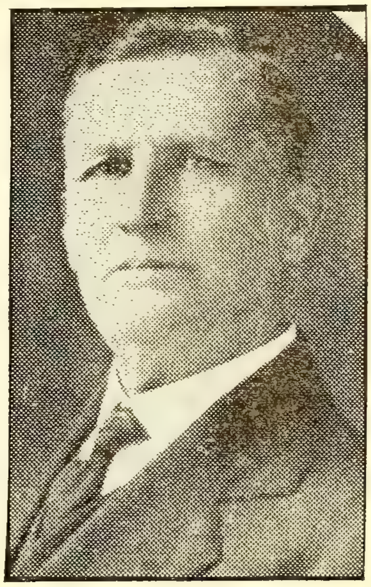
REV. E. G. LOWDERMILK — AN APPRECIATION

About thirty-five years ago, there came to the Mount Pleasant circuit a man who ministered to the people in holy things. He had been sent by the North Carolina Conference of the Methodist Protestant church as the pastor of this people, and this event threw him and the writer, from time to time, into each other's company. From this first association until the day of Brother Lowdermilk's death on June 11, 1935, this friendship grew and the appreciation of the man increased.



REV. E. G. LOWDERMILK

Brother Lowdermilk studied the Scriptures and was well versed in the Word of God. No matter what subject was discussed, he usually had a text of Scripture which he quoted in justification of his opinion. When, during his last sickness, the doctor insisted that it was best for Brother Lowdermilk to rest, to give up going to church for the present in the interest of his health, and said that God could be worshiped at home as well as at church, the sick man replied, "We have Scripture to justify what you say, for the Bible says, 'Be still and know that I am God.' "

We appreciate Brother Lowdermilk for his deep and abiding friendship. He was a friend to all who try to do the will of God. He was a friend who gave wise counsel, good advice, faithful admonition, and he could always be counted on to inspire and help those with whom he associated.

Then Brother Lowdermilk was a man of strong convictions. He preached the truth and left the results with God. His was the spirit of the great prophets of old, he reproved, he rebuked, he was outspoken against sin, he warned the wrongdoer and the backsliding church member faithfully and well, and he could go up to the sinner and say, "Thou art the man." The business of his life was to preach the Word, to oppose the forces of darkness, to stand for truth, for righteousness, and for God. Time serving was not in his program, he did not work to gain the approbation of men, but he worked for the uplift of men and for the glory of God.

Again, Brother Lowdermilk was a hard worker. He visited his people, talked with them, prayed with them, and gave them encouragement and helpful suggestions. When he had paid a visit to a home, the inmates were better from his having been there. He was never too tired to visit the sick, to comfort the distressed, and to help the needy. Instead of talking with the people about common affairs and telling stale jokes, he spent the time in speaking of high ideals, noble purposes, pure resolves, and laying out their lives for the highest service and duty.

One of the great souls of the church has gone from a life of toil and labor to reward. When on June 12, 1935, we committed his body to the dust, we realized that he was not dead, but he had simply crossed the bar to the richer and fuller life on the other side of the stream.

Thomas C. Amick.

THE VICTORY THAT OVERCOMES

We, all of us, want victory. The sole reason why we do not achieve it is that we are not willing to pay the price. None really desire failure and yet many do fail. The fault is their own. They seek delight, joy, satisfaction for the moment—and they, in the moment, have their reward.

After all, my readers, would we not better go to the Word and depend upon what it says and rest our case there? Look, it was the wise man writing, Proverbs 21:31, "Victory is of Jehovah." So victory comes from God. How? Well, turn again to the Word: I John 5:4: "This is the victory that hath overcome the world, even our faith." Search the Word all you will and you will find victory provided on no other basis or condition—faith. The conquering man, the conquering Church, is the man, is the Church of Faith.

That is why our Lord created the Church and why He laid upon the Church the missionary task and burden—that He might develop and have in the Church faith—that faith that overcomes the world.

It is quite easy for us to be benevolent and give our money to a cause or a person we can see and hear and know about. But the inspired writer says: "We walk, not by sight, but by faith."

Through missions we exercise faith in a Savior who can reach to the very lowest depths of human depravity and save to the uttermost. It doesn't take much faith to believe in a Savior who can save those reared in a wholesome and an agreeable atmosphere and under conditions most favorable to free and easy living. But how about believing in a Savior who has the power to reach down beneath the mud and muck and mire of the world's sin and idolatry, and save those who have indeed been unfortunate.

Arthur T. Pierson, writing in a recent Missionary Review, gives this instance of the saving power of our Lord because there were some at least who had faith in their Lord to believe He could.

"Some of the most wonderful evidences of the power of the Gospel are those we saw among the former cannibals of New Guinea. When Charles Abel went out there about forty years ago these people had no conception of God or of spiritual things. They were living in the deepest degradation, obsessed by fear and continually fighting and devouring one another. One Sunday morning we saw and heard forty-eight new converts from these people stand up and individually confess Christ as their Lord and Savior. Twenty-three of them were won by one lay, self-supporting Papuan evangelist who devoted his week-ends to personal work.

"No man is so low that he cannot be lifted to new life in Christ by the power of God. This is our greatest encouragement. One day at a communion service in Kwato a New Guinea man rose and said: 'A few years ago Paula and I were chiefs of two rival tribes who fought and ate one another. He captured my wife and according to our custom I could not be satisfied until I had been revenged. Then I met Jesus and today we are brothers in Christ who died for us both. We know now what forgiveness and love can do. Today we are both serving as elders in the church and will soon pass the elements that represent His body broken and His blood shed for us. This could not be true of us if the missionaries of Jesus had not come to teach us the Gospel of God's love in Christ.' "

Let us, my brethren and sisters in the Lord, exercise this faith in our Lord, for it is the victory that overcomes for us the world and gives us assurance of that which the world cannot take away. Shall we not now bring home to our people, at this Resurrection and triumphant season, this message of victory that overcometh?—J. O. A., in Christian Sun.

Drunkenness

By Mrs. L. R. Pearson

In a recent issue of the Herald I read an article by Rev. H. L. Powell on the subject, "Bootlegging and the Bootlegger." It is a terrible thing to think about how some people are drinking these days. And the people of the world are not the only ones that are a party to it. Our church members remind me of an old ship that once started across the Atlantic and when it reached the middle of the ocean it began to sink. Finally the crew began to throw off everything that could be thrown overboard and the ship went on in safety. Now that is what the church members must do also. We are just loaded down with the things of the world and going down, down, down just as that ship did. Something must be done and that quickly. If the people on that ship had waited they would now be in the bottom of the ocean. Christ says, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you." But do we put Christ first in our lives? No, there are lots of us that put Him last, and if Christ cannot be first He will not be last.

There are lots of people today who will spend their money on the things of this world such as cool drinks, tobacco in all of its forms, shows and many other things I could mention. Who are these people? Well, many of them are church members and I am sorry to say some of them are preachers also. We must walk the straight and clean and holy life if we are to enter the kingdom of heaven. You will hear church members knock holiness and say we cannot live a holy life. It is true we cannot live a holy life and serve the devil. But we can live this kind of a life and serve God. The Bible says, "Without holiness no man shall see God." "Those that are not for me are against me." We must be one hundred per cent Christian or we will be one hundred per cent for the devil, for there is no middle ground. Paul says, "He that knoweth to do good and doeth it not, to him it is sin." If we ever save this world we church members and preachers must unload and live a straight and holy life and touch not and handle not the unclean things of this world, and then we are going to see people flocking to Jesus Christ. Christ says, "I would ye were either cold or hot, but because ye are neither cold nor hot I will spew thee out of my mouth." Oh! I think it is the most sickening thing to see people who claim to be Christians doing things which you know positively to be of the devil. So let us pray for ourselves and get clean up from the world and be a hundred per cent Christian. Let us get on the firing line for Christ. May God bless every one of us and help us to pray for ourselves and get right with God. For the harvest is plenteous but the laborers are few.

THE JOY OF GROWING OLD

My mouth is full of laughter and my heart is full of joy. I feel so sorry for folks who don't like to grow old and who are trying all the time to hide the fact that they are growing old, and who are ashamed to tell how old they are. I revel in my years. They enrich me. If God should say to me, "I will let you begin over again, and you may have youth back once more," I should say, "O dear Lord, if Thou dost not mind I prefer to go on growing old!"

I would not exchange the peace of mind, the abiding rest of soul, the measure of wisdom I have gained from the sweet and bitter and perplexing experiences of life, nor the confirmed faith I now have in the moral order of the universe and in the unfailing mercies and love of God, for all the bright but uncertain hope and tumultuous joys of youth, indeed I would not.

These are the best years of my life, the sweetest and the most free from anxious care. The way grows brighter, the birds sing sweeter, the winds blow softer, the sun shines more radiantly than ever before. I suppose my outward man is perishing but my inward man is being joyously renewed day by day. Some lessons that I have learned or partially learned I here pass on:

1. "Have faith in God"—in His providence, in His superintending care, in His unfailing love.

2. Accept the bitter with the sweet and rejoice in both. The bitter may be better for us than the sweet. Don't grow impatient or fretful. If you fall into divers temptations, count it all joy, knowing that the trial of your faith worketh patience, and let patience have her perfect work that you may be perfect and entire, wanting nothing. Victory is to be attained through the joyful acceptance of annoying trials and petty vexations as a part of God's discipline.

3. Keep a heart full of love toward everybody. Learn to be patient with folks who try your patience. If you can't love them with complacency, then love them with compassion and pity, but love them. Pray for them and don't carry about with you hard thoughts and feelings toward them.

4. Don't waste time and fritter away faith by living in the past, by mourning over failures of yesterday and the long ago. Commit them to God and look upward and onward. "Forgetting those things which are behind," said Paul, "and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."

Oh, the joy of living a life of service, of love, and of growing up into Him in all things, which is the Head, even Christ. Such life is never old, but eternally renews itself; eternally youthful like a springing, sparkling fountain that is fed by unfailing waters that flow down from the heights of the everlasting hills.—Publisher Unknown.

BILLY'S FATHER

When a boy has three sisters who are attractive, charming, nice-appearing, and always well behaved, he is apt to feel, if he is at all sensitive, that he is of little consequence. Especially when he is repeatedly told that his hands need washing, that he is always bringing mud on the best rug, that whistling makes folks nervous, and that instead of playing with Jimmy Watkins, whose mother was a washerwoman, and who was snub-nosed and wore patched trousers, he should cultivate a friendship for Courtney Moore, who was a judge's son.

These and several other things were what made Billy feel he was of small importance, indeed. He did not care so much about the girls but he did wish Father would pay more attention to him.

Perhaps—and a small sob would always rise in Billy's throat when he thought of it—perhaps Father did not really care about him, anyway. The girls were so much better looking and more to be proud of in every way.

Billy was sick with a sore throat that day. He got up with it in the morning, and ate so little breakfast that Mother noticed it. "Want any more cakes, sonny?" she said in her sweet and pleasant voice.

Billy shook his head.

"Don't feel like eating," he replied. "Guess if you'll excuse me, folks, I'll go in the other room a while. My head feels as big as a bushel basket, and my throat—oh!"

Margaret and Helen and Annabel did not look particularly sympathetic. Father did not say anything, and Billy went and lay down on the comfortable old lounge in the living room.

He stayed there all day, submitting patiently to the ministrations of Mother, who was a capital nurse.

At four o'clock the telephone rang.

Mother had gone upstairs. Helen was the only one besides Billy in the room. She took up the receiver.

"Hello," said a voice. "Is this you, Helen? How is Billy?" It was Father.

"Oh, he's really quite a good deal better. He'll be all right tomorrow," replied Helen in her gay, young voice.

"Good!" cried father. "Tell him 'hello' for me, and that if I should happen to see a kodak of the kind he's been talking about, I might bring it home."

Billy sat up.

"Was that Father?" he cried with shining eyes. "My father?"

Helen nodded carelessly.

"Yes, he said to say 'hello' to you, and that he might bring you home a kodak."

Billy dropped back on the fuzzy cushion without speaking a word. Somehow he couldn't.

Father had inquired about him! And he thought Father was so wrapped up in the girls, with their bright eyes and rosy cheeks and nice manners, that he didn't care anything about a small, freckle-faced boy who whistled and liked dogs and would play with Jimmy Watkins instead of Courtney Moore. Father, the finest man in the world and the best! The only person he reverenced with all his boyish heart.

No boy had a father like this, so tall and handsome and fine. He had thought that father didn't care for him. But he did, he did! He had telephoned. And somehow Billy's heart sang its own song.

And just then Mother came in.

"Sonny, I'm sorry your throat is sore," she said, bending to smooth his hair.

But Billy only thumped the fuzzy cushion.

"I'm not," he said quickly. "Sometimes a sore throat is all right."

He hesitated, then went on.

"It teaches a fellow a thing or two," he added with a catch in his voice.—Baptist Boys and Girls.

SPOKEN WORDS

Guard well thy lips; none, none can know (Prov. 13:3)
What evils from the tongue may flow (James 3:5, 6);
What guilt, what grief may be incurred (Judges 11:35)
By one incautious word (Mark 6:22, 25, 26).
Be "slow to speak," look well within (Prov. 4:5),
To check what there may lead to sin (James 1:25),
And pray unceasingly for aid (Col. 4:2),
Lest unawares thou be betrayed (Luke 21:34).
"Condemn not, judge not"—not to man (I Cor. 4:3)
Is given his brother's faults to scan (Matt. 7:3).
The task is God's and His alone (Matt. 7:5),
To search out and subdue His own (I Cor. 9:27).
Indulge no murmurings: oh, restrain (Phil. 2:14, 15)
Those lips so ready to complain (Job 27:4);
And if they can be numbered, count (Ps. 103:2, 3)
Of one day's mercies the amount (Lam. 3:23).
Shun vain discussion, trifling themes (Tit. 3:9);
Dwell not on earthly hopes and schemes (Deut. 6:4-7);
Let words of wisdom, meekness, love (James 3:13),
Thy heart's true renovation prove (Luke 6:45).
Set God before thee; every word (Gen. 17:1)
Thy lips pronounce by Him is heard (Ps. 139:4),
Oh, couldst thou realize this thought (Luke 12:2),
What care, what caution would be taught (Luke 12:3)!

PRAY YOURSELF

God's treatment of us and His bestowment of blessings upon us must depend upon our views and conduct—whether we feel our dependence on Him, whether we confess and forsake all sin, whether we trust Him and thoroughly honor Him in all things. His action towards us must depend upon our attitude towards Him.

It is essential in the management of a moral system that we should pray and trust, in order that He may freely and abundantly give, and especially that He may give in a way safe to us and honorable to Himself. Nothing can be substituted for our own praying, either in its relations to God or to ourselves.—Charles G. Finney.

Clothing and Other Gifts

Woman's Auxiliary, First Church, High Point, 2½ gallons ice cream. Mrs. W. F. Redding, Asheboro, 1 suit for a boy with money to pay for cleaning and pressing. Miss Inez Trogdon, Randleman, 8 dresses, 4 skirts, 4 waists, 5 hats, 4 tams and 12 pair stockings. Ladies' Aid Society, Mt. Lebanon, Randleman, 2 dresses, 3 pair socks, 1 dress pattern, 8 towels, 1 handkerchief, 1 wash cloth, 2 packages tooth paste, 1 pair shoes, 1 suit for little boy, and 23 cakes of soap. These last two items we thought had been reported about a month ago.

We are profoundly grateful to all who have contributed in any way to the Home.

Baby Bonds and Coupons

The baby bonds have gone out from this office to all parts of the church, and Mrs. Dixon is working and the company is backing her with all the needed printed matter to help her secure one million coupons by May 1, 1936. A million coupons will bring us $4,000, and if we get that many coupons by May 1 of next year the company will give us a bonus of $400.

Don't forget that Rumford's baking powder has been added to the list. Save the post cards and send them along. Someone in your church should have a list of the products on which coupons are redeemable. If you cannot find out, drop us a card and we will mail you a sheet giving the list.

Glass Jars

A few are getting the glass jars to be filled with fruits and vegetables for the Home. Will you get some soon, or may we send them to you? We have lots of them to be placed. And please keep the regular monthly offerings up to normal during the summer months.

Quarantined

Because of the prevalence of infantile paralysis throughout the state our doctors have asked us to live at home for a few weeks, and to keep company out. We like to have our friends call and we like to have relatives of the children call, and we also delight to permit children to visit friends and relatives for a few days each summer, but necessity compels us to stay home and to ask our friends and the relatives of the children to defer their visits a few weeks. Please help us to keep the children happy and contented under these conditions.

The B. N. Duke Estate

We thank Dr. Pritchard for the statement last week in re the Duke estate. Mr. Duke was kind enough to will this Home $5,000, but it came and was used about five years ago. Another similar amount would set us about even with the world.

We greatly appreciate any and everybody who helps with the work here. God bless and keep you every one.

If more birthday boxes are needed, please let us know at once.

A. G. DIXON, Superintendent.

THE CHILDREN'S HOME PAGEANT

In preparing to put on the pageant in First Church, High Point, the pastor, Rev. J. C. Madison, found that it would be very helpful to have someone read from a hidden place and not have to draw the curtain so often, so he prepared the article which is printed below, and which explains itself. We are asking the editor to publish it in the Herald this week, so others may use it if they find it helpful. Please clip for use in connection with the pageant, if so desired.

STORY OF THE PAGEANT, "THE OPEN DOOR," IN READING

During the past six years many are the happy homes that have been caught in the throes of depression and torn asunder. Someone has said that nothing succeeds like success. It is equally true that nothing fails like failure. The worries and anxieties of unemployment are often followed by breaking health on the part of parents who feel their responsibilities so keenly. The following tragedy is not altogether fiction but is based upon an incident that took place in real life some few years ago. To this story one could add many more similar ones which have come under our observation during the last decade.

May we now observe the beginning of a day in a happy Christian home as mother gets her husband off to work, and starts the day with the children. (Play begins and is followed until mother and children retire to ante-room.)

And thus the day wears on. Father, at his job, fights with might and main to keep the wolf from the door. Charles, at school, without a weary or fear, does the work prescribed which prepares him for a life of Christian service. While the Christian mother at home happily seeks to rear her children in the "fear and admonition of the Lord."

The close of the day finds father and Charles coming home again to reunite the members of a perfect Christian fellowship. (Play action until family retires for brief period.)

The evening meal is over. Darkness falls, and the sandman calls the children to bed as we observe the closing of the day. (Closing scene.)

Scene II

In 1929-30 almost over night homes that were rich became homes of want and homes of happiness became homes of misery, as cruel depression shook the foundations of our economic order. In this period of uncertainty the forces of unemployment were no respecters of persons. As the rain falls upon the just and unjust, so the good and bad alike must suffer their disappointments.

In the home of our story we now turn to another evening scene. Anxiety during the past months has been growing and finally father comes home with the story of his own sad experience. (Scene to where mother and father go out.)

One of the greatest miracles of all life is that of rest and sleep, as it transforms doubt into faith. Each new day is a new beginning which reminds us that God gives us another chance. (Scene to where mother bows in silent prayer.)

But the fires of renewed hope and faith soon burn low as a man walks the streets hour after hour reading those cruel notices on every office door: "No help wanted, please do not disturb us." Returning home becomes a crucifying task as it shatters the hopes of an expectant family when father is forced to admit that there is no work in sight. (Father returns home; exeunt arm in arm.)

Day after day the discouraging street-walking continued, but finally the door opens up. At last the industrious and fearless father gets a job, though a very dangerous one. Dangerous? Yes. But who would not risk his very life for the sake of his hungry family. Even so, but sometimes the result of a risk is that it adds tragedy to misery.

Society owes to every man the right to earn an honest living. We rejoice with this hopeful father as he goes to his new job. (Here father passes through with lunch box.) Forgetful of the dangers of the new work, he goes about the task of the job full of hope and happiness as he anticipates pay checks, new clothing for wife, and toys for the children. (Mother comes in singing. Play is followed until mother and children go off stage.) (Curtain should be pulled here.)

It is thus we see the beautiful fellowship of a Christian home disrupted, and all the parental responsibilities falling upon the shoulders of a helpless mother. Though she does her task well, responsibility and hard work soon touch the springs of her life. Broken health is her lot, and the situation becomes a double tragedy as the mother goes on to her reward, leaving three children without home or money to be cared for by a cruel world. This problem is seen in vivid form as we listen to the conversation of friends in the home soon after the mother's funeral. (Scene of mother's death is omitted. Pick up where friends are talking. At close of conversation they go off stage. Facts about the Home are here read by the reader from behind stage. At the close, emphasize that it is not only an open door for orphan children, but an open door for the Christian church, as it furnishes opportunities for service. Here faith, hope and love come on the stage. Love raises her hands in attitude of blessing as she says: "Inasmuch as ye did it unto the least of these, ye did it unto me." (Curtain.)

APPRECIATION

For the many expressions of sympathy from friends, the lovely flowers and every act of kindness during the recent passing of my dear companion, I am indeed grateful.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

MRS. J. E. PRITCHARD, Editor

TO SECRETARIES OF LITERATURE AND AUXILIARY PRESIDENTS

I included in the program material for July a notice of the quota of Missionary Record subscriptions for your Auxiliary. The Missionary Record, like so many other church papers, is not making expenses. At the Branch meeting it was recommended that North Carolina's quota be 500 subscriptions for 1935-36. Using this as the basis, I have apportioned to each Auxiliary its quota. Let me urge you to raise your quota. Each of us realizes the value of the Record, so we must come to its support with the needed subscriptions. In this day of "honor rolls" let us see which Auxiliary will be the first on the honor roll. From time to time I will ask the Herald to print this honor roll. If for any reason you do not receive your quota, please write me, giving the name of your Auxiliary, and I will rush your quota to you. Please notify me when your quota is raised so your Auxiliary can be placed on the honor roll. Who is going to be first? The price of a year's subscription to the Record is 75 cents. Send your subscriptions to Miss Bettie S. Brittingham, 516 North Charles Street, Baltimore, Md. Remember we are counting on you to put North Carolina "over the top" with its 500 subscriptions.

MRS. W. F. REDDING, JR.,
Sec. Literature, N. C. Branch.

BRANCH CHARTER SECURED

Those who are interested in the matter will be glad to know that the charter incorporating the North Carolina Branch of Woman's Work has at last been received from the Secretary of State. Our thanks to Messrs. H. O. and Odell Sapp, lawyers of Winston-Salem, for the legal part of it, for which they made no charge. The charter is in my possession, and in my steel file, pending the appointment of someone in the Branch to act as its custodian.

I am suggesting that a board of directors ought to be elected, and proper officers named, at the next meeting of the Executive Committee. In the meantime the Executive Committee will function.

C. W. BATES, for the Committee.

PLEASE READ AND REMEMBER

The anniversary of the Children's Home is to be celebrated August 22. The pageant is ready and in the hands of the pastors. "The Open Door" is the title of this very impressive pageant and will not be hard to put on. The characters should be chosen with care and I feel sure that any church can put it over very effectively. The birthday offering boxes are too in the hands of the pastors. Take these and not only put your most liberal offering in but ask your friends other than those of your church whom you feel would be glad to contribute.

Let's each one of us be a booster, a worker and a giver for this the silver anniversary of our Children's Home. MRS. H. C. N.

MRS. L. L. WRENN RETURNS FROM HOSPITAL

Mrs. L. L. Wrenn, of Siler City, who has been a patient at the Wesley Long Hospital in Greensboro, has sufficiently recovered from a major operation as to be able to return to her home at Siler City. A good deal of the time she was in the hospital she was too ill to see visitors. We trust she may soon be strong again. Mr. and Mrs. Wrenn for a long period of years have been among the most loyal and active members of our church in Siler City. Such people as they give standing to any denomination in the community.

REV. T. A. WILLIAMS IN HOSPITAL

Rev. T. A. Williams, the pastor of Guilford charge, was taken to the High Point hospital on Monday evening for treatment. An operation is feared, although it is hoped it can be avoided. Pray for him.

MRS. TUCKER RETURNS FROM HOSPITAL

Mrs. J. W. Tucker, a member of Calvary church, has returned to her home following an operation in the Wesley Long Hospital. We trust she may make rapid progress to recovery.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Spencer.—Our revival meeting began June 16. Rev. T. M. Johnson was our pastor's help. Dr. Johnson seemed to know our need and taught us. He explained the Scripture so plain that the children could see the beauty of the Christian life. His sermons were inspiring. Rev. Lee Moser, our pastor, preached the first and third Sundays at 11 o'clock. We all like Mr. Moser.

Spencer has been blessed with good ministers. Four, while students at High Point College, have served us, Revs. T. G. Madison, W. M. Howard, Aubert Smith and Lee Moser. Our pastors have been spiritual, faithful, good workers for the furtherance of the kingdom of God. Wish some of our older pastors would write a sermon once in a while, Revs. Ashburn, Millaway, and McCulloch and others. We would enjoy reading them. I wonder if we all appreciate the Herald as we should. My father took the first copy of the Record and the Herald has not missed a copy in our home, and we enjoy reading our church paper.

MRS. A. L. MOORE.

Halifax Charge.—We are glad to report that our work is going at least in a normal way. We are doing nothing so very outstanding, yet we feel that the interest in the church work of our charge is good. Since our last report a few things of interest have been done which we shall take time and space to report.

We have had our hut finished at Eden for some time, and have already served two suppers in it. We have a very well-built hut which has cost us less than $300. We feel that this hut is going to serve a good purpose in our community to promote both the social and spiritual welfare of the people. We also think it will be of help in raising money.

The second Sunday in June we observed homecoming and memorial day at Bethesda. Rev. N. M. Harrison, who was brought up in this church, preached the sermon for the morning service. His message was unusually good and was well received by all the audience. Just after the sermon the roll of the honored dead in the local cemetery was called. After this, all marched to the cemetery and decorated the graves with flowers. When all flowers were placed, all joined in singing "When the Roll Is Called Up Yonder, I'll Be There." With the benediction the morning service closed.

After lunch, which was served on the ground, all gathered in the church again. After a short devotional, a Memorial Association was organized which has as its purpose the upkeep and beautification of the local cemetery. At this service about $35 was donated for this purpose. After a few short talks the benediction marked the end of what we felt to be an enjoyable day.

We are glad to announce that Dr. R. M. Andrews and a few workers are coming to our charge on Wednesday before the second Sunday in July to hold a group meeting. The meeting is to be held at Hollister church. Services will be all day, beginning about 10:30 a. m. All members of the charge are expected to come and especially shall we look for the official members.

Also Dr. Andrews will be on the charge the second Sunday in July to preach as follows: Bethesda, 11 a. m., Ringwood, 3 p. m., and Hollister, 8 p. m. We would appreciate attendance of members from the entire charge at these services, because we are sure Dr. Andrews will bring us a message we should hear.

O. C. LOY.

Eden Church, Halifax Charge.—Rev. O. C. Loy filled his regular third Sunday appointment with a very inspiring sermon taken from Luke 7:21. We enjoy his sermons, for they are always helpful and uplifting ones.

We are glad to report that our organization and church seem to be working better. Our Ladies' Auxiliary is quite active. They held a supper a short time ago and realized a good amount. They are planning a barbecue supper for Wednesday of this week, and hope to raise a nice sum from this. We feel that our new hut is a great benefit to us. Since completing it we have had two showers for it, and in this way are accumulating the things we need for our use there. At our last supper some of our good members and friends donated money for us to screen the hut with, and this has been done. We feel that it will mean a great deal to the comfort of our people when we have our suppers.

Our Junior Auxiliary has been reorganized with a new leader. They have a good leader this time and we hope their interest is going to grow and grow. They had a supper at the hut last week and realized a good amount after expenses were paid. If their parents will just wake up and realize their part in helping these young people, they would see great changes in our church.

The regular meeting of our Ladies' Auxiliary met with Rev. and Mrs. Loy last week and everyone present thoroughly enjoyed this meeting.

Our Sunday school continues steadfastly on although we are few in number, but we have been told the faithful few can do great things if they try hard enough.

Kannapolis.—The members of the Kannapolis church enjoyed a full day of Christian experiences and fellowship last Sunday, June 16, when we had our annual homecoming. Six ministers were present. Four of these were former pastors of the church and one, the present pastor. Dr. Andrews was present and delivered a most encouraging message to the church members and to the visitors who were present. In all there were 219 people in attendance.

During the recent North Carolina Christian Endeavor convention four young people were sent as delegates from our societies. For the convention banquet 21 more young people from our societies attended. Sunday evening an Echo meeting of the entire convention was given by the Endeavors as the regular Sunday evening program in the society.

Recently our pastor announced that he expected to preach in a newly painted church. Well, this painting has been completed and paid for. Two coats of paint were put inside and outside of the church. Too, the benches have been varnished and the floors stained.

Mr. Morris came down several days ago and stayed with us until Friday of last week. Mr. Morris was our last pastor and all the people were especially glad to see him and have him in their homes once again.

Plans are being made now in preparation for the Daily Vacation Bible School which we expect to have during the first part of August.

On Saturday evening the Business Girls' Circle had a box supper and made several dollars for their part of the Auxiliary work.

Plans are under way in co-operation with the Children's Home authorities to raise our part of the $5,000 as the goal for this year for the Home.

Draper.—There will be a homecoming service at the Draper church Sunday, June 30. All former pastors and members are especially invited to be present. Sunday school at 9:45, preaching at 11, dinner at 12:30. Rev. R. L. Vickery will preach at 2 o'clock. Dr. R. M. Andrews, president of the Annual Conference, will preach at 8 p. m. Everyone come and enjoy the day with us.

Enfield.—Our pastor, Rev. E. O. Peeler, attended the pastors' school at High Point College and reports a very fine school. While there he was called to Spruce Pine on account of the death of his sister's husband, Mr. C. D. Huskins. Our church extends sympathy to the relatives and friends. Mrs. Huskins and two children accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Peeler home and spent a few days with them. Mrs. E. O. Peeler and Mrs. S. E. Whisnant visited Mr. E. C. McMurry and Mrs. G. A. Lee near Shelby.

Mr. Peeler brings us good sermons at each appointment and we appreciate them. The choir has just made new vestments which add much to the appearance, and more interest has been shown. Mr. Joe White, of Boston, Mass., sang a solo the fourth Sunday night which was greatly enjoyed. Much credit is due Mrs. Hubert Whitaker for her faithful work with the choir.

The Junior Woman's Auxiliary is doing splendid work and has added a new member to the roll. Recently they gave a very pretty miscellaneous shower for Mrs. Willie Herbert, a recent bride.

The Woman's Auxiliary held its last meeting with Misses Mary and Susie Whitaker at their lovely country home. Mrs. R. A. Jordan, president, presided, and Miss Mary Collins conducted the devotionals. Splendid reports were given by committees and circle leaders. During the social hour the hostess, assisted by Miss Lizzie Whitaker, served a delicious salad course with iced tea. After the meeting those present were taken through the beautiful old-fashioned flower garden—a treat our Auxiliary members look forward to each year. Circle No. 1 has just made and sold brunswick stew, netting $10 to be added to our treasury.

Mrs. Eli Bellamy is visiting her parents in Pamplin, Va.

Our pastor and two of our girls are in High Point this week to attend the Leadership Training School. REPORTER.

Philadelphia, Greensville Ct.—We are very proud of our new pastor, Rev. Eugene Lamb. The circuit was fortunate to get him at a time when we most needed a minister. We believe him to be a real Christian man, and feel sure that he is going to give us his best. Let us all co-operate and stand by him to make this year, his first in the ministry, a good one.

It was good indeed of Dr. Andrews, Rev. J. M. Morgan, Rev. W. F. Ashburn and Rev. Glenn Madison to drive over here this spring and preach to us when we were without a preacher. Rev. Mr. Morgan and Rev. Mr. Ashburn had served the work years ago. The attendance wasn't so good for Madison and Ashburn due to rain. We were sorry more people could not come out to hear them after they drove such a distance to get here. A lot of people recognized Rev. Mr. Ashburn that hadn't seen him in 30 years. He spent a part of his visit in our home and we certainly did enjoy his company. All of the sermons were splendid and we invite each of you to come back again.

Our revival meeting will begin the first Sunday in August. Dr. S. W. Taylor, who preached for us last year during the revival, will hold our meeting again. We are anxious for the time to come and are looking forward to a good meeting. The people haven't forgotten Dr. Taylor and are wishing for his return soon.

At this time we are planning a Children's Day program which will be given third Sunday night in July (if another date is not published). Our regular preaching services are first Sunday mornings and third Sunday nights. Come and worship with us.

MRS. R. A. SHELL, Reporter.

Asheville.—The play, "The Supreme Sacrifice," written by our pastor, Mr. Minnis, was given before a very appreciative audience on Thursday evening last. Several requested that it be repeated; so, on Sunday evening, another group saw it and were very favorably impressed. The members of the casts were the Misses Nancy Clouse and Betty Marlowe, the Rev. Mr. Minnis and James Clouse, and each did his part splendidly. Mr. Minnis was especially good in the role of Abraham, and so deserves a lot of credit, not only for writing tre play but for taking the leading part as well. We congratulate Mr. Minnis!

Miss Josie McNeill and Miss Louise Hanner are beginning their work among us. Miss Hanner is taking the first-year Junior boys, and Miss McNeill is to have charge of the music for the little folk. They are filling a real need, and so we are gratefol for Miss McNeill and Miss Hanner. Miss Hanner reviewed the mission study book at the Auxiliary meeting last Thursday and did it beautifully.

Some of our members who have been absent for some time were back with us on Sunday. We are glad to have you worship with us again, Mrs. Jarvis Eller and Mr. and Mrs. Sam Hendricson. Mrs. M. F. Taylor, perhaps our oldest member in years, but one of the youngest mentally, was able to be with us on Sunday and we were glad. She does not get out often, and we are glad when she is able to.

Mr. Minnis left on Monday for a two weeks' rest and we all join in wishing him a pleasant time. M. L. B.

First Church, Albemarle.—We had a wonderful day last Sunday. A large crowd attended both the morning and evening services. Our pastor preached a very inspiring message at the 11 o'clock hour, one that I feel safe in saying everyone present thoroughly enjoyed.

With the summer months coming on, church attendance usually drops off considerably. So far this year our attendance has been extra good. Instead of decreasing, it has increased, at our evening services. The main reason for this increase is because of the fine spirit and good preaching of Brother Williams.

A MEMBER.

Bethany, Randolph.—Our pastor gave us a fine sermon the third Sunday morning, using as his subject "Seven Distinctive Elements in Christianity."

In the evening the children presented their annual Children's Day program. The attendance was good and the parts were well rendered.

Our revival meeting will begin the third Sunday in July.

Mrs. W. D. Underwood, who has been confined to her room for several months, is able to be out again.

Mrs. J. T. Brown is sick at this time. We hope she will soon be able to fill her place in the church. REPORTER.

Mill Grove, Midland Charge.—We are sorry to announce that on account of the well-advertised disease, infantile paralysis, the Children's Day program scheduled to be given Sunday night, June 30, has been cancelled. Let us hope and pray, putting our faith in Jesus, that this disease will soon cease. Some seem to trink we should have had the children's program anyway, as folks will allow their children to be out with other children in everything except church work anyway. It seems it does not take much of an excuse to keep us away from church anyway unless we are really interested in Christian work. Anyway it has been cancelled by authority of the majority of the attending church membership.

The program scheduled for July 4, however, has not been cancelled, and we invite the general public to come to Mill Grove church July 4 and enjoy the day with us. Bring along a nice basketful of good things to eat. We expect all-day services. The following speakers have been invited to come and make short talks for us. They choose to suit themselves on the subject to speak from. They are Brother Bell, from Rockingham, N. C.; Brother D. I. Garner, Concord, N. C.; H. W. Sneed, Rockingham, N. C.; W. D. Moore, Darlington, S. C., and Attorney J. F. Sossamon, Midland, N. C. Now who couldn't enjoy such speakers as these? We give the general public a welcome invitation.

A preacher once said a person with religion like Christ would have us to have is a Baptist that could say "Amen" at a Presbyterian church when the preacher speaking was preaching Christ, or vice versa, other denominations saying "Amen" away from their church where their membership was recorded. I agree with the speaker to a great extent, as we are too much denominational in our worship as a whole. We don't know what denomination our speakers are representing, all of them. But who cares? We invite Baptists, Presbyterians, Methodists, in fact all, to come worship with us July 4, and always thereafter when it is possible to do so. Come, now, we are expecting you.

Bellemont, Mt. Hermon Charge.—Our pastor brought us an interesting and worthwhile message at the 11 o'clock service Sunday morning. He told us how we should spend our Sundays, and stressed the idea that the "Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath."

Mrs. J. Clyde Auman spoke to the Ladies' Auxiliary on Wednesday afternoon before the third Sunday. Her subject was "The Women of Japan." This was an interesting talk, and the fact that Mrs. Auman had been to Japan and had come in contact with different women of which she spoke made it much more interesting. The Auxiliary, although quite young, is progressing nicely. It sponsored an ice cream supper on the church lawn last Saturday night, and is planning to do more in the near future.

Rev. and Mrs. Whitehead moved into the parsonage last week. We are very glad to have them in our community, and are wishing them much happiness in their new home. Miss Ramah Shoffner and her Sunday school class gave them a miscellaneous shower last Wednesday. They received a number of useful gifts.

Misses Dorothy Hargis, Thelma Thompson, and Mattie Pickett have gone to High Point College to attend the Leadership Training School.

Mrs. Edgar York and Miss Ramah Shoffner have been appointed to train the children for a Children's Day program to be held at an early date.

Rev. and Mrs. J. Elwood Carroll, of Grace church, Greensboro, were visitors in the Bellemont community last Sunday. We invite them to come again, as it is always a pleasure to have our former pastors return.

REPORTER.

Efland, Orange Charge.—A splendid program was rendered by members of the Sunday schools of our district Sunday evening when we met with the Efland church for a township convention. This program was directed by our superintendent, who is district chairman. Each school in the district was represented and had a part in the program, which consisted of music, short talks and a reading by a member of Fairfield's Junior class, "The Tapestry Weaver." This was an outstanding part of the program, portraying how we should always do our best, even though we cannot see the results now.

Our Children's Day program will be given on the fifth Sunday evening.

The Auxiliary will serve a chicken supper at the church Saturday evening, June 29. We hope to have a large number present.

The work of our church is progressing nicely. We are not pleased, however, with the attendance at our evening services. Many are missing some very helpful messages by staying away.

Christian Endeavor is still living but not showing great signs of life. We would be glad to have more attend and take part in this.

Sunday school is well attended usually and we have some splendid workers here. The credit for the splendid program of the township convention is due our superintendent, Mr. Dunn, who was untiring in his efforts to make it a success.

Our attendance last Sunday was much lower than usual, since almost all of our primary and a number of other pupils were absent. As yet we have heard of no cases of infantile paralysis but think it wise to play safe, though we miss this band of more than 20 tiny tots.

Our McCulloch Memorial certificate has been framed and is very attractive in its place in the church auditorium. Thanks to our Laymen's Fellowship.

PATTYE J. CRUTCHFIELD, Reporter.

Shiloh, Shiloh Charge.—It may be considered that "no news is good news" with us although we haven't had a report for a few weeks. On June 4 our pastor and family moved into the new parsonage just completed. We are proud of this accomplishment.

Our Sunday school attendance is still on the increase. June 16 our attendance was 270. At 11 o'clock Rev. C. E. Ridge filled his regular appointment and preached a very forceful sermon, using as a text Acts 27:8. It seems that Mr. Ridge improves in his preaching. If you don't believe that praying for your pastor will help him, just try it. There is great power in prayer.

The organizations of our church are still at work. Things are moving along fine, but we hope for greater accomplishments.

Lexington is very fortunate again in having another evangelistic campaign, now being conducted by the Young Brothers. They began these services near the second Sunday in June. Anyone who attends these services may be assured of hearing the old-time gospel. MABEL BERRIER, Reporter.

Kernersville.—Our revival meeting was held the second week in June. Rev. R. A. Hunter was our preacher. Almost all the readers have heard Bro. Hunter preach and you well know that he did some good plain preaching. All his sermons were of the best.

Mr. E. Swain, of Walkertown, was in charge of the song service and the good singing was a great help. The services closed the third Sunday evening. Three new members were added to the church membership. They are Miss Evelyn Corn, Miss Rose Linville and Mrs. Clay Parrish.

The Ladies' Aid Society will sponsor a lawn party Saturday evening, July 6, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Butner. The public is invited. REPORTER.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Elmore

Crittie Harkey Elmore, wife of the late W. E. Elmore, was born January 25, 1874. She was the daughter of James I. and Catherine Harkey. She married W. E. Elmore in 1892. To this union were born one son and five daughters. The eldest daughter preceded her to the grave eight years ago. Left to mourn their loss are one son and four daughters, 27 grandchildren, five great-grandchildren, and a host of friends.

She joined Weddington M. E. church as a young girl, and about 20 years ago with her husband moved to Beulah M. P. church, where she was a devout and consecrated member until her death May 30, 1935.

The funeral was conducted in the Weddington M. E. church by her pastor, assisted by the pastor of the Weddington M. E. church. Interment followed in the church cemetery. We wish to express our deepest sympathy to her loved ones.

P. E. BINGHAM, Pastor.

White

E. F. White was born August 1, 1855, departed this life May 8, 1935, age 79 years, 9 months and 7 days. He leaves to mourn his departure a devoted wife, 5 sons, 3 daughters and 10 grandchildren.

Bro. White was not a member of the church but professed to be a Christian and had many friends who speak of his ideals of living. He was well known in railroad circles and had many friends outside of the realm in which he labored.

The funeral services conducted by the writer, assisted by the Rev. Mr. Tippett, pastor of Ardmore M. E. church, South, of Winston-Salem, were largely attended and the floral offerings were many and beautiful. After the services in the home the body was taken to High Point and laid to rest in the city cemetery.

The friends and the loved ones are comforted in the thought that he expressed himself as being ready and willing to go when the Lord called. Such facts are encouragement to those who are left behind and an inspiration to be faithful to the church and its interests that the reward may come for faithfulness to that for which the Savior died. To the bereaved wife and children we extend our prayers and sympathy.

Harkey

Mrs. Liller Corinna Harkey was born July 9, 1889, died June 5, 1935, age 45 years, 11 months, 26 days. Married to J. H. Harkey April 16, 1916. Born to this union were nine children, of which Claude Daniel preceded her. The living are Hugh Harkey, Hal, Ray, Grady, Floyd, Jesse, Emma and Ruby.

Mrs. Harkey united with Friendship Methodist Protestant church at the age of 12 years, of which she remained a faithful member until death. She was an outstanding member of her community, and was always willing to help others, showing her Christian spirit in the community and church work.

Mrs. Harkey always believed in standing for the right and practicing the Golden Rule. In other words, "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you." She was always a kind, devoted wife and mother.

Sister Liller Harkey joined the Methodist Protestant church of Albemarle March 3, 1935, by certificate from Friendship church. We learned to love Sister Harkey with our short acquaintance with her, with all of her suffering she tried as best she could to be cheerful, and would always say "I am feeling a little better." A good woman has been called to her reward. May the Lord bless her relatives and husband, who did all in his power to stay the hand of death. She was laid to rest in Friendship cemetery June 6 beneath a mound of beautiful flowers. Those assisting in the service were Rev. Mr. Hagger, of the M. E. church, South; Rev. C. H. Hill, Rev. Atlas Ridge, Rev. O. B. Williams, her former pastor. D. R WILLIAMS, Pastor.

Hayes

The Missionary Auxiliary of Chestnut Ridge has suffered a great loss in the death of one of its devoted members, Mrs. Cora Belle Hayes. She was a faithful worker, a true friend, and a lovely Christian character whose memory we cherish, and whose influence will be missed.

Be it resolved, first, that each individual member of this society ever remember Mrs. Hayes' beautiful character and her kind and gentle manner.

Second, that it is with saddened hearts that we tender this tribute of love and sympathy to her husband and children, and pray they will find consolation in the Divine Book and the Heavenly Father's presence.

Third, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, and a copy be recorded in the minutes of the society; also that a copy be sent to the Missionary Record and Methodist Protestant Herald for publication.

White

Mrs. Mary Turner White, wife of L. E. White, born July 31, 1856, departed this life June 15, 1935, age 78 years, 10 months and 15 days.

She was married to L. E. White, who survives her, November 12, 1882. Three children were born to this union, one girl and two boys. One of the sons is still living.

They joined Mt. Lebanon church, Randleman charge, during the year of 1888, joining at the same time. Early in the history of West End church, Greensboro, they transferred their membership to said church. A consistent member she remained till the Lord called her home.

In her last years she was not able to attend her church, but always manifested a keen interest in the work that was being done there.

"Grandma" White, as she was affectionately known, was a fine-spirited Christian woman. For many years she and her husband kept the boarding house at Pomona Mills. Many of these "children" of hers came to show their love and interest by their words and the flowers that they gave. She loved them all and treated them as if they had been her own.

Her tenderest affection was shown for her husband. She was always showing in some special way her love for him. She had been talking for some time to him about going home. They had enjoyed their 54 years together, and as they grew older they were more devoted to each other than ever.

She was ready when the summons came. She fell asleep as a child goes to its rest, without a struggle.

The funeral was conducted from the church that she loved, West End, with Rev. Mr. Cook, of the Baptist church, assisting. Then we took her body to the family plot, Reidsville, where Dr. George R. Brown also assisted in the final rites.

Our sympathy and prayers are for the bereaved husband.

Cranford

Mary Jane Russell Cranford was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Lane Russell. She passed away June 21, 1935, age about 90 years. About 50 years ago she was married to Mr. Leonard Cranford, who preceded her in death November 6, 1909. To this union four children were morn—twin girls who died in infancy, and two sons, Jasper and Clay Cranford, of Denton, who survive her. She had two stepchildren, Mrs. J. A. Thompson, who died 33 years ago, and Mrs. T. F. Harrison, who survives her. She is also survived by seven grandchildren. She had 10 brothers and sisters, all of whom have passed on except T. L. Russell, of Montgomery, and Mrs. Martha Poole, of Hendersonville, N. C. She leaves a host of friends and relatives to mourn her going.

In early life she joined Center Methodist church, but later moved her membership to Mt. Ebal Methodist Protestant church, where she remained a member until death.

The funeral was conducted at Silome M. E. church Saturday afternoon, June 22, 1935, by the writer, who was assisted by Rev. E. A. Bingham.

May the Lord comfort the bereaved.

J. T. BOWMAN.

Pike

Mrs. Henrietta Braswell Holland Pike, one of the oldest members of the Methodist Protestant church, passed away at her home in Enfield on May 3, 1935. She was born near Tarboro December 14, 1851, and was the daughter of Benjamin J. Braswell and Mary Hargrove Braswell. At the age of 14 she joined Bradford's Methodist Protestant church.

Mrs. Pike was twice married, her first husband being W. P. Holland, of Goldsboro. To this union there were born four children, Benjamin C. Holland, deceased; Mrs. W. G. Thompson, Goldsboro; Mrs. E. K. Neville, Whitakers, and Mrs. A. B. Crumpler, Clinton.

Some years after Mr. Holland's death she married E. L. Pike, of Enfield. To this union there were born three children, Miss Dorothy Pike and Mrs. C. H. Sullivan, Enfield, and E. L. Pike, Jr., deceased.

Mrs. Pike was a devoted mother, a kindly neighbor, and a loyal church member. She was a regular attendant at church services as long as her health would permit.

In November, 1931, she suffered a stroke of paralysis from which she never recovered. During the years in which she was an invalid her devoted daughters were untiring in their loving care and attention. All that was humanly possible was done to bring pleasure and comfort to her. On May 3, 1935, she passed away, and on the following afternoon she was lovingly laid to rest in Elmwood cemetery. The services were conducted by Rev. E. O. Peeler, assisted by Rev. Sam Hable, of the Baptist church.

MR. AND MRS. SPENCER CELEBRATE

It was the editor's good fortune on Tuesday evening to go with Mrs. Pritchard and Mr. and Mrs. Howard R. Neece to the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Spencer, of near Guilford College, to enjoy a good supper and to have a part in the sixth wedding anniversary of both Mr. and Mrs. Spencer and Mr. and Mrs. Neece. Mr. and Mrs. Spencer are members of Calvary church and are usually present on Sunday mornings. Mrs. Spencer was the former Miss Eudora Younginer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Younginer, of our church in Asheville.

CORRESPONDENTS MUST SEND NAMES ALONG

There is a universal rule among publishers requiring people sending articles for publication to send their name along, not necessarily for publication. We must insist on strict adherence to this rule. Henceforth no article will be published until the writer can be identified. Those who do not want their names used can put the name in parenthesis somewhere on the manuscript and that will be sufficient.

MR. AND MRS. DAVIS CELEBRATE WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Coleman Davis, of Pilot Mountain, members of our church at Pinnacle, will celebrate their sixtieth wedding anniversary on Saturday afternoon and evening of this week. How we wish we could be present! They are among the salt of the earth. We wish for them many more anniversaries.

BILLY CAUDLE TO REPRESENT BOY SCOUTS

Billy Caudle, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Caudle, of Calvary church, has been elected to represent the Calvary church Boy Scout troop in the national Scout Jamboree in Washington, D. C., in August. Billy has made a fine record in Scouting and is a fine boy.

MISS WILLIAMS TAKES CHOIR TO HIGH POINT

Miss Elizabeth Williams, the director of the Young People's choir of Calvary church, took her choir to High Point Monday evening where they sang in competition with other choirs on the opening evening of the Leadership Training School.

Calvary church received two more new members on profession of faith last Sunday, these being Bettie Rose Kirkman and Glenn Leach. These bring the number up to 17 that have been received this conference year.

MARRIED

Ledbetter-Matlock

At 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon, June 23, 1935, J. W. Matlock, Jr., and Myrtle Ledbetter were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. O. Ledbetter, Burlington, N. C., the writer officiating. Just a few friends witnessed the ceremony.

Myrtle, a fine Christian young woman, member of Fountain Place Methodist Protestant church, has for some time been with the Woolworth store in Burlington until a few months prior to her marriage. She is a favorite of a host of friends who join in wishing her the best of life's blessings in this new relationship.

The groom is a successful young merchant of Elon College, having taken over the business of his father a few years ago when the latter died. He too is an exemplary young man and we predict for them both a life of usefulness.

The happy couple left immediately after the ceremony to spend their honeymoon in Asheville and the mountains of western North Carolina.

Our prayers and best wishes are for them.

CALVARY'S VOTE FOR DELEGATE CLOSE

The members of Calvary church evidently thought they had two good men as nominees for delegate to the next Annual Conference. In the voting last Sunday morning the candidate receiving the smaller number of votes lacked only one vote receiving as many as did the high man. The two nominees were Brothers E. F. Caudle and Robah Fields. The winner will be announced at the quarterly conference on Tuesday evening, July 9.

Mr. Simpson needs no introduction to the public of Greensboro and vicinity, as he has been a resident of this city for more than 40 years. He has had many years' experience as a funeral director . . . and we feel fortunate in having secured him to join our staff.

Tabernacle is still in the limelight and is still marching on. Some of these days they are going to reach the goal and what an event that is going to be! Reidsville and Gibsonville still hold on to their relative standing as of last week, although they are silent this week. If they do not watch their step, somebody will come along and trip them some of these days.

Now for the receipts of this week. There are two places that send in the same amount, First church, Burlington, and Granville charge. Burlington is still far in the lead in the entire conference so far as the number of subscriptions turned in is concerned. But while Granville has not reached the goal yet, that pastor down there, that noble son of Randolph county, is determined that his charge shall go forward, so he just keeps on working.

Next in line in the procession is State Street charge. The contribution from that charge this week is from Bethesda church. Mrs. Brinkley sells the papers and so that church also is steadily climbing. If there is any other charge that would like to use that plan, write us about it.

Who said the people had forgotten the subsidy? Well, they have not. Here comes Denton charge with subsidy in full. Mr. Printer, give them a big star. And Bethel church on Alamance charge sends in its apportionment on subsidy. This brings Alamance charge to within 1.93 of its apportionment on subsidy. Some of these days we are going to say to the printer, Give Alamance a star for subsidy, also.

Well, the receipts pick up considerably this week. The teller at the bank usually remembers from week to week just how much we deposited the previous week. I can almost hear him comment now on the pickup for this week, although he has not yet seen the deposit. The receipts amount to an even $47.00, $32.00 being on subscriptions and $15.00 being on subsidy.

The Future Leadership of the Church

Those who are interested in the welfare of the church are thinking in terms of its future leadership. Whether we continue as a separate denomination as we have done for the past one hundred years or whether we unite with other denominations, one thing is true, our local churches must go on in the most of cases. The question comes to every one of us, What kind of a church will this church of the future be? And we are not thinking in terms of the future leadership of the church because we are tired of the present leadership or dissatisfied with it, but we are thinking in terms of the future leadership because of the fact that it will not be long until a new leadership must take charge of things. In fact the leadership is changing daily. In the twenty-three years that we have been in the Annual Conference we have seen the personnel change almost completely. It is true that there are some people in the conference yet who were active at the time of our entering but we all are painfully conscious day by day of the fact that those who have been active in the past are slipping out one by one and others are coming in to take their places. While this might not be pleasant for some people to think about, yet it is everlastingly true. It has always been true and always will be true, whether we like it or not. No one generation has any permanent hold upon the affairs of this life. And in a great many respects it is fortunate that they do not. Some one has remarked recently that it is in a changing age that we stand some chance of getting things done, that is, of changing things for the better.

While perhaps it is true that all of the denominations have some things to make them take courage, yet ours in particular has a great deal to make us hopeful. A few years ago we were greatly gratified to hear the secretary of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America make the statement that the Methodist Protestant church had more young men studying for the ministry in proportion to its membership than did any other denomination in America. It is true that a depression has come along since that statement was made and has played havoc with the plans of some of our choice young people, yet there are many who are still anxious to prepare themselves for the largest possible service to the Kingdom. When we think of the splendid young men that have come into our conference in the past few years, young men of great promise and men that any denomination would be glad to have, surely we have cause to thank God and take courage.

But we are not thinking entirely in terms of the ministerial leadership of our church, but of its lay leadership as well. What kind of laymen and lay women are we to have in the future? That is a question that should concern every one of us. And here we might say that we have nothing to fear. In our local churches we find a host of bright young people who are finishing high school and college who are very much devoted to the church. And while a great many writers are writing about so many of the young people drinking today, yet we have not seen any of our young church people drinking, neither have we heard of them drinking. We have not shut ourselves up in a shell either. We have gone here and there and have mingled with various groups of young people and those we have seen in the main are fine, clean young people, young people who have good common sense. Of course, they are not angels by any means, but the most of them are dependable.

Not only do we find these young people in our local churches but we find them in our Leadership schools as well. On Monday evening of last week it was our privilege to be at High Point College in the opening service of our Leadership Training School. It was a fine looking group of young people and we believe the most of them were as fine as they looked to be. Ten of them were from the church that we serve and we think we know them fairly well. We are sure that the others there were of a good quality also. And how those young people who composed the Young People's choirs did sing! No one could listen to such singing without having a more optimistic outlook concerning the future. It is true that these young people do not do everything you would like for them to do. We understand they did not sing our "Welcome" song in the dining room, a thing we were anxious for them to do. However, the young people themselves are not always responsible for some things not being done. But to see this fine group of young people and to remember that they were there to study the Bible and to study about the church and about music and to study better methods of doing things was refreshing indeed.

Since the young people are to be the future leaders of the church, the question comes to us, What kind of leaders do we want for the future church? If we were permitted to choose the ones that are to succeed us we would say that we should like for them to have their feet firmly planted upon the Rock, Christ Jesus. To our way of thinking this is of supreme importance. There are many things these days that are very important in our modern life, but the one thing which we believe to be above everything else is faith in the atoning sacrifice of our Lord Jesus Christ. If the young people believe in Christ with all their heart, there are a great many other things that will take care of themselves. Social service is very important and has its place in modern life. Honesty in business and social life are also important, but these things will naturally follow if men have the right attitude toward Christ. We want our young people to have the best advantages that are possible in order that they may live the broadest and best possible lives. We trust they may be able to accomplish more than the people of the past generation have been able to accomplish, and in order for them to do this we believe training is necessary. We rejoice in the fine work that is being done for the young people and want to help the cause along. We congratulate those who are taking the lead in this good work and pray that their hands may be strengthened for the tasks that are yet ahead.

No Herald August 1

It has been decided that the summer vacation for the Herald force this year will be the week following the fourth Sunday in July. So there will be no issue of the paper Thursday, August 1. This is in harmony with the contract which we have with the printers and with subscribers also, that only fifty issues of the paper are to be printed each year.

WHAT THE BIBLE SAYS ABOUT PRAYER

By Rev. T. M. Johnson, D. D.

A phrase, "I pray thee," was frequently used in Old Testament times not as a prayer to God but as a request of man. "Let there be no strife, I pray thee, between me and thee." Gen. 13:8. Elijah asking hospitality of the widow of Zarephath, said, "Fetch me, I pray thee, a little water in a vessel, that I may drink. . . . Bring me, I pray thee, a morsel of bread in thine hand." 1 Kings 17:10, 11. Occasionally a prayer to God took this form. "And Elisha prayed, and said, Lord, I pray thee, open his eyes, that he may see." 2 Kings 6:17.

It Is Natural for Man to Pray

It is as natural for man to pray when conscious of a need as it is to take food when hungry or water when thirsty. This is noted incidentally rather than by a direct statement. "In my distress I called upon the Lord, and cried unto my God." Ps. 18:6. This is especially true in an emergency. "Then Jonah prayed unto the Lord his God out of the fish's belly, and said, I cried by reason of mine affliction unto the Lord." Jonah 2:1, 2.

However, we should cultivate the faculty of prayer until it becomes a well-nigh irresistible power in our lives. Men in the Bible and out, who have been leaders in the moral and religious realm, have invariably been men of prayer, as Abraham, Moses, Isaiah, Paul, Luther, Wesley, Moody. Jesus, the great Teacher, the Leader of leaders, prayed often and much.

Prayer More Than Asking

Since Bible reading is God talking to us and in prayer we are talking to God, may we not think of any talking to God as prayer, including much more than the simple asking for something of God? It may be thanking God, praising God, adoring God in thought, or consecration to the service of God. "In everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God." Phil. 4:6.

Fasting Is Associated With Prayer

Whether or not fasting may be thought of as a part of prayer, it certainly should be thought of as not apart from prayer. "That ye may give yourselves to fasting and prayer." 1 Cor. 7:5. "This kind can come forth by nothing but by prayer and fasting." Mark 9:29. "And when they had fasted and prayed, and laid their hands on them, they sent them away." Acts 13:3. That is, out of the great revival of Antioch the church sent Barnabas and Paul on the first great missionary journey.

Promise and Assurance

We have many promises in the Bible that prayers shall be answered. "He (God) heareth the prayer of the righteous." Prov. 15:29. "Ask and it shall be given you; seek and ye shall find; knock and it shall be opened unto you." Luke 11:9.

Persons may have assurance that their prayers, in some instances, are answered even before the answer comes. "And she (Hannah) was in bitterness of soul, and prayed unto the Lord, and wept sore. . . . So the woman went her way, and did eat (she had been fasting), and her countenance was no more sad." 1 Sam. 1:10, 18. She was assured that her prayer was answered, though the answer itself had not reached her, only the assurance.

Hezekiah was sick unto death. "Then Hezekiah turned his face toward the wall, and prayed unto the Lord. . . . Then came the word of the Lord unto Isaiah, saying, Go and say to Hezekiah, Thus saith the Lord, the God of David thy father, I have heard thy prayer, I have seen thy tears: behold, I will add to thy days fifteen years." Isa. 38:2, 3. The prophet came to bring the assurance, but it would require fifteen years for Hezekiah to receive the full answer—the fifteen years that were to be added to his life.

Condition to Be Met

In order that we may pray with the understanding, we need to keep in mind that certain conditions must be met by all who pray, if the prayer is to be answered.

The spirit in which we pray must be unselfish. "Ye ask, and receive not, because ye ask amiss, that ye may consume it upon your lusts" (or pleasures). Jas. 4:3. As an instance that blessings are bestowed on us on condition that we pass it on to others, that is, unselfishness on our part, is that of God's promise to Abraham. "I will bless thee . . . and thou shalt be a blessing." Gen. 12:2.

Another condition is that sin must be gotten out of the heart. "If I regard iniquity in my heart, the Lord will not hear me." Ps. 66:18.

Another condition is that we must have a forgiving spirit. "And when ye stand praying, forgive, if ye have aught against any; that your Father also which is in heaven may forgive you your trespasses." Mark 11:25. "For if ye forgive men their trespasses, your heavenly Father will also forgive you: but if ye forgive not men their trespasses, neither will your Father forgive your trespasses." Matt. 6:14, 15. That is final, the condition must be met.

Another condition is abiding in Christ. "If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you." John 15:7.

Faith also is a condition in every instance. "Therefore I say unto you, what things soever ye desire, when ye pray, believe that ye receive them, and ye shall have them." Mark 11:24.

Prayer a High Art

Someone has said, "Prayer is a high art." I am persuaded that the highest type of this high art is intercessory prayer. What else is there so unselfish, so Christlike, as an individual interceding for another? Not for myself, O Lord, not for myself, but for others, do I ask this of thee.

Note the lofty height to which the unselfish life of our Lord rises in His intercessory prayer recorded in the 17th chapter of John. After praying for himself unselfishly, "Father, the hour is come; glorify thy Son, that thy Son also may glorify thee" (John 17:1), the Master turns His great heart of love most earnestly to a petition for His followers: "I pray for them . . . Holy Father, keep through thine own name those whom thou hast given me, that they may be one, as we are "verses 9 and 11). Then His petition to the Father sweeps down the ages to include us. "Neither pray I for these (that is, His then-followers) alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through their word" (V. 20), evidently through the centuries to the end. Dear reader, do you not feel that all followers of Him should bow low in humble appreciation of the fact that we all are included!

The Lord's Prayer, recorded in Matt. 6:9-13, is a "gem of rarest ray serene," or, to change the figure, is a star of the first magnitude in the galaxy of prayers. Another of the first magnitude is the prayer of King Solomon at the dedication of the Temple, recorded in 1 Kings 8 and 2 Chron. 6. One other, the most beautiful and brilliant of all, is the intercessory prayer of Jesus, quoted from above, recorded in John, 17th chapter.

The Men's Bible Class, First Church, Thomasville

The Men's Bible Class of the First Church, Thomasville, N. C., was reorganized on the first Sunday in January, 1934, with thirty-five members. Today there are one hundred and thirty-seven members. The steady growth of this class has been even more remarkable when it is remembered that no contest of any kind has been resorted to in the hope of attracting large numbers. Personal work and interesting programs have done the work. At all times it has been the aim of those promoting the class to render all the service possible to the men in the class in order that these men might be lined up for the work of the Kingdom of God. There are some committees that have been very active in accomplishing this great task. These committees are: Membership, Program, Sick, Employment, Scout, Donations and Birthday. The class has sponsored a Boy Scout troop which has a membership of around thirty-five. Not having sufficient room for the best results, this class is now sponsoring a movement to build a new parsonage with the view of converting the old parsonage into Sunday school rooms.

On its homecoming day recently this class had 147 persons present. The officers of the class are:

President, Walter Martin; First Vice-President, Thomas Hicks; Second Vice-President, Lee Freedle; Secretary, Bynum Wright; Assistant Secretary, Charles Prevost; Treasurer, W. G. Shoemaker; Assistant Treasurer, Harris Dorsett; Pianist, Virginia Dorsett; Teacher, Mrs. H. A. Ragan; Assistant Teacher, I. A. Teague.

H. A. Garrett Critically Ill

Friends everywhere of Brother H. A. Garrett will be sorry to hear that he is critically ill in the Clinic Hospital in Greensboro. Brother Garrett had not been well for some time, but on Monday morning of this week he and Mrs. Garrett came to the home of Brother Garrett's father-in-law, Rev. T. F. McCulloch, in Greensboro, to spend the day, and Brother Garrett was taken suddenly ill and was removed to the hospital in an ambulance. His entire left side is paralyzed and he remains in an unconscious condition. Brother Garrett is one of our best known laymen, having been superintendent of our Children's Home at High Point from 1912 to 1924 and having been field agent for High Point College for a couple of years. For the past several years he has lived on his farm in Alamance county and has been active in the work at Friendship church, Mt. Hermon circuit. Pray for him that he may be spared.

WHAT'S RIGHT WITH THE CHURCH

By P. E. Lindley

Our editor has been kind enough to invite me to prepare a series of short articles for the Herald, and I, appreciating the honor, have decided to make an attempt. The general subject will be the words you see at the top of this paragraph —"What's Right With the Church." Some particular element of the life and influence of the church will be discussed each week, unless, of course, something happens to disrupt the continuity of the plan.

So many have taken in hand to tell us what is wrong with the church that it ought to fall to someone to point out the good qualities. On every hand we hear criticisms and shortcomings of the ancient institution while seldom indeed does one gather many tributes of praise.

There are, to be sure, reasons for this tendency. For one thing, we are inclined to picture a church of perfection made up of perfect people, while, as a matter of truth, just ordinary human beings constitute the body of believers. They are not perfect; mistakes are often made, and no one should expect to find a spotless group every time he goes to worship. A noted writer states that God's great men have always been God's imperfect men. Still we seem to think the church should be faultless and when a brother does stumble on the upward way voices arise to publish the error to all who will lend an ear. Black shows deepest on white; in a similar manner, the ailments of humanity cause greatest alarm when found among the saints.

Besides, it would be no news to publish the good things about good people. A story has news value in proportion to its novelty. When it comes to the church, therefore, we pass it up with no special comment, since, as everyone knows, it is a good institution not behaving itself unseemly. When the barroom holds a revival you have news, or when a church sells liquor there is something to talk about. But so long as the church moves on quietly doing its work, ministering to the needy, inspiring people to look up and worship, there is hardly anything to move the sensational reporter to take up the pen and write.

Again, the sincere leader longs to see the church improved and consequently lends himself at times to an analysis of her ills. Such searching study is all meant for the good and the strengthening of the cause, but is often gathered up by the less responsible and quoted in an effort to mislead the people and thus discredit the institution itself.

Finally, the unthinking crowd, with more words than wisdom, assails the church from every side. Ignorance speaks a loud language. The stormy tirades of the critics at times almost overwhelm the pious prayers of the believers. To hear certain speakers or to read certain books, one would think the church nearly dead and straightway prepare himself for the funeral. But the church moves on, stronger than ever, and shall continue to move on under the loving care of our Divine Providence, spreading its heavenly blessings everywhere.

It ought to be refreshing, I think, to pause occasionally and meditate upon the wonderful character and benefits of organized religion. This, in a very brief way, we shall attempt to do, and we hope the patience of the gentle reader may tire not along the way.

THE PEOPLE RESPONSIBLE

With clear logic and keen discrimination, Common Pleas Judge Harry T. Tyler, of St. Clairsville, Ohio, June 11, 1935, puts his judicial finger on the real culprits in a case where a man was slain in a beer joint brawl. The jury had found the defendant guilty of assault and battery, holding that the victim was as much at fault as the defendant. In other words, it was the climax to a typical barroom "free-for-all," "the likes of which" are to be witnessed almost any night in the ordinary "beer parlor" in this repeal regime. The weapon used was a beer stein, thrown by the defendant and cutting the throat of the victim.

But hear the judge in pronouncing sentence:

"The state comes into court with unclean hands."

"Legal beer was the cause of the tragedy."

"The people of Ohio are morally responsible for conditions such as occurred at Fairport" (the scene of the crime) because "the state allows it (liquor) to be sold and is sole agent in the sale."

Beer and the people of Ohio the real murderers! Beer because it created the condition—the people because they legaliezd its sale. That's plain talk but gospel truth.

It has long been held that irresponsibility because of intoxication does not absolve the criminal from punishment for his crime. This is undoubtedly a wise ruling—but from a moral standpoint where legal liquor is plainly the real murderer, the state is guilty, that is, the people, who permit its sale for a price, are guilty.

The state of Ohio, as many other states, has donned the white apron of a bartender. Would it not be just for the state to indemnify the dependents of victims such as in this case? It's the least the state could do—and be just.

We quote from a six-page booklet issued under date of September 22, 1934, by the state liquor control department:

"The department has an efficient business which is monthly reporting a substantial profit to its stockholders—the people of Ohio."

The judge is right—the people of Ohio—stockholders in a booze business—are responsible, and the people of every state where liquor is sold by their consent are responsible.

All who want to get out of the dirty business are urged to unite in a concerted campaign to restore prohibition.—The American Issue.

STANDING BY ONE ANOTHER

Most of us yet need to learn the necessity of standing by one another—even to the uttermost parts of the earth. The world has become strangely knit together, and the matter of sharing the better things of life with men and women throughout the world—call it missions or what you will—presses upon us as a vital necessity. We may say that pestilence, famine, flood, war, or any social evil at a distance is outside our interest, but our error will prove costly. Ignorance, vice, sin, disease, and selfishness are no respectors of persons. Their effect is far-reaching and their influences extend beyond national economic and racial boundaries. We may shun the poor woman brought down with some deadly fever in our community, and we may call her passing a relief to society, but when the deadly thing strikes within our very home, smiting our own with untimely death, we become brothers in death of the poor woman whose kinship we denied in life, by refusing to see it as our responsibility to minister to her stricken body which incubated and spread abroad the deadly germs.

We may close our eyes to the need of India in her superstition, ignorance and vice; we may turn a deaf ear to the calls of the millions of Chinese crying for an opportunity for the better life; we may refuse to consider it within our sphere to be concerned with the congestion, vice, and low economic conditions of the Japanese, massed in unlivable textile neighborhoods; but if we could only see with comprehending eyes, we should be quick to understand that these evils extend their effect to our very door. We must yet learn that those living in lower conditions must either be lifted, or, by the nature of things, the higher will inevitably be lowered. There will either be a lifting or a leveling. One wonders if our present world economic dilemma does not bring home to us our failure to accept the responsibility of lifting, of sharing, and of standing by our neighbors around the world!

Missions have become a serious business when viewed in the light of its effect as a Christian impact upon evils—not of a big, wide world, but of a world which has become a neighborhood. Missions in such a world no longer remain simply a philanthropy a beautiful deed or an act of mercy. A sharing of the best we have with all the world has become a vital necessity and the act of Christian statesmanship.

In this day of scientific advancement when men are thinking of world circumnavigation in terms of hours instead of months no nation can live unto itself. The world has become a neighborhood whether we recognize our responsibility as neighbors or not. What affects one part of that neighborhood world affects the other. Chaos in the East will mean chaos in the West. The time has come when the citizens of this neighborhood world should become neighbors in the finer sense of the word. The time has come when our world must think in terms of some force that will blot out social, economical, national, and international evils. This necessity is driving us to think in terms of a spiritual and moral force which will furnish a basis whereby men can live together in this neighborhood world. Does it not seem that we are driven to share the spirit of Jesus with all men? The outlook seems dark indeed if somehow the spirit of Jesus as demonstrated in His life and teaching—the brotherhood of man and the Fatherhood of God—cannot save this neighboring world. It remains to be tried in moral earnestness!—W. T. S., in Christian Sun.

So many people are asking us the price of a front page picture that we are announcing that we charge absolutely nothing for printing a picture of any of our churches or Sunday school classes or any other organization of your church. In case you do not have a cut made it will cost about $3.50 to have one made. In some cases we have accommodated churches by having the cut made here in Greensboro, but where a church has one already made we shall be glad to have it.

FEDERAL COUNCIL VOTES ENDORSEMENT OF PEACE PLEBISCITE

New York.—The proposal that a national peace plebiscite be held in this country was endorsed by the Department of International Justice and Goodwill of the Federal Council of Churches at a meeting of the department.

The proposal was referred to the National Peace Conference with the "full approval" of the department.

The proposal that a peace plebiscite, such as that conducted in Great Britain, be held in every country originated with the Swedish Ecumenical Council, which transmitted the proposal to the Universal Christian Council on Life and Work and the World Alliance for International Friendship through the Churches. The matter was then referred to the Department of Relations with Churches Abroad and the Department of International Goodwill of the Federal Council.

Dr. Walter Van Kirk, secretary of the department, said that such an undertaking could best be conducted under the auspices of all of the various peace organizations rather than by the churches alone. He said that there was a "growing interest" in plebiscites generally and told of the vote taken by the Madison Avenue Presbyterian church in New York and of the poll to be taken by the Congregational and Christian churches during the Armistice period this year.—*N. Our Two New Features

This week we are able to present to our readers two new features, one by Rev. N. G. Bethea, D. D., the pastor of West End church in Greensboro, who, at the request of the president of the Conference Council of Religious Education, Rev. T. J. Whitehead, is giving us the first of a series of devotional talks to the Leadership Training School at High Point College last week. The other series is by Dr. P. E. Lindley, the dean of High Point College, who is beginning a new series, at the request of the editor, on the subject, "What Is Right With the Church." On the evening of April 25, Dean Lindley spoke in the anniversary services at Calvary church on the subject which he is using for the series, and as he spoke the editor had a feeling that our people ought to have this and told Dean Lindley so. Owing to the busy schedule of Dr. Lindley it was not possible to begin this series immediately; however, we are glad to present them at this time.

We are pleased to present on the first page this week a picture of the Men's Bible Class of our First church, Thomasville, N. C. The career of this class has been rather remarkable. One thing that may seem strange to some people is that a men's class with a woman teacher could do such marvelous things, but those who know the teacher, Mrs. A. H. Ragan, can understand in part why the class succeeds as it does. When the editor was pastor of this same church in 1915, Mrs. Ragan, then Miss Grace Harris, was a tower of strength to this church, even though she was then only in her teens. As the years have come and gone she has lost none of her enthusiasm. Brother Luther Jarrett also is another one in this class that we have known in other days, and he, too, is a valuable worker. We trust this class may continue to grow and prosper.

BRITISH CHURCHMEN ISSUE WORLDWIDE APPEAL FOR CHRISTIANS TO UNITE FOR PEACE

London.—An appeal to Christians in other lands for renewed action to "allay the fear and suspicion and hostility now existing between the governments of the world" has been signed by Canon C. E. Raven and the Rev. Henry Carter, joint chairmen of the Council of Christian Pacifist Groups, and by twelve other leading churchmen of different denominations.

The appeal asserts that the governments of the powers are embarking upon an armaments race which will embitter international relations and which, if not checked, will result in another war. The appeal further states that the situation requires "united witness on the part of Christians everywhere."

"We wish to record that, whatever governments may do, we are ready at any time to co-operate with you and other Christian brethren in other lands in a new effort to bring about disarmament and peace," the appeal said.—N. C. J. C. News Service.

METHODIST CHURCH PROTESTS INCREASE IN ARMAMENTS

London.—Deep disappointment at the policy of increasing the nation's armaments has been expressed to the government by the Independent Methodist church. A declaration forwarded to the government asserted that this policy leads to the destruction of any hopes of a disarmament convention and to the strengthening of the tendency to form national groups for defense. The declaration urges that everything possible be done to bring Germany back into the League of Nations and implores the government to act on the opinion of the nation as expressed in the peace plebiscite.

Ninety-one churches have already made representations to the government as a result of its decision to increase armaments.—N. C. J. C. News Service.

THE LORD WILL PROVIDE

The Lord graciously gives us even now all things necessary for this life and godliness; but His choicest blessings are held in reserve for time to come. Grace given to us from day to day is our spending money for traveling expenses on the road home, but is not our estate. Providential supplies are rations on the march, but not the ultimate feast of love. We may miss these wayside meals, but we are bound for the Supper of the Lamb.—C. H. Spurgeon.

AFRAID

I once met a little boy in Wales, crying bitterly at his father's door, afraid to go in. I asked him what was the matter. He told me that his mother had sent him out clean in the morning, but that he had got into the water and made his clothes dirty. So he feared to go in, because his father would punish him. We have soiled our characters by sin, and therefore is it that we fear death—dread the meeting with our Father.—Thomas Jones.

OUR STORY PAGE

THAT JOE HICKS

"I don't believe that I can go to Sunday school any more," sighed Lois Chamberlain, throwing her furs down on a couch and leaning on her elbows on the table while she gazed at her mother.

"What's the trouble, dear?"

"It's that Joe Hicks! Actually, Mother, I don't think there is such a badly behaved boy anywhere. And just when I had the class, nobody else could manage, becoming a model, that this boy should be put into it and upset everything—it's a shame!"

Lois' voice sounded tearful.

"It is discouraging, child, but after all, what are Sunday schools for?"

"Well, they are not reformatories!" was the forceful reply.

"No, that's true. But I suppose you would not have taught the Bible to the best, would you?"

"No-o," confessed Lois.

She was revealed now as a young woman of exceedingly delicate appearance, well dressed, hair becomingly arranged, eyes shining with the intelligence and will which caused the five boys in a class for which it was difficult to find a teacher, to sit up and take notice.

"Mother, he's as rude as he can be. His clothes need patching, and his hands—I don't believe that they have been washed for a month. What kind of a home has he come from?"

"That's for you to find out, my dear," answered Mrs. Chamberlain, in a tone which sent Lois to her room to do some serious thinking and considerable praying.

Lois Chamberlain was no coward. She faced something that she did not want to do. All the other boys, while unmanageable, belonged to respectable families. It was easy to go to see them in pleasant homes. She abhorred dirt.

Perhaps that was why she hesitated to enter the ramshackle house belonging to Bill Hicks, who only worked when he had to, and was perfectly willing for his wife to take in washing. She was at it now—red-faced and in good humor, because Bill was in bed, reading the newspaper.

"I'm Joe's Sunday school teacher," Lois explained.

Mrs. Hicks wrung the soap from her hands and stared at this vision.

"Well, it wa'n't my doin's, sendin' him to that school. A man met him an' told him if he'd go he'd learn somethin' new an' nice—new an' nice," she repeated grimly. "Won't ye come in, miss? We ain't got much to offer ye, but you're welcome to set, an' ef ye don't mind, I'll go on with my washin'."

Lois sat down on a broken chair, and her heart sank. Joe came from this home, and she had expected fine manners and clean hands. Poverty glared at her from unpainted furniture and nicked crockery, from the hard face of the woman bending over a tub.

"Mary," called a gruff voice from above, "who's that talkin' down there?"

"It's Bill, my man; I'll go an' see what he wants. He ain't workin' today."

While she was gone Lois made a resolution. Something must be done about Joe. He really needed help. It was a new thought to Lois, who had always considered her work in Sunday school as a sort of favor she was conferring on the church. She began to realize that it was something for God and human beings. The aim was not entirely so much money, but it was to lift up the boys and girls—to help them to be better and stronger.

It meant sacrifice, too. Beneath Mrs. Hicks' rough manner she saw a desire for better things. Maybe, in helping Joe, she could shed some light into this dark home and make things easier.

She decided to plunge in boldly.

"Mrs. Hicks, will you let Joe come and have supper with me tomorrow?"

There was silence. Lois saw tears glisten in the weary eyes.

"Aren't you Jerome Chamberlain's girl?" Mrs. Hicks asked, when the pause was growing painful.

"An' you ask my boy to come to your big, fine house? Why, he ain't got no clothes fit to wear. An' he's dirty an' unkempt, an' plays on the street. Why? 'Cos I'm always at the washtub an' can't tend to the children. They ain't got no real home, nor no place to go. Why are ye doin' this?"

"I guess," answered Lois, slowly, "it's for the Lord Jesus Christ's sake and because He said, 'Let the little ones come unto me.'"

"I ain't heard much about Him since I was a girl. I used ter go ter Sunday school in them days, an' that's why I let Joe go so easy. Joe'll come tomorrow night, Miss Chamberlain, an' thank you."

"What're ye doin'?" growled Bill that night.

"I'm mendin' up Joe's one suit," she answered, with a touch of bitterness. "He's goin' to supper at Jerome Chamberlain's big house."

Bill laughed. "Wot are ye talkin' about, old woman? Jerome Chamberlain! Well, if he'd gimme a chance, I'd go to work fer good in his factories, an' stick."

"Ye wouldn't, honest, Bill?"

Mrs. Hicks dropped Joe's brown jacket, on which she was putting a black patch, and stared at her husband.

"I just would, sure thing, Mary. But there ain't a chance o' that."

Bill Hicks and his wife watched Joe as he made his exit from the half-ruined house which they got cheap, because it was liable to fall down any minute.

Bill's eyes were big with surprise and some pride, seeing how fine Joe looked in clothes neatly patched and pressed by a very weary mother, his face shiny with soap. It had been a trying experience for Joe, and he wished sincerely that he had never set eyes on Miss Chamberlain or gone near the Sunday school. It was a trap for unwary boys to make them get washed.

"Now, be sure to say, 'Yes, ma'am,' an' 'Thank ye' every time. Don't let 'em think we didn't teach you no manners,'' warned Mrs. Hicks.

''An' if ye should see Jerome,'' added Bill, ''tell him—''

Mrs. Hicks pulled him inside the door.

''It ain't polite, Bill. You mustn't tell Joe to ask Chamberlain fer no favors. But oh, Bill, if ye only could git a place there!''

Mrs. Hicks, worn out by days and nights of work, threw her apron over her head and cried, while Bill awkwardly tried to comfort her.

It was a trying occasion for Lois, as well as for Joe Hicks—one never to be forgotten. She and her mother ate supper with a tongue-tied boy.

But beefsteak and potatoes, pudding and chocolate will do wonders, and by the time that Jerome Chamberlain put his latch-key into the door—having been requested by his daughter to eat at a restaurant—Joe was quite at home. His hair was rumpled, as usual; he was looking at magazines.

The business man sat down in an armchair and watched the boy's face. It was an honest, open face.

He watched Lois, too, and something made his heart feel very warm and tender. To him it was a great thing that the girl who loved the beautiful should be entertaining a boy from Jones' Alley ''for Christ's sake.''

Then Lois sang the ''Wonderful Story'' of how Jesus was here among men and called to Him the children and blessed them. The firelight shone on Joe's face as she sang this hymn, and he was very quiet.

''Is your father Bill Hicks who used to work at Parker's?'' asked Mr. Chamberlain, when 9 o'clock struck, and Joe was about to leave.

''Yes, sir.''

''Got fired from there, didn't he? Maybe it wasn't his fault, from what I heard today. Doing much now?''

''He don't work at all, sir.'' Joe was rapidly acquiring ''manners.''

''Well, tell him to come around to the foreman tomorrow and maybe there'll be a job for him.''

''Oh, Daddy! You're a dear. Mrs. Hicks will be so happy, Daddy.''

Mrs. Hicks was happy, but stern.

''Did you remember your manners, as I told you?'' she asked, trying not to let her joy show in her face. Bill had promised to do his best now at the factory.

''Yes, Ma.''

''Well, remember this: Miss Chamberlain ain't a-doin' this staunt fer her own pleasure, I tell ye that. It ain't no fun fer her to take keer of a lot o' youngsters like you. Ef ye don't behave an' go clean to Sunday school ye'll have the punishment o' yer life!''

Then suddenly she stooped and kissed him and Joe threw his arms around her neck. She had been too tired and busy to kiss him for a long time.

''What then is she doin' it fer, Ma?'' asked Bill, as he turned around.

''For the Lord Jesus Christ's sake, she said,'' answered Mrs. Hicks, with a little trembling in her voice.

''I guess, mebbe we'd better go 'long with Joe,'' suggested Bill Hicks.—Western Recorder.

THE LITTLE SEMINOLES

There are still some children on this North American continent of ours who have a very odd childhood. Some little boys and girls will probably think that these little children have a wonderful time, but in fact these little mortals miss much. These children live a far different life than other children on this continent.

They live in a ''land of flowers'' which is the Spanish name for Florida. There is sunshine all the year round. These children never see snow; so they do not know the thrill that the northern children do when the first fall of snow comes. Neither do they know anything of the excitement over the news that there is ice and soon will be skating. These children never have to study. There are no schools there, because they do not want to learn any other language except their own. These children do not have to learn table manners for the simple reason that they don't have a table like ours.

Neither do they have to be careful of their dresses. Some of the lazy little boys and girls would envy them.

The Seminoles follow the laws of their ancestors as strictly as they did years ago. They believe in the Great Spirit. They have reverence for the sun, moon, and stars.

These children are not punished with a strop, but they are burnt with a hot iron.

These children miss a lot that the little Christian children enjoy. They do not know how nice it is to read the little books or the Sunday school papers. They cannot read the stories in the Bible, because they do not go to school. In fact, they have no books at all, because they have no written language.

The little boys and girls dress alike, except that the boys' dresses only come to the knee, while the little girls' dresses come to their feet. Their dresses never change in style. Imagine wearing the same style of dress all year until it wears out. These dresses are made of strips of cloth. Each strip is a different color, and are made so that the strips go around.

These children never wear hats, shoes, or stockings.

They do not get gifts at Christmas, because they never have a Christmas. They do not have the pleasure of getting up on Christmas morning to see what is in their stocking. They do not know anything about the Babe who was born in Bethlehem.

The big difference between these other children is that they do not know about Jesus.—Sunbeams.

Two Features Lacking This Week

While we are presenting two new features this week, our readers will be sorry to miss two that we have been running in the past. One is by Dr. Bates on the McCulloch Memorial Fund and the other is by Rev. R. M. Andrews, D. D., the president of the Annual Conference. Dr. Andrews writes that he was unable, physically, to meet his appointments last Sunday, but that at the time of writing, which was Monday, he was feeling better and that his physician thought he would be out again in a few days. We trust he may soon be well. We shall remember him at a Throne of Grace that he may have strength for the arduous duties of his office.

LEADERSHIP TRAINING SCHOOL HIGH POINT COLLEGE

June 24-29, 1935

Another most successful Leadership Training School has just been recorded in the history of our North Carolina Council of Religious Education, and we begin another year with a large number of better trained young people taking active part in the local church work. Some pupils added units of credit to those acquired in former years, while a great many came this year for the first time, and found happiness in a new experience.

As is always the case where young life assembles, various attitudes were discerned. Some came expecting nothing but a good time, socially speaking, and went away having experienced a new meaning of a good time. Others came with a serious purpose, and strengthened their resolution of fidelity to the task of Kingdom building, and they move fearlessly forward into a new day.

The five days were filled with study, recreation, renewing old friendships, gaining new ones, and mingling with such rich characters as Doctors Forlines, Johnson, Andrew, and other members of the faculty; mingling also for the first time, perhaps, with those whose standards and ideals were different from theirs. So we are sure these young people are better prepared to meet the problems of life than when they came.

It is gratifying to note the increasing interest in music among the groups of young people in our conference. The first evening of the school each year is given over to this department of the Conference Council work, and this year five choirs took part in the program. They were: Henderson, Spring Valley (Vance), Mt. Hermon, Calvary and West End (Greensboro). The Junior Church Choir of First church, High Point, furnished special music another evening. The class in music in religious education was the largest in the school, 32 young people taking the course.

The play Tuesday evening, "Traveling Man," presented by Rev. J. T. Bowman and a group from Denton church, was most helpful. We notice also a growing interest in this department of the Conference Council work.

The class in home missions was a popular course this year, and it was indeed a pleasure to have Rev. G. W. Andrew, principal of our Pine Ridge, Ky., school, teach this course, and speak during the Wednesday evening service. He was accompanied by Mrs. Andrew and daughter, Ruth, who spent most of their time visiting friends in and near High Point.

The faculty and every young person who know Dr. Forlines welcome his annual visit to our school. We feel that his presence is the greatest blessing we receive; as some young person expressed it, "It is worth much more than our entire expenses here to see the Brer Rabbit man." In the classroom, on the campus, in the dining hall, and particularly during those serious moments when life decisions are made, he is our counsellor and guide, and leads us into pleasant paths. He is our hero, and selfishly we wish he could be constantly among us.

The morning worship and vesper service are always high spots in our schools, and this year was no exception. We are sure these services and the evening addresses have no small part in helping young people to make life decisions. Following a challenging message on Friday evening by President T. J. Whitehead, 39 young people separated themselves from the rest of the group and signed the Life Declaration cards. Others in attendance had already signed in former years.

Mr. Whitehead is particularly gifted in directing this kind of a service. His sympathy for young people, his sincerity, and his straightforwardness soon gain for him the confidence of young people, as has been manifested during the years he has been president of the Conference Council and dean of the Summer Leadership Training School.

At the business session of the Conference Council on Tuesday, it was announced that the vice-president, Rev. J. Elwood Carroll, would be dean of the school next year. We bespeak for him the same loyalty and cooperation that has been accorded Mr. Whitehead.

An interesting feature of the commencement program on Saturday morning was the awarding of a diploma to Dr. Joy Harris Glascock, signifying that she had completed the required number of credits for graduation, and a certificate of appreciation to Mrs. J. J. Crawford, who is a regular visitor, a generous contributor, and energetic booster of our Leadership Training Schools. We hope she will be able for many years to come to continue to favor us with her presence and optimism.

Our week at High Point College each year would not be complete without the presence and frequqent "remarks" in the dining room of our genial treasurer, Rev. J. Clyde Auman. We appreciate his work as treasurer, for it is a year-round job and requires much time and thought. Our thanks are also due every member of the faculty, the dietitian, Miss Laura Thompson, the two pianists, and the college officials, particularly Mr. Gunn, for their untiring efforts in helping to make the school a success.

Thirty-five charges and 45 churches were represented in the school this year, the total attendance reaching 143. One hundred and twenty-seven of these were students and took the courses of study. Below is a list of the churches and charges represented.

Occasionally a skeptic asks the question, "Do you really accomplish anything in the Leadership Training Schools?" And we answer, "The schools are planned wisely and carefully with a great deal of prayer and sincerity of purpose, and the results are left with God, who alone can judge who is worthy."

MRS. E. LESTER BALLARD.

RATING OF YOUNG PEOPLE'S CHOIRS

Among the "high spots" of our recent Leadership Training School—and there were several—was the musical program on the first night. Five young people's choirs rendered one or two special numbers each, and the combined choir sang two selections. It was noticeable that the choirs were better prepared; they sang with greater confidence; the pieces selected were of a higher type than heretofore. Directors and accompanists, as well as individual singers, deserve much commendation.

Nearly all of the five participating choirs have been organized two years or more. They conduct weekly rehearsals. They sing regularly or frequently during the Sunday church services, as well as participate in outside programs.

The rating of these choirs is far from perfect, because the rating scale is defective. But it serves as a comparative measuring rod. Next year we hope to have a much more satisfactory system. We are pleased, however, that very little difference in points gained is discernible, except in that of Mt. Hermon church. The reason is that this choir is only of several weeks' existence, and therefore has not had the opportunities for service experienced by the others. In its favor it is to be said that the renditions of this group of young singers received as high commendation as any of them. We bespeak for them a long and useful career.

The rating of the choirs was based on: Length of time organized; usefulness within and without the local church; regularity of rehearsals; participations in previous Leadership Training Schools. Their rating follows: Mt. Hermon, Miss Truth Isley, director, 55; Calvary, Greensboro, Miss Elizabeth Williams, 95; Henderson, Miss Elizabeth Fox, 100; West End, Greensboro, L. M. Foust, 105; Spring Valley (Vance), C. B. Baskett, 105. Total points possible, 120.

Our desire for them is that they may continue in their usefulness to their church and the kingdom, by providing more worshipful music for the church services. Any suggestions for improvement in this project will be greatly appreciated.

THE HIGHWAY TO LEADERSHIP

By Rev. N. G. Bethea, D. D.

Leadership Developed by Fellowship

In effective Christian service there must be taken into consideration the great Leader of all, Jesus Christ.

Isaiah in speaking of Him in chapter 55 and verse 4 says: "Behold, I have given Him for a leader to the people." So this calls for the life dedicated to Him, for in Christ Jesus we find the embodiment of all true leadership. Then there must be a willingness to follow others who are in the lead. It takes a great deal of grace sometimes to follow unselfishly those who are placed in the lead over us.

We may question their piety, judgment, qualifications. That takes an unselfish spirit, and that is one of the best qualifications for leadership; in fact, one cannot follow the great Leader without having that which manifests the spirit of Jesus. This then means a change of heart. That does not come by taking courses. That comes by a regenerated life. One must be born again to be like Jesus. Children are first born, then they grow to maturity. That truth is plainly set forth by Christ Himself, then later by Paul in speaking of the growth that comes by the sincere milk of the word, then the strong meats. Sometimes we find people who are trying to feed upon meats and to feed others who have never been nourished upon the sincere milk of the word. We find also those who are capable of leadership who are still on the milk diet because they are not willing to pay the price of leadership. TRUE LEADERSHIP IS COSTLY!

Jesus learned the Scriptures from a child. As a young man He overcame temptation, thus setting us an example of how the leader must do if he would attain a place of usefulness. Following Jesus first, then following others in such a way as to learn and get ready for our place of trust.

Every One Must Have a Leader

There is a directing mind in everything worthwhile. Mother and father may co-operate in every way in the home, yet one of them is always the stronger in directing affairs there. It may be found that a son, or a daughter, may be the directing mind in the home. In the church there is always one to whom the membership looks for counsel when problems arise that must be settled. In our conference work there are always those who come to the rescue with a solution for problems that arise. Sometimes when one does come with a nanswer it may place him in position to dominate the thought of the whole body. These things are observed in politics, in education and economics, and even on the school grounds and with children at play directing minds are seen at work. Failures come in many instances because of a spirit that is selfish, that will not follow others. The unselfish are generally acknowledged in affairs of the church. Woe be to that church and its progress that is influenced by selfish people.

Are Leaders Born or Made?

Like folks they are first born, then grown, just like Christians are first born, then grown in, not into, the Kingdom of God. Life properly ordered develops the best qualities. When there is development, expression will be given. It is bound to show itself for the good of others. When we have the strength it takes to be a Christian, it will let its light shine, it will out. Candles lighted are put upon a candlestick, not under a bushel. Do not look for a place in the Kingdom unless the light of that Kingdom is burning within you. If there is a desire to do something for Jesus, that is an indication that you have His spirit or that power is working upon your heart and mind to make the surrender that it takes to be of service in the vineyard of God. Real servants of the Master Leader are willing to be lost in the crowd for His sake. "He that is greatest among you let him be your servant."

Jealousy has crept into many lives and caused them to be taken down rather than promoted. This sometimes creeps into the pulpit. I say creeps because it is that kind of an influence, or evil spirit. Sometimes you find those in the church, among the laymen, who are even jealous of the leadership of their pastor. If your pastor is not capable of being your leader in things religious, he is not capable of being your pastor. Why not acknowledge him as your leader in religious life? That is usually a mark of pride or jealousy in one who is not willing to be led. The mistake that the children of Israel made when Elijah became discouraged was that they did not encourage their leader. Many of them had not bowed the knee to Baal, but they did not let him know that they were for the right. Thus a great man and a leader that had done wonderful things got under the juniper tree because someone else failed to cheer at the right time.

But true leaders like the sun may sink in the evening but will be right back on the job next morning. Those who know how to follow will be a great stay to those who become discouraged from a lack of co-operation. It takes more religion possibly to follow than to lead. To say to a man, I am with you, when you feel like someone else should be in the lead takes an unselfish spirit.

Then there are those who have actually gone out in life to lead and have suffered for lack of co-operation because they are reaping the fruits of their doings in not encouraging others who have undertaken for God and needed their help. Sometimes we reap what we sow in this as well as any other wrongdoing. The follower who encourages may get as big reward in the end as the one in the lead. That one leading may have failed had it not been for the encouragement coming from his followers. Jealousy is a mark of the would-be leader. Avoid it in every way, for it is a dangerous master when once it gets full sway in our lives. There is nowhere possibly where the devil can use his power in a greater way than through jealousy.

In the thoughts that are to be given later we want to see something of the qualities of leadership that are to be cultivated. Taking it for granted that you have already been born into the Kingdom of God and that you are now a follower of the Lord Jesus Christ, we hope to help you see just what powers you have that He can use if you will only apply your hearts and minds unto the task that is before you.

MT. PLEASANT BUSINESS GIRLS' CIRCLE

Mrs. Howard Roberson was hostess to the Business Girls' circle of Mt. Pleasant church June 22 at her home near Lowe's church when the group held their installation service.

The new officers, who were installed by Rev. J. W. Braxton, are: Rebecca W. Causey, president; Mrs. Talton Stafford, vice-president; Rebecca M. Causey, secretary; Mrs. Carl Clapp, assistant secretary; Una Mae Phillips, treasurer, and Mrs. Howard Roberson, pianist. "Roads of Service" was the theme used by the Rev. Mr. Braxton in the installation talk.

Miss Edith Smith was the devotional leader for the evening, and Miss Edith Causey discussed "Growth of Responsibility Among Our Japanese Christians." Special features were a duet by Mrs. J. W. Braxton and Mrs. H. F. Amick and two quartets by members of the circle. The money-making project for the month was the collection from each person of two cents for each number of their shoe size. The circle also decided to use the birthday boxes for the Children's Home. Misses Edith and Rebecca W. Causey will be hostesses at the July meeting.

REV. AND MRS. ELWOOD CARROLL IN PHILADELPHIA

Rev. and Mrs. J. Elwood Carroll left Monday for Philadelphia to attend the International Convention of Christian Endeavor. From Philadelphia they will go to Altoona to visit Mrs. Carroll's people.

CONCORD REACHES GOAL

Already the honor roll has started. Hurrah! Let us all give a rousing cheer to the first on our Missionary Record subscription honor roll. Concord heads the roll of honor. Mrs. C. D. Sides is the alert secretary of literature there. Not only have they raised their quota for 1935-36, but have gone two over! Having raised their quota this early in the year, probably they will double it before next Branch meeting. WHO WILL BE NEXT?

FORMER STUDENTS AT LIBERTY TO HAVE A REUNION

Announcement is being made that there will be a reunion of the students that attended Pleasant Lodge Academy and also those who attended Liberty Normal College at Liberty, N. C., on Thursday, July 25. The Pleasant Lodge school was located two or three miles from the present town of Liberty and it is generally considered the predecessor of the Liberty Normal College that was conducted by Prof. T. C. Amick and Prof. Philip Shaw at Liberty. In the latter days of the school Prof. Shaw was succeeded by Prof. June Hornaday.

THANKFULNESS

I'm thankful for the dawn of day,
For useufl work and buoyant play;
I'm thankful for the faith of friends,
For humble heart that condescends.

I'm thankful for the trees and flowers,
For sapphire seas and cooling showers;
I'm thankful for the world of books,
For chanting birds and purling brooks.

I'm thankful for the sun at noon,
For silent stars and crescent moon;
I'm thankful for the gift of prayer,
For blessings I can freely share.

I'm thankful for the right to live;
For daily chance to serve and give;
I'm thankful most to God above
For his protecting, perfect love.

CALVARY YOUNG PEOPLE TO SPEAK

The young people of Calvary church who attended the Leadership School at High Point last week will tell the congregation about it next Sunday evening.

REV. AND MRS. WHITEHEAD IN PHILADELPHIA

Rev. and Mrs. T. J. Whitehead have gone to Philadelphia to attend the International Christian Endeavor convention.

MRS. SMITH VISITS DAUGHTER

Mrs. Mamie Smith, of Liberty, one of the most active women in our church there, is spending the week in Asheboro with her daughter, Mrs. Walter Yow.

Circle No. 3 of Calvary church will sell ice cream on the church lawn late Friday afternoon and evening.

MRS. STOCKARD SENDS POEM

Mrs. F. S. Stockard, of the West End church in Greensboro, sent in the poem which follows and requests that it be published. We do not know the name of the author, but we are sending it along in the hope that it may do some good.

GET OFF THE HELL-BOUND TRAIN

Tom Gray lay down on the barroom floor,
Having drunk so much that he could drink no more,
And fell asleep with a troubled brain,
To dream that he rode on the hell-bound train.
The engine with blood was red and damp,
And dimly lit with a brimstone lamp.
Imp for fuel was shoveling bones,
And the furnace roared with a thousand groans.
The boiler was filled with lager beer,
And the devil himself was the engineer.
The passengers made such a motley crew,
Rich men in broadcloth and beggars in rags,
Handsome young ladies and withered old hags,
Church member, atheist, Gentile and Jew,
Yellow men, black men, red and white,
Chained all together—a horrible sight.
Faster and faster the engine flew,
Wilder and wilder the country grew.
Louder and louder the thunder crashed,
Brighter and brighter the lightning flashed.
Hotter and hotter the air became,
Till the clothes were burned from each quivering frame,
And in the distance was heard such a yell:
Ha! Ha! croaked the devil, we're nearing hell.
And oh, how the passengers shrieked with pain
And begged the devil to stop the train.
And he capered about and danced with glee
And laughed and joked at their agony.
"My faithful friends, you have done my work,
And the devil can never a pay day shirk.
You have bullied the weak and robbed the poor,
And the hungry brother have turned from your door.
You have gathered up gold where the canker rust,
And gave free vent to your hellish lust.
You've drunk and rioted and murdered and lied,
And mocked God in your hell-born pride.
You've paid full fare, so I'll carry you through,
For it is only right that you should get your due;
For every laborer is worthy his hire.
So I'll land you safe in my lake of fire,
Where my fiery imps will torment you forever,
And all in vain you will sigh for a savior."
Then Tom awoke with an awful cry,
His clothes soaked wet and his hair standing high;
And he prayed as he never prayed before
To be saved from hell and the devil's power,
And crying and praying were not in vain,
For he nevermore rode on the hell-bound train.

LARGER DISTRIBUTIONS OF CHRISTIAN LITERATURE BY THE MOODY COLPORTAGE ASSOCIATION

D. L. Moody's vision of forty years ago for the broadcast sowing of the gospel seed by means of the printed page is being realized more and more.

As the darkness deepens in an unbelieving, Christ-rejecting world, the light of God's Word shines brighter in the hearts of true believers. While the multitudes are forgetting God and imagine they can prosper without Him, there are many who realize anew their need of the living God and are eager to receive any portions of Scripture that will point them the way of deliverance and blessing.

This fact was evidenced at the annual meeting of the directors and members of the Bible Institute Colportage Association held in Chicago on the Monday afternoon of June 17. The reports showed a marked increase in the sales and free distributions of evangelical Christian literature over the previous year totaling 3,735,620 copies in 1934 as compared with 2,962,387 copies in 1933. This printed matter was mailed to every state of the Union and 37 foreign countries.

The officers elected for the current year were as follows: Frank F. Taylor, president; Henry P. Crowell, vice-president; William Norton, secretary; and A. F. Gaylord, treasurer.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Palestine, Flat Rock Circuit.—Our pastor, Rev. C. B. Way, being away, helping in a Sunday school convention service, Rev. A. R. Chandler, a minister living in the community, filled his appointment. Mr. Chandler preached a good sermon that all enjoyed very much. Being the fifth Sunday, the attendance was very small. The revival meeting will begin at Palestine the third Sunday in July as usual. Pastor Way has for his help Rev. Mr. Harkey, pastor from Weaverville charge.

The third quarterly conference for Flat Rock circuit will meet at Palestine July 13, Saturday before the second Sunday, at 2 o'clock. Each official member is urged to attend. It will encourage our pastor and inspire those few faithful members that keep our quarterly meetings going, if every member whose name Mr. Johnson calls could be there to answer present. My, what a difference it would be! Palestine is large enough to hold you all and not be crowded. So do come and answer to your name one time. This will be at the time our delegate will be announced. Welcome to all.

Mrs. Jennie Tucker Landreth is seriously sick at this writing with heart disease. Aunt Jennie, as she is known, is the mother and grandmother of a large number of Palestine's members, being the oldest woman member of Palestine living.

Mt. Pleasant, North Davidson.—The fourth Sunday Dr. Andrews visited this church. He brought unto us a splendid message on "The Home."

The revival at this church starts the second Sunday. Rev. C. G. Isley will be the pulpit help.

Don't forget the lawn party at this church Saturday night, July 6. Everyone is invited to attend.

The C. E. Society enjoyed a picnic supper at the High Point lake last Saturday evening.

Mebane.—We are still moving along very well. We are feeling the summer slump but we hope to renew our energy and come out all right. We had eight young people to attend the Leadership Training School at High Point College last week.

The pastor and wife returned Sunday evening, having stayed in High Point for homecoming at First church. Rev. G. W. Holmes, a former pastor, preached for us Sunday morning. A very appreciative audience heard him. We always enjoy having him in our midst and his splendid sermons are always a joy and help to us. We were pleased to have his son, Ralph, worship with us. Sunday evening we were pleased to have Rev. J. F. Minnis, of Asheville, in for most of our service. We are always pleased to have him stop over at any time.

Next Sunday we are beginning our vesper services for the summer. Our faithful secretary of the Sunday school, Mr. Thado Smith, is in Rainey Hospital and perhaps will undergo an operation this week. We are very much interested in him and our prayers are for his speedy recovery. Mrs. Harold Cox, who has been ill for some time, was able to be at her place in Sunday school. We were delighted to have her back. Mrs. June Smith is rapidly gaining her strength after a major operation at Duke. We hope she will soon be able to be at church. Mrs. Dewitt Pender has been visiting some time in Thomasville with her parents.

Our Bible school was a success, and much credit is due the pastor and his helpers.

Miss Norma Smith and Mr. Hall McAdams surprised their friends by driving to Hillsboro and being married by Rev. F. A. Lupton. Miss Smith is a member of our church and Mr. McAdams is from Hebron. Their friends wish them much happiness through life.

Lincolnton Charge.—I thought I would write a few lines since our reporter for the Lincolnton church has had sickness in her home for some time and is at this time watching at the side of a little cot in the Lincolnton hospital, hoping, praying, that the Lord will be good to her and spare her little 18-months-old baby boy. Our prayers are going up with the prayers of these anxious parents that the baby may be spared.

Our work here is moving along slowly, but we believe surely to a deeper spiritual life. The attendance has fallen off some recently, due to the many who are being inoculated against typhoid fever. And many children are out because of the risk of infantile paralysis. Also three of our members at Lincolnton have recently undergone an operation. They are among the leaders of our young people, Ted and Pal Eurey, brothers, and Miss Elizabeth McGinnis. All have returned home and are doing nicely. The church at Bessemer City also has a patient in the hospital, Mrs. Clayton Fortenberry. She was operated on for acute appendicitis in a Gastonia hospital last week. She has been very sick but is improving some. We hope for all of these a speedy recovery.

The Fairfield church had its annual homecoming the second Sunday in June. The writer preached at the 11 o'clock hour, then we were dismissed to enjoy a splendid basket dinner. In the afternoon the committee arranged a very fine musical program. A number of visiting singers were present, and the occasion was enjoyed by an overflow crowd.

We held our spring revival meeting, beginning on Easter Sunday and running two weeks, at Lincolnton, the pastor doing the preaching. The music was in charge of D. Ward Milam, an old friend of ours from Georgia. Mr. Milam has had charge of the music in many evangelistic campaigns. He was with such men as Dr. Torrey, Dr. Chapman, Bishop Kilgo, Rev. Charles Lane and others. We were very fortunate in securing the services of such a great leader. We begun the meeting at Bessemer City the first Sunday in May, the pastor doing the preaching there also. The church at both places, we believe, was greatly helped. We had several conversions and reclamations and one addition to the church at each place.

We were very happy to have with us one day last week a number of our Albemarle friends to spend the day. There will always be a warm place in our heart for the Albemarle people, and a very cordial welcome for them at the parsonage. We have had this week and part of last some friends visiting us from Waco, Ga. I was their pastor for several years while a member of the Georgia conference.

We are to hold our third quarterly conference the third Sunday afternoon in July at the Fairfield church at 3 p. m. We urge all members to be present. If you cannot come, be sure to send your report.

We received through the president of the Georgia conference a very cordial invitation to be one of the preachers at the old Union camp meeting this year. The camp meeting is to begin Friday before the first Sunday in August. We are looking forward with great pleasure to the occasion. We attended this camp for 27 years in succession. Some of the salt of the earth are to be found in that part of the country, and I am really getting hungry to hear some old Georgia camp meeting shouts. And there you can get some real spiritual food. I begin to feel now like letting out my belt a notch or two just thinking about it.

J. R. ANDERSON.

P. S.: Since we started this letter, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Keener, our reporter, has passed away. Our heartfelt sympathy goes out to them.

These meetings are to begin on above dates and continue for four or five days following. We have the promise of the following brethren to preach in these meetings: Efland, George R. Brown; Union Grove, J. D. Cranford; Hebron, C. E. Ridge, and Chestnut Ridge, C. G. Isley. We are hoping and praying for good meetings.

Thomasville, First.—Our pastor is back home after spending about two weeks in a revival meeting at Henderson. Mrs. Madison visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Pearson, at Roanoke Rapids while away.

In the absence of our pastor we were glad to have Rev. P. E. Parker and Rev. A. G. Dixon preach to us. Mr. Ishmael Dorsett filled the pulpit for one service, the other service being a community song service. All these services were fine.

Our attendance has dropped off a lot due to the infantile paralysis that has caused so much alarm in our state. All children under 15 years of age are kept away. That also keeps some of the parents. Whooping cough is also in our community. We hope this will soon be all right.

Our Vacation Bible School has been called off for the same reason, infantile paralysis.

Our Christian Endeavor Society will meet each Sunday evening at 7:30 instead of 6:45. It will meet jointly with the preaching service during July and August.

Our revival meeting will begin the first Sunday in September. The pulpit help will be Rev. J. M. Morgan, pastor of Lebanon church, High Point.

The circles met last Friday evening. Circle

No. 1 met with Mrs. J. W. Baity, Circle No. 2 met with Mrs. Clyde Watts, and Circle No. 3 met with Mrs. Clifford Watts.

The Woman's Auxiliary will meet at the church next Thursday evening, July 11. Circle No. 3 will have charge of the devotionals.

Mrs. Ralph Leonard has been confined to her bed for several days but is much better now.

Clark's Chapel, Weaverville Charge.—I am glad to report that we are having a good Sunday school, with an attendance last Sunday of about 60.

On the fourth Sunday morning our pastor, Rev. W. L. Harkey, held his appointment at Clark's Chapel and gave us an inspiring message, taking as his text the 18th verse of the 16th chapter of Matthew.

We had 10 new members taken into our church at that service. They are: Misses Elinor and Inez Gryder, Miss Lucile Mackey, Miss Kathleen and Billie Blankenship, Miss Marion and Charles Gryder, Miss Betty and Jim Cheek, and Mr. Arthur McMahan by letter.

We are having splendid co-operation in our Lord's Acre project that we are carrying out in our church.

Our Sunday school also sends monthly contributions to the Children's Home at High Point.

MRS. CLYDE BLANKENSHIP, Reporter.

Flat Rock Charge.—The revival meeting at Flat Rock church closed on Friday night of last week. Rev. C. L. Grant did all the preaching from Sunday night until the close of the meeting. His sermons were convincing to the sinner and helpful to the Christian. He presented gospel truths in a forceful manner, and his illustrations made the hearers understand the meaning of the truths he presented. The attendance was good, and the day services were well attended. The special service for children on Thursday afternoon was attended by about 70 people. We were delighted to have Rev. H. L. Isley, pastor of Alamance charge, present for the Thursday afternoon service. The largest attendance during the meeting was Wednesday night when Rev. W. A. Way, pastor of Edgeville Pilgrim Holiness church, Greensboro, and a female quartet from that church were present. The quartet sang several selections and Rev. Mr. Way made a brief talk.

The results of the meeting were not what we expected, but we feel that much good was accomplished. There were 12 professions and 13 new members received The following members were received: Mrs. James Troxler, by transfer from Forest Avenue Baptist church, Greensboro; Iver Dell Ellison, Walter Rierson, Billy Johnson, Allen Mabe, Billy H. Haynes, Robert Haynes, Raleigh Ellison, Frances Troxler, Margaret Troxler, Louise Johnson and Maxine Wray, all by profession of faith.

The revival meeting at Flat Rock church had a very happy ending for the pastor and family. After the service closed, the pastor started to his car and discovered an unusually large crowd gathered nearby. When the car door was opened, we found the inside filled with one of the largest poundings we have received since coming to Flat Rock charge. In the car were numerous articles of food, such as flour, meat, lard, sugar, coffee, butter, ham, salt, canned goods, potatoes, string beans, and many other gifts. Since we did not find names on articles except a very few, we are not able to list each person, but we are truly thankful for every gift. Bro. Grant, who was a spectator, expressed his desire to stay with the pastor and family another week, seeing that he would be well cared for at the table.

The third quarterly conference will be held at Palestine church on Saturday of next week, July 13, at 2 p. m. At this conference we will receive reports of the election for delegate, which will be tabulated and the winner announced. The delegate will be Bro. T. F. Humphreys, of Bethany church, or Bro. H. M. Combs, of Bethel church. Either of them will make a very acceptable representative at our next Annual Conference. We are expecting a good representation from each church and trust we will have good reports.

The revival meeting will begin at Gideon's Grove church next Sunday morning. The appointment at Bethel church has been called off on account of the meeting beginning at Gideon's Grove. We hope the Bethel people will come to Gideon's Grove. There will be three services Sunday, at 11 a. m., 1:30 p. m. and 8 p. m. Rev. J. P. Pegg, a former pastor of Flat Rock charge, will be the helper during the meeting. Bro. Pegg is one of our best young preachers and we are fortunate in securing him to do the preaching during the meeting. C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Grace, Greensboro.—Last Sunday morning our pastor, Rev. J. Elwood Carroll, devoted the service to the honoring of the young couples which he or Dr. Spahr had married since he assumed the pastorate of the church in the fall of 1933, and of others who are members of the church or congergation. Most of those whose names were called were present, and to each couple Mr. and Mrs. Carroll presented a copy of "Foundations of Happiness in Marriage," by Leland Foster Wood, Ph. D., secretary of the Committee on Marriage and the Home of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. It was at once evident that this service was one of the ways in which the pastor seeks to show that he feels, as he expressed it, "a deep and abiding interest in the young married folks," an interest which he feels that Grace church, and every church, should share. Following the service of recognition, Mr. Carroll preached an effective sermon upon "The Essentials of a Christian Home," which he stated are: Love, character, knowledge, and things—that is, a sufficient income to provide the necessary things of life. A list of those honored at the service follows:

Rev. Mr. Carroll, Officiating Minister—Miss Effie Keck, Mr. Sam Nelson; Mrs. Lola V. Campbell, Mr. George Gronto; Miss Frances Merritt, Mr. William Henry Hunter; Miss Lucille Sharpe, Mr. Oren Long; Miss Mae Sue Stack, M. Louis Kimes; Miss Juanita Dillon, Mr. Leslie Poole; Miss Frances Millikan, Mr. Herman Aderhold; Miss Rachel Heilig, Mr. Raymond Lemons; Miss Dorothy Vance, Mr. Hubert Lane Barrier; Miss Minerva Waynick, Mr. Leslie Van Kenyon; Miss Ruth Jones, Mr. William A. Fox (assisted by Dr. Spahr); Miss Margaret Nicholson, Mr. Charlie Mayberry.

Dr. S. K. Spahr, Officiating Minister—Miss Flossie Johnson, Mr. T. W. Austin; Miss Elizabeth Wills, Dr. P. B. Whittington; Miss Elizabeth Shoenfelt, Rev. J. Elwood Carroll.

Other weddings among our young people, taking place out of town, were those of Miss Ruth Forrest Jones and Mr. Ralph Cooke, and of Miss Edna Garrett, of Waynesville, and Mr. Fred P. Hutton. Of interest to Grace church, also, was the wedding of Miss Dorothy Franklin to Mr. W. Harry Bird, during August of last year. Mrs. Bird is the leading soprano of our choir, and is highly regarded on account of her rich voice and her charming personality.

Mr. and Mrs. Carroll are away this week, having gone to Philadelphia to attend the international convention of Christian Endeavor. After the convention they will go to Altoona, Pa., on a visit to Mrs. Carroll's old home. J. N. W.

Winston-Salem, First Church.—Attendance at Sunday school was off considerably yesterday, due, mainly, to the fear of infantile paralysis. We are hoping the epidemic will soon pass, and we shall be able to get back to normal. Church attendance was fair.

Beginning next Sunday, and continuing through the month of August, we are to have unified services, combining the closing exercises of the Sunday school with an abbreviated preaching service, beginning at 10:45 and closing at 11:30. We are hoping this will enable a good many to stay for the morning service who have not been doing so because of engagements for family gatherings, etc.

Mrs. Bates came down Friday to be with the preacher in the celebration of our 25th wedding anniversary on Saturday. I am taking her back to our summer home at Weaverville tomorrow (Monday), and will take a few days off to be with my family there. We are very grateful to the Auxiliary of the First church for a $10 check, their anniversary gift.

C. W. BATES, Pastor.

Hollister, Halifax.—The services of our church have been held regularly with good attendance. There has been an increase in the attendance at Sunday school during the past month. To comply with the request of the Halifax county health officials, we have suspended the Primary and Intermediate classes of the Sunday school until the epidemic of infantile paralysis ceases. We hope this will not be very long, for we miss the children in Sunday school and they are anxious to attend every Sunday.

On the fourth Sunday morning our pastor preached an impressive sermon on "Waning Love for the Church." Mr. Loy stated several ways in which the people are letting their love for the church wane. The people of Hollister are saying the same thing about Mr. Loy as they did Mr. Fogleman and all of our former pastors, "The more we hear him preach the better we like him."

We were very glad to have Mrs. W. E. Knight unite with our church a few weeks ago. She comes to us from the Baptist church. Mrs. Knight has been taking a lot of interest in Hollister church for a long time and we welcome her into our membership and church.

Our pianist, Miss Mary Davis Alston, and Mr. Hinton Hoffler were united in matrimony at 8 o'clock on Saturday evening, June 1, 1935, at Hollister church. Rev. O. C. Loy officiated, using the impressive ring ceremony in the presence of a large audience. We wish for this couple happiness and prosperity in their new life.

We are looking forward to the group meeting which meets in Hollister church Wednesday, July 10. We hope to have every church on the charge well represented, as these meetings are worth while, and you receive helpful information concerning church work. I attended the meeting at Eden church last year and I haven't forgotten those good talks we heard by Dr. Andrews, Mr. Neese, Mrs. Cutchins and others. They were helpful and inspiring.

We are also looking forward to having Dr. Andrews to preach for us on the second Sunday night in this month.

KATHLEEN SHEARIN, Reporter.

Everyone is invited to attend these services.

C. L. GRANT.

First Church, Lexington.—May I use the expression that Miss Mabel Berrier, of Shiloh charge used in one of her recent reports, "No news is good news." Although we have not had a report from First church in several weeks, I am sure that we have not been idle. Our Sunday school continues to increase and our church attendance also. Last Sunday morning at the 11 o'clock service almost every pew was completely filled with people who came to hear Rev. Bill Young, of the Young brothers who are holding an evangelistic campaign in our town. They have been having a wonderful meeting at their taberracle on East Third avenue and we hope they will continue to do so. We were very fortunate in having each of the brothers and their choir director, Rev. Mr. Strall, with us and hope they will come to our church again before they leave. Our membership was increased last Sunday with three young girls joining us. They are Selma Thompson, Louise Cross and Ettie Ruth Kines. We are sure that these three will be a blessing to our church and we are very glad to have them.

We are sorry to report that our pastor, Rev. C. G. Isley, has been very ill for the past week. However, he was able to be at church last Sunday. We hope that he will not be sick any more.

Pictures were made of one of our Philathea classes (the Mothers' class) a few weeks ago and a goodly number were present to be in the picture. This is a fine class and we hope that it will continue to grow.

We have had several visitors from out of town since our last report, these being Mr. and Mrs. Williams and Misses Lucy and Maud Winecoff, of Concord, N. C., and Mrs. R. L. Loy, a sister of Mrs. Isley's, mother of our pastor, and Mrs. Loy's son, Robert, and his friend from Burlington. We hope they will come again soon and they and all other visitors are welcome at any time at our church.

The ladies recently distributed quilt blocks among themselves in an effort to raise money. They have been successful thus far and we hope they will continue to be successful. Among the sick are Miss Beulah McCulloch, who has had an attack of appendicitis. Miss Margaret Lea Swink continues ill at her home. We hope that they will soon be well and back with us, for we miss them very much. Little Dotsie Koonts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Koonts, was operated on a few weeks ago at the Davidson hospital for appendicitis but she is almost well again, we are happy to say.

Graham.—We enjoyed a most pleasant surprise last Sunday morning. Rev. J. F. Minnis slipped into the church just at the close of the Sunday school period, thinking it was past time for the 11 o'clock service to begin. But he was a little bit too early and was asked to bring us a message. He gave us some interesting accounts of his experiences in missionary work since leaving us in 1930. We were happy to have Mr. Minnis with us and are looking forward to more visits from him.

Five young people attended the Leadership Training School at High Point College last week. They were Junius Neese, Elizabeth Dixon, Laura Jane Neese, Hoyt Cheek and James Whitfield.

Our pastor will be away for two weeks in Southern Conference Leadership Training Schools. During his absence Junius Neese will preach at both morning and evening services.

Dr. W. C. Goley and Mrs. A. P. Williams are the nominees for our delegate to the Annual Conference.

Our attendance has dropped considerably since the children are not allowed to come. Our Sunday school attendance last Sunday was only 55. We urge all over 15 to come and help keep our attendance up.

REPORTER.

SILVER ANNIVERSARY OF CHILDREN'S HOME

Thursday, August 22, is the day set for us to be at High Point Children's Home with our offerings. A penny for each year of your age is the least we expect, but give as much more as you feel you can. With our money and with our presence let's make this a real day of enjoyment, enjoying the fellowship together and the joy we bring to the superintendent and helpers, and most of all the great good our gifts will do for this great work.

Let's look forward with much interest and prayer to the silver anniversary of our Home.

MARRIED

Taylor-Hodges

A marriage of unusual interest was solemnized on the evening of June 15, 1935, at 5:30, in the Methodist Protestant church, Enfield, N. C., when Catherine Ann Taylor became the bride of Harry Meade Hodges, the writer officiating, using the ring ceremony of the church.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Taylor, of Enfield; the groom, the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Hodges, of Fayetteville.

Mrs. Hodges finished her education at the University of North Carolina College for Women more than a year ago and has since that time been teaching. Mr. Hodges has for the last two years been coach for Oak Ridge Military Institute, which position he still holds.

These young people are deservedly popular as was attested by the many and useful bridal presents and by the large number of well-wishers present to see them off on their bridal tour.

They have our best wishes and prayers for a happy and prosperous journey through life. N. G. BETHEA.

Perry-Thomas

In the presence of a few friends at the Halifax parsonage, Frank Thomas and Emma Lewis Perry were united in marriage May 30 at 3 p. m. Friends of the bride and groom assisted in decorating the parsonage for the wedding, which added to the impressiveness of the ceremony. The writer officiated.

The bride is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Vincent, of Brinkleyville, and a member of Bethesda M. P. church. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Thomas, of Enfield, N. C., Rt. 3. He also is a member of Bethesda M. P. church of Halifax charge.

We wish for them the best that life has to offer. O. C. LOY.

Rogers-Odom

A wedding of unusual interest was solemnized on Monday afternoon, June 24, at 4:30, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Rogers, at Denton, N. C., when their daughter, Margarette Holt, became the bride of Mr. George Howard Odom, of Red Springs, N. C.

The ceremony was performed in the presence of members of the immediate families with Dr. S. W. Taylor, pastor of the First Methodist Protestant church, Asheboro, N. C., and a former pastor of the bride, officiating.

Prior to the ceremony, Mr. W. M. Sexton, pianist, rendered a brief musical program, using "Salute D'Amour" (Elgar) and "Traumerei" (Schumann). Mrs. J. T. Bowman, gowned in poudre blue chiffon and wearing a shoulder corsage of roses and gysophilia, sang "The Sweetest Story Ever Told" (Stults). During the ceremony Mr. Sexton played softly "To a Wild Rose" (McDowell). The bridal chorus from "Lohengrin" was used as the processional.

The bride and groom entered together and stood before the altar, which had been improvised in the music room, while the minister united their lives, using the impressive ring ceremony of the Methodist Protestant church.

The bride was attired in a suit of white chalk crepe with finger-tip coat. She wore white accessories and a shoulder corsage of rosebuds and lilies of the valley.

An informal reception was held immediately following the ceremony, after which the couple left by motor for a wedding trip. Upon their return they will be at home in Red Springs, N. C.

Mrs. Odom is the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Rogers and is a young woman of unusual beauty and charm. She is a native of Burlington, having lived there all her life until her parents moved to Denton three years ago. She is a graduate of East Carolina Teachers' College, class of 1933, and since her graduation has been a member of the faculty of the Red Springs schools.

Mr. Odom is the second son of Mr. J. D. Odom and the late Mrs. Mary Breeden Odom, of Red Springs. He is associated with the Graham Company and is one of Red Springs' most prominent and popular young business men.

Alston-Hoffler

Mr. Hinton Hoffler, of Portsmouth, Va., and Miss Mary Davis Alston, of Hollister, N. C., were united in marriage at Hollister M. P. church June 1 at 8 p. m. in the presence of a large audience of friends and relatives. The wedding was carried out in a very formal manner, with the church beautifully decorated, which made the marriage very impressive. The writer officiated.

The bride is the daughter of the widowed Mrs. May P. Alston, of Hollister, N. C., and is a graduate in music, having held the position of music teacher in Aurelian Springs High School for the past year. The groom is the manager of a large drug store in Portsmouth, Va.

After the ceremony the bride and groom left for Washington, D. C., to spend a few days, after which they have taken up residence in Portsmouth, Va.

They have our best wishes for happiness and success. O. C. LOY.

Smith-Greeson

Miss Lillian E. Smith and Keith C. Greeson, both of Guilford county, were married June 29 at the home of Rev. and Mrs. G. F. Millaway on Summit avenue extension. Mr. Millaway, Methodist Protestant minister, heard the vows. The bride wore a gown of white and white accessories. For travel she changed to an ensemble of navy blue.

After a brief trip to western North Carolina Mr. and Mrs. Greeson will be at home near Julian. The bride is the younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Smith, of Liberty. Mr. Greeson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ira C. Greeson, of Whitsett, is connected with Greeson and Neese, funeral directors.

Haynes-Hall

Clark Dennis Haynes and Dorothy Deanne Hall were united in matrimony at the North Davidson parsonage June 15 by the writer in the presence of a few friends. Mr. Haynes is one of our members of Spring Hill, while Mrs. Haynes is a member of Deep River Friends church. They will make their home in the Spring Hill community. We wish for them a long and happy life.

C. L. GRANT.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Perry

Edward P. Perry, age 58 years, passed away at his home in Burlington on Friday, June 21, 1935. He was born and reared in the southern part of Alamance county, the son of William E. Perry and Mrs. Jane Quakenbush Perry. Mr. Perry was married to Miss Ida Lindley, daughter of Mrs. Lou Lindley and the late Meacham Lindley. Surviving are the widow and six children, three daughters and three sons, as follows: Mrs. L. J. Kuhn, Richmond, Va.; Mrs. W. F. Williams, Petersburg, Va.; Mrs. Homer Owens, Burlington; Adrian, J. C. and L. W. Perry, of Burlington.

He was converted and joined Center Methodist Protestant church many years ago, and remained a consistent member until his death. Mr. Perry was a man who possessed many fine traits of character, always truthful and honest in all his dealings. One who roomed with him in school said that he abhorred hypocrisy and sham. For a number of years he was a merchant in Burlington. May the blessings of heaven rest upon his widow and children.

In the absence of the pastor, Dr. F. W. Paschall had charge of the funeral at Center church. Rev. A. O. Lindley, brother-in-law of the deceased, made some remarks. Burial was made in the church cemetery.

H. L. ISLEY.

Ferguson

Alfred Vestal Ferguson was born in Chatham county April 28, 1853, and passed away at his home near Siler City June 22, 1935, making his earthly sojourn 82 years. He was the son of John Troy and Orpha Vestal Ferguson, the father being killed in the War Between the States, leaving the mother and seven children. On May 31, 1876, he was united in marriage to Miss Martha Jane McDaniel, who with the following children survives: Mrs. Daisy Johnson, Mrs. Ila Straughn, Mrs. J. L. McManus, Mrs. Henry Whitehead, Troy, Wrenn, Zeb and Miss Nonie Ferguson. One daughter, Mrs. Vida Johnson, died some years ago. One brother, William Ferguson, of Teer, also survives. Early in life Mr. Ferguson was converted and united with Flint Hill Methodist Protestant church (now Orange Chapel) on Saxapahaw circuit. When he located near Siler City he transferred his membership to Sapling Ridge. Here for 40 years he was one of the leading members, serving as official member, representing his charge as delegate to the Annual Conference, giving of his time, talents and means for the upbuilding of the Kingdom of God. It was his generosity that made possible the beautiful brick church at Sapling Ridge.

Mr. Ferguson was one of the best listeners to the Word that the writer has ever known, and made his contributions to the support of the pastor and to the other interests of the church with unusual cheerfulness. Now that he has gone from us there is a painful lack in the community, in the church, and in the home. We should thank God that he was affiliated with the Methodist Protestant church, and rejoice in the assurance that he has gone to a glorious reward.

"I cannot say, and I will not say
That he is dead—he is just away.
With a cheery smile and a wave of the hand,
He has wandered into an unknown land,
And left us dreaming how very fair
It needs must be, since he lingers there."

One of the largest congregations ever seen at Sapling Ridge was present for the funeral on Sunday, June 23, 1935. May grace be multiplied to those who feel the loss most keenly and may God keep for His own service those who still remain.

PASTOR, Sapling Ridge Church.

Shoaf

"She hath done what she could, and what she hath done shall be told for a memorial of her" can be very appropriately said of our departed sister and co-worker in our Auxiliary, Mrs. J. M. Shoaf.

Her faithfulness and deep devotion to her Christ and His church ever revealed itself in a willing yet unassuming service. The needs of her church, her family and her friends were always considered before her own personal desires; for it was one of her greatest joys to share whatever she possessed. No woman in Shiloh church was more beloved or will be more greatly missed; and the memory of her consecrated life will be an inspiration to those left behind to "press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."

We, the members of the Woman's Auxiliary, extend to the bereaved husband and children, brothers and sisters our deepest sympathy and point them to Him who can comfort all broken hearts.

MRS. WILEY SHOAF,
MISS MABEL BERRIER,
MISS BLANCHE SINK.

Dillingham

C. Harris Dillingham was born September 14, 1869, and passed to his reward on June 25, 1935, age 65 years, 7 months, 11 days. Had he lived until October of this year he would have been a member of Mountain Valley Methodist Protestant church 60 years. Bro. Dillingham was twice married, first to Miss Lula V. Hider, who passed away in January, 1900. His second marriage was to Miss Vivian Carter on October 8, 1902, whom he leaves with 10 children to mourn his passing. It was the writer's privilege to visit Bro. Dillingham in his last days and he spoke of being ready for a better world. Also he was anxious for the church, and in his passing days his favorite Scripture was the words of Paul: "I have fought a good fight and kept the faith." The funeral of Bro. Dillingham was held at his home on June 27, being in charge of Rev. Mr. Denby, assisted by Rev. J. S. Williams, of Asheville; Rev. Mr. Teague, of the C. C. C. camp, and the writer. The large crowd present and the beautiful flowers tell us of the high esteem held for Bro. Dillingham. To the wife and children we would say, Weep not, for you shall soon meet again in a better world. The home has lost a husband and father, the church a loyal member, the county a good citizen, but earth's loss is heaven's gain.

This week the unusual happened in that there was not any change in the percentage column and not one of the three charges in the column of honor sent in anything. But we will let them keep their relative standing in the hope that they will do better next week. All three of them are so near the goal that it would be a pity for any other charge to beat them to it.

Now let us look at the receipts for this week. Albemarle heads the list. As we have said before, this church sells papers by the week and they have a steady income. And so they are still climbing. Yarborough, under the leadership of Rev. K. G. Holt, is a close second to Albemarle. They had already reached the goal but they are still going on.

The charge to send in the third largest amount is Friendship, Rev. W. D. Reed, pastor. This charge sells papers each week and so they have a steady income and keep climbing. That is the way to get things done. Then there are several others that climb a little. But the receipts are very scarce this week. If this slump in subscriptions keeps up very long it is going to be very trying on our nerves. We cannot print the paper on air, neither does air pay the bills. Now there will be three more issues before the vacation week which will be the week following the fourth Sunday in July. Let pastors and Herald agents do their best in these three remaining issues before the vacation week and see if we cannot pull ourselves back to within the neighborhood of where we were before the slump came.

The receipts this week amount to $22.78, all on subscriptions.

THE BATES' COTTAGE FOR RENT

We have had a number of inquiries during the past several years from folks who wanted to rent our cottage at Weaverville for a week or two during the summer. In most instances we have had to refuse to rent it, because of the inconvenience it would cause us to do so. But we have now built another, smaller, cottage on our place, which we are prepared to rent to parties or families that may want to spend a few days in the mountains. The new cottage consists of one large room, with garage. If additional sleeping room is needed, it can be provided in the other cottage. Arrangements can be made for those who want to do so to do their own cooking. The cottage is furnished. The rates are reasonable. If you are interested, write Mrs. C. W. Bates, Weaverville, N. C. C. W. BATES.

The Kind of a Church We Like

Last week we wrote about the future leadership of the church. This week we want to think in terms of the rank and file of the membership. It is important to have good leaders, men and women of vision and consecration, but the best leaders are handicapped unless they have the proper cooperation on the part of the membership of the church. In our discussion last week we took the ground that we have a fine group of young people, both ministerial and lay, who will naturally take the lead in things as opportunity presents itself. But the question comes to every one of us, What about the membership?

Some forecast of the future might be made by thinking in terms of what we already have. What do we have? Numerically we have about thirty thousand people in the N. C. Annual Conference. We have about two hundred and thirty churches. The question might be asked by some if these church members are all active. To this we would say, no. Some of them are active and some are not. We doubt whether there is a church in our conference that is seventy-five percent active. To begin with the most of our churches are carrying on their rolls a great many people that cannot be located. They may have been reasonably good members in the days gone by but they have moved away and many of them have been lost to the church. Some churches hesitate to leave these persons off the roll lest they should return some time and ask for a church letter and the home church should be embarrassed.

While it is true that there are many who cannot be located, it is also true that there are a great many who can be located as far as their residence is concerned but they have lost interest in the church and some of them express surprise when they are told that their name is still on the church roll. Some churches keep in touch with the absentee member by means of the monthly letter. But the people who move away and do not take their church letter, as a rule do not do very much for the church back home. Of course there are some exceptions to this rule.

But after "counting out" these two classes we still have a considerable number of people who are not active. And while this is true in our church, it is equally true in every other church. So many people who still live in the community are not over zealous for the work of the church. This has always been true and perhaps, will be true in the future. When Our Lord was on the earth He had a similar experience to that of all ministers today. When Jesus made the way of salvation seem a little hard the record says, "From that time many of His disciples went back and walked no more with Him." It was no fault of Jesus that these did not continue with Him. And it is not always a sign that a pastor does not do his duty for some people to cease to take an active part in the work of the church. But the truth remains that there are a lot of inactive church members in our church and in every other church.

While this is regrettable, yet we are not to judge the church by those who are *in*active. For in every congregation there are some who are good and true and who are shouldering the responsibilities of the church. We take off our hats to this class. Many of them are people of no great wealth. What they give must be given out of a meager salary. Perhaps, some of them need the money they give to the church to make their homes more comfortable and attractive. Some of them are heavily in debt and are trying to pay for a home or are trying to pay for furniture they have already bought for their home. But because they love the Christ and because they love the church they are willing to give to the point of sacrificing. We do not pity these people, for they are not to be pitied. They are the happiest people on the face of the earth. Life to them means much more than it does to some of the idle rich who do not know what to do with their money. Such people as we have been describing are the salt of the earth. They hold society together. They keep the moral order of things from utter collapse. These are the dependable ones. We have them in our denomination and other churches have them also. These are the kind of people we like. We wish we had more of them.

If all of our people were as good as some of them are there would still be need for preaching and teaching. The best could be made better. To this end we write as well as pray and preach. What, then, do we need as a church in order that we may measure up to every opportunity? In the first place the entire membership of the church needs to be informed about the programme of the church. No people ever became so good that they did not need to know anything more. In fact, good people need to be informed in order that they may put their goodness to work. For if they do not put it to work, there is danger of losing it. If our people were perfect in character they would still need to have the church paper to find out about the programme of the church. They would still need to attend group meetings and Annual Conferences and various meetings to find out what the other people are doing. "No man liveth unto himself and no man dieth unto himself." We are a part of a social order and we must work with folks. Until we have learned to work with people we have not conquered ourselves. God saw that it was necessary for us to live with other people, so we have the home and the church and the community.

Not only must the church know, but it must do. To know is not enough, even though that might be good in itself. The church must be liberal with its means and it must be liberal with its time. Some people give money but not much time. They are willing to do the paying if the other fellow will do the praying and the work. It is commendable in any person to be willing to pay but this is not all. If this were all, then the rich man would have a tremendous advantage over the poor man. But God has taken care of that side of life all right. No man can get the most out of life who does not live a well-rounded life and he cannot live this kind of a life without doing whatever his hands find to do about the church.

Then, the church we want to see must be an interceding church. It must know where the throne of grace is and how to get there. It must not be too busy to stop doing other things and seek poor lost sinners. Jesus never was too busy to save souls. We must not be too busy either. If we are too busy to try to save the souls of others we stand in danger of losing our own soul. People who are working to save others, as a rule find so much pleasure in it that they have no desire to go off after the things of sin. So, let this church of the future be an active church and it goes without saying it will be a growing church.

A Brief History of Piney Grove Church, Why Not Charge

Piney Grove church was organized by Spencer Surratt, a licensed exhorter of Pleasant Grove church in Davidson county on the thirteenth day of August, 1871. Rev. A. J. Laughlin was pastor of Davidson circuit at that time. He preached a time or two at a temporary stand in a field near the home of Alexander Cameron, better known as Sandy Cameron.

In the year 1872 Rev. Henry Lewallen was pastor of Davidson circuit. Piney Grove was received as one of the appointments on Davidson circuit by the quarterly Conference of that year. This church had eleven members and was assessed $11.00 and paid $11.00. Among the charter members were Alexander Cameron and wife Charity, B. A. Surratt and his wife, E. A. Delk, W. J. Delk and his wife, Julia Delk, J. R. Cameron and two others. N. F. Morgan and his wife, Mary Jane, united with this church during the month of August, 1871, a short time after the organization was perfected.

Henry Lewallen was pastor of this church in 1872, 73, 74 and 75. Rev. R. H. Wills was pastor in 1876-77. The first person to profess faith in Christ in this church was Priscilla Delk, daughter of Henry Delk and his wife. This occurred while a revival meeting was being conducted by Rev. R. H. Wills.

Rev. J. S. Dunn was pastor of this church in 1878. Rev. W. C. Hammer was pastor in 1879, 80, 81. Rev. A. W. Lineberry, D.D. was pastor in 1882, 83, 84, 85. Rev. W. A. Bunch was pastor in 1886, 87, 88, 89. Rev. A. W. Lineberry was returned for a second pastorate in 1890 and 91. Rev. J. R. Savage was pastor in 1892. Rev. C. E. M. Raper was pastor in 1893, 94 and 95. The first sermon was preached in the old church in April, 1875, by Rev. Henry Lewallen and the first sermon preached in the new church was by Rev. W. A. Bunch, the second Sunday in September, 1889, this being the funeral of Mary Jane Morgan. The records of the church up to that time were kept by N. F. Morgan, now deceased.

Pastors who have served this church since 1895 are: Rev. T. F. McCulloch, 1896, 97; Rev. I. I. York, 1898; Rev. W. C. Hammer, 1899, 1900, 1901; Rev. Edward Suits, 1902, 1903 and 1904; Rev. J. W. Self, 1905, 1906, 1907; Rev. W. J. Hackney, 1908; Rev. T. A. Plyler, 1909, 1910, 1911; Rev. Joel B. Trogdon, 1912, 1913, 1914, 1915 and 1916; Rev. D. A. Braswell, 1917; Rev. D. M. Loy, 1918 and 1919; Rev. W. H. Neese, 1920 and 1921; Rev. Robert Short, 1922 and 1923; Rev. J. S. Riddle, 1924 and 1925; Rev. O. C. Loy, 1926; Rev. M. C. Henderson, 1927; Rev. J. Elwood Carroll and Rev. Glenn Madison, 1928; Rev. E. A. Bingham, 1929, 1930 and 1931; Rev. Robert Short, 1932, 1933; Rev. J. T. Bowman, 1934; Rev. C. H. Hill, 1935.

Rev. C. H. Hill, the present pastor is a grandson of the man who organized the church and is the only one to enter the ministry from this church.

On the fourth Sunday in August of this year this chuch will hold a service at eleven o'clock which will be known as Home-Coming. All former members of the church and all former pastors of the church are specially invited to return on that day. One former pastor is expected to preach. In the afternoon of the same day a memorial service will be held. All the members and friends of this church are requested to be present with well filled baskets for a picnic dinner and for the services of the day.

WHAT THE BIBLE SAYS ABOUT GOD

By REV. T. M. JOHNSON, D.D.

To try to put into one brief article what the Bible says about God is like trying to put into a water bucket the torrent that pours over Niagara falls. As to the water you can fill your bucket and leave the other, so also you can fill your article and leave the other.

It should be noted that the Bible does not anywhere state that there is a God. The fact is so evident, through His handiwork and through the experience of all who seek Him in worship, that it would be superfluous to state that there is a God, just as it would be superfluous for the geologist to state that there is an earth or astronomist to state that there are stars and planets. Incidentally the Bible gives a pen portrait of the man who denies there is a God. ''The fool hath said in his heart, There is no God.'' Psa. 14:1. Lest we forget the identical expression is repeated in Psa. 53:1.

In contemplation of God in the universe, in the Bible, in the soul of the worshiper, one is overawed, overwhelmed, and almost overcome to the point of stopping before beginning to write. But as these studies do not claim to be exhaustive of the subjects treated, only suggestive, I proceed with such courage and faith as I have, trusting that it is not a case of ''rushing in where angels would fear to tread.''

The very first sentence in the Bible, the fourth word of which is ''God,'' sweeps out beyond the reach of sight, beyond the reach of the telescope, beyond the reach of the imagination of the finite human mind. ''In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth.'' Gen. 1:1. The very frequency with which the Supreme Being is mentioned is profoundly impressive. The thoughtful reader of the Bible is conscious of being in a great Presence. In the first chapter of Genesis of thirty-one verses the name "God" appears 31 times, in the entire book more than 200 times, in Exodus more than 100 times, in Deuteronomy more than 350 times, in the entire Bible approximately 4,400 times.

Another Name

Even more times does the name Lord, as applied to the Supreme Being, appear—approximately 7,700 times! This includes its use as applied to Jesus, as, Lord, Lord Jesus, and Lord Jesus Christ. It also includes such combinations in the Old Testament as Lord God, the Lord thy God, etc. It should be noted here that the Hebrew name of the Supreme Being in the Old Testament translated "Lord" in the King James version (the Bible in general use) is translated or rather transliterated in the revised version "Jehovah," that is, the Eternal One. As instances of this see the Sunday School lessons, as printed in parallel columns in the Advanced Quarterly, for July 7th and 14th.

To Sum Up

Adding together the figures given above, we find that Bible speakers and writers addressed or referred to the Supreme Being approximately 12,100 times. Evidently as they spoke or wrote they were profoundly conscious that they were in the presence of the Eternal One. So also we, as we devoutly read the sacred pages may be similarly conscious. Verily they have brought God out of the heavens and made Him to dwell with men. "And I heard a great voice out of heaven saying, Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God." Rev. 21:3.

Interesting Incidents

Speaking after the manner of men, yet reverently, when God called to Moses out of the burning bush, He introduced himself as "the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob." Ex. 3:6. Moses was instructed to introduce Him in like manner to the children of Israel. When Moses asked what name he should give in case enquiry should be made, "God said unto Moses, I AM THAT I AM: and he said Thus shalt thou say unto the children of Israel, I AM hath sent me unto you." Ex. 3:14.

To my thinking the most impressive scene was when "God spake unto Moses, and said unto him, I am the Lord: and I appeared unto Abraham, unto Isaac, and unto Jacob, by the name of God Almighty, but my name JEHOVAH was not known to them." Ex. 6:2, 3.

Difficult to Realize

At this distance, and with our familiarity with what is known of God, it is difficult to realize the struggle the Hebrew people, then in the childhood of the race, had to pass through to get the idea of the one God, eternal, omnipotent. The struggle dates back to Abraham's day, was intense and well under way in the days of Moses as indicated by the above quotations, but must needs continue on through the days of the prophets for a thousand years to the end of the Old Testament.

His Nature and Character

One God. "Unto thee it was shewed, that thou mightest know that the Lord he is God; there is none else beside him." Dent. 4:35.

Eternal. "Before the mountains were brought forth, or ever thou hadst formed the earth and the world, even from everlasting to everlasting, thou art God." Psa. 90:2.

Everywhere. "Whither shall I go from thy spirit? or whither shall I flee from thy presence? If I ascend up into heaven, thou art there: if I make my bed in hell, behold, thou art there. If I take the wings of the morning, and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea; even there shall thy hand lead me, and thy right hand shall hold me." Psa. 139:7-10.

Unsearchable. "O the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! how unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways past finding out!" Rom. 11:33.

A father. Jesus spoke frequently and freely of God as "the Father," indicating that He is a common father of all. "But the Comforter which is the Holy Ghost, whom the Father will send," etc. John 14:26. Again, Jesus binds us up close to himself, through our common Father. "Go to my brethren, and say unto them, I ascend unto my Father, and your Father." John 14:17.

WHAT'S RIGHT WITH THE CHURCH

By DR. P. E. LINDLEY, Dean of High Point College

I. Its Founder

Christ, the Founder and the great Head of the church, is right. Jesus of Nazareth was the beginning, the life and the light of the church, from the days of its origin down to the present time. And his has been a perfect leadership. Men may decry and ridicule the followers as much as they please, but they can never place the blame on Christ. The only faults discoverable are those associated with the limitations of human nature when we fail to live up to the ideals set forth by the Lord Jesus. Say what you please about the mistakes of our leaders; bemoan, if you will, the lack of loyalty among the followers; criticize the sermon or the choir, or upbraid the whole organization for want of zeal and clear vision, but one thing remains sure: you can lodge no condemnation against the Master himself.

This is a bold and reassuring fact. No movement since the dawn of time can boast a greater founder, for our Lord, commissioned from on high, divine and human in one, stands supremely ahead of the best characters who ever walked the earth. Before him all other prophets among men pale into a sort of dim and nameless obscurity. He is the King of Kings and Lord of Lords. He is the central figure of all history. Of him Schaff declared, "He is the fly-wheel in the world's progress. His cross has become the tree of life for all nations."

Merely to mention the name of our Founder is to evoke the reverent feeling. In one of his recent books, Professor Brightman of Boston University warns: "To say anything about God requires audacity." The human always feels his limitations in contemplation of the divine. Dr. Shipley tells of a certain artist who would invariably come to his knees and remain in a kneeling postion when trying to paint the picture of Christ. It is with something of the same spirit of humility, I think, we all experience as we name the name of the Savior. He is so far ahead of us, so high above us, that we most naturally turn to meekness whenever we meditate upon his matchless glory. As the Scriptures declare, there is none other name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved.

Now, in the humblest little church, the most modest but sincere believer may share fellowship with this divine Redeemer. No other privilege is like it; no other institution affords an opportunity to be equalled with this. The secret of the power and the permanancy of the church lies in the saving, sustaining grace vouchsafed by the love and sacrifice of the Son of Man. Behold, he stands at the door and knocks. Any man may open and know the joys of personal communion with this King of Glory. Such a thought ought to hearten the believers and strengthen the congregation wherever a Christian church has been founded.

Ministers, too, are to proclaim the riches of such a gospel. Christ should be at the center of every appeal; there is no other message. The longer one meditates on the meaning of the Cross, the more compelling does it become. Christ needs no apology and but little explanation. He does need a loyal presentation. He makes his own appeal. Just lift him up and he will draw all men unto himself. Our sermons are helpless, and feeble our homiletics, until all are employed to portray this Savior of mankind. If the world is ever saved it will be through the individual consecration of human life to this Messiah, the sole redeemer of the race.

Being thus reminded of the perfection of our Founder and of his care and love for even the smallest among us, the future ought to appear certain and secure. Anyone who belongs to a Christian church ought to stand firm and take courage, remembering that he is a part of an organization of which the Founder himself declared: The gates of hell shall not prevail against it.

"Nor voice can sing, nor heart can frame,
Nor can the memory find
A sweeter sound than thy blest name,
O Savior of mankind."

Dr. S. K. Spahr Celebrates Birthday

Dr. S. K. Spahr, the pastor emeritus of Grace church celebrated his eighty-ninth birthday yesterday. He was ordained to the ministry in 1864 and has had a remarkable career. Just recently he preached in the evening service at Calvary church and made a fine impression. May he have many more birthdays. The Greensboro Daily News carries a fine likeness of Dr. Spahr today.

Brother R. R. Ross Seriously Ill

Brother R. R. Ross of Asheboro, one of the choice laymen in North Carolina is seriously ill. He is one of the charter members of our church in Asheboro and has been a trustee of our Children's Home for a number of years.

THE DUKE INSTITUTE OF INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS

This school was held on the east campus of Duke University, June 10-21, and is the third of such Institutes held there. Quite a goodly number enrolled for the school, although I am not prepared to give the exact registration. Teachers and ministers seemed to predominate in the enrollment, although quite a number were present who are not of these callings.

Rev. H. Freo Surratt was the only other Methodist Protestant minister attending the school.

The school is fostered by the American Friends Service Committee and Duke University. These two organizations finance the school, as I understand, with suppliments from private sources.

The purpose of the school is to promote world peace.

The hope of doing this is in a better understanding of human relations the world over, the creating of international friendship and good will, and the outlawing of war as a method of settling national and international differences.

The faculty of nine men and two women was composed of highly trained instructors, whose teaching ability consisted both in book knowledge and in long personal contact with national and international questions that vitally concern the economic and political peace of the world. Each is an expert in his field. The one-hour lectures began in the morning at 8:30 and continued to one o'clock. An intermission of ten minutes followed each lecture.

This is the first of these schools that I have attended. I am deeply grateful to the Sunday school of the Asheboro church for making this privilege possible for me.

At the request of Dr. Pritchard, I shall attempt to pass on to Herald readers some of the things that were discussed by these expert interpreters of world conditions that are vital to economic restoration and world peace.

S. W. Taylor.

Mrs. W. C. Hammer Improves

We saw Mrs. W. C. Hammer of Asheboro for a few minutes on Monday morning of this week. She is slowly recovering from a serious injury sustained in an automobile accident as she was returning from the General Missionary Convention at Indianapolis in May. Her body is still in a cast but she seems to be resting fairly well. She asked us to thank her many friends everywhere who have remembered her with letters and cards and have made visits to her during here stay at home.

Our Apologies to Dr. Bethea

We offer our apologies to Dr. N. G. Bethea in that the types of last week made him say that Leadership is developed by fellowship when his manuscript said "Followship," in the series of articles that he is running on the Conference page of the Herald. These articles were delivered at High Point College in the chapel exercises at the Leadership Training school and are being published by request of the President of the Conference Council.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord.

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

Some Dry (?) Statistics

I am presenting a financial statement of what some of our churches did last year. These are what we call station churches. The different results were arrived at by the same process, adding together the totals on table III, and table IV, making a grand total, then dividing that amount by the number of members reported last year. It would be interesting to carry this still further and show what amount per capita every pastoral charge paid. Possibly some one will want to do this. There may be some surprises in what is here exhibited; but taken as a whole this showing does not look so bad. Since the average contribution of all churches in the U. S. A. last year was $12.07. Albemarle paid $19.57 per member; Asheboro, $17.27 per member; Asheville, $16.17; Burlington, $10.38; Charlotte, $12.06; Concord, $21.20; Draper, $9.35; Ft. Place, $20.48; Gibsonville, $11.36; Graham, $10.86; Calvary, $19.00; Grace, $16.25; St. Paul, $12.48; W. End, $11.64; Henderson, $12.00; Mebane, $9.43; Moriah, $8.05; Reidsville, $24.52; Spencer, $16.80; First Ch. High Point, $16.63; Welch, $13.84; Lebanon, $9.59; English Street, $8.21; First Church Thomasville, $14.00; Community, $33.40; W. Thomasville, $9.71; Whitakers, $23.07; Winston, First, $16.00.

No one should hastily conclude that the churches which paid such a high per capita are the wealthiest. Some of these have no wealth. The amounts contributed were largely out of a self-denial born in their love for the cause. I doubt that any of them contributed simply to excell others in the amounts contributed. The fact is, I suspect that those who ran highest did not know how well they do rank. They did what was done because they accepted the apportionments allotted and did not reduce their payments to other claims while doing it. Some churches have a way of shifting their contributions, i.e. paying one claim while leaving all others unpaid. If they pay pastor in full, do not pay conference claims, or if they pay conference claims, seem to take it from the pastor. But we have many very loyal church members—people who really practice self-denial in order to pay the amounts the annual conference asks them to pay. Of all such we are proud. I glanced over some of the charges which pay least and noticed that we still have churches whose per capita contribution to all causes last year was under two dollars. It is a far cry from two dollars to thirty three dollars. It is too much just yet to expect many of our churches to leap into the highest class, but we certainly ought to have all of our churches far above the two dollar per capita class. To that end I have set my thought and energies as president of the Conference.

Getting Out of the Two Dollar Class

One thing is certain it will never be done by those churches which are afraid to use wise methods and adopt definite goals. Whenever I hear the official members of a church say, "We will not accept any definite amount for this cause but will give what we can," I know right then that but little will be done for that claim. Definite claims are not paid without definite plans wisely worked. In 1898 there were but few churches in our entire conference which employed a real plan in raising their conference assessments. The collection plate or the hat was passed around to the congregation a few times during the year with an apologetic air and as a result the per capita contributions of our churches was $1.75, i.e., counting all that was paid for pastor, church debt, parsonage debt, all missionary and benevolent interests—everything, it totalled $1.75 per member for the year of our Lord 1898. That was the average. Some paid more, many paid less than one dollar per member. Last year the average per capita payment was $8.00. About four hundred percent increase in a third of a century. That is something to remember. Another thing to remember about this is, those churches which have lifted their per capita contributions highest have been the ones which have begun after the conference with a definite goal for certain claims and had a plan or plans by which these were to be raised. Any sensible plan beats no plan; but there are plans which suit certain congregations better than others, the pastor should wisely use such. Be patient, persistent and persuasive in urging your plan and forget to worry whether it will work or not.

Shun Cranks

I am writing this especially for pastors and church officials. Shun cranks about religious matters. People who ride hobbies never get anywhere. It is easy for some people to become extreme in their religious attitudes. Like a farmer who would destroy his wheat crop to pull up a bunch of tares; they are ready to read out and rule out all who do not agree with them about some very trivial matters. The professor of great holiness while showing a rank intemperance or lack of charity towards others. To hear them preach you would think they were already years past due in glory, but to see the trail of destruction left by them a few months later you know that they are past due at an entirely different destination. I want to caution our people about accepting one as preacher or leader in any form of religious activity whose past record is not well known and clean. The trustees of a church should never permit a stranger to occupy the pulpit in their church until both they and the pastor have seen his credentials and know that he will not disrupt the church. Many of these free lances in sermon and song are past masters in splitting a church. They have a way of gripping the emotions of certain types of folks until they would make any sort of sacrifice for them, then they begin to use their influence to destroy the church. Again I say, SHUN CRANKS; be not speedy in accepting strangers to preach or lead in religious service in your church. Let them wait; let time prove their worthiness first.

Personal Word

I regret to have to miss appointments for two weeks. My physician asks that I remain inactive one more week. It is hard to do. I am sending in this in my idleness.

THEY PROMISED BUT THEY DO NOT PERFORM

The organized proponents of prohibition, appealing for the votes of the American people during the repeal elections, promised:

1. That bootlegging would be eliminated as a serious problem.
2. That dry territory would be protected.
3. That "poisonous" liquor would no longer be sold.
4. That "temperance" would be promoted.
5. That the influence of the underworld in politics and the liquor trade would be eliminated.
6. That deplorable drink conditions among young people would not continue.
7. That taxes would be lightened by enormous revenues from the liquor traffic.
8. That the unemployment situation would be relieved and the farmer would find a vast new market.
9. That the saloon would not be permitted to return.
10. That "racketeers" would be seriously handicapped by the failure of their principal source of income.
11. That the people would drink more light wines and beer and less whiskey.

A Liquor Traffic Divested of Its Evils

In order to perfect the record we quote from leading exponents of repeal:

"1. It (the repeal program) should destroy the present speakeasy, prevent smuggling and do away with bootlegging. 2. It should prevent the return of the iniquities of the old saloon.—From a leaflet of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment.

"Beer and light wines now but no saloons ever."—Pamphlet 22, A.A.P.A.

"Everything humanly possible will be done to eradicate and stamp out once and for all the dark, evil-smelling resorts that have been the breeding places of vice, crime and corruption."—Edward P. Mulrooney, Chairman of the New York (State) Alcohol Beverage Control Board, May 30, 1932.

"Repeal at any time will bring the rout of lawlessness, the restoration of local republican self-government, and the establishmnt of intelligent and sane methods of attacking the drink evil."—Joseph H. Choate, Jr., New York Times, May 9, 1933.

Among the benefits of repeal will be "restoring the respect for all laws which the illicit liquor industry has broken down" and "relieving officials of the Federal and state governments from the necessity to combat racketeers and gunmen."—Jouett Shouse, Baltimore, Md., September 14, 1932.

"Re-establishment of the saloon as we used to know it will be prevented by overwhelming public sentiment in each state."—Senator Walsh, May 17, 1932.

Promises Unfulfilled

The present situation is in sharp contrast with these promises.

1. The liquor traffic is very nearly a monoply in the hands of a few great concerns.

2. Many of the brands of whiskey now being sold to the people under fancy labels are frequently described as "worse than bootleg."

3. Speakeasies are numerous in the slums of our great cities.

4. Smuggling of alcoholic liquors without payment of duty is a vast industry manifesting its well-known obnoxious defiance of United States laws.

5. Bootlegging is general. Responsible officials have honestly and candidly faced the fact that the volume of the bootleg whiskey trade is probably equal to the volume of the legitimate trade in whiskey. Mr. Joseph H. Choate, Jr., head of the Federal Alcohol Control Administration, estimates that we are consuming "a quantity of spirits (bootleg) which cannot be much less and may be more than we drank before prohibition. This quantity is being consumed in addition to the entire sales of legal goods which ever since repeal have run not far below pre-prohibition figures." This vast illegal trade exists in spite of the most strenuous efforts on the part of the treasury which is making use of approximately as large an organization to suppress the illegal trade in alcoholic beverages today as was used at any time in the enforcement of the prohibition law.

6. There are nearly a half million places of retail liquor sale in the country and the majority of these are nothing but saloons. In many cities these saloons are filthy and vile to the last degree. They harbor thieves and prostitutes and infect the whole social body. The use of hostesses—many of them under age, some of them mere children—is a common practice. Defiance of law and police regulations, payment of graft, and every form of public corruption characterize the liquor trade in practically every metropolitan city. The liquor traffic flaunts itself in the face of disapproving sentiment, crowds its way into communities where it has been hitherto unknown, while gangsters with a new arrogance are building up organized gambling and other rackets to unprecedented proportions, burdening business with their exactions and terrorizing the American public.—Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, M. E. Church.

OUR STORY PAGE

STRANGER THAN FICTION

"Really, Bobby, you have too far to go for your lunch. Can't you bring your lunch along with you after this?"

"Mamma said I should come home for it," Bobby answered with his bare toes shaping letters on the oiled floor.

"But, Bobby, you are always late for the afternoon session, and we can't allow that."

"I'll try to get back on time, Miss Cleveland."

"Well, do hurry then. You may go today yet. We will try to settle this question later."

Off Bobby ran, and Miss Cleveland turned with a sigh. Bobby Andrews was a regular problem. Mischievous in the schoolroom and persistent in his habits of stubbornness—that was Bobby.

"If only there wasn't a Bobby, teaching would be a pleasure! There is always something to take the joy out of teaching as well as out of life. And I promised him I would settle this question later. What must I do? I have repeatedly asked him to bring lunch along with him. A mile is entirely too far for him to walk and eat his lunch and return in an hour's time. The other children bring theirs and he must bring his or stay in after school double the time he is late," Miss Cleveland soliloquized as she munched at her noon lunch and finished in a decided manner.

"Miss Cleveland is going to be on our side!" echoed from the playground.

"No, she isn't either. It was my choice first and I chose her."

Miss Cleveland hastily crumpled the lunch paper bag and pushed it into the stove as she, at the urge of the children, went to join in their game.

The noon hour passed away and Bobby was temporarily forgotten. But at one o'clock Bobby did not join the line with the other children, and Miss Cleveland in consternation insisted that her plans would not be thwarted. At one-thirty, the regular time, a scuffing noise was heard on the doorstep and the door opened and closed with a thud. Bobby had arrived. He flopped himself into his desk and turned with a grin to surmise the attitudes of the other pupils.

"Take off your cap, Bobby," Miss Cleveland commanded in a positive tone, at which time the cap was promptly removed and with some disturbance found its way to its accustomed place.

"Now, Bobby, you are late again. What do you think should be done with you?"

"Give me a beatin', I suppose," and he grinned as usual.

Miss Cleveland well knew that this would not break up his habit.

"This means that tomorrow you must bring your lunch or do without. Do you understand?"

"Yes, ma'am," Bobby replied.

"This is final now, remember."

The next day came. Bobby arrived, but without his lunch.

"Oh, dear, this means the testing day. But he must obey me."

At noon Bobby did not ask to go for his lunch, but silently remained in his desk while the other pupils ate theirs. Miss Cleveland's heart softened, yet she was determined not to relent for she knew that if she did that she would be letting down the bars of discipline. After the other pupils had gone out to play she called Bobby to her and handed him a piece of cake that she had saved on purpose for him.

"Bobby, why can't you be a good boy? You can't do without your lunch and study your lessons well. The other boys will all get ahead of you. Why is it you can't bring your lunch?"

Bobby grinned, but did not answer. Miss Cleveland continued but could elicit no reply but a grin or a " 'cause."

He was a problem, indeed. What could be done? She decided to visit his home that very evening and have a talk with the mother. So at four o'clock she followed Bobby home from school.

"Miss Cleveland, do you live in a big house?" queried Bobby as they trudged the beaten path through the woods.

"Why, not so very large, Bobby. What makes you ask that?"

"I was just thinking maybe you wouldn't like our little house," and Bobby walked along jovially again.

Miss Cleveland thought. Could the child mean that they were so poor and was just trying to prepare her for what she would face? But before she had much time for meditation they approached the little shabby house covered with vines.

"Well, Miss Cleveland, this is where I live," he informed her, leaving her standing in the yard as he ran around the house calling for his mother.

Miss Cleveland was soon ushered in with very little ceremony. She sighed. Could it be possible that anyone could live in such a house? She, however, gained control of herself and spoke with the mother who showed but very little friendliness; she simply could not venture to say a word about Bobby's lunch.

That evening she spoke to the lady with whom she was boarding.

"Mrs. Brown, what kind of people are Bobby Andrews' parents?"

"Oh, don't mention them. They are about the worst I ever saw."

"Do you mean they are so very poor?"

"Yes, they are poor; but that is not the half. You just ought to know his mother. Have you seen her yet?"

"Why, yes, I saw her once," Miss Cleveland added, not willing to tell the whole truth just now.

"Well, it's this way. They are too lazy to do any work. Consequently, they don't have anything to eat half the time. Bertie, Bobby's mother, is as bad as the father at drinking. Bobby is the oldest child and he has a hard time, but I suppose he will soon be as bad as the old ones."

Then Miss Cleveland told of her trip that evening and of the original purpose.

"No, he can't bring his lunch to school. He has nothing to bring," Mrs. Brown concluded.

Could it be possible that anyone on this side of the ocean was really hungry? She had often heard stories of starvation, but she thought such incidents belonged to the Orient. Her eyes were opened to the truth that there are people in America that need relief as well as in distant countries. And she had caught a vision of the need of spiritual teaching in the homeland as well. Not all heathen are in the tropical or jungle lands.

That night she prayed that the Lord would use her just where she was as a means of bringing souls to Him and of helping to relieve those in need.—The Youth's Christian Companion.

STANDING THE TEST

A beautiful, talented, cultured young woman, a stenographer in a big oil company office in a Texas city, was happily converted to God in a revival meeting. She immediately notified her employers that she had been converted and was now a Christian and therefore could not work any more in their office on Sunday. The matter was then dropped for the moment without discussion. In the absence of the young lady, her employers, a set of Godless men, decided to test her sincerity the next Sunday by offer of extra pay, and even an interest in the company, if necessary, in order to get her to break her vow to keep the Lord's Day holy as a Christian. The matter was dropped until the following Sunday morning when about 9:30 she was called by phone from the office and told that a few letters had to be written, that it would not take long and that she would have plenty of time to do that little work and then attend church.

''I am a Christian and cannot do that work today,'' was her reply.

''It will only take you a few minutes to do this necessary work and we are willing to pay extra for it,'' was the reply from the office.

''I cannot do it today,'' she answered.

''Well, if you cannot do our work when we want it done we will be compelled to get some one who will.''

''All right,'' was her quick decision, expecting to lose her position and high salary as a result of becoming a Christian and living a life of obedience to the teaching of the Bible.

''But,'' came as a reply from the office, ''you have given us perfect satisfaction as a stenographer and you know our business and we prefer to keep you, and if you will come and get out our letters this morning we will pay you well for the extra service.''

''There is no use in discussing this matter any further,'' she answered. ''I am a Christian now and intend to keep the Lord's Day holy, and if for that reason you want to get another stenographer, you are at perfect liberty to do so and to do it at once.''

''But listen just one more moment,'' a voice from the office continued, ''we know your business capabilities and we want you to be a member of our company, and if you will come on to the office and do our little work this morning we will make you a stockholder in our company, we will give you a big share, and you know what that will mean to you in the future in a financial way; you will be perfectly independent.''

''I have nothing further to say, my heart is fixed on the Christian life which is worth more than all the world besides. Good-by,'' she said as she hung up the receiver.

The oil company officials in the office who were applying the severest tests known to them to the sincerity of the young lady who had just been converted were almost dazed at her firmness and declared that there must be a reality in Christian experience known only to those who have it. They were convinced that her conversion was genuine. She was called to the office Monday morning when the plot to test her sincerity was fully confessed to her and due apologies made.

She was not discharged, but from that day on received a handsome increase in salary without asking for it.

What was the result of her carrying out her determination? What would have been the result with herself, with the oil company and with her influence had she yielded to the empty temptation? Think!—Christian Witness.

PROUD OF HIS MOTHER

The mother of John Quincy Adams said in a letter, written when he was only twelve years old:

''I would rather see you laid in your grave than see you grow up a profane and graceless boy.''

Not long before the death of Mr. Adams, a gentleman said to him: ''I have found out who made you.''

''What do you mean?'' asked Mr. Adams.

The gentleman replied: ''I have been reading the published letters of your mother.''

''If,'' this gentleman relates, ''I had spoken that dear name to some little boy who had been for weeks away from his mother, his eyes couldn't have flashed more brightly than did the eyes of that venerable old man when I pronounced the name of his mother. He stood up in his peculiar manner and said, 'Yes, sir, all that is good in me I owe to my mother.' ''—The Day-Spring.

No Herald August 1st

Again we are giving notice that there will not be any Herald printed the week following the fourth Sunday in July. The publication date will fall on August 1. Those who have announcements to make will please bear this fact in mind. This is in accord with a custom of several years to take a vacation of one week in mid-summer and to suspend publication Christmas week.

H. A. Garrett Improves

Brother H. A. Garrett, one of our most useful laymen and former superintendent of our Children's Home at High Point, who has been critically ill in the Clinic Hospital in Greensboro for more than a week is somewhat improved. He is conscious now, although he does not have the use of his left side.

R. C. Causey Loses Barn

The large feed barn of Brother R. C. Causey of Guilford county was burned one night last week. This is the second barn belonging to Brother Causey that has burned in the past few years. He is a member of the Board of County Commissioners of Guilford county and is also a member of the N. C. Board of Education of our conference.

EXECUTIVE MEETING, NOTICE!

The first quarterly executive meeting of the N. C. Branch of Women's Work will be held at Grace Methodist Protestant church in Greensboro on Tuesday, July 23, beginning at 10 o'clock. The women of Grace church have volunteered to serve luncheon free at the noon hour. Let every officer make a special effort to be present.

MRS. J. M. MILLIKAN,
First Vice President.

◆

To all Auxiliary members and Scholarship and Workers Secretaries:

Since Miss Brittingham has been absent from her office for several weeks visiting in the several states attending the various Branch meetings, I could not get this information to you as early as I had hoped.

Now let us all get busy and encourage and help get things going and have a report we will be proud of for next Branch meeting. Help your secretaries to put this over in a big way. If you cannot take one of the large amounts, take a smaller one.

Secretaries, meet with and advise your members, plan how to raise the money, and encourage each other. Here is an itemized list. Let us get busy!

Pine Ridge: The cost for boy or girl at Pine Ridge is $125 per year. This amount may be given by anyone desiring to support a child in the Alvan Drew School. Several years ago it was the policy of the board to give the name of the child to a certain church for support. This worked out all right on our foreign field, but there was difficulty on our home field. The Auxiliaries supporting a child at Pine Ridge would send him Christmas presents and other gifts, and sometimes when the child had received money from the Auxiliary they would write them for additional help later. This caused confusion and misunderstanding. Therefore, we are asking Auxiliaries now to designate monies for our Scholarship Fund and allow Mr. Andrew to dispose of this to the most needy young people.

Scholarships to India: We have a very limited number of hospital bed scholarships at the cost of $35 per year. All of our scholarships for orphan children are taken at the present time, but there is some likelihood that this group may be increased later this year. Whenever we have these scholarships for orphan children they are $35 per year.

North Carolina Branch is already helping in the support of the Suvarta Hospital through its quilt plan, but should an Auxiliary desire to do something additional, we have a hundred medical units at $10 each available for distribution.

If an Auxiliary is interested in helping Dr. Lacy buy medicine for the hospital, they may have one of these units. These will be treated in the same way as our regular scholarships.

China: We do have available one or two scholarships for evangelists. These run from about $50 per year to $160 per year, depending upon the person supported. We hope a little later to have some student scholarships for an Auxiliary. These will cost about $50 a year.

Japan: We have scholarships for the support of our teachers in Eiwa Jo Gakko School in Yokohama at $75 per year, and teachers in the elementary school at $120 per year. Any Auxiliary desiring to support a teacher from either of these schools may receive the name of the teacher they are supporting. We do not have any available student scholarships at the present time.

All of the abovementioned scholarships are a credit on the budget of the Auxiliary and also the Branch.

MRS. G. P. YOUNGINER,
Sec. Scholarships and Workers.

SILVER ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION OF THE CHILDREN'S HOME

Have we been planning in order to make the 22nd of August a successful day? We must keep this date ever before us. In the meantime, we should be putting aside a good offering to turn in on this occasion. The children and the Home need so many things that only money can buy.

As I listened to a radio program a few days ago, this thought came to me. Oftentimes we forget others in the struggle for three things which the majority of us wish for most—these being fame, power, and gold. After thinking seriously, what would our wishes be, if we could only have three? I think, really, we would wish for happiness, faith, and understanding. We would not wish for that happiness which bubbles up, but for happiness which always makes peace. We would not wish for fair weather faith, but faith which faces the blackest night. And we would wish for only that understanding which helps prevent many dreams from being shattered.

If these are our three main wishes, may we not only try to make them possible for ourselves, but for others. As we approach the celebration of the Children's Home, let us keep in mind the conditions there and give freely of our money. In this way we can make a more pleasant atmosphere for the boys and girls. Then I'm sure our own wishes for happiness, faith, and understanding would stand a much better chance of coming true.

THE BATES' COTTAGE FOR RENT

We have had a number of inquiries during the past several years from folks who wanted to rent our cottage at Weaverville for a week or two during the summer. In most instances we have had to refuse to rent it, because of the inconvenience it would cause us to do so. But we have now built another, smaller, cottage on our place, which we are prepared to rent to parties or families that may want to spend a few days in the mountains. The new cottage consists of one large room, with garage. If additional sleeping room is needed, it can be provided in the other cottage. Arrangements can be made for those who want to do so to do their own cooking. The cottage is furnished. The rates are reasonable. If you are interested, write Mrs. C. W. Bates, Weaverville, N. C.

Coupons are beginning to come in well on the baby bands. A thousand coupons for each band will mean many dollars for the Home.

August 22

Others are keeping before you the 25th anniversary of this Home, which is to be celebrated on the 22nd of August, and we greatly appreciate their efforts. May I call special attention to one action the committee took in planning for this celebration? They said, "We will ask each church in the conference to appoint some one good solicitor to approach the friends of Methodist Protestants and secure gifts for the Home." Some churches are doing this, and we hope all will; for there are many who are not members of our church who would contribute to the Children's Home if properly approached.

We are now in the second week of July, and the 22nd of August will be upon us all too soon.

National Jamboree

Three of our boys, of Troop No. 10, have been selected by their Scout Master, and the District Scout Master, to go to Washington, D. C., in August to attend the National Jamboree. These are Howard Garmon, Millard Coble and Walter Shanklin. We hope to be able to send them. At any rate we are very happy in the fact that their records were such that three of our boys were chosen.

Pray for us and help us all you can during these summer months. The offerings are exceedingly short.

Also please send for glass jars to be filled with fruits or vegetables of any kind; or let us send them to you. Thank you, and God bless you.

Yours in His service,
A. G. DIXON, Superintendent.

THE CHILDREN'S HOME OFFERINGS

During this scare caused by infantile paralysis our people need to guard against too great a drop in the offerings to our Children's Home at High Point. The expenses of that institution go on just the same whether people go to church or not. On last Sunday one pastor called attention to that fact and when the offering was taken it was a little larger than usual, even though the attendance was not much more than half of what it usually is. Brethren, try this plan.

LEADERSHIP TRAINING SCHOOLS FOR THE SUMMER CONTINUE SUCCESSFUL

Since attending the five regional conventions, it has been my privilege to be in the Missouri, Illinois and Michigan (Miller Lake) Leadership Training schools. These schools were all of a fine caliber. We have also had excellent reports from Indiana, Iowa-Missouri and North Carolina. The Kentucky school was held at Pine Ridge, Kentucky, June 17-23, from which we have had no report as yet. During June seven schools were held and the series was off to an excellent start.

The first school in South Carolina will be held July 1-7 with Revs. J. C. Auman and J. T. Bowman in charge. Six schools will be held during the second week in July as follows: West Virginia, Onondaga, South Arkansas, Eastern, Georgia, and Alabama.

Regardless of the fact that I have had to undergo an operation for appendicitis and will be out of the field for at least four weeks, our workers everywhere are pushing ahead with the biggest series of schools ever undertaken in any one summer. The splendid co-operation on the part of everyone. especially at this time, is greatly appreciated.

Yours for a trained and consecrated leadership for every Methodist Protestant church,

F. L. GIBBS.

THE HIGHWAY TO LEADERSHIP

By Rev. N. G. Bethea, D. D.

A Leader: One Who Uses the Six Senses

The fact that God has given us the five senses to use shows that they should be cared for in such a way as to make them helpful in the affairs of life. I am adding the sixth one because it takes that to use the others effectively. COMMON SENSE! How we need to use it!

There are three of the senses that will be mentioned in this talk that may be used to great advantage when used with the sixth.

Eyes That See

Jesus used his eyes to see that which was worth saving. He saw a man that was a beggar. The rags did not attract him like the MAN. Our great Pattern in leadership was always looking for the MAN. The sight of a man to Jesus suggested salvation. What a change in this old world if when we come in contact with a person we would only stop to think that he is immortal and must either be led to the right or he will go wrong. That sense of taste for the "meat to eat" that the man of the world knows nothing of, should be cultivated. Livingston saw men to be saved in Africa while others saw ivory, rubber, diamonds, and the material.

The money-maker succeeds only where the man goes who sees the man to be saved rather than the money that is to be made or may be made. This class of folks sometimes do not realize what the pioneer of civilization means to his business. He does not give credit, but what progress has the trader made only as the missionary has first blazed the trail?

True leaders lose sight of self in doing for the human race just the things that their Commander and Leader did. This emphasizes the truth that if one would be a leader he must learn to deny self.

Ears That Hear

Leaders then must have ears that hear every sound. They must know when to take warning from the sounds that are dangerous as well as to see the things that must be spurned. It is all right to cultivate a taste for the beautiful and look for the good. But there must be that sense of cultivation that will enable us to choose the right. We appreciate the day because we have passed through the night. We appreciate righteousness because we know that sin is in contrast. The true leader must not become sentimental because he only looks at the good and the gentle. He must go down in the fiery furnace where men are being tried, and if he is pure he will help and come up without the smell of fire upon his garments. He must be able to warn of the consequences of sin because he has been among those who need help.

There is too much of this theory today that says: "Oh, you must not talk of the evils, nor condemn it for in so doing you will cause men to turn to it from curiosity. Hold up the good and you will do people more good." Jesus did not fail to warn the people of the result of wrong-doing. The Bible has a great deal of the beautiful, but it also tells of the sins of men, how they were saved from them, and also how those who were not saved from them suffered and in many cases lost.

The education that takes one away from the calls that come in the night, and from the darkness, fails of the Christlike. The heart cries of the world we need to hear. Listening sympathetically as Jesus did. He stopped the procession to listen to the blind beggar. Not a beautiful sight to see a man filthy, ragged, begging by the wayside. But the beautiful came in when Jesus, who had a listening ear to the cries for help, made him so that these rags could be removed and his body cleansed as well as his soul.

Patient listening is a great grace. Abraham Lincoln was said to be a great conversationalist, but a better listener. Be sure of this also, that many times those who have not had your advantages may be able to tell you something that will help you. Do not get the idea that because you have been here to this Leadershisp Training Seool, you know more than the folks back home who have had years of experience in church work. Here is where you need to put into practice your good judgment by following and thus get ready for greater service when your time comes.

The Heart That Feels

God's estimate is put upon the heart from whence are the issues of life. What a readjustment of affairs if man could see into the heart as God sees. Do not be afraid to shed a tear in sympathy for those who need you. Jesus, the most manly of men, thinking of him only from the human standpoint, was not ashamed to weep. He wept in sympathy with the sisters whose brother had died. He wept over Jerusalem because of the impending doom. True leaders must have hearts that can be touched with the feelings of the infirmities of men. Jesus as our High Priest is so touched. An interest in human beings that goes beyond wealth, education, social standing, that reaches down to the lowest that help may be given.

Jesus went beyond the conventionalities of his day; yea, even beyond the law, and he touched the man who was quarantined by the law and said, "I will, be thou clean."

The life that is clean, when it touches the unclean to help, does not suffer from the contagion. The case of the Good Samaritan represents Jesus doing what neither law nor form could do. It takes the middle-of-the-road man, like Jesus, that is willing to pick up the wounded man.

Hearts that feel do not demand something for nothing. They seek the best, they give the best. Our aloofness is often evidenced by our failures. Jesus understood every class. Hard-hearted people who have allowed their fountain of sympathy to be dried up in order that they might be called strong and manly are missing many of the sweets of life.

Let the cold, formal church member call me weak; let those who are intellectual giants give the cynical smile; let those who love worldly pleasure most say I am sentimental, effeminate; what they please, let them say or do. But if I can only hear Jesus say, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, ye have done it unto me," I shall be satisfied with my reward.

As Napoleon said of Jesus when he realized that the only way to found a kingdom was upon love, "O, Nazarene, thou hast conquered!" So will it be with the leaders and workers who have eyes that see, ears that hear, and hearts that feel after the manner of Jesus, that will bring this sin-cursed world to the foot of the Cross.

WANTED — A YOUNG MAN

We are in need of a young man who loves dogs, chickens, cattle, mules, and boys. He will have no dogs to handle, but if he does not love dogs he will not do much with boys. We need a young man who is manly, firm, and patient. A young man who is thoroughly Christian; not goody-goody, if there be such a thing, but ruggedly Christian. None other need apply. We prefer a dirt-farmer young man. He may wish to enter High Point College, or he may want to work regularly.

Write us soon in your own hand-writing, and tell us about yourself and your plans for the future. You may be looking to the ministry, or you may be planning to be a farmer, a mechanic, or a business man. That matters not to us, but if you can play with boys, and work with boys, and yet control boys, we would like to have you. If you cannot do that, then you would be out of place in the job we have.

Wanted, a jolly, manly, Christian young man. If you wish to take four years at High Point College and can qualify as above, we believe we can help you while you help us.

Yours in His service,

A. G. DIXON, Superintendent.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Flat Rock Charge.—The revival services which began at Gideon's Grove church last Sunday were largely attended. The pastor spoke to the morning and afternoon congregations pending the arrival of Rev. J. P. Pegg, who came in time for the night service. He delivered a very helpful sermon on the theme, "Jesus, the Road." When you read this our services will be nearly ended. A report of the services will be made next week.

The third quarterly conference of Flat Rock charge will be held Saturday afternoon of this week, beginning at 2 o'clock. We are expecting a good attendance of the official members and others from all of the churches.

Funeral services were held last Saturday afternoon for Cary Williams, a member of Flat Rock church, at the home of his mother, Mrs. Emma Williams, also a member of Flat Rock church. The deceased was 45 years of age, and had resided in Greensboro for many years, where he was a prominent automobile salesman. Surviving are the wife and two daughters; one sister, Mrs. Pearl Styers, of near Greensboro, and his mother, Mrs. Emma Williams. Rev. J. R. Hutton, former pastor of Flat Rock charge, conducted the funeral services, being assisted by Rev. Frank Jordan, Methodist minister of Greensboro, and the writer. Interment was in the city cemetery at Greensboro.

We will begin revival services at Bethany church next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. Rev. W. L. Harkey, pastor of the Weaverville charge, will arrive Monday to do the preaching during the meeting. Brother Harkey will remain with us for the revival meeting at Palestine church beginning the third Sunday morning.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Lexington, First Church and Mt. Carmel.—It has been some time since I have reported through the columns of the Herald, but the reporters of both churches have been keeping the readers informed of our activities.

In both churches interest in both Sunday school and preaching services is on the increase, with growing attendance.

On Monday after the first Sunday in April Rev. B. M. Williams, pastor of the Orange circuit, came to us as the pulpit help in our revival at the First church. Rev. Mr. Williams was at his best, and his convincing messages were well received. We enjoyed having him among us. There were sixteen professions of faith and twenty accessions to the church as results of the meeting.

This church has almost enough money on hand to pay for a suggested new hut, or, if building a new church should be decided on, to make a substantial beginning on the auditorium.

In the Sunday school three new classes are functioning: the Mary Philathea class named in honor of Mrs. H. C. Koontz, the teacher; the Isley Philathea class, Mrs. C. M. Isley, teacher, and the First M. P. Baraca class, Phonse Bean, teacher. These along with the Men's Bible class, C. L. Hedrick, teacher, and the other classes of the Sunday school are doing efficient work.

Last Sunday four new members were received, making a total of 24 additions to the membersship of First church during the present year.

At Mt. Carmel the work is likewise going splendidly. The new church with a main auditorium of 400 seating capacity and seven Sunday school rooms has been completed and painted inside, pews have been repaired, and a new piano bought, and all of these have been paid for in full.

The first Sunday in August will be Home-Coming Day at Mt. Carmel, when all former pastors and members are especially invited to return. At 11 o'clock Rev. R. M. Andrews, D.D., will preach the dedicatory sermon for the new church; in the afternoon Rev. James Witherspoon, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Lexington, will deliver the Home-Coming address. Special singing for the services of the day will be furnished by the double quartet of the First M. P. church of Concord.

In the evening at 7:45 the revival meeting will begin, with Rev. C. L. Grant, pastor of the North Davidson charge, as pulpit help. Rev. Mr. Grant has been with us before, and has rendered splendid help.

The second quarterly conference of the year was held in May, at which time R. M. Rowe and H. L. Swicegood were selected as nominees for delegate to annual conference. Both are from Mt. Carmel, and both are well qualified to represent the charge at annual conference.

We regret to note the illness of Miss Margaret Lee Swink, one of our active and efficient workers, who has been confined to her home for quite a while; Dossie Lee Koonts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Koonts, who has just returned from Davidson hospital where she underwent an operation for appendicitis; and Miss Beulah McCulloch, who for the past week has been ill at her home with appendicitis. We are glad, however, to report that all are better.

The death of Mrs. Fred Michael occurred July 5 with the funeral July 7 at First church. Mrs. Michael leaves her husband, seven children, and her mother to mourn her going. A full report will appear later.

C. G. ISLEY.

Connelly Springs Charge.—We have not had a report from this work for some time, for several reasons. One of the reporters has moved away, one's health is bad, and the other doesn't know the Herald's address, as she has never reported. Many of our good friends have said to me that they always looked for letters from our work, and I feel that this to them, and to others who may be interested.

Our work is moving along nicely; the prospects for a good year appear much brighter than last, as we have more material to work with, and the work is in better condition in general.

The Sunday school attendance has been off some for the past few weeks, due to the infantile paralysis and flu among the children, but hope this will not last long.

Our Ladies' Aid is still very active. They have painted the inside of Shady Grove, and the men painted the outside; or rather, they furnished the paint for the inside, and the men painted the church. Also the old organ has been replaced with a nice piano. We hope this will increase the interest in singing. I am sure it has improved the music. We will have a singing convention at Shady Grove Sunday, July 7. This is in interest of the music, and the young people at Shiloh, who have recently had another singing school, and have made some wonderful improvement. We are proud of them.

Our prayer meetings are still holding up well in interest at Shady Grove and Shiloh each Sunday night, and at Shady Grove a midweek cottage prayer meeting. We feel they are doing much good.

We are planning for our meetings, soon to begin. The people have requested that I hold them again this year. I trust we may have a great ingathering of souls. Pray for us to that end.

J. L. LOVE, Pastor.

Mt. Carmel, Lexington.—Rev. Mr. Isley filled his regular appointment this morning, July 7. He spoke on "Choosing the Good and Bad." This was an excellent message. We were very glad to have some visitors with us at this time. A granddaughter of the late Rev. D. A. Braswell was among these. While Mr. Braswell was pastor here she made many friends that were glad for her to pay them a visit.

Since our last report the second quarterly conference met at Mt. Carmel with a very good attendance of the officials present. Both churches had good reports. The ladies' auxiliary of Mt. Carmel reported they had raised $174 in the last quarter. At this time the delegates were nominated to attend annual conference. Both delegates are from Mt. Carmel, as it is an agreement for them to have the delegate every third year. Mr. R. M. Rowe and Mr. H. L. Swicegood are the men nominated. Both men would make excellent delegates.

The ladies' auxiliary has bought a new piano and placed it in the church recently. This is a very lively organization. They will on next Saturday serve a fried chicken dinner and supper in Lexington. At this time the quilt they have made will be sold to the highest bidder. It is on exhibit in the show window of the Lexington Furnishing Company at present.

The annual home-coming day will be held Sunday, August 4. The members and friends of Mt. Carmel are anticipating a most enjoyable day. In the morning the dedication service for the new church will be held. Dr. R. M. Andrews, president of the annual conference, will conduct the ceremonies of dedication and deliver the dedicatory sermon at 11 a.m. Dinner will be enjoyed during the noon recess in picnic style on the church grounds. The afternoon program will be the home-coming address by Rev. James Witherspoon, pastor of First Presbyterian church in Lexington. Special music will be furnished by a double quartet of Concord, and the Presbyterian quartet of Lexington.

The revival will begin the same evening at 7:45 with Rev. C. L. Grant, pastor of North Davidson charge, as the pulpit help. Rev. Mr. Grant is no stranger, as he helped two years ago in the revival. He is a very hard worker and an excellent speaker. Services will be held the following week in the afternoon and evening. The hour will be announced later.

Albemarle.—Monday night, July 1, Mrs. Williams and I were entertaining a friend of ours on the front porch when suddenly we saw a number of cars stopping in front of the parsonage. Much to our surprise we realized it was our members giving us an old-fashioned pounding. Along with all the nice things our members brought, friends of ours had included a large box of canned goods. We appreciate the thoughtfulness of our good people. These occasions are beneficial both financially and socially. We are unable to mention names, gifts or givers, as many packages had no names attached, but we are thankful for both the gifts and the givers. Yesterday, July 7, was a good day for us. We put on a tithing campaign for 90 days to help take care of the church debt. Twenty-four people readily responded. We also gave out the birthday boxes for our Children's Home.

D. R. WILLIAMS.

Enfield.—Yesterday being the fifth Sunday, our pastor, Rev. E. O. Peeler, went to Whitakers for the morning service and here for the evening service. He preached a wonderful sermon on "Come, Follow Me." Mrs. Exum Bellamy sang a lovely solo which was very greatly enjoyed by all present. We were very glad to have Rev. and Mrs. Wommack, of the M. E. church, worship with us. Mr. Wommack led the evening prayer. We are always glad to have visitors worship with us.

Mr. Peeler attended Leadership Training School at High Point College last week, and taught a course in Personal Religious Living. He reports a beautiful Christian spirit prevailing throughout the entire school. We regret very much our two delegates found it impossible at the last minute to attend.

The woman's auxiliary met June 28 in the home of Miss Mary Collins, with Mrs. E. F. Stallings joint hostess. In the absence of the president, Mrs. R. A. Jordan, the first vice-president, Mrs. Egbert Barnhill, presided. Devotionals were conducted by Mrs. Eli Bellamy. Splendid reports from the various committees were given, and we hope interest will not slump during July and August. During the social hour the hostesses served delicious home-made peach ice cream and cake. Our auxiliary gave Mrs. W. D. Bustin a surprise birthday party June 12 at the home of Mrs. S. C. Whitaker, celebrating her 87th birthday. Ice cream and cake were served, and the occasion was greatly enjoyed by all attending. Mrs. Bustin received many useful presents.

Circle No. 2 of our auxiliary made and sold Brunswick stew last week.

We are sorry to report Mrs. S. E. Whisnant, Mrs. Peeler's mother, has been quite sick; however, at this writing we understand she is some better, but will be confined to her bed about a month.

Misses Harriet and Mary Wills, of Greensboro, are visiting Mrs. S. C. Whitaker and relatives. We were happy to have them worship with us yesterday at both Sunday school and evening service.

The study class met last Thursday night at the parsonage with a good attendance. We are beginning the new study book, and Miss Mary Collins reviewed the first chapter for us in a most interesting and pleasing way.

The Mission Band is doing splendid work under the leadership of Mrs. Walter Moon and Mrs. E. O. Peeler. They had planned a picnic but had to postpone it indefinitely.

First Church, Charlotte.—We were glad to have one of our former pastors, Rev. N. M. Harrison, with us on Sunday evening, June 30. He brought a stirring message especially to the young people. The Glee Club, under the direction of Fleetwood Green, furnished the music at this service.

The church school attendance is off considerably, due to the fact that there are three cases of infantile paralysis in the city and parents have been warned by health officials to keep their children at home and away from crowds.

Fifteen new members were added to the church on last Sunday morning. They were: Mr .and Mrs. Harry T. Orr, Misses Marjorie, Dorothy and Kathleen Orr, Mr. and Mrs. Maion L. Trapp and Miss Betty Trapp, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Straw, Billy Albro, Mr. and Mrs. Byrum, and Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Noles.

A large audience enjoyed the gospel hymn interpretation service given by Fred L. Gentry, of Spartanburg, S. C., on Sunday evening.

Evangelistic services will be held twice daily at 10 a. m. and 7:45 p. m. in the Gospel Tabernacle. Rev. Thomas C. Cassady, D. D., pastor of Capitol Heights Methodist Protestant church, Montgomery, Ala., will do the preaching. Dr. Cassady has served two notable pastorates in Alabama. He was in the First Methodist Protestant church in Birmingham for 13 years and has now finished his 14th year in his present pastorate in Montgomery.

We missed "The President's Letter" in the Herald last week and were sorry to read of the illness of Dr. Andrews. May the Lord bless him and restore him to health soon.

Roberta.—Although silent for the past few months, we have not been idle. Our attendance at both Sunday school and church has been somewhat lower for two or three Sundays. Our county officials have quarantined all children under 15 years of age and do not allow them to attend church or any other public places to prevent the spread of the infantile paralysis. We pray that this quarantine will not have to be continued all summer and if it does we hope the older people will not lose interest and stay away because the children have to. To grow spiritually we need to attend church services in order to feed our souls. It is just as necessary to the welfare of our souls as bread is to our physical bodies. So please, folk, let's come out and take part in God's services and I am sure He will wonderfully bless us.

We are so thankful to the Heavenly Father for blessing us this past week with a good rain. God is a merciful Father and always ready to pour His blessings upon us if we will let Him. Why could not all of us be more cheerful and spread a ray of sunshine or drop a rose in the path of all we come in contact with daily? I am sure this would be a happier world in which to live.

Two weeks ago God sent the death angel and took Mrs. Will Dulin home, away from the toils and troubles of this earthly tabernacle. She leaves her husband and eight small children to mourn their loss. May God watch over and care for those dear children as they go through the rough and uneven paths of life. May they find motherly hands from friends and neighbors as they go along the way.

Rev. E. A. Cook and family attended a birthday dinner that was given in honor of his father at his home in Union county last Saturday, July 6. We do not know how old Brother Cook was, but we wish for him many more happy birthdays.

The fourth Sunday in this month we expect Brother Andrews, the president of our Annual Conference, to preach for us at the 11 o'clock hour. Then in the afternoon our township Sunday school convention will be held. Two or three speakers and quartet music will be the features of the program. Everyone is invited to attend these services. Come and let's enjoy them together.

Pine Bluff, Midland Charge.—Our pastor, Rev. J. H. Trollinger, brought us an interesting sermon last Sunday morning at the 11 o'clock service. We also had our Bible class discussion Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock; of course everyone enjoyed it. The Ladies' Aid is planning to have an ice cream supper Saturday afternoon beginning at 6 o'clock. Everyone has an invitation to come and be with us. We are also planning a picnic supper. So everyone come and bring your well-filled basket.

Matthews Chapel, Greensville Charge.—Pastor Lamb has just returned from a two weeks vacation and was with us yesterday at the usual hour. We are always glad to have him in our midst, and his splendid sermons are always a joy and a help to us.

Our Sunday school has been doing splendidly, until yesterday, the attendance was not so good among the little folks, due to infantile paralysis in a nearby community.

The W. O. W. organization observed memorial services the third Sunday in June in honor of two of its members, W. W. Clary and Murray Ellis, who recently passed away. Pastor Lamb delivered the memorial sermon at 11 o'clock. Then after everybody had partaken of a bountiful spread, the services were concluded at the graves. We had a large crowd present for both services.

Roy Chambliss, of Philadelphia church, and Eddie Lee Edwards, of this church, are our nominees to Annual Conference.

Our annual revival will begin here the fourth Sunday of this month. May we have a glorious revival.

Clarence Wren, a former teacher of our Sunday school, was recently married to Miss Jackie Burns, of Emporia, Va. They are making their home at Emporia, where he is connected with the Emporia Machine Co.

Our community and church were saddened recently by the passing of one of its members, Mr. Tom Brewer. He was also a member of the board of trustees for a good many years, until last year when he was forced to resign because of ill health.

The communion service will be observed here the third Sunday morning of this month.

Our preaching services are first Sunday p. m. and third Sunday a. m. of each month. We will be glad to have all who will come and worship with us.

Denton.—The third Sunday in June was Children's Day. A splendid program was given under the direction of Mrs. Coy Kearns and Miss Ruth Floyd. The services of our church have been held regularly with good attendance.

Our pastor, Rev. J. T. Bowman, being away helping in Leadership Training schools in South Carolina and Georgia, Rev. Hoyt Wood, a ministerial student of High Point College, filled his appointment. Mr. Wood preached a good sermon that was enjoyed by all. In the evening Mrs. Bowman conducted the service. Several of the old hymns were sung and Mrs. Bowman told who wrote them and under what circumstances they were written. It was a very impressive service.

New officers in Christian Endeavor Society were installed last Sunday night. Inza Hill is our new president; Oda Beck, first vice president; Wilson Russell, second vice president; Pauline Sexton, secretary and treasurer; Fannie Mae Wilkins, assistant secretary and treasurer. We are looking forward to a more interesting society for the next six months.

Our revival will begin the first Sunday in August. Dr. George R. Brown will be the pulpit help.

We offer our congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Howard Odom. They have our best wishes for happiness and success.

Spring Church Charge.—Spring Church Circuit Auxiliary met at Spring church on July 3 at 4 p. m. for their regular monthly meeting. The devotionals were in charge of Mrs. Wm. H. Neese, assisted by Mesdames R. M. Robinson, J. H. Harris, W. L. Mitchell and P. L. Thompson. Miss Vista Robinson presided at the organ and Mrs. H. E. Vassar led the prayer. In the absence of the president, Mrs. J. G. Mitchell, who was unable to be present on account of sickness, the vice president, Mrs. M. L. Crew, presided. There were only 11 members present, but the society was glad to welcome a number of visitors. At this meeting the Auxiliary was happy to have a report from the Leadership Training School at High Point College, given by Miss Vista Robinson, who took the course in home missions taught by Rev. G. W. Andrew, superintendent of Alvin Drew School. From Miss Robinson's report we judge that she enjoyed the school and that it was both interesting and instructive. We wish all of our members could attend these schools. Mrs. H. E. Vassar was program leader and read and commented on a very interesting paper entitled "Women and Stewardship." Mrs. M. L. Crew read an interesting paper on "How Much Do We Give?" This paper made us feel like we as an Auxiliary and as individual members are giving very little to promote the Kingdom's interest. Mrs. C. E. Dimick conducted question box. It seems to me that if each of the members would read and study our Missionary Record more this part of our Auxiliary programs would be much more interesting.

Mrs. Neese led the closing prayer. During the social hour the Auxiliary and members of their families and invited friends enjoyed a picnic supper and ice cream on the church lawn. Everyone seemed to have a good time.

Mrs. W. W. Grant, of our Lebanon church, is in Durham taking treatment at Duke Hospital. Miss Louise Hubbard, another Lebanon member, has just returned from Roanoke Rapids Hospital. Pray for both of these.

Rockingham.—We were glad to have Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Trollinger, of Midland charge, at our church Sunday night, June 30. We hope they will visit us again soon.

Our pastor, Mr. Bell, brought us an interesting message last night. His text was taken from St. John 20:24, "But Thomas, one of the twelve, called Didymus, was not with them when Jesus came."

The Ladies' Aid Society has been organized. Mrs. Bob Hinson was elected president. We hope this organization will grow and be a great success.

The Wednesday night prayer meeting is an interesting service at our church. A new speaker is chosen each time. I think this a good thing, because it will make each person more able to carry on his work.

Our third quarterly conference will meet on Saturday, August 3, at Pageland church. Everyone is invited to attend this service.

Gibsonville.—Rev. Mr. Stubbins preached another one of those fine sermons Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. This is the remark that we so often hear spoken and we all agree that it is true.

A two weeks' Vacation Bible School which was held in the high school building with Mr. T. E. Stough, principal, closed a few days ago with much interest from all churches in town shown, all ministers taking part except those that were away for special reasons. The M. P. church was well represented from all departments. Sunday evening, June 30, at 7:30 o'clock, Children's Day exercises were held under the direction of Mrs. F. G. Hammer and Mrs. F. R. Owen. A pageant entitled "Workers With Him" was given.

Our Primary Sunday school has closed for a few Sundays on account of infantile paralysis, although we do not have any cases in town at the present.

The Girls' Bible Class held a business meeting Tuesday evening, July 2, at the home of Nellie Donald Lucas. Those present were Mrs. B. B. Greeson, their teacher; Lillie Mae Rountree, Camille Kivett, Jeanne Owen, Iris Adkins and Minnie Maye. At the close of the meeting the hostess served delicious ice cream and cake. Some of our members are on the sick list. Mrs .Myrtle Woodard continues ill at her home on Church street. Mrs. Irene Zimmerman is taking treatment at Rainey Hospital, Burlington. Iris Hammer has been right sick but is able to be out again, we are glad to report. Dwight Davidson, Jr., who has been spending a few days with his parents, has returned to Northwestern University, Chicago, to do research work, having received his M. A. degree.

Little Arlie Bently Owen, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Owen, died June 16 at Long Hospital, Greensboro. The funeral was conducted at the home by Rev. Mr. Stubbins. His little journey here on earth was brief, being just eight days old, but he has entered the Beautiful City and he dwells on that Golden Shore. May the loving Heavenly Father comfort Mr. and Mrs. Owen.

Friendship, Haw River Charge.—Rev. J. L. Our special meeting will begin July 16 with Dr. Fred Paschall as the visiting minister. Dr. Paschall needs no introduction in this church, coming to us for the fourth year in the special meeting. We hope the neighboring churches will find time to come and hear Dr. Paschall and join us in prayer and praise, and that we may all be abundantly blessed by attending this series of meetings.

Lebanon, High Point.—Our people enjoyed two more good sermons last Sunday, that is, a fair attendance. The call of vacations is being answered by a goodly number which naturally makes many absences from the church services. Our pastor, Rev. J. M. Morgan, preached at 11 o'clock and the Spring Hill church pastor, Rev. Chas. Grant, preached at night.

Sunday school work is progressing nicely. Supt. King has created a pleasant interest by putting on special music each Sunday. Last Sunday we enjoyed a quartet, "Fairest Lord Jesus," sung by Misses Iris and Gene Thacker, Shirley Welborn and Florence Bryant. On Sunday before last little Roy Watts, Jr., sang a pretty song which was enjoyed very much.

Mrs. J. M. Morgan is a patient in the Burrus Memorial Hospital where she will remain several days for treatment. Let us pray for her early recovery.

Rev. Mr. Morgan is assisting Rev. C. L. Grant in night services during their special meeting at Spring Hill church this week.

Miss Eleanor Welch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Welch, is spending the summer in the National Music Camp at Interlochen, Mich. While there she will play violin in the national high school orchestra which is composed of 121 students, representing most of the states of the Union. This orchestra will broadcast over the Blue network on July 14, 21 and 28, and also August 4 and 11 from 3 to 4 o'clock p. m., E. S. T. Eleanor will also study harp under Henry J. Williams, who for the past 26 years has been solo harpist with the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra. She will study conducting under Vladimir Bakaleinikoff, a gifted conductor and solo violinist with the Cincinnati Symphony.

Yarborough Charge.—Several people have asked me why I did not write any more than I did. There is not much use of a pastor writing when there is a good reporter at each church on the charge, and I have them on this charge.

We are not doing any big things down here, moving mountains into the midst of the sea or anything of the kind, but we are making some progress. The Sunday schools have increased some in attendance and interest.

The people are a splendid group to work with. They have co-operated with the work of the church in every way possible. When there is anything to be done there are capable leaders that can go ahead and do it. The fifth Sunday in June the Children's Day program was given at Yarborough's Chapel. The pastor was away on that day but there was leadership to carry out the program.

Our revival begins at Harmony the fourth Sunday in July and at Yarborough the first Sunday in August. Rev. H. L. Isley and Rev. W. M. Loy will be the pulpit help.

Pleasant Grove.—A very interesting Children's Day program was rendered at Pleasant Grove Sunday, July 7. The children had charge of the entire program.

On Sunday, June 16, an all-day memorial service was held. Rev. Mr. Powell filled his regular place at the 11 o'clock service. Dr. P. E. Lindley was the speaker for the afternoon. Dr. Lindley's talk was enjoyed very much by the large number present.

Hodges-Taylor

The Methodist Protestant church of Enfield was the scene Saturday, June 15, of a very lovely wedding when Catherine Taylor became the bride of Harry Meade Hodges, of Fayetteville and Oak Ridge. The church was lovely in its setting of summer flowers. The altar was banked with ferns, culminating in a large basket of Queen Anne's lace. On each side were floor baskets of Shasta daisies, white gladioli, and the lace; floor candelabra with burning tapers provided the light for the ceremony. A white satin pillow marked the altar proper.

The nuptial vows were read by Dr. N. G. Bethea, pastor of the West End M. P. church of Greensboro. Dr. Bethea was the bride's pastor on Halifax charge for seven years during her childhood and received her into Bethesda church.

Preceding the ceremony a musical program was rendered by Mrs. G. L. Crump, Enfield, organist, and Mrs. R. M .Taylor, Raleigh, and Mrs. A. P. Flythe, Jackson, soloists. Their program included "Still as the Night" (Mrs. Taylor), "Liebestraum" (Mrs. Flythe), "At Dawning" (Mesdames Taylor and Flythe), and "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice" (Mrs. Crump). The traditional marches were used, and during the ceremony Mrs. Crump played "To a Wild Rose."

The ushers and groomsmen, first of the wedding party to enter, were Messrs. W. J. Chandler, Oak Ridge; Jack Crane, Fayetteville; T. O. Wright, Oak Ridge, and Dr. T. J. Taylor, Washington, D. C. The bridesmaids, Misses Eunice Mae Pope, Enfield and Henderson, and Heath Long, Raleigh, wearing yellow mousseline de soie made princess style with short train and carrying yellow flower muffs, were next to enter. They wore large picture hats of yellow. The ring bearer was to have been little E. K. Veach, Jr., of Littleton. He was unable to serve.

The dame of honor, Mrs. B. Stanley Clarke, of Richmond, Va., wore a gown similar to that of the bridesmaids. She wore a leghorn picture hat and carried a green taffeta muff with yellow flowers.

Miss Mat-Moore Taylor, Madison, Wis., sister of the bride, maid of honor, was the next to enter. She was dressed similar to the bridesmaids. The groom entered from the side, accompanied by his best man, Mr. Alton Murchison, Fayetteville.

The bride entered on the arm of her father. She was robed in white Duchess satin, made close-fitting with a train. Her veil was fastened to a satin crown, covered with real lilies of the valley. The overveil, worn over her face during the ceremony but thrown back afterwards, was bound in the satin. In the back the veil formed a long train over the dress train. She carried a shower of white roses and valley lilies.

Immediately after the ceremony the pair left for a southern trip. For traveling Mrs. Hodges changed into dark blue triple sheer crepe with blue accessories and wore a shoulder corsage of talisman roses.

Mrs. Hodges is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Taylor, of Enfield. She was graduated from Woman's College of the University of North Carolina, Greensboro, with the class of '34. While in college she was active in its activities, being business manager of the Playlikers, editor of the handbook, etc. She taught last year at Matthews, N. C.

Mr. Hodges is the elder son of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Hodges, of Fayetteville. He was educated at the University of North Carolina, graduating with the class of '33, and is now head coach at Oak Ridge Institute. He was a varsity member of the football team and a member of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity. He is a captain in the unorganized reserves of the U. S. Army.

Mr. and Mrs. Hodges will be at home after September 1 at Oak Ridge.

REPORTERS WILL PLEASE SEND NAMES ALONG

We do not mean to be arbitrary but we do insist on reporters sending their names with their articles. This is a universal rule of publishers. It ought not to be any burden to enclose a name. It is necessary for us to know the name of the writer of any article to protect ourselves. Sometimes people who are not regularly elected reporters will write something and simply sign the name "Reporter."

J. ED WITTY PASSES

J. Ed Witty, of the Moriah church community, and father-in-law to Earl Williams, of Calvary church, passed away at his home on Tuesday evening. The funeral is being held at Moriah this morning at 10 o'clock.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Guthrie

Whereas, Mrs. Sarah E. Guthrie, a member of the Woman's Auxiliary of the First Methodist Protestant church of Burlington, was called to her heavenly home on Thursday, May 23, 1935, we submit the following resolutions in appreciation of her Christian life and loving service.

Resolved, that we bow in humble submission to the divine will of God, that we will follow her example of Christian faith and helpfulness, and that her years of faithful service may be an inspiration to the higher things of life. That we may be true to our Christian duties, looking forward to the time when the Father will say, "Come up higher to the home prepared for the people of God."

Resolved, that we extend our heartfelt sympathy to the family of Sister Guthrie in their bereavement, and point them in this hour to the Great Comforter. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved family, a copy sent to the Methodist Protestant Herald, and that a copy be placed on the records of our Auxiliary as a memorial to her memory.

"When fadeth the day and dark shadows draw nigh,
With Christ close at hand, it is not death to die;
He'll wipe away every tear, roll away every care;
We'll say good night here, but good morning up there."

Respectfully submitted,
MRS. T. T. STAFFORD,
MRS. J. ED MOORE,
MISS ILA STAFFORD,
Committee.

She had been in declining health for a number of years and her condition became serious a mouth prior to her death. Her husband preceded her to the spirit world 19 years ago. Since then she had resided with her sons and dauhgters.

At the age of 15 years Mrs. Landreth united with Palestine Methodist Protestant church, Flat Rock charge, and remained a faithful member until her transfer from the church militant to the Church Triumphant. She was a noble character, possessing a kind and gentle spirit, having a smile and a kind word for everyone. Because of her lovely disposition she was respected and loved by all who knew her. A devoted Christian, loving mother and kind neighbor, she will be missed in the church and in the home.

Surviving are the following sons and daughters: Cecil Landreth, of Germanton; Harvey Landreth, of Madison; Houston Landreth, of near Stokesdale; Mrs. Galloway Hand, of near Madison; Mrs. Irvin Haden, of Germanton; Mrs. Dewey Rumbley, of Madison; two stepdaughters, Mrs. James Payne, of near Stokesdale, and Mrs. Ollie Southard, of near Madison. Also 48 grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren, besides a number of nephews and nieces and other relatives survive.

Funeral services were conducted by the writer at Palestine church July 2 at 2 p. m., and the body was tenderly placed in the cemetery to await the resurrection morning. May the bereaved be comforted and sustained by the grace of God and meet their loved one in the "building of God, not made with hands, eternal in the heavens." C. B. WAY.

Resolutions of Respect

The Men's Bible Class of Sapling Ridge Sunday school has sustained untold loss in the death of one of its devoted members, Alfred Vestal Ferguson. He was a true friend, a trustworthy guide, and a great influence for the right.

Therefore, be it resolved, first, that each member of this class shall cherish forever the memory of Alfred Vestal Ferguson, and endeavor to uphold the standard which he has set.

Second, that it is with saddened hearts we tender our deepest sympathy to his widow and children. May they find consolation in his splendid life and in the love and mercy of Almighty God.

Third, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, and a copy placed in the records of this class and Sunday school; also that copies be sent the Methodist Protestant Herald, the Chatham News and Chatham Record for publication.

Mrs. Guthrie was a good woman. She made a splendid wife and mother. Happiness and patience were outstanding characteristics of her life. She was jolly and optimistic. In her intense suffering prior to her death she was patient and joyful. She will be greatly missed in her home and in the community.

May her loved ones be comforted by the unfailing comfort of our Heavenly Father. May His grace be sufficient indeed for them, now and always. FRED W. PASCHALL.

HOME-COMING

The annual home-coming of former students and friends of Yadkin College was held Thursday, June 6. In the large crowd that gathered for this happy occasion there were those who represented many sections of this state, and also other states. Mr. W. T. Hanner, a former student of the school, and a former citizen of the community, and now president of the State Nurserymen's Association, was master of ceremonies. He called on Rev. A. S. Raper, a former student of Yadkin College, to pray, and then presented Prof. W. T. Totten, who greeted the homecomers in a few well-chosen and pleasing remarks. Prof. Totten was head of the school from 1898 to 1924. One most interesting feature of the very informal program was the presence of a group of graduates of the class of 1882—53 years ago. They are Rev. W. T. Totten, Mr. W. S. Owen, Prof. Zeno N. Dixon, and Mr. E. L. Greene. They, with Prof. Dixon's daughter, a missionary to Japan, were presented to the gathering, and each engaged briefly in interesting reminiscence. Others presented were Rev. and Mrs. G. W. Holmes and three sons, James, Ralph, and Joseph; Mrs. Lee Wright, Dr. C. E. Forlines, Mr. Don Walser, and Rev. C. E. Rozzelle. Prof. Holmes, as he is affectionately known in the Yadkin College community; Dr. Forlines, Mrs. Wright, and Don Walser made brief talks, to the delight of the group. Mrs. Wright, a charming lady of Salisbury, was reared at Yadkin College. She is familiiarly known there as Miss Sallie Oaks. Prof. Holmes was head of the school from 1889 to 1898.

Another matter of unusual interest during the morning program was the reading of a brief history of Yadkin College, prepared and read by Rev. O. B. Michael, D. D., a former student of the school and now pastor of the First Reformed church at Edinburgh, Va. This work of Dr. Michael was much appreciated by the gathering. He will perfect the history, as far as that is possible, from attainable facts, and at a later meeting steps will most likely be taken to have it published.

Mr. Young, a student of Old Yadkin in 1882 and a citizen of West Davidson county (I regret that I cannot give his initials) proposed that a suitable marker be placed on the hill where the last college building stood. It was his opinion that it can be done during this year. The idea was received with enthusiasm, and steps will be taken to carry it out.

Music for the day was furnished by a band from Lexington. This reminded old Yadkinites of the days of long ago when a band from the same city furnished music for commencement exercises.

The bountiful picnic dinner indicated that at least for Yadkin reunionists the depression is over. Mrs. W. M. Koonts, of Lexington, is the president of the organization, and its moving spirit. Mrs. Lucy Owen English, of Martinsville, Va., is secretary and treasurer. The reunion next year will be held on the first Thursday in June.

S. W. TAYLOR.

TABERNACLE	96
MIDWAY	90

Well, it was hard to do but we had to say to Gibsonville, "Just step back there and make room for Midway." For the past two or three weeks our column of honor has remained the same, but we have been warning the three whose names appeared at the top that if they did not look carefully somebody would come along and dislodge them. Midway did the work for Gibsonville and came very near doing the same thing for Reidsville. Tabernacle still holds on to first place.

And now for the receipts of this week. High Point First stands at the head of the list, but if Grace church had all of its contribution credited to one person they would tie with High Point. Anyway, we are glad to get these contributions from these two churches. High Point keeps climbing and some of these days will reach the goal. Grace reached the goal some time ago but did not stop there. Let others do likewise. And two other places did likewise this week, namely, Roberta and West End, Greensboro. It is fine to see all of these places going beyond their goal.

There are several other places that come to the rescue this week. Guess they were alarmd over the small receipts of last week and decided to do something about it.

One subscription which we prize very highly indeed this week is by Rev. E. W. Fox, of Elkin, a minister in the M. E. church, South. Early in the year he gave us a half-year subscription and now he comes back for more—a whole year. Good for him!

Here we want to comment on a letter we received this week. A certain woman wrote that she likes the Herald very much but that her financial condition just now was not such as to enable her to renew, but that she hoped to renew a little later on. Did we cut her off the mailing list? No, sir. Our receipts for the week are $32.25, all on subscriptions.

Turning Defeat into Victory

In our church work, especially during the summer months, many times we feel that we are being defeated. Things do not always go off as we would like for them to do. Sometimes we get the idea that the odds are against us and that there is no use to try. Many people give up and do not try. They admit their defeat and the thing lingers in their minds, thus disqualifying them for further effort. Perhaps the greatest failure is in not trying and the hardest person to deal with is the one who has given up. There is hope for a person so long as he keeps trying, but when one gives up and quits, there is danger that he will never come out of this frame of mind.

To say that there are no difficulties would be foolish. To say that what seems to be difficulties is a creation of our own minds would be telling only a half truth. Difficulties are real and it is difficult to avoid them. We had just as well face the facts and admit them. But the thing we are interested in is in turning what seems to be defeats into victory.

Some weeks ago a committee was appointed to get up a Children's Day service for Calvary church. The question soon arose as to the wisdom of calling off the service on account of the infantile paralysis situation, but this idea did not receive a unanimous decision, so the preparation was continued. Then, as the time for the service approached, the children began to drop out until the committee was almost desperate. But the service had been advertised and it was decided to go on with those who did come and let the pastor fill in whatever time was necessary to keep the people from feeling that the service was a complete failure. So the service was held on last Sunday morning, and, behold! it was better than usual. A good congregation was present, the service was a few minutes longer than the advertising had called for, and the offering was better than last year. What a pity it would have been if the service had been called off.

Now, this is not the only time in history that seeming defeat was turned into victory. Almost two thousand years ago there was a man named Jesus who went out to do good and to establish the kingdom of righteousness on the earth. After three years of hard work, in which no great numbers of converts were won, the people took Him and nailed Him to a cross. Even the disciples fled and proved unfaithful. To all outward appearances the venture was a failure. But was it? On the third day the forces of evil had a terrible defeat. This Man who had been crucified came forth from the grave to live again. After mingling with His disciples for a few weeks He went back to the Father and just think of the converts! From the ends of the earth people are bowing at the feet of Jesus.

Still another case where seeming defeat was turned into victory was when Paul and Silas were put in prison at Philippi. Paul had seen a man standing with outstretched hands saying, "Come over into Macedonia and help us." This was interpreted as a call from the Lord, and so Paul and Silas crossed over into Europe. Since it was a call from High Heaven they might have reasoned that everything would run smoothly but such was not the case. They had barely started their work when persecution arose. They were cast into prison and their feet were made fast in the stocks. This does not seem much like success. Judged by human standards we would say that the effort was a failure. But was it? If it had been, there would have been no conversions in that jail that night, no baptisms, no washing of stripes, no rejoicing in a new experience, and no letter in our Bible to the Philippians. No, the expedition was not a failure. It only seemed at first to be. It turned out better than the Apostle Paul could even hope for.

What, then, should we do about these trying experiences? There is but one thing to do, namely, just keep trying. "Man's extremity is God's opportunity." What would be failure with man may be success with God. In fact, we doubt whether anything ever fails that is done with the right purpose. It may not accomplish that which man starts out to accomplish, but it may, under the blessings of God, amount to more than it could have done had man's desires been accomplished. There will be many people to prophecy failure and defeat, but if we trust God and take courage we shall win.

Brother R. R. Ross Passes

On Tuesday evening just before the time for the sun to go down the spirit of Brother R. R. Ross, of Asheboro, took its flight to the spirit world. It was indeed fitting that the end of such a life should come just at the close of the day. But the sun goes down to arise again, so a life like that lived by our departed friend shall not be blotted out. Brother Ross, who had lived a little more than eighty-four years, was born in Guilford County but since the days of his mature young manhood he had lived in Randolph County. About forty years ago he moved to Asheboro and was a charter member of our church there. During all of these years he has been a tower of strength to the forces of righteousness and has been one of the foremost laymen in our church in this state. He was devoted to his local church but his interest did not stop there. Almost from the first he has been a trustee of our Children's Home at High Point and he loved the institution with all his heart. Even after his body became too weak for him to talk much he still asked questions about our Children's Home. Few men in our church have been better known in this state than was Brother Ross. He had served as sheriff of the county, he had represented his county in the state legislature, and had been postmaster in Asheboro.

In 1873 Brother Ross was united in marriage to Miss Ellen McCulloch, sister of Rev. T. F. McCulloch and the late Dr. J. F. McCulloch, founder and editor for forty years of the HERALD. After these two had lived together for fifty-three years, Mrs. Ross was called to her reward in 1926. Since that time Brother Ross has been cared for with all tenderness by his daughter, Miss Esther, assisted by the five faithful sons of Brother Ross. The funeral was held at the home yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock and was conducted by Dr. S. W. Taylor, the pastor of our church at Asheboro, assisted by Dr. T. M. Johnson and the editor of the HERALD.

WHAT THE BIBLE SAYS ABOUT SATAN

By REV. T. M. JOHNSON, D. D.

From the Bible we gather that there are many devils but only one Satan. Satan is the name of the chief of devils; so far as the Bible record informs us, the rank and file of devils did not have individual or personal names. "My name is Legion: for we are many" (Mark 5:9) evidently means that there was a considerable but indefinite number of devils rather than the name of one devil. In verse 15 we read: "They come to Jesus and see him that was possessed with the devil, and had the legion, sitting, and clothed," etc.

Beelzebub (Matt. 12:24) and Belial (2 Cor. 6:15) evidently were used as synonyms of Satan. So also Abaddon and Apollyon, "And they had a king over them, which is the angel of the bottomless pit, whose name in the Hebrew tongue is Abaddon, but in the Greek tongue hath his name Apollyon." Rev. 9:11. Then we find dragon, serpent, devil, and Satan, all four, packed into one short sentence in Rev. 20:2. The phrases, "the prince of this world" (John 12:31), "the prince of the power of the air" (Eph. 2:2), and "the god of this world" (2 Cor. 4:4), seemingly are given to point out the baneful influence of the arch enemy of righteousness rather than to mention him by name.

A Personal Devil

The Bible does not state there is a devil, it isn't necessary. His works are so evident. "For this purpose the Son of God was manifested, that he might destroy the works of the devil." 1 John 3:8. How would you account for the diabolic act of Judas but for the fact that "then entered Satan into Judas surnamed Iscariot, being of the number of the twelve. And he went his way, and communed with the chief priests and captains, how he might betray him unto them. And they were glad, and covenanted to give him money." Luke 22:3-5. How would you account for all the diabolism that infests our modern life but for the fact that "your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour." 1 Pet. 5:8. Verily "Old Scratch" (not in the Bible but in the dictionary), as the devil is familiarly though not lovingly called, did not cease to "enter into" folks, inducing them to do diabolical deeds, when he had finished successfully with Judas Iscariot.

Whence Satan?

Evidently the devil and his hosts are created beings, but we cannot conceive of God's creating such a being as Satan now is. It seems there was a fall by sin of angels as well as a fall by sin of man—the angels that sinned were cast out of the abode of spirits, man was driven out of the garden. "For if God spared not the angels that sinned, but cast them down to hell, and delivered them into chains of darkness, to be reserved unto judgment," etc. 2 Pet. 2:4. Again, "And the angels which kept not their first estate, but left their own habitation, he hath reserved in everlasting chains," etc. Jude 6.

Presumably it was on those passages that Milton in "Paradise Lost" bases his thought that Satan, under the urge of ambition for a place of power, led a rebellion of angels, and "He trusted to have equalled the Most High." Of course, Milton's thought in this study has value only in so far as it offers a reasonable interpretation of what the Bible says, the reader to estimate the value for himself.

Satan Wholly Bad

So far as I have been able to discover, the Bible does not give Satan credit for even one commendable trait. "He (the devil) was a murderer from the beginning, and abode not in the truth, because there is no truth in him. When he speaketh a lie, he speaketh of his own: for he is a liar, and the father of it." John 8:44. "From the beginning" evidently must mean not from the beginning of the existence of Satan, but from the beginning of the world, the fall of the sinning angels having taken place prior to the time "God created the heavens and the earth." Gen. 1:1.

Takes advantage by tempting where he can make the strongest appeal. "In those days he (Jesus) did eat nothing . . . he afterward hungered . . . And the devil said unto him, If thou be the Son of God, command this stone that it be made bread." Luke 4:2, 3. Hungry, bread.

"He (Judas) was a thief, and had the bag." John 12:6. "The devil having now put into the heart of Judas Iscariot . . . to betray him" (John 13:2), "Judas Iscariot went unto the chief priests, and said unto them, What will ye give me, and I will deliver him unto you? And they covenanted with him for thirty pieces of silver." Matt. 26:15. Covetous, money.

Another instance: "But Peter said, Ananias, why hath Satan filled thine heart to lie to the Holy Ghost, and to keep back part of the price of the land?" Acts 5:3.

The diabolical spirit is shown in each of the above instances in that no personal gain would come to the tempter, only the fiendish glee of bringing suffering upon others.

The Persistency of Satan Is Marked

The wilful stubbornness of Satan in holding on is indicated, in cases of his being removed, by such expressions as "rebuked (Matt. 17:18), "charge" (Mark 9:25), "commanded" (Luke 8:29), and "cast out" (Mark 1:34).

Note the drastic language of Jesus, accompanied, no doubt, by equally drastic power: "Thou dumb and deaf spirit, I charge thee, come out of him, and enter no more into him." Mark 9:25. Note also how the spirit wreaked: "And the spirit cried, and rent him sore, and came out of him: and he was as one dead; insomuch that many said, He is dead." Verse 26. The wilfulness of the evil spirit is further indicated by the fact that, in the absence of Jesus on the arrival of this case, the disciples tried to cast him out but failed. Verse 18. Following this nigh tragic episode, "his disciples asked him privately, Why could not we cast him out? And he said unto them, This kind can come forth by nothing, but by prayer and fasting." Verses 28, 29. Probably this kind of power, not this kind of devil.

One other instance of persistency. "When the unclean spirit is gone out of a man, he walketh through dry places, seeking rest; and finding none, he saith, I will return unto my house whence I came out. And when he cometh, he findeth it swept and garnished. Then goeth he, and taketh unto him seven other spirits more wicked than himself; and they enter in, and dwell there: and the last state of that man is worse than the first." Luke 11:24-26.

Satan May Be Kept Out

"Resist the devil, and he will flee from you." Jas. 4:7. "Neither give place to the devil." Eph. 4:27.

The devil, having failed to interest Jesus, "departed from him for a season." Luke 4:13.

In the case of Job, Satan could go no farther than the permission given him. "And the Lord said unto Satan, Behold, all that he hath is in thy power; only upon himself put not forth thine hand." Job 1:12. The permission above noted extended to Job's property but not his person. Presently messengers came one following close upon another to report that his property had all been destroyed. But Satan could not touch Job's health until permission had been given to do so. Having such permission now given, he "smote Job with sore boils from the sole of his foot to his crown." Job 2:7. But he could not touch his life. Verse 6.

Finally, John saw an angel, "having the key of the bottomless pit and a great chain in his hand. And he laid hold on the dragon, that old serpent, which is the Devil, and Satan, and bound him a thousand years, and cast him into the bottomless pit, and shut him up, and set a seal upon him." Rev. 20:1-3. As to when that prophecy is to be finally fulfilled I know not, but, gentle reader, I am persuaded that if you and I have faith and will trust Him who "was manifested that he might destroy the works of the devil," the prophecy may be fulfilled now in your life and mine and in the lives of all who wish it so and will trust. So mote it be.

Calvary Has Children's Day Service

A most delightful Children's Day service was held at Calvary church last Sunday morning. The entire Sunday school assembled in the church auditorium at the close of the lesson period. After the singing of a hymn and a few announcements were made, the service started, without any intermission, and closed at 11:35. Mrs. Howard R. Neece presided over the services, which consisted of recitations by the smaller children and songs by the Young People's Choir. There was a short talk by the pastor and an offering for missions was taken, amounting to $20.

They All With One Accord Began to Quit

Sounds sorter like something else. Well, maybe "they" would offer a good many excuses—some of them about as trivial as those in the parable—for not contributing to the McCulloch Fund. But the money, for some reason—or excuse—or other, has quit coming in. North, East, South and West, all of a sudden, the streams began drying up. I haven't received a dollar in a month. Nothing added to nothing makes nothing. Even Mr. Einstein knows that. When are you folks going to start again? When you get through taking a vacation, maybe. Well, these are dry times financially, especially among our farmer folks. All I have to say is, when you get some money in, share it with the Lord, and pay the boys what you owe them. Then you'll be square in both directions.

If you don't hear from me in this column, you'll know that I haven't anything to talk about. And I learned a long time ago that when a fellow didn't have anything to talk about he had better keep still. (That's the reason I say so little.) If you want me to say anything in this column, send in the money.

There are quite a number of the McCulloch Memorial Fund certificates here at my house. The brethren were not at the Mid-Year Conference to receive them, and I have not sent them out because of the cost of mailing them. (They will have to be mailed in a tube if they are to be framed.) If you want yours, and will send 10 cents, I shall be glad to forward it, or them. Otherwise, I shall give them to you at Conference.

WHAT'S RIGHT WITH THE CHURCH

By P. E. Lindley

II. Her Scriptures

Here again the church enjoys a superlative place. She is inseparably identified with the greatest book of all, the Holy Bible. This written Word, the fountainhead of spiritual life and ancient sourcebook of moral systems, has guided the forces of righteousness down through the ages like a beacon light from the shores of heaven. It has been the living stream running through the deserts of human history. Men and nations who have followed scriptural wisdom have flourished and found their place in the sun, while those who ignored the light perished in the withering wastes of their own shortsighted folly.

The Bible is the brightest star in the literary firmament and the supreme achievement of moral thought. Its style is well-nigh perfect and its themes the most profound that ever engaged the mind of man. God, man, sin, atonement, salvation, and everlasting life—these are the subjects gathered into the volume of Holy Writ. If more sublime and useful themes could have been found, they too would have been treated in this wonderful book.

The Bible was sent for man's direction, and happy is he who devotes himself to its law. It condemns the wicked, inspires the upright, and challenges all to godliness and love. Through its unfolding story is depicted the nature and condition of man, the will of the Divine concerning him, and a plan of redemption to effect his release. This Book of books, as the late Dr. Lewis so eloquently wrote in his Divine Credentials, walks with the righteous man through life's duties, explains to him life's trials, comforts him in life's adversities, and when life here is at last emptied of all satisfaction it offers a staff with which to begin the descent into the valley, closes his weary eyes with a psalm of contentment, and opens to him in clear vision the immortal habitations of the city of God.

One of the marvels of the Word is its extraordinary adaptability. Men are never too ignorant to profit by its precepts, nor too wise to excel its demands. Sincere believers with not the least trace of literary skill are saved through its message, while the greatest scholars among us are unable to fathom its mystic truths. Critical minds in our universities ponder its wisdom, and yet the plain man finds it equally fascinating for his everyday needs. All the Bible needs is a chance. Under its influence the human conscience is awakened, and "wayfaring men, though fools, shall not err therein."

The master minds among our writers have drawn heavily upon the sacred Scriptures. In the learned and discriminating works of Shakespeare there are 550 references to the Bible text. Tennyson draws 460 allusions from the same unfailing source. It is interesting to peruse the classics to observe the telling influence of Scripture upon later creative thought. Scholars, authors, educators of the highest type recognize the beauty, the grandeur, and the wisdom of the inspired Word. "No one," said Coleridge, "can be considered truly educated who is ignorant of the Bible, and no one who really knows the Bible can be counted uneducated." Victor Hugo, from whose pen came many mighty volumes, insisted that only the ignorant and misinformed saw not the wonders of Scripture. He declared: "If all literature were destroyed tomorrow, and it were left to me to retain only one book, I would save Job."

Behold, then, how excellent it is for the church to hold and utilize these Scriptures. She has been the custodian of the Word throughout all her generations. The church is the crystallized form of the Christian faith, and as such, has cherished, safeguarded and proclaimed the living Truth wherever a congregation, rich or poor, finds freedom to lift its voice in praise and testimony to the unsearchable riches it contains. Some things about the church may be weak, inadequate and infirm, but the Bible is always genuine! Count it a joy, then, to share membership in an institution whose foundation and basic theme surpasses all else the world has known. As Saint Paul declared, all Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, and for instruction in righteousness.

Here, therefore, the church is right: It has the right Book; a letter from God to His children. Enjoy its pages, cherish its promises, and promulgate its eternal truth.

"How precious is the Book divine,
By inspiration given;
Bright as a lamp its doctrines shine
To guide our souls to Heaven."

JOURNAL MONEY

Brother Reiner is in distress. He needs money to meet pressing obligations. We owe him some—$264, to be exact—on the 1934 Conference Journal. He has written me about that account. But I can't pay him until the brethren send in the money.

For some time we've been saying if we could get the Journal out sooner, we could sell them easier. We broke the record this year getting them out. But the money is about as slow coming in as usual. Money, money, who's got the money? My brother pastor, if you've got it, send it in. Thanks.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord.

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

Shall We Be Silent?

Last week the newspapers carried the story that the Board of Deacons of the First Baptist church of Spartanburg, S. C., had decided that the names of those who made or sold intoxicating liquors should be dropped from the membership of the church. I am greatly in sympathy with this action.

Years ago the leading physicians of America and Europe decided that whiskey was not a medicine. That when used as a stimulant it was habit forming and that there were drugs which were better stimulants than whiskey and which were not habit forming. The maker and seller of legal liquors has rarely ever been a law-abiding citizen. There is that in the traffic which corrupts the dealer. Whiskey has never improved the morals of the drinker, but to the contrary corrupted them. It has always unfitted the drinker as a breadwinner, destroying his skill as an artisan. It has impoverished the families of the drinker, left a trail of ruin and death through the centuries. It has been and is still the tool of the politician. Controlling the ballots of the people, it has throttled efforts for temperance and sobriety. Whiskey has been the major cause of the most dastardly crimes on the records of our courts. It is tolerated by the state only for its revenue. Its friends prey upon the weak and defenseless of our nation like leeches upon every hot blood beast they can find. No one claims that drinking intoxicating liquors makes a people better, or that it makes them wiser, or happier, or more skilled at their labors. All who know the drinker know that it makes him less dependable as a laborer, as a husband, father or citizen. History clearly proves that no nation has ever drunk itself rich or that it brought greater happiness to the people. And yet, and yet, there are church members who vote for it, who buy it, who sell it, who drink it, and who brag about it. God pity such dumb creatures.

On Being Sick

Most of my readers will doubtless recall the story Mark Twain used to tell about the man who began on the coast of Maine to write a description of all the different sorts of weather there were in the world; after spending ten days there and having described 42 different kinds of weather he decided it was not necessary to go elsewhere.

When on the 30th of June my physician parked my body in the narrow limits of my bedroom and set no bounds to the peregrinations of my wandering mind, I began to experience the great variety of mental states one can have in such a physical plight; extending from the veriest vagaries to the most astute Socratic differentiations. I repented somewhat for the zest I have exhibited when telling the story of the old lady who said she could never enjoy feeling good because she knew it meant she was going to feel bad right straight. The fact is, I have more sympathy for her now than then. Surely the psychic partition which divides hypochondriac from health must be mighty thin. Those who have a highly organized nervous state know something of the many and vastly different mental conditions one can have in a brief time—not unlike the changing state of weather on the coast of Maine in the speed and extremes in which they come upon you.

In one of my early pastorates I attended frequently a hypochondriac. There was nothing physically wrong with her, her doctor said, but she imagined there was and her imagination was so active that no diagnosis of a physician or advice of a friend could keep her on her feet. I knew another person whom the physician said there was no hope for and death must come speedily, but he never admitted his diagnosis and refused to die at the time appointed by the doctor. In both cases the physicians may have been in error; the first may have been really ill and the latter only slightly so; we will never know as to that. But being sick is a state of body and mind which but few ever know the technique which fits the patient to enjoy his poor state of health. The industrious person chafes under the restraint prescribed by his physician as to work. Those who indulge appetite inordinately rebel against the dietetic prohibitions, while others never get half as much attention as they demand. So it would be hard to describe a formula by which being sick could be made easy and more to be desired on our part.

When we are told that 60 per cent of our population is sick each year, one may conceive of the wear and tear on the nervous and physical endurance of those who attend them, not to mention the loss of time and productive ability of the sick besides the suffering which certain forms of illness cause. There is a clause in one of the chapters written by St. John in the Revelation, "And there shall be no more pain," which stands out like some unscaled peak above the plains of human experience in the flesh to allure us all to its heights.

A Personal Word

My physician has "discharged me." Yesterday found my condition normal and said that I might return to my tasks slowly; that will mean no more three appointments a day for a while. I appreciate the attitude of those pastors who had to change their plans because of my failure to reach them as scheduled, and regret exceedingly to miss these appointments; my desire is that I may yet in some manner make up for these failures. I also greatly appreciate the visits and cards from the brethren while shut in.

SCHOOL OF INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS

By Rev. S. W. Taylor, D. D.

Article I

The first lecture was given Monday night, June 10, by Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, who officiates at the Rabbi Free Synagogue in New York City. He is also honorary president of the American Jewish Congress, and president of the Jewish Institute of Religion in New York City. Dr. Wise spoke in the Page auditorium. The address was open to the public. The house was packed. The Rabbi has an oratorical voice, and is a pleasing and forceful speaker. He was evidently pleased with the size of his audience, and facetiously suggested that they were probably attracted by their desire to see what a rabbi looked like. But there is nothing curious, he thought, about the appearance of a rabbi. ''Your president,'' he said, in a jocular vein, referring to Dr. Few, who was on the platform, looks more like a rabbi than I do.''

The subject discussed by Dr. Wise was in perfect accord with the central purpose of the institute—the prevention of war—and his appearance on the program is an illustration of how completely racial and religious distinctions are forgotten in this effort to bring about world peace.

Dr. Wise spoke on ''Building a New World—Things For and Against.'' He dealt with the subject from the standpoint of peace and war, and for about 45 minutes held the closest attention of his vast audience. He thinks that the private manufacture of arms ought to go at once, though he regards war implements as only an aspect of the causes that make for war.

Two causes of war were enlarged upon by the speaker. 1. ''Exaggerated Nationalism.'' 2. ''The New Nationalism, Characterized by Super-Racialism.'' The first of these causes thrives on the false notion that ''my nation is great and every other nation is small.'' But all right-thinking and informed people know that that is not true. Other nations are worthwhile and great, as well as our own. World peace necessitates a recognition of that fact, and a proper appreciation of the peoples of other nations. In discussing ''The New Nationalism,'' Dr. Wise declared that dictatorship and superracialism are bound to lead to war, unless the nations of the world say to Hitler, for instance, ''so far and no farther.'' He cited Italy's thrust at Abyssinia and Japan's thrust at China as further illustratins of how a dictatorship tends to war. Japan's dictatorship is not in a person, as is the case in Germany and Italy. Dr. Wise thinks that the nations ought to stop Japan's interference in China and Italy's interference in Abyssinia.

There remains only space enough in this article to simply mention the six things that Dr. Wise discussed that make for peace.

(1) Faith in the faith and goodwill of other people; (2) increased knowledge of what war is and what it does; (3) the League of Nations; (4) the rising tide of youth; (5) the war-resisters movement; (6) inter-religious, interracial, and international movements. According to Dr. Wise, the greatest forces that make against war are those mentioned in No. 6. He counts the Jew as a force in this movement. He thinks that we ought to be in the League of Nations. ''War halted is war revoked,'' he said. One tragedy of world conditions is the fact that there are nations today in which the greatest crime is to oppose war.

Dr. Wise made it clear that he is not a Christian, though he was tactful and totally inoffensive to Christians in doing so. However, he must have a very exalted conception of the personality of Jesus. Under Hitler, Germany, he said, had rejected Jesus, and wanted to substitute Siegfried (hero of German legends). But, said the Rabbi, ''Jesus is better than a thousand Siegfrieds.'' Some of us wanted to applaud that statement, but the speaker stopped us.

The address was highly entertaining and informing.

NORTHFIELD HAS PEACE PARADE

East Northfield, Mass., July 11. — The unprecedented spectacle of a dramatic demonstration against war by the Northfield Missionary Conference today was hailed by the Rev. James Myers, of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America in an address at the close of the peace parade as ''an omen of profound significance in the religious crusade for a warless world.''

The parade for peace, consisting of 20 units, started at Round Top, the grave of Dwight L. Moody, the noted evangelist, and wound its way through the village of East Northfield and back to the campus. The cross carried aloft was borne in the front of the parade, followed by the massed colors of the church, vested clergy, faculty and committee members, the massed flags of the nations, missionaries from many lands, nationals in native costume, students from the Northfield schools, nurses from the Brattleboro Hospital, delegations from churches at Brattleboro, Greenfield, Holyoke, Northampton, Bellows Falls, Saxton's River, Springfield, and Keene, and the 600 members of the Missionary Conference in denominational units. Salvation Army bands from Greenfield and Athol played.

''What Price Glory?'' was the name of the most striking float. This depicted Flanders Field with rows of crosses, each one bearing a silver dollar sign and the slogan, ''Munition Makers Reap Dollars—Others Reap Death.'' The bowed figure of a gold star mother in heavy mourning sat in the foreground. The final float, with the slogan, ''Generations of Children Bear the Burdens of War,'' showed the children carrying heavy burdens of pain, suffering, hunger, disease, debt, ignorance, terror, and sorrow.

It was dark by the time the parade returned to the campus, but the headlights of automobiles flooded the field where the closing exercises were held. Mr. Myers in his short address said that ''missionaries have ever been the shock troops of religion. They are Christians unafraid. They know how to face loneliness, misunderstanding, persecution, danger, martyrdom, and death in the supreme loyalty to Christ. As the church turns now with missionary zeal and courage and sacrifice to the high adventure of the abolition of war, we may look forward with renewed assurance to the final victory of peace and goodwill among men.''

With hands upraised the 2,000 people pledged themselves in the following affirmation: Because I cannot reconcile the way of Christ with the practice of war, I pledge myself before

God to work for the abolition of war as a method for settling international disputes and to insist upon the use by all governments of the machinery of peace to maintain international justice and goodwill."

BISHOP OLDHAM HEADS COMMITTEE FOR ETHIOPIA

New York, July 11.—The Rt. Rev. G. Ashton Oldham, Bishop of Albany, has accepted the chairmanship of the National Committee for Ethiopia which has been organized for the purpose of crystallizing public sentiment against a war waged by Italy against a "non-aggressive and peaceful people."

The committee which, when completed, will include both clergymen and laymen, at present numbers in its membership the following clergymen: Rev. Christian F. Reisner, New York City; Rev. John Clark Williams, Arlington, Ohio, president of the Ohio Conference of the Methodist Protestant church; Rev. John Franklin Knott, Melrose, Mass., president of the New England Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church; Rev. Frank G. Coffin, Columbus, Ohio, former moderator of the General Council of Congregational and Christian churches; Rev. P. K. Emmons, Presbyterian church, Scranton, Pa.; Rev. William L. Burdick, Ashaway, R. I., national secretary of the Seventh Day Baptist Missionary Society, and the Rev. Samuel Trexler, of New York City. Robert F. S. Harris is secretary of the committee.

It is asking clergymen of all faiths to set up Sunday, August 18, as a nationwide day of protest and prayer against the "threatened rape of Ethiopia."

Under the slogan, "Save the oldest Christian nation in the world," the committee plans to disseminate facts about conditions and events within Ethiopia to the press and other vehicles of public opinion in this country, and will attempt to "prevent communist elements from taking advantage of the Italo-Ethiopian crisis to further their present subversive propaganda and agitation among Americans of African descent."

Another aim of the committee will be to erect in Addis Ababa a modern, short wave wireless station for contact with the outside world in case present communications are cut off by hostilities. The committee also plans to organize and equip a modern, mobile hospital and ambulance unit to be sent to Ethiopia and to assemble and ship medical and other non-military supplies to Addis Ababa.

Petitions will be circulated asking the League of Nations to act upon the pleas now being made by Ethiopia, a member of the League.—N. C. J. C. News Service.

Brothers Ashburn and Millaway Fill Appointments

Last Sunday, while Rev. A. D. Shelton, the pastor of St. Paul's church in Greensboro, was away, assisting Rev. J. D. Morris in a meeting at Shoals, his appointments were filled by Revs. W. F. Ashburn and G. F. Millaway, the former preaching at 11 o'clock and the latter at the evening hour. Both of these brethren are honored superannuates in the N. C. Annual Conference. It is fine that both of them are able to preach occasionally.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS LAUNCH CHURCH AND SOCIAL ACTION PROGRAMS

Philadelphia, July 8.—More than 15,000 young people, attending the 35th International Christian Endeavor convention, launched new programs in evangelism, social reconstruction, alcohol education and world peace.

In the presidential address, the Rev. Daniel A. Poling, D. D., emphasized a proposed World Peace Fellowship in worldwide Christian Endeavor and urged that a youth movement be launched to "create within the peace movement the psychology of common agreement." "Let us inaugurate a plan which will enable all peace makers to get together the length of their common agreement," Dr. Poling said.

In resolutions the convention said: "We aim to destroy the barriers that separate man from man, to substitute for them a Christian comradeship and to foster the spirit that does away with the occasion of wars." Lloyd George, Lord Cecil, Hon. Arthur Henderson, and Toyohika Kagawa addressed to the convention greetings and appeals for peace action.

Messages to the delegates on related subjects of evangelism, world friendship, and Christian social liberal action included the addresses of Dr. Lynn Harold Hough, of Drew Theological Seminary; Dr. Robert E. Speer, Miss Margaret Slattery, Dr. Oscar W. Blackwelder, of Washington; Dr. Samuel W. Hughes, of the British Council of Free Churches, and others. Youthful speakers included several younger clergymen, youth leaders from many states, and field secretaries of Christian Endeavor state unions. A total of 250 conferences on society and church work, both as to objectives and methods, were conducted, in which fully three-fourths of the delegates at some time enrolled.

On July 17, a large delegation of American young people and national officers will leave for the World's Christian Endeavor convention, to be held at Budapest, Hungary.—N. C. J. C. News Service.

TRAINING

The obedient child is the happy one. One of the most important privileges of the children is the parental discipline. The child may not like it at the time—may fret under it, and kick against it even though it be necessary and wise and gentle. But in after years the benefit of it is understood.

The Scripture is plain as to this precious privilege of those who are the children of God. "Whom the Lord loveth He chaseneth, and scourgeth every son whom He receiveth" (Heb. 12:6). The disobedient child is on a very different footing from the condemned sinner. The erring child is not dealt with by the sword of judgment, but by the "rod of instruction."—Milk of the Word.

Dr. Spahr Is Heard From

Last week we were in error in saying that Dr. S. K. Spahr, the pastor emeritus of Grace church, was ordained in 1864. This was taken from the account of the daily press. Dr. Spahr tells us that he was ordained by the Ohio Annual Conference in 1874.

OUR STORY PAGE

SPENCER'S DOLLAR

It happened one day, when Spencer Cone was about five years old, that some drovers, reaching their place about nightfall, were obliged to put up their cattle in the sheds, and tarry with them until next morning. When the morning came, they got their cattle together again, mounted their horses, and went upon their way. That day, as Spencer was playing in the barn, he found a dollar—a real silver dollar; and silver dollars then were not common coin. War and a depreciated paper currency had raised them to an almost fabulous value. Spencer thought that he was a made man for life; that he had found an inexhaustible mine of wealth. So he ran to his mother to show her his dollar.

''Your dollar, Spencer?'' said she. ''Where did you get it?''

''Oh, I found it in the straw, and it's mine.''

''Not so fast, my son; let us think of that a little. Silver dollars do not grow in the straw.''

''No, Mother.''

''Then, my son, somebody must have put it there, or somebody must have lost it there.''

''Yes, Mother,'' said the boy; ''I never thought of that.''

''And more than that,'' said his mother, drawing him to her, ''if we do not know who put it there, God knows. If we do not know who lost it, God knows. And besides, Spencer, if you had a silver dollar and had been so careless or so unfortunate as to lose it, would you not feel very sorry, and would you not hope that whoever found it would try to find out to whom it belonged, and if he heard it was yours, bring it back to you?''

''Oh, yes, indeed!'' he cried earnestly.

''Well, then,'' said the mother, winding her arms about him, ''you and I will ask God to help us to find out whom this money belonged to, and to put it into our hearts to always try and do unto others even as we would that they should do unto us.''

Spencer prayed fervently for the guidance and direction of the Heavenly Father. It was quite a year later before the drovers came that way again; and the first thing that Spencer did was to run out among them, with the silver dollar in his hand, to tell them how he had found it in the barn after they had gone away, and beg them to try to remember which of them had lost it. So the old fellows laid their heads together, and tried very hard to discover the loser. But when they could not, after much questioning, fix upon anyone of them as the man, they very gravely discussed the question of whose property it should be, and finally resolved unanimously that Spencer should keep it as a reward for his honesty; or rather because he had kept it so long and well, and taken such pains to discover the true owner.

''Providing for honest things, not only in the sight of the Lord, but also in the sight of men'' (II. Cor. 8:21).—Evangelical Messenger.

CHARLIE'S LIFE

''Mother,'' said little Charles, ''Will Harnish says his mother writes books.''

''Does she?'' said his mother, and then she went on sewing and forgot Charlie, who was trying to stand on his head.

''Mother,'' said Charlie presently, ''is it very hard to write a book?''

''I don't know, I'm sure,'' said mother.

''I am going to write a book,'' said this small man.

Just then the doorbell rang and Charlie's mother went to see who called. When she came back the little boy was sitting on her footstool, busily writing, but as he wrote with a slate pencil it didn't do any harm.

''Now, Mother,'' said the little boy, ''I'm done with my book.''

''No,'' said his mother, thinking a little while, ''you are not done. God has given you a book to write. I hope it is a big, long one, full of beautiful stories.''

''What is the name of my book?'' he asked, coming closer to her.

''It's name is 'Charlie's Life.' You can only write one page a day, and you must be careful not to make any black marks in it by doing ugly things. When you pout and cry, that smears your page; and when you help mother, and keep a bright face, and don't quarrel with Reddy, that makes a nice, fair page, with pretty pictures on it.''

''And when will I be done writing that book?'' asked Charlie.

''When God says your book is long enough,'' answered mother. ''He will send an angel to shut its covers and put a clasp on it until the great day when all our life books will be opened and read.''

Charlie sat very quietly for a while, and said softly, ''Dear little Lucy finished writing her book when they put her in the white casket and laid the white roses over her.''

''Yes,'' said mother, ''her life was just a little hymn of praise to God. Its pages were clean and white, with no stains on them.''

Charlie looked up and saw two teardrops fall on mother's work, but they were bright tears, and a bright smile came with them.—The Herald and Presbyter.

A BROKEN BUCKLE

''Dr. James Hamilton,'' says a writer in the Congregationalist, ''tells of a gallant officer who was pursued by an overwhelming force, and his followers were urging him to greater speed, when he discovered that his saddle girth was becoming loose. He coolly dismounted, repaired the girth by tightening the buckle, and then dashed away like our Sheridan on his famous ride from Winchester. The broken buckle would have left him on the field a prisoner; the wise delay to repair damages sent him on in safety amid the huzzas of his comrades.

''The Christian who is in such a haste to get about his business in the morning that he neglects his Bible and his season of prayer rides all day with a broken buckle. 'He rides for a fall,' as the English say, and if he is tumbled into the dust he has nobody to blame but himself.''—Sabbath Recorder.

THE HIGHWAY TO LEADERSHIP

By Rev. N. G. Bethea, D.D.

Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus. Phil. 2:5.

The Mind that Interprets.

The discerning mind is not found in every one. This I believe may be cultivated in such a way as to understand people better and by that one is enabled to help people to better living. Of course we do not always tell folks that we know, but knowing we can watch our step better and also the steps of others, to help.

There are so many "yes" folks in the world that seem to be dependent upon others to help them along. They have no mind of their own. I do not mean that one is to develop a contrary spirit to be "agin" everything that comes up but to have a mind for oneself, is a worthwhile thing, for to be ready or prepared to give meaning to things worthwhile always puts one in the lead in contacts of life. If there are those that know as much as you do, it, at least, puts you on an equality with the best.

Suspicion is not interpreting. Evil minded folks suspicion, good people interpret. That means that being good the interpretation you may have does not always have to be given out. The person that agrees with all you say, may also agree with all your enemy says when you are not present.

Minds are needed that are able to think on other things than the material. Many times the simple minded folks who accept Christ as their leader become the great leaders religiously in the community. Then they must watch, lest because of their exaltation, they become independent of Christ and thus fail in getting the things done that they were commissioned to do. "Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall."

Jesus gave a new interpretation to living and thus quickened the pulse of the world. Men began to see in a different light. The religious leaders of His day kept God at a distance. Jesus brought Him near. The revelation of God to man. "He that hath seen me, hath seen the Father."

Jesus did not fight for his ideas, He died for them. Thus He gives us the true example of leadership in that sacrifice must be made to give the world the best in living as well as in thinking. We only begin to think right and effectively when we put our ideas that are right into practice. So one of the ways that Jesus emphasized in living the effective life was to "love Him with all thy mind."

What We Know Put Into Practice

Lincoln said, "I will prepare myself and await the call to service." No one doubts the call that came to him. Great failures come where there are great ideas that are allowed to die without being put into practice. In a certain home a lady called and after being there for awhile she said: "What is that I hear? Sounds like loud talking." The hostess replied: "Oh, that is the young minister that boards here. He is practicing his sermon for Sunday." Whereupon the other replied: "Well, for heaven's sake don't stop him, let him practice what he preaches." What is a clock worth unless we set it going. We have in our home a very fine chime clock. It is rather an unpretentious time piece. Folks come to our home and never pay any attention to that clock until it chimes a lovely old tune, "I'm Going Home to Die No More." Then they begin not only to talk of the beautiful chimes but the architectural design also. If those who have ideas of right living were only to put them into practice, not only the ideas would become effective but there would be greater admiration of all that is worthwhile in their lives. The great deeds of Jesus on earth had a background of prayer. It is so in any life worthwhile. Great sermons, masterpieces of any kind means that there is study, anxiety, soul suffering.

So many want to get there without going. Not willing to go unless the way is smooth and there must be a guarantee of that with many. Hence the failure. Hard work ahead for every one who would succeed. I heard once of a fellow who tried to invent a process by which he could go to bed already got up in the morning.

We all have heard doubtless of that mother who heard her daughter crying and when she hastened to her room, for she made herself a slave for this lazy daughter, the girl said: "Nothing the matter only I just dread to have to dress for my enjoyments today." Extreme you say? Well some examples I have met show the same kind of spirit.

Many drop out of the professions because they are not willing to pay the price of success which is labor. Examine any of the records of the schools where the professions are taught and see how many have backed down. Then when we think of the great number that are just ordinary in the things that they are doing because of a lack of energy, that would put them at the top.

Habit is a great friend on a hard day. The habit of prayer has kept many out of temptation, not only because of the help obtained, but the habit formed they were not willing to give way to something else. So make friends with habits in youth that are worthwhile. They will enable you to win in many a battle on the day when the tide would otherwise turn against you. You may have to get out of your community to put into practice the things that you learn here. Do not always be looking for reward. It will come in God's own good time. A young lady in our city finished her business course just at the worst of the depression. Did she give up because she could not find a job? No! She went to an office where they could not afford an assistant and told them she wanted to keep up her practice. She made herself so indispensible that the man for whom she had been working said to her that he could not afford to see her paying her own bus fare and buying her lunch every day. So not long after that there was an opening and he recommended her. She now has a good position.

Do not be afraid to work at the things that you receive no praise for doing, the Master will take care of that. Your time will come and that practice that prepares though there may seem to be no reward will soon have, or it may a good while, but will it have you where you can do the good you wish as a follower of Christ.

And remember this: A leader in example sometimes is worth more to a community than one who is filling some place that is counted greater in the eyes of man. Being great in the Master's eyes brings the greatest reward in the final awards for faithfulness.

METHODIST PROTESTANTS AT C. E. MEETING

The Methodist Protestant Church was well represented at the Thirty-fifth International Christian Endeavor Convention, held in Philadelphia the first week of July, with fifteen delegates from North Carolina.

Mrs. Glenn Lambert of Lebanon M. P. church of High Point, president of the N. C. State Union, was head of the North Carolina delegation composed of 38 members. Of this number, fifteen were Methodist Protestants.

Outstanding State Union C. E. leaders from the Methodist Protestant Church besides Mrs. Lambert were Miss Gladys Routh, treasurer; Rev. T. J. Whitehead, immediate past president; Mr. Luther R. Medlin, former president; and Mr. Aubert Smith, superintendent of comrades of the quiet hour and life work recruits.

Rev. J. Elwood Carroll acted as chairman of the parade decorations committee. The North Carolina delegation was appropriately dressed to represent the spirit of Tar Heelia. The delegation was selected by one of the Philadelphia daily papers to have its picture run.

A special feature of the Methodist Protestant delegation was the banquet held for all Methodist Protestants throughout our entire Church. Rev. C. C. Day, pastor of our St. Lukes' Church in Philadelphia, arranged the banquet for us at the Whittier Hotel on July 3, at 5:50. The occasion was enjoyed by about eighty young M. P. Endeavorers.

Other Methodist Protestants from North Carolina not heretofore mentioned are: Misses Jewel Welch, Irene Reynolds, Elizabeth Hanner, and Cates; Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Braxton, Mrs. J. Elwood Carroll, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Routh.

TITHING BULLETINS OFFERED AT A SAVING

At least $5 a week can be saved by any church that customarily uses a four page bulletin each week. The Layman Company, 730 Rush Street, Chicago, offers this saving when using their four page bulletin. Two pages are printed with a Stewardship message, and two pages are left blank for local announcements. The company suggests that churches conduct a five weeks' or ten weeks' course of tithe education by using its bulletins, which are offered at a nominal sum. It offers a sample set containing 32 different tithing tracts at 20 cents. Please mention the Methodist Protestant Herald, also give your denomination.

We are thankful to all those who are keeping up their offerings during these summer months. We also appreciate the timely suggestion in last weeks Herald that while Sunday Schools in some sections are closed to children, be careful that there is not too great a drop in offerigs for the Children's Home. We keep hoping that the infantile paralysis condition in the state will get better.

Be Patient With Us

Let those who have children here be patient with us, if you please. We have no control over the health conditions of the state. The doctors have advised us to keep our children in and to keep company out. It is not an easy matter for us to do, but for the sake of the health of our children and young we are doing our best to do it. Even then some of our children may get the infantile paralysis, but if they do they will get it after the greatest care had been exercised.

Once More We Plead

Let us send some empty fruit jars to your community to be filled with fruits or vegetables for the Home. Who will write at once and tell us how many to send?

Yours in His service,
A. G. DIXON, Supt.

THIRTEEN PROVES LUCKY NUMBER FOR CHURCH

Started With Dozen and One Members Now Has 352

High Point, N. C., Sept. 21.—The number thirteen may in everyday affairs be unlucky, but religiously it may be otherwise. At least it has proven a happy number for the Methodist Protestant church of this city. Twenty years ago last September this church was organized with 13 members, and today it has a membership of one more than 27 times 13, or 352 members. On August 15, 1894, Rev. W. R. Lowdermilk, then a student of Oak Ridge Institute, came to High Point, then hardly more than a railroad crossing trading center, and began to talk church. He met with some encouragement from the present mayor, W. P. Pickett, whose name was the first entered on his subscription list, and by J. C. Welch, who also put his name down for a liberal donation. So earnestly did Rev. Lowdermilk work on this undertaking, and yet at the same time keeping up his studies at Oak Ridge, that on September 20, 1895, the church was dedicated, and all bills paid in full. That was a glorious Sunday in the history of tnis church. Dr. F. T. Tagg of Baltimore preached the dedication sermon. The names of the thirteen charter members are W. P. Picktt, J. A. Gray, J. W. Guyre, F. M. Yorke, Tyson Sechrest, Mrs. J. C. Welch, Mrs. J. W. Guyre, Mrs. F. M. Yorke, Miss Parmelia Cole and Miss Lou Pickett. On the same day the Sunday school was organized with 137 scholars, another number wherein 13 is prominent. The first elected superintendent was J. A. Gray, who, after a service of seven years, was succeeded by A. M. Idol, the present superintendent.

The following pastors have served the church since its organization: Rev. W. R. Lowdermilk five years; Rev. J. S. Williams, one year; Rev. C. L. Whittaker, D.D., two years; Rev. J. D. Williams, two years, and Rev. A. G. Dixon, now in his seventh year, a total of only six pastors in twenty years.

(The article printed above was clipped from a Norfolk newspaper twenty years ago and sent to Mrs. Sallie Cherry Davenport, our correspondent at Rehoboth church on the Creswell charge, who sent it to us recently. We reprint it because of the historic interest it contains.—Ed.)

CHILDREN'S HOME ANNIVERSARY

The Silver Offering for the Silver Anniversary of our Children's Home should be increasing every day both in interest and the amount. If we are planning and laying aside a few pennies each day, on August 22, we will have more than we will if we wait until that date to give.

I hope each District Chairman, each Auxiliary President and each Children's Home Secretary are doing their best to help their pastor bring an offering equal to the age of the membership counted one penny for each year they have lived, a very small gift but will mean much to the Home and every N. C. Methodist Protestant should be interested and willingly contribute this amount and as much more as they can.

Let's be there with well filled baskets and a Big Check.

MRS. H. C. NICHOLSON.

MARRIED

Shreve-Powell

In a simple ceremony July 13 at 8 o'clock Miss La Visa Shreve, of Brown Summit, and Crawford J. Powell, also of Brown Summit, were united in marriage at the home of Rev. W. F. Ashburn, 527 Julian street, Greensboro.

Rev. Ashburn, who is a former pastor of the bridegroom and a long-time friend of the bride's family, officiated as the wedding vows were taken. The young couple were unattended. Only relatives and intimate friends witnessed the ceremony.

Mrs. Powell is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. R. Shreve of Brown Summit. For her nuptials she was dressed in white crepe with accessories also in white. Mr. Powell is the son of H. J. Powell, prominent farmer of Guilford county.

Mr. and Mrs. Powell will be at home at Brown Summit where Mr. Powell is engaged in farming.

H. A. GARRETT LEAVES HOSPITAL

Brother H. A. Garrett, the former superintendent of our Children's Home at High Point who has been very ill in a Greensboro hospital, was taken in an ambulance to his home on Burlington R. F. D. 1 last Saturday. Brother Garrett has regained consciousness and can talk rather freely again. While he does not have much use of his left side, yet there are some signs that he may regain the use of this also. Let his friends everywhere remember him in prayer. He would, doubtless, enjoy hearing from those who feel like writing.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Shiloh-Liberty Charge.—We regret very much to learn yesterday that one of our oldest members and most faihtful teacher had gotten sick since last Sunday this being Mr. W. P. Pickett. We hope for him a speedy recovery. Mr. J. A. Crowson, another member who has been sick for the past month is slowly improving.

Our memorial service was quite a success. We hope we shall be able to have another one next year.

Yesterday was Childrens day at our church. It was well attended. The children did fine. Misses Clarice and Lucy Evelyn Whitaker are to be praised for the training of the children. Collection amounted to $8.00.

The fourth Sunday instead of preaching at three it will be at ten in the morning.

Each Sunday morning from nine-thirty to ten there will be song service, Jim Brown directing. Everyone who can please come and make it a success.

Our revival will begin the second Sunday in August. There is much to be done. Be very much in prayer that we have a glorious revival and precious ingathering of souls.

The members of our church and friends in the community presented the pastor and family three quilts, each quilt having 35 squares in it, each square having a name on it. The quilts all were completed before being presented.

Spring Hill-North Davidson Charge.—Our revival meeting was held last week, with Rev. J. M. Morgan of Lebanon church as our pulpit help. Mr. Morgan preached several forceful and inspiring sermons which were enjoyed by all present. Some of his subjects were: "Parents and Children—their obligations to each other"; "Prayer"; "Will the Family Circle be Unbroken?" and "The Devil Fishing." As a church we invite him to come back and be with us again. Several visitors were in the audience from night to night. Among these were: Revs. Mr. Hutton and Shelton. Mr. Shelton reminded us that he preached his first sermon in Spring Hill church several years ago, while Rev. C. A. Cecil was president of the Conference at that time. We were glad to have these visitors and hope they enjoyed it to the extent that they will want to come again.

We were very sorry that Mrs. Morgan was ill and unable to be with us, but at the close of the meeting we learned that she was somwhat improved, of which we were glad.

The Ladies Aid and Sunshine Circle met with Misses Anna Lee and Edith York, Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. A large number was present for both meetings. The Sunshine Circle welcomed three new members at this time. They were Misses Bessie Swaim, Mary Hayworth and Mrs. Clark Haynes.

Christian Endeavor met Sunday night at 7 o'clock with Miss Margaret Swaim as leader. The topic for the night was "Prayer." A very good program was rendered by the members.

Friends of little Miss Betty Faye Hedgecock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Hedgecock and a member of the Beginners Class will be glad to learn that she is convalescing after a recent illness.

Due to sickness throughout the community, there will be no Children's Day at our church or Rally Day at Canaan Thursday.

Harris' Chapel, Vance.—Rev. J. D. Cranford filled his regular appointment Sunday morning at 11:00 o'clock. In his usual way, he preached a very interesting and helpful sermon to a large audience composed mostly of adults. His text was taken from the second chapter of the Epistle of Paul and the subject of his inspiring sermon was "Sound Doctrine." Brother Cranford urged us to have a sound doctrine backed by a good life; hence we will lay down a doctrine that will do for us to die by.

Due to the epidemic of infantile paralysis, our Sunday School has decreased in attendance, especially in the children's department. For the same reason, the revival which was scheduled to begin Sunday morning at 11:00 o'clock has been postponed until a later date.

A Children's Home Birthday Committee was appointed to distribute the birthday boxes among the families of the church. Each member of a family is expected to contribute one cent for each year of age.

Th third quarterly conference will meet the third Sunday afternoon in July at 3:00 o'clock at Drewery. All officers are urged to be present. The main business of the meeting will be the election of a delegate to the Annual Conference.

The Woman's Auxiliary is still doing good work. It will meet at the home of Mrs. H. G. Ellington Thursday evening, July 18, at 8:00 o'clock. We are studying Japan. The book, "Suzuki Looks at Japan" is used as a basis for the discussions which are led by Ruby McCann. The program will be in charge of Mrs. Catherine Parrott and Willine McCann.

Friends will be glad to learn that Master John Wells, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Wells, is recuperating nicely at Maria Parham Hospital, Henderson, where he underwent an operation for appendicitis last week.

Gideon's Grove, Flat Rock Charge.—The revival services began the first Sunday. The pastor, Rev. C. B. Way, delivered two sermons to a large congregation. Special music was rendered by a male quartette from Thomasville. Rev. J. P. Pegg, a former pastor, delivered the sermon on Sunday night and was the helper during the week. Services were held each day at 3 and 8 o'clock, closing Friday evening. The attendance was good and the day services were well attended, there being nearly 70 present on Monday afternoon. A special feature at each evening service was special music rendered by the Mission Band in chorus and solos and duets by individual members. This was enjoyed by all, the children show good training. Mrs. C. B. Way is leader. The preaching was all good and the whole church seems revived. The visible results may not have been all we desired, but we are sure much and lasting good was accomplished. There were 12 professions and 13 new members received. The following members were received: Mrs. Janie Wilson by transfer from Sharon Baptist church; Troy Marshall, Aaron Middleton, Clyde Middleton, Vestal Albert, Ivie Marshall, Cary Marshall, Jesse Purgeson, Frances Abert, Mamie Middleton, Margaret Albert, Edith Albert, Doris Angel, all by profession of faith. The people are always glad to welcome Mr. Pegg back among them which was evidenced by the attendance and especially by the members visiting from the other churches on the charge. We extend a welcome to all to be with us again.

Union Grove Church, Mocksville Charge.—Rev. R. L. Hethcox filled his regular appointment last Sunday with an interesting sermon on the latter part of the 36th verse found in 24th chapter of Luke. We are very sorry he can't fill his next appointment here, and we will pray for him in the work he will be carrying on at that time.

Union Grove church is glad to have Mr. Fleet Madison, Miss Lois White, Miss Zelda Jurney, and Miss Mary Lea White home from college. They have been missed much during their absence. Our Sunday School attendance for the past month is 78, but we hope to increase the average attendance for this month.

Our Christian Endeavor is beginning this quarter with full interest. We are hoping our young people will turn out to these meetings. We ask for the prayers of all the Herald readers that our young people's society will be successful. If it wasn't for young people where would the church be tomorrow? Then why should they not be trained in the church?

Rankin Memorial Church.—It has been quite awhile since we have had a report from our church, due to the fact that we have been quite busy working on our new church. No one is working as hard or as faithful as our pastor, Rev. Edw. Suits. The walls are gradually going up and we are hoping that it will no be so very long until we may have services there. We are all looking forward with the greatest of happiness to this time.

We are having fairly good attendance at our services, considering the fact that no children under 12 are allowed to attend due to infantile paralysis. There is a vacant place that no one can fill when the children are not there. We are hoping that it will soon be so that they can be back with us.

Our pastor brought us an inspiring and helpful sermon on the past Sunday morning, using as his text, John 3:16. Our pastor always has something helpful and of interest for us in all his sermons.

At a recent steward's meeting it was decided to set aside the month of July 15 to August 14 to work especially on pastor's salary. A special canvass among the members will be taken to try to have the salary up to date by that time.

The Senior C. E. Society is beginning a series of weekly cottage prayer services, to be held each Wednesday evening. The meeting this week will be held at the home of Mr.

and Mrs. H. T. Troxler, and will be led by Mrs. M. J. Setzer.

The Ladies Aid Society will meet at the church on Thursday evening of this week for its monthly business meeting. The president, Mrs. C. J. Burton, urges the attendance of all members.

We regret to report that one of our most faithful members, J. S. Loflin, has been ill for the past few weeks. We wish for him a speedy recovery.

We are especially looking forward to the date, August 4, when the cornerstone of our new church will be laid by the president of our conference, Dr. Andrews. All of our classes and organizations are putting forth every effort to raise money toward our new church, for we need it so badly and are so anxious to have a place of worship where we can truly worship as we should. Pray for us that our efforts may be successful.

Lincolnton Charge.—The Christian Endeavor Society meets each Sunday evening at 6:15. We have a splendid attendance of around 60 or 65. We have a group of officers that we can trust. Our president is Mr. A. L. Lutz, secretary and treasurer, Miss Grace Hoyle. The society went on a picnic the other Saturday and sure did have a splendid time.

We also have a splendid Sunday School, attendance of 125 to 140. Our pastor, Rev. J. R. Anderson brings us a good message each Sunday. We desire the prayers of all the christian people.

Albemarle.—It has become necessary for Brother Lasiter Hatley to return to Oteen hospital again for treatment. We miss him so much at our church, he is one among our folks who was deeply interested in his church and I would thank Rev. J. F. Minnis and Rev. J. S. Williams of Asheville to make him a visit at their convenience, I am sure his relatives, and pastor would appreciate it, and would be glad for any others who are vacationing in the "Land of the Sky" to visit him, and I am sure our dear friend, Homer Casto, could cheer him up, if he can find time to go to see him. I am asking all to go remember him and his family, and dear mother who are so anxious about him in their payers. This is his address, Cornelius Lasiter Hatley, E. 3, Room 306, Oteen, N. C.

D. R. WILLIAMS.

Pensacola Church.—Rev. J. O. Fry preached an interesting sermon for us on the fifth Sunday of last month. Ht was accompanied by Mrs. Fry, his two daughters and his son. We are always glad to have his family come with him.

On the Saturday night before, there was a Young People's social at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Wilson. There was quite a number out and every one had an enjoyable time. Rev. J. O. Fry had charge of the games.

There was a Quarterly Conference at our churrh June 30 at 3:00 P. M. The following officers were elected: M. H. Blankenship, secretary of the Quarterly Conference; A. G. Wilson, Kell Wood, L. B. Silver, trustees; Mrs. Lon Autry, treasurer; Mrs. Emma Hensley, secretary; Mrs. Kenzie Wood, A. G. Wilson, W. W. Gardner, Lindsey McMahan, Loie McMahan, stewards; and M. H. Blankenship, Lon Autry, advisory committee. Lindsey McMahan and M. H. Blankenship were nominated as delegates to the Annual Conference. The pastor reported he had made 47 visits.

M. H. Blankenship and your writer are renewing their subscriptions to the Herald.

MRS. W. G. BLANKENSHIP.

New Hope, Mecklenburg.—It seems like our news is not so much, but yet it has been dry around here and the Lord has blessed us with a good rain. The time is almost here for our revival meeting again, July 4, and we always have lots to be thankful for.

Most everyone enjoys summer time and revival meeting, where some times we get to meet our old friends and loved ones.

We are trusting that we may have a good old time revival at New Hope.

Rev. Earl Cook was with us Sunday and brought to us a wonderful sermon. His subject was on the Mark of the Beast, found in Revelation. He had four different charts with him which he had drawn.

He was here on a visit and Rev. P. E. Bingham asked him to fill his appointment and his message we all ought to know and well remember it.

FAYE AYCOTH, Reporter.

Cheswell Charge.—On May 15 we arrived here from Westminster, Md., to take up the work on this charge for the rest of the conference year. We found an anxious people waiting for us. They had done much, especially the Creswell Auxilary, to put the parsonage in order for the coming of the "new preacher." All the churches awaited with much interest our first appearance at their church. All the people seem interested and listen with the best attention the writer has ever witnessed to the preaching of the word.

All was going well, and we had many things planned, Bible schools, Leadership training schools, revivals, etc., when we were put under a quarantine for infantile paralysis. Because of this we have suffered a certain amount of retrenchment. But we hope soon that it will be safe for the quarantine to be lifted, and we can go on with our work in a normal way.

We have just completed a series of midweek services at the Creswell church on "How we got our Bible." I was very agreeably surprised in the interest taken in this series of lectures. The interest noted would seem to suggest that people here will yet go to mid-week services if the right program is put on and conducted in an intersting way.

On last Thursday aftrnoon we met with the people of the Woodley's Chapel church and gave the grounds a thorough cleaning. This church has suffered greatly in many ways, but it now seems that we may be able to get a roof on it and again get in a serviceable condition.

The Mt. Hermon church has been painted on the outside and there is money already in hand to refinish the interior completely.

At the Creswell church we have an active auxilary, small in number, but willing to do every thing they can. They have done much to make the parsonage comfortable for pastor and family.

So much for this time. If this finds its way into print, we will again lift our heads from the outskirts of the Conference, and let you hear from us.

L. E. MABRY.

Caroleen, Shelby-Caroleen Charge.—It has been quite a while since we visited the Herald. We have been running a two weeks revival meeting with Rev. Earl Cook in charge. We want to congratulate Roberta Charge for having such a man as Rev. Mr. Cook to lead them in their work. We have had many conversions, and three joining the church.

We have painted our church on the outside and expecting to paint the inside before long.

We are well pleased with our new pastor, Rev. Forrest Wagoner, from Greensboro.

The last District meeting was held at Bess' Chapel.

REPORTER.

Spring Church.—Spring church voted today to postpone for the present, Children's Day service which was scheduled for the fourth Sunday in July. This was done to protect the children against possible contact with polio.

Our plan now is to begin our revival meeting at Pleasant Hill on the night of the fourth Sunday in July. Rev. J. L. Trollinger is the enjoyed helper.

Both interest and attendance are holding up normal so far. We hope, of course, for even better.

WM. H. NEESE.

Bethany, Flat Rock.—Why write when there is nothing to tell? But when a church is shining in a new coat of paint, her grounds nicely cleaned, all smiling a hearty welcome to all who will come on next Sunday, Juy 14, when our special meeting begins, and all other times when there are services, as is our church, then that is news. And we expect to have some new lights inside, too. All this painting and buying lights is largely due to the persistent work and enthusiastic interest of sister Jessie Hamlet. She says we must paint the inside of our church this fall. we hope to do it.

Two of our people are in a hospital. Tommie Lester is coming home today. His sister, Lillie May had an appendicitis operation yesterday. We pray for their speedy recovery.

REPORTER.

(This report came too late for last week.)

Grace, Greensboro.—On the first Sunday in July, the Pastor being absent, Dr. P. E. Lindley, of High Point College, preached for us. Dr. Lindley is always interesting, and we heard him with a great deal of pleasure.

July 10 was the eighty-ninth birthday of our beloved Pastor-emeritus, Dr. S. G. Spahr. A hand-made booklet was presented to him, containing a letter expressing the esteem of the congregation, to which has been added a letter from Mr. and Mrs. Carroll. The signatures of many of the members of the church and congregation are appended to the letter. Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Simpson entertained Dr. and Mrs. Spahr at dinner, and the Daily News carried an excellent "story" regarding Dr. Spahr, with an excellent cut, made from a recent photograph.

Mr. and Mrs. Carroll returned last Friday from Philadelphia and Altoona, Penn. At Philadelphia they attended the International Christian Endeavor Convention. At Altoona, they visited Mrs. Carroll's relatives. At the Sunday School hour last Sunday, Mr. Carroll made a short talk, telling something of the convention. His sermon at the service of worship following had as its subject the convention theme, "We choose Christ." The sermon was a strong plea for complete surrender to Christ, and for working with God in order to bring about the coming of the Kingdom.

DEDICATION

Kistler's Union church will be dedicated Sunday, July 21. There will be an all day service. The dedicatorial sermon will be preached by Rev. R. M. Andrews, D.D., of High Point, N. C., president of the North Carolina Annual Conference. Following will be the dedication of Kistler's Union church.

The speaker for the afternoon service beginning at 2:30 will be the Honorable Clyde Hoey of Shelby, N. C. There will be special music.

Come, bring your dinner and spend the day with us.

All ex-pastors are cordially invited.

R. S. TROXLER, Pastor.

Forsyth.—Since my last report to the Herald we have held revival meetings at 3 churches.

At Mt. Carmel and Union Ridge Rev. J. M. Morgan did the preaching. His services were highly pleasing to both congregations. Two new members were received at Mt. Carmel and six at Union Ridge.

We have just closed the Maple Springs meeting, resulting in four additions to the church membership. This meeting was the most successful one at this church for many years. In addition to the new members received (others are to join later), the church was revived and the attendance was unusually good. Rev. B. A. Culp, M. E. minister, did the preaching.

The third quarterly conference was held at Hickory Ridge church last Monday night. The attendance was good and the interest fine. Bro. W. G. White was declared delegate to Annual Conference.

The work generally is encouraging and we hope for even better things in the future.

R. A. HUNTER, Pastor.

Rehoboth, Creswell Charge.—There is not much to report, yet I try to do so after every appointment, I was so disappointed in not being able to attend services Sunday, but one afflicted as I am can't do always as they like. I am thankful to be up, and for the many blessings God has given me. I enjoy reading the church paper, I think it gets better all the time.

Holy Communion was observed Sunday A. M. at Rehoboth, Brother Mabray gave a splendid sermon, not being present, I can't go into details, only say it was enjoyed by all.

Mrs. Matilda Aumock, who has been so ill, was taken to her daughter's, hoping the change and care of Dr. Saunders, her daughter's husband, will restore her to her usual health.

Donnie May Herrington, died 8th of July. She had been sick for some time and was ready and willing to go. She was, before her marriage, one of Rehoboth's members, was to see me and asked when we had services and who was the preacher, I told her, she then said, "I'll be with you 2nd Sunday in June and take dinner with you." How little we know what the future holds! The 2nd Sunday she was in hospital ill.

After many days of suffering, she entered rest. I will now close by saying if it were not for the bow of promise, I'd think we were going to have another flood, it has rained almost every day in July.

We were sorry we did not see Brother Hethcox while he was down here, only got a little peep at Mrs. Hethcox. Hope they can stay long enough to get around next time.

REPORTER.

(How the editor's garden would have welcomed some of the rain this report tells about! But the rain came last Saturday. Ed.)

Mt. Pleasant, Mt. Pleasant Charge.—Our children rendered a very effective Children's Day program the first Sunday before a large congregation.

Rev. and Mrs. Braxton have returned from the C. E. convention in Philadelphia. They gave several interesting reports of the meeting.

Our revival will begin the third Sunday in August. Rev. E. O, Peeler will be the visiting minister.

We were glad to receive into our membership Mr. E. H. Thompson. He came to us from Pleasant Hill Christian Church. Mr. Thompson is teacher of the Baraca class.

The Baraca class has given a beautiful stone mantel for the assembly room in the new building. The building is near completion.

A picnic supper at the parsonage last Saturday night climaxed the Herald campaign conducted by the Business Girl Circle. Mrs. S. R. Stafford's group were the winners and were honored by Miss Caleen Philip's group.

Mrs. E. G. Lowdermilk attended services last Sunday. She is visiting her brothers.

OLA STAFFORD, Reporter.

Midway-Haw River Circuit.—The revival meeting at Midway church began on the third Sunday night in June and closed on Monday night, June 24th, with a very impressive candle light communion service. Rev. W. M. Howard, Jr., did all the preaching from the beginning until the close of the meeting and did it well. His sermons were helpful to all who heard them, he explained the scripture so well that even a child could understand. We appreciate his work with us and his presence in our homes very much. Hope he can come this way again. We feel that much good was accomplished. Two new members were received into the church the following Sunday.

On account of infantile paralysis the Children's Day program, scheduled to be given the fourth Sunday in this month has been cancelled. In the absence of our pastor last Sunday (who was in another meeting), Bro. George Maxwell from Friendship church was with us and made a splendid talk, and we enjoyed his being with us during the Sunday School hour.

Since our last report we have lost one of our oldest and most faithful members, in the death of uncle Billie Bartee. His pew is empty and we miss him so much, but his influence still lives in Midway church and community. May the Lord Bless and comfort his bereaved children.

G. W. Apple, Sr., had an operation on his eye this morning, at Wesley Long hospital and is doing nicely.

MRS. G. W. APPLE, Reporter.

Union Chapel, Granville.—Mr. Spencer has been bringing his usual good messages each appointment.

On account of infantile paralysis our Sunday School has been minus the children, for some time. We miss our splendid group of young people and hope so much that this terrible malady will soon die down, for the same reason we could not give our annual Children's Day, which is always looked forward to by the grown people as well as the children.

The meeting which has been beginning the fourth Sunday in this month has also been postponed until some indefinite date.

The Christian Endeavor is still carrying on its good work, meeting each Sunday evening at 8:00 o'clock.

Our people met on Wednesday to give the church grounds and building a thorough cleaning, we are proud of the interest being shown by our members toward the beautification of our Lord's House.

Mr. and Mrs. Spencer have been visiting their daughter in Asheville, we have missed them and are glad to have them back.

MRS. E. C. HUFF, Reporter.

Flat Rock, Flat Rock Charge.—Our regular preaching services were held Sunday afternoon, July 14, by our pastor, the subject being "The Besetting Sin," and the text taken from Hebrews 12:1, "Wherefore, seeing we also are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us." We are very grateful to our pastor for having secured for our convenience printed programs to be used each preaching Sunday.

Saturday, July 13, the Ladies Aid held its regular meeting with Misses Annie and Ella Mae Friddle as hostesses. An interesting program had been planned, the general theme being "The Garden." A very interesting part of the program was a brief sketch given by Mrs. W. E. Johnson and Miss Frances Thomas on the lives of two of our oldest members, Mrs. J. B. Ogburn and Mrs. Cora Friddle whose birthdays occur in the month of July. After the meeting adjourned the hostesses served delicious watermelon on the lawn. We are very glad to welcome Miss Ora Scott as a new member to our Aid.

On Sunday afternoon, after the closing of the preaching services a baptismal service was held at Ogburn's pond at 4:15 for three of the new members of our church who joined during our recent revival services.

Revival services began at Bethany church Sunday morning, July 14, and will continue through all the week. Rev. W. L. Harkey, pastor of Weaverville Charge is assisting the pastor and is doing the preaching during the services. The people of Flat Rock hope we may be able to attend the services, and pray for a successful revival.

We regret to learn of the illness of two of our members, Mr. J. W. Laurence and Mr. Harvey Pegram. They have been in St. Leo's hospital, Greensboro, for sometime, having undergone operations. We hope for both of them a speedy recovery.

Winston-Salem, First Church.—Brother J. C. Ball, who is a member of First Church, is an expert painter. I know 'cause he painted my car for me. And with his expertness as a painter goes his generosity as a man. I know that, too, because he didn't charge me a cent for the job—and furnished the paint. Except for the fact that it doesn't have a cowcatcher front and a streamline rear, the Chevey looks like a 1935 model. Well, it's wonderful what a little paint can do to a car —and a woman.

The unified service seems to be meeting the approval of the folks. The attendance is much better, and some are staying who didn't under the old plan. About the only objection I can see to it is: some of the brethren don't get as long a nap during the church service as they used to.

A good many of our folks have been away on vacations, or are out of town over the week end; and that, with the threat of infantile paralysis, has kept a good many away, especially from Sunday School. But there is I think, generally, an improvement over last year at this time.

The old parsonage has been repainted outside, and partly repapered and painted inside. The money to do the work was furnished by two of the brethren. As soon as they have been repaid out of the rent of the property, the church will be getting some income from it. Financially we seem to be in a little better shape than last year. But there is room for improvement.

The pastor is taking the first Sunday in August off, and there will be no service at the church that day. The Baraca class, unless plans go awry, are going out to some one of our country churches on that day for the study of the lesson and a picnic dinner following. I shall spend the time with my folks at Weaverville.

C. W. BATES, Pastor.

Hawkins Chapel, Littleton Charge.—Fourth Sunday evening Rev. R. L. Vickery's text was from St. John 12:21, Sir We Would See Jesus. This was a wonderful sermon. At this service we were glad to have worship with us some of the Corinth and Weavers people.

Since the infantile paralysis our Sunday School is moving, but it seems sad not to see the little children. For Jesus said "Forbid not the little children to come unto me for of such is the kingdom of heaven."

Third Sunday morning Miss Erma Hawkins will have charge of the prayer service. Her speakers are as follows: Misses Maggie Hawkins, Virginia Hawkins, Mary Green, Lucretia Pittard. Rev. Mr. Pittard will close it. Mr. E. B. Pair, the class leader, asked Mr. C. F. Hawkins, our former one, to hold it first Sunday morning.

Don't forget our third quarterly conference Saturday at 2:30 o'clock at Littleton.

Our Women's Auxilary will meet at the church Thursday, July 25, at 3:00 p .m.

We are glad to know and say our boy Rev. Mr. Leo Pittard will preach for us third Sunday evening at 8:00 o'clock. Come.

Mrs. H. S. B. Thompson has returned home from Washington, D. C.

We are sorry to note Mrs. Squire Collum, Mr. Willie Collum, Mrs. C. M. Hawkins have been very ill. We are glad they are better. Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hawkins' little son Louis, is very ill at present.

Mrs. Harvey Hawkins is in the Roanoke Rapids hospital.

Mr. R. L. Vickery was in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Pittard Sunday.

We were glad to have worship with us Sunday Mrs. Jim Glasgow.

Mrs. Edward Green's two children Frances and Inez are spending some time with their aunt, Mrs. Hubert Harris.

Miss Tula Pittard has returned to her sisters, Mrs. C. M. Hawkins.

Mrs. Martha Snipe of Roanoke Rapids, is visiting her nephew Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hawkins.

Mrs. B. S. Hawkins and daughter Helen, was in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Hawkins Sunday.

I forgot to tell you our topic for prayer service third Sunday will be "Need of a revival." Our pulpit help this time will be Rev. Mr. J. L. Love.

Christians pray that we may have a revival.

Asheboro.—Mr. L. F. Ross is our delegate to the next annual conference. The other nominee was Mr. O. E. Rich. A very unusual thing happened in the election. On the first ballott 84 votes were cast and each nominee received 42. After due notice a second ballot was taken, and lacked only one vote of being o tie again. The total vote cast was 55. Mr. Ross received 28, and Mr. Rich 27. These are good men, and no mistake could be mae in electing either.

Asheville.—We are not dead in Asheville, although you may think so since we have not had a report for a couple of weeks. Illness has prevented writing. I am sorry.

Mr. Minnis spent last week in the Alabama Conference and returned on Sunday to fill his appointment. After the evening service he left for Baltimore, Maryland, to bring Mrs. Minnis and the children home. They have been visiting Mrs. Minnis' mother for the past six weeks.

Sunday school was resumed on Sunday in the children's department. It was suspended for the past two weeks because of a case of infantile paralysis being directly across the street from the church, and it was thought unwise to needlessly expose our children. We trust our full quota of children will soon be with us again, and each Sunday school teacher is urged to get in touch with her pupils and get them coming regularly again.

Miss Frances Cunningham, our Sunday school superintendent, is ill, and all join in an earnest wish for a speedy recovery. Dr. Robey Wilson presided over the Sunday school session in Miss Cunningham's absence.

It was our pleasure to have with us on Sunday Miss Margaret Fawcett, of Cheyney, Pa. She has been visiting with Mrs. C. B. Baker during the past week, and will visit Miss Gertrude Bryson, Miss Louise Hanner and Mrs. Jarvis Eller during the next ten days which she expects to spend in the "land of the sky."

The Frances Cunningham Philathea Class sponsored a weiner roast at Bent Creek on Friday night last. All who went enjoyed the affair immensely.

The City Christian Endeavor union is to meet tonight (Tuesday) at our church.

Pleasant Hill, Why not Charge.—Rev. C. H. Hill filled his regular appointment Sunday, July 14. Our attendance was very small, this due to rainy weather.

Rev. Mr. Hill used the subject "God Chasing the Soul." Taking his text from 139 Psalm, 7 verse "Whither Shall I Go from Thy Spirit"; and also Job 23 3 verse "Oh that I Knew Where I Might find Him." Some interesting facts were brought out on this subject and text.

Plans are made for the circuit rally and the program has been planned and is expected to be good.

We are expecting and hoping for a rapid growth in our Sunday School.

We are glad to see visitors come out to worship Christ with us.

The Why Not Circuit Rally will be held at Pleasant Hill M. P. church. Everybody is invited to come and enjoy the day.

State Street Charge.—State Street has not had a report lately because the reporter happens to be one of those who put off writing letters until tomorrow, and we all know tomorrow never comes. One man made the statement he was not going to renew his subscription to the Herald because there was never any news from State Street. So for the sake of a Herald subscription I feel I should write and let people know we are still working and, we hope, making some progress. Dr. Johnson brings a good helpful message each Sunday night and on first and third Sunday mornings. We are worshiping in an auditorium that has just been painted. We thank the loyal men who furnished the paint and the ones who did the work, especially our Sunday school superintendent, R. L. Leonard and J. Bax. Leonard.

We have observed all special days with exception of Children's Day and we plan to have this service just as soon as it is safe for children to assemble together. Bible school has also been postponed. Naturally our Sunday school attendance is below normal. We hope to have all the children back in a few weeks.

The World Day of Prayer services for Lexington was held in State Street church with members from all churches of city taking part. Sunday May 26, we were very glad to have the American Legion and Auxiliary worship with us. This was their annual memorial service.

Dr. Johnson, Mrs. Fred Cox and Miss Pauline Hancock attended the mid-year meeting held at High Point. The report from State Street showed one half of World Service and one-half of Annual Conference claims paid. Also Auxiliary assessments for High Point college paid.

Dr. Johnson (who was an instructor), John Harkey and Fred Cox, Jr., represented our church at the Leadership Training school.

Among the graduates of Lexington high school this spring were five from our church. Margaret Lucille and Elizabeth Leonard (not sisters), Thomas Aaron and Fred Cox, Jr.

We were glad to welcome Mr. and Mrs. Gray and two children Basil and Hallie into our church fellowship recently. Basil has been critically ill in Duke Hospital but has returned home greatly improved. She expects to be able to attend Sunday school soon for which we are thankful.

Miss Kate Bulla, who is spending the sumfer at her home in Asheboro was in Lexington for a few hours Wednesday. She called on Mrs. Annie Harkey and Miss Lila Aaron.

The J-O-Y (Jesus first, Others second, Yourself last) Philathea class held their monthly meeting with Mrs. Joe Everhart at her country home. Husbands were also invited and a weiner roast was enjoyed.

The Lindsay Philathea class rode out to Swearing creek for its meeting Friday night. Bathing, wading, hiking and jumping the rope were enjoyed. The best of all was the delicious picnic supper after which a pleasant hour was spent in singing and conversation. We are hoping to be able to reduce our church debt again this year. Mr. J. A. Walser who was so generous last year has made us another proposition which we hope the members will accept.

The Ladies' Auxiliary has not had but one supper this year. About $34.00 was realized. But each second Sunday during the spring months a special collection was taken and this called supper money. The amount raised in this way was $104.50.

Mrs. Fred Cox, our hard working Auxilary president, has been working on plans for a rummage sale and for selling home made cream each Saturday. Last year over $50.00 was realized from the sale of ice cream. Auxiliary has also made plans for a quilt but work has not been started yet.

Davenport

On last Monday morning, July 8, while the gentle showers were falling on the farms that he loved, the spirit of brother D. I. Davenport took its flight back to God who gave it.

He was at his church, Mt. Hermon, on Sunday and stood at the altar and took communion along with the other members of the church he loved and worshiped in. During Sunday night there were some evidences of illness shown by him, and about 7:30 Monday morning he quietly passed away. This was his way of passing. On Thursday before he spoke concerning his passing and expressed a desire that when it came time for him to depart this life that it be quietly and without a lingering illness.

I am told that he has been a faithful man in the Mt. Hermon church. He became affiliated with this church about 35 years ago under the leadership of that soldier of the cross, Rev. D. A. Braswell. Since I came to this charge in May, he has not missed a service at his church. Had he lived till October 2, he would have reached his 86th milestone on the road of life.

He was the father of ten children, six living and four dead. The living are: U. G., J. E., A. W., D. E. Davenport, all of Creswell, and two daughters, Mrs. J. E. Hassell, Plymouth, and Mrs. W. S. Phelps, Creswell. He also leaves 42 grandchildren and 42 great-grandchildren. May the church and community say:

> "Servant of God, well done,
> Thy glorious warfare past,
> The battle's fought, the race run,
> And thou art crowned at last."

And to those of his own family who will feel his going most keenly may you be able to say:

> "Dear Father, help us to be true and faithful,
> When sin and strife are abroad in the lands,
> Then again some day, we will meet him,
> In that eternal home not made with hands."

The funeral was conducted at Mt. Hermon church in charge of the writer, assisted by Rev. R. O. Respess of the Disciple Church. The body was laid to rest in the family cemetery to await the resurrection.

MRS. HAMMER IMPROVES

The latest news from Mrs. W. C. Hammer, of Asheboro, the president of the General Missionary Convention of our church, who was seriously injured in an automobile accident while returning from the convention in May, is that she is gradually improving. The cast has been removed from her body and this gives her more comfort.

Well, we have been telling you for some time that Tabernacle was getting ready to go over the top and so she does it. Not a bigger hundred percent has ever been turned in at this office than the one she turns in this week. When Mrs. Gerringer was working for the Herald she spent a few days with the Tabernacle people and from that time to this the final results were never in doubt. The pastor, Rev. G. L. Curry, has been looking after subscriptions carefully and as one would expire he would go after the renewal and as a result, TABERNACLE IS OVER THE TOP.

Now let us look at the receipts this week. Graham, even though she had already reached the goal some time ago, leads in the receipts this week. This is another church that sells papers by the week. And Randolph charge is leading Graham a chase this week. These Randolph people are hard to head off when they decide to do a thing. Keep up the good work, Mrs. Redding.

Next in line is that young man, Dr. C. W. Bates of Winston-Salem. This is another church that is steadily climbing. Some of these days they too will be over the top. First church, High Point, and Concord both send in more than one subscription.

And now let us say a few words to Herald agents. For the next several weeks quite a lot of subscriptions are going to be expiring. All of those that came in the first of the year for a half year are running out now. We dislike very much to cut any one off the mailing list, but if people do not plan to renew, it adds to our expense to continue the paper after the subscription expires. Let agents to get these renewals. The pastors were given the mailing list, or that section of it pertaining to their charge at the Mid-year meeting. If the agents have not received this yet, let them ask the pastors about it.

Our receipts pick up a good deal this week, amounting to $41.65. This is just about half our weekly expenses now, so you see we need still more.

Vacations

We do not presume to know what the majority of people are thinking about all the time, but we do know what some of them are thinking about now, namely, vacations. Some people may think of a vacation as a useless waste of time. Others, perhaps, would like to have a vacation but cannot get off from their work. Some, perhaps, would like to take a vacation but do not think they can afford it.

With apologies to those readers of the HERALD who were at Calvary church last Sunday morning, we will say that there is scriptural warrant for a vacation. This is found in the thirty-first verse of the sixth chapter of the gospel according to St. Mark. Here is what it says, "And he said unto them, Come ye yourselves apart into a desert place and rest awhile." It seems to us that there were two reasons why our Lord wanted to take his disciples into a quiet place. The first might be found in the fact that John the Baptist had just been beheaded and this would have an unwholesome effect on the disciples. If Jesus could get them off into a quiet place He could rebuild their shattered morale and prepare them for the work of the future. The second reason may be found in the fact that our Lord wanted to rebuild the bodies of those men, knowing that the condition of the body has a tremendus effect on the mind. No man can do his best nor be his best with a worn-out body. Many people are cross and find their nerves on edge who would be tremendously helped by some rest and relaxation. We ought not to expect the grace of God to step in and do that which a little rest would do for many tired people.

Furthermore, these bodies of ours are the temples of the Holy Ghost. God dwells in these bodies and He expects us to take care of them. No man can wilfully mistreat his body and escape guilt. Nature is very exacting in making men pay for their neglect as well as for their evil deeds. Men may think they can keep their bodies keyed up to a high pitch all the time and get by with it, but they are mistaken. Even machinery does better work if allowed to rest occasionally. If this is true of the iron machine, how much more true is it of the human body!

For the time being let us leave out the scriptural injunction not to abuse our bodies and let us find some reasons why we should take care of them. We would not have to go far to find out that we need good bodies with which to carry on the work of the kingdom. Live, well, strong men can preach the gospel more successfully than dead men can. It is true that under certain conditions men have left behind an influence that continued to speak after they departed this life, but we are safe in saying that if those same men had lived and remained active they could have done more good alive than dead. When we think of the need for preaching and teaching the people of the age in which we live, it does seem to us that there is something about this subject that ought to make us stop and think. It is better to take a pace that we can hold and keep at it a long time than to take an extra fast one and hold it only a short time. In support of this theory we can profit by the tests that the manufacturers of automobiles have made. They tell us that a car will last considerably longer and can be operated more economically at a moderate rate of speed than at high speeds. They even tell us if we are about to get out of gasoline and want to reach the next station, then slow down to about thiry-five miles an hour. If this thing is true of the automobile that is made of the best steel available, how much more true it is of these human bodies that are made up of a lot of nerves. While medical skill has done a great deal to lengthen the average life, yet it has done very little to lengthen the life of the person from fifty to sixty years. To prove this it is only necessary to pick up the daily paper and look at the death column and see how many of the people who have passed out were in what we sometimes think of as the prime of life. Surely there is a reason for the large number of breakdowns on the part of middle-aged people. In the passing of these people churches are being dealt a hard blow, families are being bereft of the main support, and the communities are having to give up some of their strongest men and women. Surely the church, the institution which is to foster the best in everything and the one institution which is first to hear the cry of the widows and the orphan, ought to do everything possible to remedy this situation.

Now we will not say that a vacation of two weeks will prolong the life to any great extent of any man. It will help some. But the real solution is less hurry and more relaxation. You will notice that we did not say more time for relaxation but more relaxation. There are a great many people who have plenty of time for relaxation who are not relaxing. They are going here and there and wearing themselves out instead of spending the time quietly. And in discussing a vacation we know full well that with a great many people this is the busy season. People must work in season, but the point we are making is that these bodies were given us for a purpose and that purpose is to glorify God. We can glorify God better while alive than when dead. We can do more for the kingdom while well than we can when we are sick. If it were better to be sick than well, then Jesus would not have healed the sick people. God wants us to be well and He wants us to use every means possible to keep well. Take a vacation sometime, if possible. If not possible, then use the leisure time you have in relaxation rather than in exertion to no purpose.

WHAT THE BIBLE SAYS ABOUT RIVERS

By Rev. T. M. Johnson, D. D.

At this season of the year, while the urge is on to get out and away, it may be not without profit to follow a lighter vein in our study for a time and consider what the Bible says about the big outdoors. No class of men have followed closer than Bible speakers and writers the design of the Creator in the use of the objects in nature to meet the needs of body, mind, and soul.

Pondering the outdoors as a field of observation, not so much a field of study as a field of observation, through the eyes and minds of Bible speakers and writers, it seems to me that we—the reader and writer—may profitably think of three classes of the outdoors objects as Three Graces. The first of these to be considered is that named in the above heading—Rivers.

The Service of Rivers

Rivers may be thought of as the arteries of the great system by which the earth is watered. Whither the river flows it invites life by offering that which sustains life. "And the Lord God planted a garden eastward in Eden; and there he put the man whom he had formed. And out of the ground made the Lord God to grow every tree that is pleasant to the sight, and good for food. . . . And a river went out of Eden to water the garden." Gen. 2:8-10. Incidentally, it may be noted that it seems Eden was not the name of the garden but the name of an area in which the garden was planted, as indicated by the phrases, "a garden . . . in Eden" and "a river went out of Eden to water the garden." No name is given the garden itself.

Another instance that the course of a river invites life. "Lot lifted up his eyes, and beheld all the plain of Jordan, that it was well watered everywhere. . . . Then Lot chose him all the plain of Jordan; and Lot journeyed east" (with his cattle, of course). Gen. 13:10, 11.

The great prophet uses this idea as an appealing argument for the blessedness or happiness of the man that trusts the Lord. "Blessed is the man that trusteth in the Lord, and whose hope the Lord is. For he shall be as a tree planted by the waters, and that spreadeth out her roots by the river, and shall not see when heat cometh, but her leaf shall be green; and shall not be careful in the year of drought, neither shall cease from yielding fruit." Jer. 17:7, 8.

A River Reversed

The river here under consideration was not reversed as to the direction of the flow of its current, but reversed as to the use to which it was put. "And Pharaoh charged all his people, saying, Every son that is born (to the Hebrews) ye shall cast into the river." Ex. 1:22. The order contemplated making of the river Nile a death-trap, but the same river was used to save the life of one of the sons. "She took for him (the Hebrew baby Moses) an ark of bulrushes, and daubed it with slime and with pitch, and put the child therein; and she laid it in the flags by the river's brink. . . . And the daughter of Pharaoh came down to wash herself at the river . . . and she had compassion on him. . . . And Pharaoh's daughter said unto her (the mother), Take this child away, and nurse it for me. . . . And the child grew, and she brought him unto Pharaoh's daughter, and he became her son." Ex. 2:3, 5, 6, 9, 10.

Experiences by the River

Ezekiel associated his profound prophetic experiences with a river. "Now it came to pass . . . as I was among the captives by the river of Chebar, that the heavens were opened, and I saw visions of God. . . . The word of the Lord came expressly unto Ezekiel . . . by the river Chebar; and the hand of the Lord was here upon him." Ezek. 1:1, 3. "This is the living creature that I saw under the God of Israel by the river Chebar. . . . And the likeness of their faces was the same faces which I saw by the river of Chebar." Ezek. 10:20, 22.

An experience of despondency. "By the rivers of Babylon, there we sat down; yea, we wept, when we remembered Zion. We hanged our harps upon the willows in the midst thereof. For there they that carried us away captive required of us a song; and they that wasted us required of us mirth, saying, Sing us one of the songs of Zion. How shall we sing the Lord's songs in a strange land?" Psa. 137:1-4.

A place of worship. "And on the Sabbath we went out of the city by a riverside, where prayer was wont to be made; and we sat down, and spake unto the women which resorted thither." Acts 16:13.

The Greatest of Three

Of the three rivers that influenced Hebrew history—the Euphrates, the Nile (not mentioned in the Bible by that name), and the Jordan—the greatest is the Jordan. Not the greatest in the flow of water, perhaps, or in the fertility of its valley, but greatest in the importance of historic events transpiring in the region through which it flows.

The Jordan afforded a suitable place for the great revival as a result of the preaching of John in preparation for the coming of our Lord. "And there went out unto him (John) all the land of Judaea, and they of Jerusalem, and were all baptized of him in the river Jordan, confessing their sins." Mk. 1:5. Again, "And it came to pass in those days that Jesus came from Nazareth of Galilee and was baptized of John in Jordan. . . . And there came a voice from heaven, saying, Thou art my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased." Mk. 1:9, 11. Not events in the making of political history, but history of the Kingdom.

Figurative Use of the Term

"There is a river, the streams whereof shall make glad the city of God." Psa. 46:4.

Ezekiel, given to visions, presents most beautifully, under the figure of a river, the blessing of God flowing out from His presence in great abundance to all the people. "Behold, waters issued out from under the threshold of the house (of God) eastward . . . And when the man that had the line in his hand went forth eastward, he measured a thousand cubits, and he brought me through the waters; the waters were to the ankles. Again he measured a thousand, and brought me through the waters; and the waters were to the knees. Again he measured a thousand, and brought me through; the waters were to the loins. Afterward he measured a thousand; and it was a river that I could not pass over: for the waters were risen, waters to swim in, a river that could not be passed over.'' Ezek. 47: 1, 3-5.

Note the charm of John's vision. ''And he showed me a pure river of water of life, clear as crystal, proceeding out of the throne of God and of the Lamb. In the midst of the street of it, and on either side of the river, was there the tree of life . . . and the leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations.'' Rev. 22:1, 2.

The Printers Will Do the Rest

The big trees in the yard that never allow the sun to shine on the front porch, the comfortable chairs and swings, the big room, the walls of which are made up largely of windows, and the hearty welcome always extended at this place—an ideal place for a vacation—are calling so strongly that after turning in a few brief fillers on Thursday morning and after giving the man who makes up the forms of the paper, Mr. Ledbetter, a few last-minute suggestions about the material in hand, the editor will leave the rest of the work of the Herald this week to the printers while he goes away for a ten days' rest. He expects to be back Monday week to begin work on the Herald of that week.

No Herald Next Week

As we have been announcing for some weeks, so we announce again that there will not be any Herald published next week, as this will be the vacation week for the Herald family. This is in accordance with the contract which we have with the printers and with the Annual Conference that we suspend publication for one week in midsummer and one week at Christmas time, making fifty issues of the paper each year. During this vacation week we trust that Herald agents as well as correspondents will be busy and that for our issue of August 8th we may have an abundance of subscriptions as well as plenty of material for publication.

H. A. Garrett Not So Well

Brother H. A. Garrett, of Burlington, R. F. D. 1, who was seriously ill in a Greensboro hospital and who was taken to his home two weeks ago, is not so well again. He is one of our best-known laymen and was superintendent of our Children's Home for a number of years. In these times when the members of Brother Garrett's family are anxious about his condition, let his friends everywhere remember him and the family at a throne of grace.

Mrs. J. F. Williams Undergoes Operation

Mrs. J. F. Williams, of Calvary church, submitted to a major operation at the Wesley Long Hospital in Greensboro yesterday morning. We trust she may find permanent relief as a result of the operation.

JOURNALS WANTED

I have had several calls for 1934 Conference Journals that I can't supply. If any of the brethren have copies left over, I would appreciate their writing me the number available. But please don't send them to me without writing me first. I might get more than I need otherwise.

SCHOOL OF INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS

By Rev. S. W. Taylor, D. D.

Article 2

A number of night lectures were given in the east-campus auditorium. These were open to the public. One of the most informing and inspiring speakers in this series was Dr. H. W. Beaven, President of the Rochester-Colgate Divinity School. His subject was ''The Church and the Changing World.''

There are many and infallible signs, the speaker declared, that we are living in a changing world. Among these he cited the notable changes that have taken place in the attitude of the Orient toward the Occident, and the Occident toward the Orient. Also the change in the attitude of the world toward capitalism. And these changes, he declared, have terrifically affected religion. If the church isn't doing something to the world, the changing world is certainly doing something to the church.

But the speaker did not think that there is anything disparaging to the church in the marked transitions through which the world is passing. On the contrary, these changes, he said, brought to the church large and challenging opportunities, and of all institutions it is the church that ought to put her ''Golden Age'' in the tomorrow. When things are moving, the church has its opportunity for its best work. God's people ought not, therefore, to look upon a changing world with fear. But, on the other hand, should be reassured in the fact that the church is the most powerful institution in the world, and has more facilities for doing its work than any other institution. This is so because the church came to us from God's hands. He instituted it. He is the source of its life, its light, and its power; and he has said that the ''gates of hell shall not prevail against it.'' Whatever resources, therefore, that are needful for the church, God is abundantly able and gloriously willing to supply. Why, then, should the church not live in a changing world with undaunted confidence in its security?

But the speaker placed the minister at a strategic point in this situation. It is his business, he declared, to lead God's people to see that a changing world is the church's great and challenging opportunity, and if he does not do that, nobody else will. ''As ministers,'' Dr. Beaven said, ''we want to be conscious that it is a pathetic thing to have a great struggle going on and we not mobilize our people for the fight.'' If we do not mobilize them for our fight, somebody else will mobilize them for some other fight.

Dr. Beaven thinks that ministers leave Christian people too much to themselves to think out their way and to find a course for their impulses. They need, he says, constant teaching, cultivation, and direction. He cited Jesus as an illustration. Over and over again He had to teach His disciples what was right and what was wrong. The process of thinking, as Christians, is a slow and steady growth. It is the duty, therefore, of the ministry—God's oracle—to know God's mind, and to help the people to think clearly and to follow right impulses, as they face the problems that confront the church in the changing world. For the pulling of their hearts the ministry must give direction to the people, the speaker said.

Dr. Beaven made a strong plea for Christianity, both as a vital heart experience and as a living force in society. God is saving humanity by coming into individual hearts; but the process does not stop there. If one is really a Christian, his religion affects what he does. "The individual Christian, of necessity, brings tension into society." A lot of Christians in a community, the speaker said, ought to make it harder for the liquor business to prosper, or any other evil. He declared that when the fight is on between evil and good the Christian ought to know which side he is on. His plea for a practical, society-blessing Christianity was further emphasized by a reference to communism. We will not meet the communists, he declared, by denouncing them because of their atheism. The only way that Christianity can meet communism is to make society better than communism is doing.

The lecture was a ringing declaration of confidence in the church as the one institution to which society may cling with safety in the whirl of a changing world, and in a heart religion, which is the only hope of personal and social redemption.

WHAT'S RIGHT WITH THE CHURCH

By P. E. Lindley

Its Message

The late Calvin Coolidge was a man of few words. Returning from church one day his wife asked if he had heard a good sermon. He said, "Yes." "What did the minister preach about today?" the first lady then inquired. "Sin," he answered. Then Mrs. Coolidge asked, "What did the preacher say about sin?" "He is against it," was the curt reply.

Contained in this little story is the whole attitude of the pulpit on the question of the good and evil of our day. The church is always for righteousness and against wrong. While some messages are better than others, they are all good. No preacher recommends sin! The church's message is right! Ministers may blunder in delivery, clothe the truth in crude and primitive words, or fail to discern the widest reaches of moral issues, but never in the world does one come out and urge Satan's program of activity. The oldest man among us cannot recall a single sermon devoted to the benefits of drunkenness, the virtues of adultery, the good of lying, cheating and stealing, or the wisdom of forsaking God. It is unthinkable. Coolidge had it right; every pulpit is against sin.

The message of the church is a current of truth forever flowing in the right direction. At times the stream may be narrow, shallow, or a bit unclear; nevertheless it moves on, and each pulpit contributes its own testimony to the volume and richness of its ceaseless course. The uneducated and the orthodox; the dogmatic or the radical—all present goodness as they see it. Perhaps no mortal mind is able to grasp any great truth in its entirety, yet whatever is perceived is translated into moral values and utilized for a righteous cause. All are seeking after newer knowledge and turning it toward the same goal, namely, the redemption of human souls and the building of a Christian world. Our limitations are more often due to faulty vision than to insincerity of delivery. We preach the best we know. Ministers must always warn men to flee from sin to safety and the degree of information available will, of course, influence the manner of their admonitions. But from the humblest chapel on the hillside to the cathedral of a great city, a voice will ever be heard calling men from the ways of sin to a life of salvation and eternal peace.

You can always go to church, then, knowing you will hear something good. You will hear sin condemned and righteousness upheld. If the listener happens to be in league with evil, the sermon may not be to his liking. Criticism is usually in order from the lips of those whose toes are touched. Condemn the wicked and he feels his guilt. Ugly things, therefore, will be said concerning the sermon that tears up the tempter's playhouse. But the preacher should not be scorned for this reason. He is bound by conscience, duty, and God to fall upon sin and drive it from his congregation. When the pastor reproves our evil ways he is only performing his official task and doing exactly the thing we are paying him for.

Many are inconsistent here. They will call the doctor and pay him well for finding a physical fault. He locates a disorder in the bodily parts and is thanked for his wonderful skill. But let the pastor unearth a wrong—a maladjustment in the spiritual life—and he is likely to be censured for his intrusions and passed on to another field to carry the Lord's work.

It should be remembered, though, that the minister, like the physician, is looking toward our total good. Every message is another blow to beat back the forces of iniquity and fortify more securely the pathways of the just. The sermon may be, as it were, the voice of one crying in the wilderness, but the wilderness needs that voice and would be infinitely poorer without it. As the sailors steer by the stars, the prophet sails by the distant goals of the kingdom of God and shapes his utterances accordingly.

Preaching has convincing power. Goldsmith in The Deserted Village described the local parson in the words:

"Truth from his lips prevailed with double sway,
And fools, who came to scoff, remained to pray."

Bring people into a regular hearing of the gospel message and you will change their ways of living, for hard indeed is the heart that will not melt into submission under the sincere, plain teaching from the Holy Word.

The presence of the Cross is the secret of effective preaching. The pulpit proclaims Christ, the only theme compelling enough and charming enough to meet the needs of a sick and disordered world. As the church holds the greatest book, it also announces the greatest message. No pulpit has time for sociology, economics, politics, and human traps. Education, science and philosophy are enlightening and serviceable in their respective roles, but it remains for religion to season and guide these forces for the ultimate blessing of mankind. Knowledge is power, they say, but the function of religion is to direct this power according to the highest known values of the race. The message of the church, then, is right, since upon the authority of scripture and by virtue of human experience it insists that whatsoever the people do must be done to the glory of God.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.
CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord.
CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

A Tenth for Ten Weeks

When an effort was made last spring to enlist our people in a tithing campaign many of them did not join in for various reasons; but our rural members said if they should give only a tithe then to the Lord, nothing could be given since they were making nothing, which was true.

But beginning with August 18, the third Sunday, and closing with the last Sunday in October, will give us a fine period to really practice tithing. The time certainly will suit our rural people and the rest of our people may doubtless find a better time to tithe than when it was tried out earlier.

Therefore, we are asking our people to join in a united tithing campaign to run for ten weeks, starting with the third Sunday in August, to close not earlier than the last Sunday in October. That the increase for the first five weeks be applied on the Annual Conference claims until these are paid in full, the increase for the second period be applied on pastor's salary, the amounts accepted on W. S. and the McCulloch Memorial Fund. Of course, such money as is paid in by those who do not tithe will be applied as designated by them. That is the regular apportionment for pastor's salary, for W. S., for Annual Conference claims, etc., until there are fully met. And that when all these claims are fully met, as they surely will be, if our membership shall heartily engage in this campaign, the residue shall be applied for repairs and such other local needs or as shall be determined by the congregation.

We are offering the above as a proper way for dividing the tithe. All the items included in our statement are expected to be paid—all Conference claims, W. S. acceptances and pastors' salaries with the McCulloch Memorial Fund. All this is expected by us and we believe our loyal leaders also expect to meet the claims in full. The money for them is needed to carry on the work of the denomination. The pastor must have his salary in order to maintain his family, to meet his obligations and thus live as an honest man. The Annual Conference has obligations it must also meet in order to be honest. There are those dependent upon it as there are upon the local church. Likewise the General Conference has obligations assumed with the expectation that each local church shall bear its share of the burden of the denominational expense. So it all goes back to the local church and therefore to the church member. Hence it is up to us who are members, regardless of whether we are officials, pastors or non-officials—all of us have a responsibility which we should not shirk in the discharge of the above obligations.

Let us first begin by enlisting our membership. The pastor and those on the official boards who will help him should call for volunteers to join in this tithing campaign, to start, i. e., the first tithe to be brought to the Lord on August 18, the third Sunday. This happens to be the president's birthday. We are not asking that you make it a birthday memorial, but that you tithe unto the Lord. Still, I am delighted with the thought the churches in our Annual Conference might begin a movement which will be a joy to them, as I am glad of the fact that I have had a chance to live my life which began on August 18 so largely in and for the Methodist Protestant church.

Shall this campaign be 100 per cent operative? I have heard it said that we have yet to put on a campaign that has been 100 per cent in the co-operation it has received. Surely we do not have a church that could not earnestly try out the merits of this movement. Every one could and should. Suppose you are paid up on all Conference claims, pastor's salary is yet to be met. Then begin in August to pay this in full. When this is done and all the McCulloch Memorial is raised, keep on with your tithing and devote the money to your church debt, if there be one; if no church debt, then to the parsonage debt or repairs—nothing needed for this? keep it to start off the year 1936 with. You will be delighted with this bank balance to start the work after the conference shall adjourn. And so, brethren, let's make our preparation to have a large tithe laid on our church altars on August 18.

I am offering this suggestion a week earlier because we are to have no issue of the Herald the first week in August. So until then, adieu.

Dr. T. C. Amick to Be at Louisburg College

According to the N. C. Christain Advocate, Dr. T. C. Amick will teach at Louisburg College next year and will be chairman of the committee on course of study. Dr. Amick, who has lived at Elon College for a number of years, has been an outstanding teacher in high school and college in this state for a long period of years. He will be a valuable addition to the faculty of the institution. And while we shall be sorry to lose him from the central part of the state, yet he will be right in the editor's path as he goes back and forth once a year to visit old friends on Halifax circuit.

Guilford County Sunday School Convention

The Guilford County Sunday school convention will meet this year on Thursday, August 1, at the Springfield Friends church near High Point. This is one of the historic churches in the central part of the state and will be an ideal place for a convention. Rev. Shuford Peeler and his staff of workers from the State Association will be present to take part on the program as well as many others. Methodist Protestants in the county would do well to take a day off and go to this convention.

WHY I GO TO CHURCH

By Bascom Anthony

1. I go to church from habit, just as I go to my work, and feel put out if I don't. This is a poor reason but a good habit.

2. I go to church because people expect more of me if I do than they would if I didn't. It helps me for my friends to expect something of me.

3. I go to church to encourage the preacher and the other members who are trying to carry on the most important work in the community. I have no right to discourage them by indifference and then criticize them for doing no better.

4. I get a "kick" out of going because there is something about it that makes me want to be decent on the inside as well as on the outside.

5. I like good company and the folks at church are about the most orderly and serious-minded people I know of anywhere, at least while they are there, and that helps me.

6. The church is one place that I can see myself and my affairs as they really are. Sometimes a Scripture lesson or a hymn will clarify and enlarge my whole vision of life.

7. I go to church because it makes me feel that right is right for right's sake and not as a matter of policy. Somehow the church gives me a different standard of values from that I get on Main Street.

8. Going to church helps me to see beyond my own yard's fence and beyond my own community. It gives me a sense of the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man and out of this some moral obligations are born. When I leave there I can make juster estimates and fairer decisions even if it costs me something to do it.

9. I go to church to meet one or more great souls whose very presence is an encouragement to virtue. They help me.

10. I go to church to meet with those struggling ones who like myself are conscious of their failures but somehow keep on trying as if they were determined to succeed in being the right sort of folks. They encourage me and I hope I encourage them.

11. I go to church to find a company and an atmosphere where it is easier to find God and to see things as they are than it is elsewhere.

12. I go to church to join in worship with the only sort of people in the world who are under bond to take Christ seriously and to make him ruler of this world in all things. It's a big job and far from finished, but I want to do what I can towards it. I at least can count for one more on that side.

13. I go to church because it is the truest democracy in the world. Nobody is blackmailed who professes penitence and a desire to live right. A hog thief or a harlot can get in as easily as honest and reputable folks. Judas and John are still in church, where John sometimes gets impatient and wants to burn things up, while Judas still has good impulses that end in disaster because of lack of character to see them through.

14. I go to church because it is the one place that offers forgiveness for the past and a fresh start in life as though we had never lived before and had been born then and there. So many of us have done something in an hour of weakness that we would give a right hand to undo but cannot until life would be a curse if it were not for the pardoning and healing power of the Christ of the church. I know he can heal elsewhere, but it is as little as I can do to join in with the other poor cripples and lepers that he has healed in singing his praise.

15. I go to church because it is the only place that speaks with certainty about life beyond. Death has broken up my home and carried away my friends. It is silently destroying my own body. The church not only arches all these graves with the rainbow of hope but sets beneath its center Him who is a sample of the future harvest—the first fruits of them that sleep.

For these and other reasons I shall keep on going to church so long as there is breath in me and when that has left me I want my children to carry my body there, even as my parents carried me there as a babe to dedicate me to God, so that my life here may begin and end at the altars of the church with its solemn ritual and hopeful songs.—Wesleyan Christian Advocate.

"LEND ME A DOLLAR"

I will pay it back in a short time. Have you kept your promise? If not, why not? You need it so much, perhaps the man you owe needs it too. This thing of making debts and not paying them is dishonesty. It is contemptible. Some people have very poor memories, especially when they owe somebody money, and do not intend to pay it. You need to take a look at the Golden Rule, Matt. 7:12: "Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them. For this is the law and the prophets." These things have been for preachers as well as for laymen. Instead of getting out of debt, you keep on getting more in debt. Don't console yourself because you think it is not known. More people know it than you think. "Be sure your sin will find you out."

Drs. Kennett and Lindley to Preach at Calvary

While the pastor of Calvary church and editor of the Herald is taking a vacation the pulpit at Calvary church will be occupied by Dr. Paul Kennett and Dr. P. E. Lindley, of High Point College. Dr. Kennett will preach next Sunday morning and Dr. Lindley the first Sunday morning in August. There will not be any evening services except Christian Endeavor during the month of August. Prayer meeting will be held each Wednesday evening as usual.

McPherson Twins Give Program

Misses Rachael and Ruth McPherson, twin daughters of Dr. and Mrs. R. G. McPherson, of Saxapahaw, N. C., gave a delightful vocal program from the radio station in Greensboro one day last week. We congratulate both the parents and the singers.

Rev. R. C. Stubbins Assisting in Meeting

Rev. R. C. Stubbins, the pastor of the Gibsonville and Fountain Place churches, is assisting Rev. O. B. Williams at Piney Grove church, Kernersville charge, in a revival meeting this week.

DOSIA'S NEW DESK-MATE

Mother Jones knew by the way Dosia came tramping through the living room that something had displeased her at school.

“Who's hurt your feelings this time, Dosia?” she asked presently.

“I didn't say my feelings had been hurt, did I?” Dosia retorted.

“You don't have to speak, my dear,” answered the woman softly, “to let me know what the condition of your mind is. I can always tell by your actions.”

“Well, mother,” replied Dosia, with a shrug of her graceful shoulders, “Miss Dale separated Dilly and me today, and who do you think she gave me for a desk-mate?”

“I've no idea,” responded the mother. “Who?”

“Nobody you or I ever heard of before,” snapped Dosia—“a girl named Myrtle Ryan—lives over in the shoe factory district—I scarcely spoke to her myself all day.”

“A stranger?” said the woman, giving Dosia a keen glance. “Do you think that's the proper way to treat strangers when they arrive at the school you have been attending all your life?”

“It's all right for this girl,” declared Dosia—“she's not in my class.”

“By what marks,” asked the woman, “do you measure the standard for your class?”

“Well,” responded Dosia quickly, “good clothes, nice manners and a pleasant disposition.”

“Clothes don't always make the person, my dear,” reminded the woman, “for some of the finest hearts in the world are covered by coarse garments.”

“But her clothes, mother,” ventured Dosia, “are too coarse for words, and her stockings are mended.”

“Is she clean and neat-looking?” questioned the woman.

“Clean,” admitted Dosia, “but one couldn't be neat in patched garments.”

“She doesn't happen to be a girl any ways near your size?” questioned Mother Jones.

“About my age, I expect,” responded Dosia, “but a little smaller.”

“I believe,” returned the woman, “if I were you I would investigate this little stranger, and should she prove worthy, then why not pass on a few of those out-grown dresses of yours that I was talking to you about the other day?”

“Of course,” whined Dosia, “you would find something for me to do for her.”

“I merely suggested this,” said mother, “hoping to solve the problem of those out-grown clothes of yours.”

“I'll think about it,” agreed Dosia, “but I won't promise yet that I'll give her any of them—I don't think I will.”

“Look into her everyday life,” said mother thoughtfully, “then make your decision.”

The next afternoon when Dosia returned, Mrs. Jones noticed with delight that she said nothing against her new desk-mate, neither did she complain that she had been separated from her best beloved chum, and just a week later Dosia told her mother she was ready to turn over her out-grown garments to Myrtle Ryan.

“You've investigated her record, I suppose,” said mother as she handed over the keys to the packing room.

“Yes'm,” answered Dosia, “I've learned that she is the daughter of a crippled man that worked at the shoe factory, and—and—mother—she does all the work in their little home before and after school hours, but she hasn't learned to sew yet, and even if she could sew, she told me she wouldn't have anything extra nice in clothes, as her father was terribly in debt and was trying to pay off everybody before he made any more purchases for home or family.”

“I'm sure you'll not make any mistake in donating your clothes to a girl like that,” responded mother eagerly, “just wait and see if I am not right.”

The next morning when Dosia came home she found her mother waiting for her at the front gate. “Oh, Dosia—” she exclaimed, “I've lost my special pin; have you seen it anywhere?”

Dosia opened her mouth to speak, and then suddenly closed it again.

“You've had it?” exclaimed the woman. “Where did you have it—where did you leave it?”

“I—I—” stammered Dosia, “saw it on your dresser last Saturday morning when I was dusting the furniture in your room, and I—I—know I pinned it on the collar of my dress to admire myself in the mirror—and—and—”

“You gave the dress you were wearing Saturday, away,” finished the woman wildly. “Oh, what will I do—what can I do?”

“I guess I'll have to go down and explain the situation to Myrtle, and ask her to return the pin, mother,” said Dosia solemnly.

The rap of a light hand falling on the door interrupted the conversation, and the next instant a timid girl in a beautifully pressed dress walked into the room where the mother and daughter sat.

“Dosia,” said the stranger, “I know you gave me your out-grown garments, and I appreciate them, but I'm wondering if you intentionally gave me the pin that I found on the little blue gingham?”

“Oh—” cried Dosia excitedly—“did you find it? That is mother's and she's been grieving herself sick over its loss.”

“Well, I have come to return it,” said Myrtle, and thrusting a small hand into the big book satchel by her side, she brought forth the lost article that was causing Mrs. Jones so much distress.”

“I'm glad you brought it back,” exclaimed Dosia happily.

“What did you expect me to do?” asked Myrtle. “It didn't belong to me; here it is—' and with that Myrtle lifted the trinket from her bag and placed it in Mrs. Jones' hand. “And now,” she continued sweetly, “I must be running home.”

“Wait a minute,” said Dosia eagerly. “I've a sudden feeling I want to go with you—you're true blue, and I like you.”

“I've liked you all the time,” ventured Myrtle, as they wandered down the clean-swept walk together, "but I didn't think there was any use in my making any effort to be friends with you until you gave me a chance to be friendly."

"Well," said Dosia to her mother that night before she hopped into bed, "I've learned something through Myrtle's acquaintance, mother, that I'll never forget."

"You have?" returned the woman. "What is it?"

"Never to judge anybody by appearances alone," said Dosia solemnly, "but by their own true worth, and Myrtle has proved beyond a doubt that she is a thoroughbred, and I hope we will always be friends."

Really it looks like this will prove to be true, for the girls are now in Junior High, and still the best of friends, and nobody seems to notice that all of Myrtle's clothes are hand-me-downs from Dosia's wardrobe, and when either girl has a voice in the matter, they still occupy the same desk.—The Youth's Evangelist.

MAIDA'S JOURNEY

"A letter from mother," and Maida took the envelope from the postman with a happy smile. Father and mother were in Boston, where father had gone to see if a great doctor there could do something for his eyes, and mother had promised to write home every day while they were gone, which she was sure would not be a week.

How surprised Maida was when she read the letter! Mother said that when they saw the great doctor he had told father that he would have to stay in the hospital for a couple of weeks and then as much longer in the city where Dr. Magnus could see him every day. "And so," mother added, "I cannot leave my little girl and my baby alone with big brother Ned to look after for so long, and I am going to ask Ned to put you and little Rob on the train and send you straight to me."

A note to Ned told him just what he should do, and he stayed home the next morning from the office and helped Maida pack a little trunk with things that mother had sent for, bought her ticket and put her and little Rob on the train, with a word to the conductor asking him to take special care of them.

At first it was pleasant riding along past woods and hills and streams; but when Maida began to think that it would be six long hours before the journey was over and that she was alone, she began to feel lonesome.

Then baby Rob began to fret, and Maida did everything she could think of to amuse him, but he missed mother too.

"It's dreadful to be alone. I don't know what I'm going to do," Maida whispered to herself. Then what was it that flashed into Maida's mind? Why, a line of one of mother's favorite hymns that she so often hummed as she went about the house: "Never alone is the Christian who lives by faith and prayer." "Why, of course I'm not alone in this big train. God is here just as He is at home," she thought, and a quick little prayer went up: "Dear Lord, I've felt a little bit afraid all alone, but I won't now, because I know You are right here with me. Please take care of me and baby Rob on our journey. Amen."

How different everything seemed now! The sun was going down red in the west and filled the sky with a beautiful glow, and everything and everybody looked friendly instead of strange. Baby Rob stopped fretting, and as she sang softly to him he nestled down and closed his eyes for a little nap.

It seemed only a short time before the conductor came and said, "We will be in Boston in fifteen minutes. Get your things together and sit right here until I come for you." Sure enough, when the long train came to a stop in the station Mr. Conductor came directly and, lifting Rob and the little trunk, was soon out on the platform. Maida held tightly to his hand in all the bustle and confusion and never let go till she saw dear mother's face looking eagerly up and down, and then in a minute they were in each other's arms and mother was thanking the kind conductor for his care. "But it was God who cared the most," Maida said to herself with a happy little smile.—Apples of Gold.

A MOTHER'S DAY SURPRISE

"Mother's Day," mused Betty as she sat up in bed and rubbed her sleepy eyes, "Now I wonder—"

Betty had heard her little schoolmates talking about the pleasant surprises they were going to give their mothers on Mother's Day, and she was trying to think of something she might do to surprise her mother. She was just in the act of calling her mother to come and dress her, when suddenly a bright idea entered her little curly head.

Although Betty was eight years old she had always been accustomed to being waited on. She had been the baby in the family for six years, and perhaps was a little bit spoiled. Then came the twins, after which Betty felt that she was being very much neglected. She still depended on Mother to dress her every morning.

Betty looked about the little bedroom. There on a chair beside the dresser were her clothes all ready to put on. Mother always had the clothes ready Sunday mornings to save time.

After a few moments' hesitation Betty slipped out of bed, and fifteen minutes later she went downstairs and into the dining room. Mother was arranging the breakfast table, and had just brought in a plate of rolls.

"Why, Betty dear," exclaimed Mother happily when she saw her little girl all dressed and ready for Sunday school, "you certainly have given me a pleasant surprise. I'm so glad you have dressed yourself," went on Mother. "Even your hair has been brushed and nicely arranged.

"I was just wondering how I'd ever manage to get ready for the morning services with the cook away, and the twins so troublesome this morning. Now I will have plenty of time."

"I'll dry the dishes for you, Mother," offered Betty as she gave her mother a bear hug. "You know this is my Mother's Day surprise for you."

Mother, stooping down, kissed her little girl, and offered a silent prayer of thanks to God for such a lovely child.

After that good day Betty gave her mother many happy little surprises by learning not only to wait on herself, but help take care of her little twin sisters, and do many little chores about the house.—Our Little Folks.

THE HIGHWAY TO LEADERSHIP

By Rev. N. G. Bethea, D. D.

A Fact-Facing Courage That Develops Patience

Paul in writing to Timothy exhorts: "Thou therefore endure hardness as a good soldier of Jesus Christ." And again: "Patience worketh experience." Putting these together, endurance and patience, we find that which enables one to get things done that cannot be realized otherwise. For instance, if you will take the watch for an illustration. It took patience to figure out just how big to make every wheel and the number of cogs for each one in order that each one might perform its part and make the hands go around just right to mark the time of day. Doubtless the first timepiece was a very crude one, but we do not discount that because it was the patience that was put to work there that developed the highest efficiency in our timepieces of today. To work out anything worthwhile there is an abundance of patience needed. Then the experience that comes with that enables us to reach up towards perfection in such a way as to make our efforts effective.

A great deal of talent is lost to the world for lack of courage. There are people who are able to reach certain heights of usefulness if only they had the courage, able so far as the training and talent is concerned, but are afraid something must be endured. Courage and patience to attack that which hinders in our own lives and work it out for the good we may be able to do for others.

So there must be team work, putting courage and patience together, if we would get the joy out of living that comes from doing right. And no one can do that which will enrich his own and other lives unless there is that patient endurance that was exemplified in our Master Leader.

When we get outside of self we will find that there is a new world to conquer; but practice on self will have prepared us in a large measure for the undertakings that will tell for others. To thus train ourselves will enable us as we grow older instead of becoming peevish at other people's faults and giving up our places of usefulness we will continue to go on. There are those today who have had great opportunities for service by preparation in just the way you are getting it that are a failure in their declining years just because they have not developed that patience that has brought that experience in Christian living that gives them place, and if no place is given they can step down gracefully and still wield an influence for righteousness.

It was said of John, who was first known as a man of temper but by staying so close to Jesus that he became known for his affectionate and patient disposition, that after he reached that stage in life that he could no longer care for the churches by taking the oversight, would always be on hand in the services. The preacher in charge would always ask him if he had a word and he would always say: "Little children, love one another." When asked one day why he always said that, replied: "That is all there is after all." It takes a life of true service for Christ Jesus to reach that point in old age.

We need a courage that will wage war against present-day sins and determine to weed them out as far as possible. A courage that will have such patience as to pick up the wounded man and take him to an inn, and then go back and clean up the highway from Jerusalem to Jericho, and drive out the thieves that infest the mountains on either side. Christian courage that determines to give more in the face of depression instead of being afraid that if we give to God's cause we will be short on finance.

So Then With This Courage a Patience That Teaches

The richest experiences come in life as we go out with a determination to help others. The man who stays in and expects to help people that he has never seen, unless by his faith and means he send to those that it is impossible for him to see that which will enrich their lives, is missing much of what God intends that we shall enjoy by contact. The pastor must know his folks to help them. The teacher must know something of the background of the pupil. The most useful discoveries have come after long and patient research. Take, for example, Burbank, Edison, and many others who have worked on while others slept.

There needs to be a great deal of teaching done. Theories are all right, to be sure, but there needs to be practice to see if those that we have are workable. It is easy to say what. But hard to do what.

We could learn some helpful lessons from people who are taking the time and the means to teach. I do not have the latest figures at hand, but these give approximately what is being done: Jews give 335 hours to religious training, Catholics 200 hours, Protestants 24 hours. I think there is some improvement in these figures, but that gives us an idea of why it is harder to hold our people. They are not as well grounded as they should be in the things pertaining to the Kingdom as we see it.

While we believe there is an improvement in favor of Protestantism, this shows that there is a big task ahead of us. Our danger is in stressing the training without putting the stress upon the consecration that always makes training effective. Form without the power is not safe in religious matters.

The suffering that needs to be relieved can be remedied through much patient study and self-sacrifice. Let us not lose sight of the fact that true leaders are always unselfish. That British general who was not willing to leave a comfortable bed in Cairo utterly failed in driving out the Turks and their German allies from Palestine. But when Allenby put himself at the head of his troops, after this ease-seeking general was relieved of his command, he soon had the enemy routed and Jerusalem surrendered to the Allied army.

Sometimes it takes an entire life to teach a great truth and the one who makes the sacrifice to bring out such truth may never be honored until after death has released him from toil, but it takes big understanding souls to bring forth such to the world.

Books sometimes that are hard to read are passed up by the ones who are not willing to make their minds their servants by hard work and study. "Too hard to read," we often hear one say. But that is the very thing our minds should be trained to do. School them to stay upon the thing that is worthwhile though it may be hard. Such are the conquerors in all the ages. Many a teacher has wondered what good would come of some pupils they have had and have been agreeably surprised in after life to find that the very thing that they thought lost has come out in the life of some boy or girl.

So the patience to teach by precept and example is what we need to cultivate in order that the experiences in life may be enriched constantly by the rich fruitage which is bound to come to all who patiently endure.

A NEW PSYCHOLOGY

Unconsciously we have carried over into our church life some of the effects of the material conditions through which we have been passing. The psychology of defeat has taken hold of far too many in the church. We have become so accustomed to saying we cannot, that we have come to believe we cannot. We must develop a new psychology—the Psychology of Faith. No better illustration can be found than the experience of God's ancient people at the time Moses sent out the twelve spies to examine the promised land. They all brought back the same report of the fruitfulness of the land, and also of the difficulties to be encountered, but quite a different report of their ability to go up and possess the land. Some were looking at the giants in the land, the others were looking at a land of possibilities, and to God, their source of Divine assistance. Which way do we have our eyes focused—upon the difficulties in the way of an aggressive program—or to our possibilities and to the God of our fathers who is still abundantly able to lead us into the possession of the abundance of life and the establishment of His kingdom? It may be that these times are for the testing of our faith. Who is to lead out if we as the ambassadors of Christ do not? Is there not a remnant whom God may depend upon to save this confused civilization of which we are a part? Must the church fold her hands because our business and economic programs have been thrown out of gear? I answer a thousand times—NO.

The condition of our civilization demands the wisest and most aggressive program on the part of the church, a vital Christian experience as the priceless possession of every follower of Christ, together with a devotion to Christian service which shall revitalize all our churches, making them dynamic.

A glorious heritage has been left us by the early fathers of our church. What shall we do with it? Let the banner of democratic Methodism trail in the dust, or quit ourselves like men of faith and courage in the producing of a larger and more efficient Maryland Conference?

(The above was clipped from the report of Rev. E. A. Sexsmith, president, Maryland Annual Conference, in the recent session held at Westminster.—Ed.)

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

MRS. J. E. PRITCHARD, Editor

QUARTERLY EXECUTIVE MEETING OF WOMEN'S WORK, N. C. BRANCH

The quarterly executive meeting of Women's Work of the N. C. Branch was held in Grace church, Greensboro, July 23. In the absence of the president, Mrs. W. C. Hammer, of Asheboro, Mrs. J. M. Millikan, of Greensboro, presided. Dr. C. W. Bates, Winston-Salem, conducted the devotions. Reports were heard from all officers and secretaries. These were optimistic and encouraging, and showed much has been done during the quarter.

The treasurer's report showed an increase in finances over the corresponding period of last year.

The chairman of districts, Mrs. H. C. Nicholson, made a very encouraging report of work done in the districts.

At the afternoon session Rev. E. L. Ballard, Mebane, brought a message in song and also told of making slides of our Home Mission fields. He is preparing a lecture to use with these slides, which he hopes to have ready by early fall. Am sure many of our churches will be interested in having Mr. Ballard give this program.

Several recommendations from the president were accepted. Many other plans were presented and some left with committees, and they will have their plans in this column as soon as they are ready.

Fine reports were given of the general convention that was in May at Indianapolis, Ind., by those that attended from this Branch.

Our attention was called to "Summer Specials." Listed below are a few suggestions. Meeting adjourned with a vote of thanks to the Grace church women for their splendid hospitality. The next quarterly meeting is to be held at Bethel Home, Weaverville, N. C.

The "Summer Special"

At this time each church in the N. C. Conference is asked to make for one of their specials a large offering to be sent to the Children's Home for their 25th anniversary August 22. Why not each church send at least $25.00! The time is not long off, so begin now to get ready for this special day.

There follows a list of suggested articles for each field:

Pine Ridge

May, 1936, marks the 25th anniversary of our work in Pine Ridge. We are hoping, therefore, that this event may be celebrated by an enlarged "summer special" to this field. Used clothing for men, women and children; new articles of clothing especially for children. Bed spreads. Curtains (3 bolts of green scrim for the dining room and girls' assembly room). Clothes wringers. Clock. Dining room chairs. Desks (four teachers' and one office desk). Equipment for home economics department. Equipment for manual training department. Library books of all kinds. Maps of the Old and New Testament world. Metal dish sponges. Paring knives. Pianos. Tools (hammers, saws, tongues, wrenches, etc.). Waste paper baskets for the schoolrooms.

Children's Home

Used clothing, sizes 4 to 18, spring and winter coats, summer and winter dresses, boys' shirts, trousers, overalls, suits (sizes 9 to 14 especially), shoes, towels, washcloths, handkerchiefs, soap and toilet articles, sheets (single and double).

I DIDN'T KNOW

I did not know the sky revealed
Such colors wondrous fair;
One day I gave an upward glance
And saw a rainbow there.

I did not know that man could be
So gentle and so kind;
I spent a peaceful afternoon
In company of the blind.

I did not know what flowers held
Within their cloistered cell;
A friend brought heliotrope to me,
And helped to make me well.

I did not know that common things
Were much approved of God;
I watched a man with saintly face
A-working in the sod.

I did not know a little child
Could show the way to live;
One taught me how to pray aright,
Another how to give.

I did not know a beggar man
Did anything worthwhile,
I gave to one a silver coin,
He gave back a smile.

I did not know that any book
Could mean so much to me;
I read: "And ye shall know the Truth
And the Truth shall make you free."

HERALD AGENTS AND REPORTERS APPRECIATED

In this hot weather when the Herald always has a slump let us thank heartily those Herald agents and reporters who have gone right on with their work as though it were winter time. The longer we are with the paper the more we realize the importance of faithful and loyal agents and reporters. The Herald could not run financially without the help of the agents who are constantly sending us subscriptions, neither could it exist long without the assistance of the reporters who are all the time looking for church news to send to us. These people play an important part in the work of the church, even a greater part than some of them realize. Our hats are off to these loyal ones.

"Poverty and underprivilege for a multitude, and plenty and excess wealth for the few must not exist side by side, unprotested by the Christian church. These cannot exist side by side without violating Christian ethics and weakening presently, and destroying eventually, the government that condones or sanctions that condition."—Dr. Daniel A. Clothing and Other Gifts

Miss Mary Wills, Greensboro, N. C., 30 glass jars. R. I. Avenue, Washington, D. C., one box of clothing. Mrs. Virginia Darton, Concord, N. C., one box of clothing for little girls. The Woman's Auxiliary, Friendship, Mt. Hermon, 34 cans of fruit and vegetables.

We are grateful for all the above gifts of money and substance. We have sent out a goodly number of empty glass jars during the last week and have more to send if you will just let us know that you will take them.

August 22

Our children are talking about and planning for August 22, and for them things will date to and from August 22 for a good while. There is some money coming in already from out of the state for August 22. We have three items to report next week. That is fine and from now on we shall report such items for August 22.

We are hoping to have a good offering from every church in the conference for that day. Let no church fail.

And please remember that by the direction of the committee we are to give a group picture of all the children in the Home as of April, 1935, to each church which reports 100 per cent of all its families contributing. We shall be glad to give a picture to every church in the conference. This picture is different and you will want one.

Yours in His service,

A. G. DIXON, Superintendent.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Mt. Pleasant, North Davidson.—The revival was held last week, Rev. C. G. Isley being the pulpit help. He preached some very inspiring sermons throughout the week. There were two confessions. There were many visitors from different churches at the services during the week, and we invite them to come anytime.

The C. E. Society met Sunday morning with a goodly number present. A very interesting program was rendered, with Maxine Hayworth acting as leader. The subject was, "Why Is Profanity Harmful?"

The Ladies' Auxiliary met with Mrs. L. H. Hilton last month.

The death angel came into our community last week and claimed the life of Mrs. Martin Murphy. She had been a member of this church for several years. We extend our deepest sympathy to the bereaved ones.

Mr. J. C. Hayworth, from Mt. Pleasant, is the delegate to the Annual Conference this year. MILDRED GREEN, Reporter.

Bethesda, State St.—Our Sunday school has been off right much in attendance for the past several Sundays on account of infantile paralysis, but we hope soon to be back to normal. We are planning a short Children's Day program to be given next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock.

Our C. E. seems to be growing in attendance and interest. They had a social Saturday night at the home of Mrs. H. H. Brinkley which was enjoyed by all. Ice cream and cake were served.

The second Sunday in August will be home-coming at our church. Everybody is invited to come. Especially we want all members and ex-pastors to be with us at this time and enjoy the day with us. Dinner on the grounds. Come and bring your basket well filled. Our revival will begin at this time also.

MRS. J. O. EVERHART.

Flat Rock Charge.—The third quarterly conference was held at Palestine church on Saturday, July 13, at 2 p. m. Four of the churches were represented in the attendance, Bethany not being represented. The reports of pastor and officials were very encouraging. The finances were far behind, as is the case at this time of the year on rural charges. We hope to bring up the finances in good shape by the fourth quarterly conference. The reports of the election of delegates were made and tabulated. The result was the election of Bro. T. F. Humphreys, of Bethany church, as delegate to the Annual Conference. The fourth quarterly conference will be held with Bethany church.

The revival meeting which was held at Bethany church last week closed on Friday night. We did not accomplish as much as we desired, but we believe much good was done. Rev. W. L. Harkey, pastor of Weaverville charge, did some of the best preaching we have heard in recent years. There were a number of reclamations and we trust to receive a number of members later.

We began the revival meeting at Palestine church last Sunday morning. Rev. W. L. Harkey remained with the pastor for the Palestine meeting, and preached at the morning and afternoon services Sunday. We are having our services at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and at 8 o'clock each night.

We are glad to report that Mrs. J. T. Sharron, a member of Palestine church, who spent two weeks in St. Leo's Hospital, Greensboro, has recovered sufficiently to return to her home near Summerfield. She had an operation for appendicitis and is recovering nicely.

Bros. J. W. Lawrence and Harvey Pegram, of Flat Rock church, have returned to their homes from St. Leo's Hospital, Greensboro, and are recovering. C. B. WAY, Pastor.

First Lexington, Mt. Carmel.—Rev. Mr Isley filled his appointment Sunday afternoon. He delivered an excellent message.

The Ladies' Auxiliary met immediately after preaching service. Mrs. Hattie Isley, our president, read the Scripture lesson, after which Mrs. Williard Walser led in prayer. The treasurer reported $56 had been raised in the past month. The fried chicken dinner served in Lexington July 13 was very successful. At this time the quilt recently made was sold to the highest bidder, which was Mr. Clifton Rowe.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Smith announce the birth of a daughter on July 19.

The annual home-coming at Mt. Carmel will be the first Sunday in August. All former pastors and members are invited to return. The program for the day has already been announced through the Herald and I feel it unnecessary to repeat it. The revival will begin that evening at 7:45 with Rev. C. L. Grant as the visiting minister. The vote for the delegate to Annual Conference will be held at Mt. Carmel on Sunday at both morning and afternoon services.

The stewards are asking that the members come prepared on the above date to tithe for the previous week. Our pastor's salary is behind and they are anxious for it to be caught up, although the finances are nearer up-to-date than in previous years.

ZULA FRITTS, Reporter.

Baltimore Church, West Forsyth Charge.—Our revival services began the second Sunday in July and closed the following Friday night. Our pastor, Rev. G. B. Ferree, preached in the morning and afternoon on Sunday. Rev. F. R. Love arrived Sunday evening to help the pastor throughout the week. Brother Love brought us such wonderful sermons it was a joy and pleasure to listen to him. His sermons were so deep and sincere we could not help but feel God's power in our midst. There were twelve confessions and seven united with the church. We feel that the church was greatly revived and hope to see results felt in our church and community. May God's richest blessings rest upon Brother Love and family, and may he ever be a mouthpiece for Jesus in his earnest and sincere way.

We also appreciate our pastor's visits and his untiring efforts in trying to bring the lost to Christ. We also were so glad to have his family with us in the evenings.

The quarterly conference met at Tabernacle on last Saturday. About 12 members went from this church.

At our last Auxiliary meeting we opened the patches on our apron. In a month's time we had sewn $18.55 under patches on the blue apron and $17.35 on the white apron, making a total of $35.90. Our next meeting will be held with Mrs. Leona Pilcher, who has been a patient at Hugh Chatham hospital at Elkin and has been home only about two weeks. We are so very glad that she is better.

The work on our Sunday school rooms is at a standstill and will be until later on in the fall. The timber is drying, also the men are busy at their crops.

MRS. A. A. DOUB, Reporter.

First Church, Burlington.—Our Sunday school attendance was 217 last Sunday. Our attendance has been somewhat off during the past month, partly due to the infantile paralysis epidemic.

Rev. George W. Holmes preached for us at the evening service. He brought us a helpful and inspiring message. We are always glad to have Rev. Mr. Holmes with us.

Our singing class, under the direction of Professor Holmes, is progressing well. The class is now learning an anthem.

During the Sunday school hour the Samaritan Girls, under the direction of Miss Lulu Riddle, rendered two special numbers. We enjoyed the singing, and we hope they will come back soon.

Our revival begins in September.

MABEL THORNBURG, Reporter.

Draper Church.—Since there has been no report from this church in some time I will try to let the Herald readers know that we are still active and doing business for the Master at the same place.

Our congregations haven't been so large for the past month, due largely to the scare of infantile paralysis and in part to the extremely hot weather, but for the past two Sundays there has been a decided increase in attendance.

Our home-coming service the fifth Sunday was a success. A large audience was present and a fine spirit prevailed. Two of the former pastors were present, Revs. R. L. Vickery and D. A. Morgan. The writer preached at the morning service and dinner was spread on the grounds. In the afternoon a testimonial meeting was held and a fine spirit prevailed. Some 30 or 40 testimonies were given and the spirit of the Lord was in evidence. Following this service Rev. R. L. Vickery delivered an inspiring sermon.

The night service was well attended. The other churches of the town called off their services to hear Dr. Andrews, president of the conference. To our regret Dr. Andrews was taken sick and was unable to come, but sent Rev. J. L. Trollinger to substitute for him. Bro. Trollinger brought us a good message. Everybody enjoyed it and spoke highly of it. It was a good day for us. One member was received during the morning service.

This brings a total of 17 new members during the conference year.

Our fall revival will begin with the fourth Sunday in August with Rev. Earl Cook as preacher. Everybody is invited to come and pray for the success of the meeting.

The children from the Odd Fellows' Home will give a program at the school auditorium Saturday night, July 27, and will be with us in our service Sunday morning. We are expecting a large crowd.

With every good wish for the work of the church at large. L. S. HELMS, Pastor.

Kannapolis.—During the past month we have undergone a church attendance depression due to the epidemic that has been going around. The attendance has fallen off until it hardly seems like home any more. It does not seem possible that just the children could make such a difference, but the children staying at home of course require someone to stay with them and therefore not many of the mothers have been attending. But we hope to have the children with us again soon. Let us pray that the plague might be taken from us.

On the first Sunday, July 7, our pastor was away at a Christian Endeavor conference and "Uncle Bob" Sides preached for us and to us. His subject was "Our Love for the Church." The theme that seemed to run through his sermon was, "Do we express our love?" He pointed out many ways in which we express our love for things of the world, and many ways wherein we could but do not express our love for the church.

It was stated in the last report that we expected to start our Bible school sometime in August, but if children's attendance at church is still prohibited it will no doubt be postponed. ARTHUR H. TUTTEROW.

◆

Concord.—The services of our church are holding up well considering the quarantine for infantile paralysis. All children under 15 years are not allowed to attend the church services. We had the largest number of people present yesterday for Sunday school and praching service that we have had since the quarantine became effective. The various organizations of the church are carrying on their work in a splendid way, especially for this season of the year. The choir leader, Mrs. C. D. Sides, has done unusually well in her efforts to train the choir, and as a result we are having good singing at our church services.

Mr. B. F. Waddell, the chairman of our board of stewards, is working hard to raise our street assessment which is due August 1. He reports it all pledged except $55, and this balance will be taken care of and the full amount paid.

Our third quarterly conference will be held on August 5. We are expecting good reports from the church in general.

Mrs. Teeter, one of our members who has been confined to her room for nine months with a broken hip, is able to be up in a wheel chair. Mrs. Bost and Mrs. Williams, who have been invalids for several years, are about the same. Mrs. Thomas, the mother of Mrs. T. F. Newton, who fell several months ago, is still unable to be up. Mrs. Atwell, the oldest member of our church, is very cheerful, although she is unable to attend church. Each of these has a mystery daughter who brings cheer to them by remembering them with gifts quite often. The mystery daughters are members of the Business Girls' Missionary Circle.

D. I. GARNER, Pastor.

◆

Hope Church, Siler City Charge.—The usual home-coming and revival is drawing near. August 11 is home-coming day for our church and the revival will be in progress the week following. Our pastor, Rev. J. A. Burgess, will be assisted by Rev. J. W. Braxton and we are hoping and praying for much work to be done in saving souls. Rev. Mr. Burgess will preach at the morning service. The Lord's Supper will be observed at this service. At noon dinner will be served on the church grounds. In the afternoon short memorial talks will be delivered by Mr. I. H. Dunlap and Mr. R. Lonnie Edwards for members we have lost in the past year. Rev. Mr. Braxton will also deliver a message. There will be special music throughout the day by choirs and quartets. We especially invite all old members and friends and former pastors to these services.

◆

Piney Grove, Siler City Charge.—Rev. J. A. Burgess filled his regular appointment Sunday afternoon and brought us a splendid sermon as he always does. We look forward to his coming each time as we know he has inspiring messages for us.

Our revival will begin next Sunday, July 28. Bro. W. F. Ashburn is to be the pulpit help. We will have two services Sunday. Communion service will be held in the morning. There will be a picnic dinner. We are expecting Bro. Ashburn Sunday. He is not a stranger to many of us and we know he will preach some helpful sermons.

Our Sunday school is doing nicely. The attendance is holding up very well.

FANNIE LOUISE POE, Reporter.

◆

Shady Grove, Connelly Springs Charge.—We are glad to report that we had a real revival at Shady Grove church last week with Rev. J. L. Love, the pastor, in charge. We are thankful for the revival and for the new converts. Also we are thankful for our pastor and his wife. This week Mr. Love is in a meeting at Burke's Chapel and we are praying for a good revival there. We truly hope our pastor may be with us for many years to come. DOVIE BRASWELL, Reporter.

◆

Alamance Charge.—Church work on Alamance charge seems to be moving on in a normal way with gratifying congregations present for most of the morning worship services. Children's services have been held at Sapling Ridge and Rock Creek. Center and Bethel will hold this service sometime later.

The annual revival began at Sapling Ridge on the second Sunday in this month and closed the following Friday afternoon. It was a splendid meeting, resulting in eight accessions to the church, two young ladies, Mrs. Alfred and Leroy Self, coming from the Baptist church. A number were stirred to the extent that they praised the Lord aloud. Pastor and people are grateful to Brother C. E. Ridge, the engaged help, for his soul-stirring gospel sermons.

Our third quarterly conference will be held at Rock Creek next Saturday afternoon, July 27, at 2 o'clock. Rev. G. W. Holmes will address the conference on "Soul-Saving." All officials are earnestly requested to be present.

Rev. A. O. Lindley has our thanks for preaching at Center on the second Sunday in this month, the pastor being at Sapling Ridge in the revival.

The following have our thanks for donations: Mrs. Micajah Braxton, Mrs. Reuben Stone, Mr. J. W. Whitehead, Mrs. Walter Campbell and Mr. and Mrs. Wade Perry.

Alamance charge had six representatives at the High Point Leadership Training School.

H. L. ISLEY.

Denton Charge.—We were delighted to have Dr. and Mrs. P. E. Lindley and John Lindley to worship with us last Sunday morning at Denton church. Dr. Lindley brought us a very interesting, inspiring and helpful message at the 11 o'clock worship. It is always a great pleasure to have Dr. and Mrs. Lindley in our home and in our church. We hope they may come again soon.

Our women's organizations at Denton church are very active. Recently the Young Women's Auxiliary paid Herald subsidy and the Ladies' Aid Society has just placed new curtains for the choir and kneeling pads. They are very pretty and add much to the beauty of our church.

On last Monday evening, July 15, we were very gladly surprised when a large number of the members of the Denton church came to the parsonage in a group. For some time we visited together, and then as the group started to leave, instead of getting in their cars and driving away they came back to the house with numerous packages which contained nice, substantial and useful gifts. We gathered in the dining room and the packages were placed on the table and round about. After prayer by the pastor our guests departed for their homes, leaving us well supplied and our hearts filled with gratitude and praise for the friendship and kindness of such good people and for the opportunity of laboring among so thoughtful a people. Since all packages did not have names we will not mention any, but we are indeed truly thankful to all for the kind remembrances and useful gifts given. There was a total of 116 gifts.

Our revival meeting at Denton is to begin the first Sunday in August. Dr. George R. Brown will be the pulpit help and we are looking forward to hearing the messages of truth he will bring to us. May we be much in prayer for the meeting.

Our work seems to be moving along very nicely. There is a difference in the attendance at Sunday school and church of the smaller boys and girls due to the epidemic of infantile paralysis. The three Christian Endeavor societies are progressing nicely. On last Tuesday evening the Senior Society went on a picnic to Ritchie's lake and had a very pleasant evening.

Friends of Canaan church will be glad to know that the church is being painted on the outside by the men of the church and at an early date the Women's Auxiliary expects to begin the work of painting the inside. The Canaan Auxiliary is certainly doing a splendid work. Recently they paid the Herald subisdy for that church and now are working to get money to paint the inside.

The Children's Day program which was given at Canaan a few Sundays past was very good and we appreciate the work of the children and those who trained them. The second Sunday in July there were 102 present for Sunday school and morning worship. We are glad for the interest that is being manifested.

We have received many kindnesses from the people of this charge since coming here, and these with the kind words and words of encouragement give us new courage and greater determination to go forward and press for greater achievements in His work.

J. T. BOWMAN.

Danville, Va.—Just a few lines to say the "Homey Church on the Hill" is still going good. While we are not making any great gain, I think I can safely say we are making progress.

We have a very interesting Sunday school, a Primary class has been added, and I think it is doing very well.

Our worship services are well attended and it has been said by other churches that we have the best attendance at our Wednesday evening prayer service in our city.

We have a committee appointed to select a suitable lot to build, also a committee to study plans to raise money for building. The committee has a plan to offer the church at the next business meeting.

Our Missionary Society is doing well. With the assistance of Mrs. Ladd they bought a communion service for the church.

Our pastor, Rev. C. P. Morris, seems to be doing his best in every way. His preaching is very helpful. He also looks after the sick and needy, and is very persistent that we get ready to build a church.

He has organized a Young People's Christian Endeavor and is giving it his very best efforts, and last but not least, he urges us to take our church paper. I have been reading it and find it very interesting and hope before long all our people can see their way clear to subscribe for it.

With all good wishes for all the churches.

MISS LEA GOLSON, Reporter.

Graham.—Our pastor has returned after spending two weeks in leadership training school work in South Carolina and Georgia, and brought us a splendid message Sunday morning on "Reducing Religiously."

We want to express our appreciation to Junius Neese for the great service rendered his church by doing the preaching in the pastor's absence.

Last Sunday evening Charlie Coble, from Haw River M. P. church, preached for us. We hope to have him with us often. Graham and Haw River churches are very fortunate in having their splendid young preachers to help carry on their work.

The children will be allowed to return to Sunday school next Sunday morning. We hope all parents will co-operate with the teachers in getting the children back to their classes.

Plans are being made for our evangelistic services. The date has not yet been set.

Our church was saddened recently by the passing of a member, Mrs. Martishia Pugh Sykes. Mrs. Sykes had been an invalid for a number of years. The funeral was conducted at the home by our pastor Thursday afternoon, July 18. We extend our sympathy to her sorrowing loved ones.

We also extend our sympathy to Charles and Claud Reavis, who recently lost their mother, Mrs. T. J. Reavis.

The Friendly Helpers Class will hold their regular monthly meeting Friday evening, July 26, with their teacher, Mrs. Foust Thompson.

Rev. Mr. Auman is assisting Rev. H. L. Powell in a meeting at Pleasant Grove church this week. REPORTER.

Orange Charge.—The third quarterly conference will be held at Efland Saturday before the first Sunday in August at 2 p. m.

Dr. Geo. R. Brown preached for us in the revival services at Efland last week. Rain, infantile paralysis excitement, and other things kept a number of the people from attending the services. Those who attended were encouraged and strengthened by the clear and convincing preaching of the gospel by Dr. Brown. B. M. WILLIAMS.

* * *

Macedonia, Fallston Charge. — Everyone seems interested in Sunday school, and the attendance is very good. A great deal of interest was shown in the Bible reading contest held last quarter. Class No. 4 read the most chapters, and each member of the class was given a prize by Mr. Huss.

There was an ice cream supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Boyles Saturday night, July 13. It was sponsored by members of the church, and a profit of about $13 was made. This is to be used for improvements in the church.

The Ladies' Auxiliary met Saturday afternoon, July 20, with Mrs. Kemp Beam. Mrs. H. F. Fogleman was program leader, and several interesting papers were read by members of the Auxiliary. Everyone seemed to enjoy the meeting. The Auxiliary is to meet August 17 at the church. We are hoping to see most of the members present.

RUTH HOYLE, Reporter.

* * *

Bessemer City, Lincolnton Charge.—Rev. J. D. Anderson, who has been away from his pulpit for two weeks, returned Sunday evening and delivered a splendid message.

We had a visiting pastor on the Sunday Rev. Mr. Anderson was absent. He was Rev. Mr. Farrell. He also delivered a fine message.

Our Sunday school is doing a fine work. We have an attendance of 125 or 130 each Sunday morning.

The Ladies' Auxiliary met on Saturday night, June 20, at the home of Mrs. Seates. They had a splendid meeting. After the business was transacted Mrs. Seates served tempting refreshments.

The C. E. Society meets each Sunday at 6:15. They have always a splendid program. We all take part and enjoy it to the fullest extent.

Our president, Mr. A. L. Lutz, and our vice-president, Mr. W. A. Harmon, have been absent for the past few weeks, but we always have some good Christian person to take charge. For the past while Mr. Clarence Brackett has been taking charge. Our society has grown in number and faith also.

We saw in the church paper last week where they had our report topic Lincolnton charge. We know our charge is Lincolnton, but we wish as a band of Christian workers at Bessemer City that the reporter of the M. P. Herald would please give Bessemer City the credit for it, as there are three churches on the Lincolnton charge, and there are many who did not know which church the report came from. ELIZABETH LUTZ.

* * *

Bellemont, Mt. Hermon Charge.—The attendance at our church has been somewhat off during the summer months, partly because of the contagious disease which is so prevalent among smaller children. The Children's Day program has been postponed indefinitely.

Our pastor attended the International Christian Endeavor convention in Philadelphia. He came back more enthusiastic than ever about the work of the young people in the church. On the second Sunday night he based his message on the theme of the Christian Endeavor convention, "We Choose Christ." We were delighted to have the visitors from the other churches on the charge at this service, especially the large delegation from Mt. Hermon church.

The revival will begin at our church the fourth Sunday in August with Rev. J. W. Braxton, of Mt. Pleasant charge, as the pulpit help. MARGARET PICKETT, Reporter.

* * *

Chapel Hill, Davidson Charge.—Rev. E. A. Bingham preached one of his best sermons for us last Sunday. All of his sermons are good but this one seemed to be the best yet.

Our Sunday school is doing fairly well. With the revival season coming on we are afraid the attendance will not be as good as it has been.

We trust there may be great good accomplished in our revival meeting and that many souls may be saved. We trust also that the Christian people of our community may get on a higher plane of Christian living. There are so many things to turn us away from Christ that we must be on our guard. Through our church paper we never hear much said about getting souls saved. Christ died that sinners might be saved.

Our camp meeting will begin the third Sunday in September. We ask all Christian people to join us in prayer that we may have a great meeting.

LIZZIE CRANFORD, Reporter.

Liberty Hill, Anderson Charge.—Our pastor, Rev. Robert Short, is still bringing us most interesting and inspiring sermons. We are glad Mrs. Short and children can accompany him usually.

Our Sunday school is doing fine, although our goal is still higher. We had a number of visitors Sunday. We are always very glad to have Mr. and Mrs. Herman Compton back with us.

Last Sunday night was Junior Night in Christian Endeavor. Little Ruby Davis was the appointed leader and what a splendid service these youngsters can carry out. Liberty Hill will one day certainly have a wonderful group of working boys and girls if these children keep up their good work.

The Children's Day program was presented Sunday night, July 14, under the sponsorship of Mrs. N. G. McClimon and Mrs. A. A. Foster. An offering was taken to be sent on missions.

Some familiar faces have been missed from our midst recently. Among them were Mr. and Mrs. Cecil McClimon. We hope they will be back with us soon. We also greatly missed Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Poole and family Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Poole are our oldest and two of our faithfulest members. So we hope nothing serious prevented their attendance and they will soon be back with us.

Mrs. W. R. Harrison still is confined to her bed, following an operation of having her tonsils removed. We pray for her a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Gaston are the parents of a little son born July 12. Mrs. Gaston was before her marriage Miss Kate Compton.

Plans are being made for cleaning the church grounds August 7.

Our revival meeting starts the second Sunday in August. Pray for us that we may have a real old time revival.

REPORTER.

Midland Charge.—Our people of Midland charge are looking forward to the revival meeting which begins at Love's Grove the second Sunday in August. Rev. H. W. Bell, of Rockingham, will do the preaching. Mill Grove meeting will begin the third Sunday in August. Rev. J. R. Short, of Easley, S. C., will do the preaching. Pine Bluff's meeting will begin the fourth Sunday in August. Rev. W. M. Loy, of Saxapahaw, N. C., will do the preaching. We are praying and looking forward to good meetings at all these churches.

Bro. L. W. McCoy, our very efficient reporter of Mill Grove church, is all smiles this week. It's a fine boy. We have not learned his name yet, though he is No. 4 of a fine group of boys. May the Lord's blessings be upon him.

The Sunday school convention of No. 10 township of Cabarrus county met last Sunday with Bethel M. E. church, South. This township has six Sunday schools, two of which are M. P.'s Mill Grove and Pine Bluff.

The township Sunday school convention of Stanly county will meet next Sunday with Love's Grove.

There will be preaching next Sunday at Mill Grove at 11 a. m., and in the afternoon we will be at the convention at Love's Grove.

Asheville.—We were all very glad to have the Minnises home again. They all look fine and report a happy visit.

Our Sunday school attendance is still not up to par, but better than the past Sunday. Miss Cunningham is still on the sick list. We all hope she will soon be O. K. again. Plans are being made for a general Sunday school picnic to be held Saturday, August 3. The following are on the committee for arrangements: Mr. Minnis, Dr. Robey Wilson, Mr. J. R. Moore, Mr. H. L. Hanner, Miss Louise Hanner, Miss Nancy Clouse and Mrs. C. B. Baker It is hoped all our members will be able to attend and have a good time.

The Woman's Auxiliary is to meet Thursday, 3:30 p. m., with Mrs. Minnis at the parsonage. All members are earnestly urged to be present. Miss Frances S. Cunningham is to review the study book.

The Senior Christian Endeavor are sponsoring a weiner roast on Wednesday evening as a farewell party for Miss Margaret Fawcett, who is to leave on Thursday morning for a few days' visit in Greensboro and High Point before returning to her home in Cheyney, Pa. It has been a great pleasure to have Miss Fawcett with us. We miss all the Fawcett family so very much.

The music department is planning a good music program to be given in the very near future. Keep this in mind, folks, and when it is announced, turn out 100 per cent to enjoy the service. I believe we should worship occasionally with a song service. Everyone seems to enjoy a service of songs, so let's have more such.

M. L. B.

Shiloh, Shiloh Charge—The work is still continuing in all fields of our church activities, but our Sunday school attendance seems to be somewhat decreased, due to the fear of the spread of infantile paralysis, although no cases have been reported in our section.

On July 7 our pastor brought us a message on "The Lost Sheep," using as texts Isaiah 53:6 and Luke 15:6. Last Sunday he preached from John 16:7, his subject being "Why Jesus Went Away." The communion service followed the brief but helpful sermon.

It is nearing revival time with us. Weekly prayer services are being conducted at the church in special preparation for our revival which will begin the third Sunday in August. Mr. Ridge announced Sunday that Rev. Fred W. Paschall, pastor of First church, Burlington, will be the pulpit help. We ask the Christians to pray for great power to be made manifest through God's workers.

The regular monthly prayer service will be held next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock and will be in charge of the Sunshine Band (Young Girls) Sunday school class.

The third quarterly conference of Shiloh charge will be held Saturday afternoon, July 27, at 2 o'clock at Greer's Chapel church. All members are urged to be present.

MABEL BERRIER, Reporter.

"How do we establish a human friendship? By being with our friend. Honestly, how much time each day do we spend with God? Could it be said that five minutes in the 24 hours represents the time most of us spend in company, speaking to, listening to God? That seems to figure one-half of one per cent —a percentage far too meager for God-intoxication. If one wants truly to know God, let him give time to God. Could Steinmetz master electricity or Paderewski music in five minutes a day? We have said much about seeking God, but it is God that is seeking us. He asks not so much for a quest as for our surrender. We do not pursue, but we may capitulate. The sheep do not look for the shepherd, yet they will never find him if they will not heed his call. Something in the life that we can't give up holds out part of our being that belongs to God."—Dr. Norman V. Peale, New York (at International Christian Endeavor Convention, Philadelphia).

15,000 YOUTHS LAUNCH NEW PROGRAM

"We Choose Christ" Will Be Two-Year Theme of International Christian Endeavor

In more than a dozen great mass meetings and more than 250 conference sessions, Christian Endeavorers in international convention at Philadelphia, Pa., July 2 to 7, launched a new two-year program. "We Choose Christ" is the slogan and challenge for the forward movement, selected not alone for its national significance but because the phrase repeats the recent courageous resolution of German Christian Endeavorers.

Campaigns in evangelism, social reconstruction, alcohol education, good literature, and world peace are included in the new emphases, as outlined by Dr. Daniel A. Poling, president of the World's Christian Endeavor Union and the International Society of Christian Endeavor, and adopted with enthusiasm by the 15,000 youth delegates at the Philadelphia meetings.

"We Choose Christ" supplements and extends for young people's Christian Endeavor societies and kindred leadership-training groups the united youth theme of "Christian Youth Building a New World." Throughout the conference sessions or school of the convention, conducted under the chairmanship of Dr. Harry Thomas Stock, the themes were used interchangeably. In number of sessions and attendance these conferences set new records for even an International Christian Endeavor youth congress. All available rooms and smaller halls in the spacious auditorium building were used, and the convention overflowed into two buildings of the nearby University of Pennsylvania. Intermediates went to college—for their conferences and forums were held in halls on the campus!

Leading speakers included Dr. Robert E. Speer, Dr. Lynn Harold Hough, Dr. Norman E. Richardson, Dr. Oscar W. Blackwelder, Dr. Norman V. Peale (who conducted the well-attended daily Quiet Hour meetings), Dr. William Hiram Foulkes (in charge of the union communion service, a high point in the devotional emphases of the convention), Miss Margaret Slattery, Dr. Samuel W. Hughes of London, Dr. Edwin T. Dahlberg, Dr. Lester H. Clee, Dr. Louis H. Evans, and Rev. Vere W. Abbey, who returns to India this fall as general secretary of the Christian Endeavor Union of India and Burma. A number of negro speakers and conference chairmen participated and the negro registration was particularly heavy. Of this race, Martin L. Harvey, president of the Christian Youth Council of North America, was one of a score of young people who summarized the conference sessions in a main session of the convention.

Philadelphia churches joined enthusiastically in the biennial Christian Endeavor parade, which was credited by newspaper reporters with 50,000 marchers, 40 bands, and several hundred floats, and unsurpassed save by two processions in Philadelphia in this century. A single church, Messiah Lutheran, had nearly 2,000 marchers in line, as a witness to the Christian principles for which the convention stood and a mark of friendship and respect to the visiting Endeavorers.

Into its new campaign Christian Endeavor carries a World Peace Fellowship, of which 28-year-old Ernest R. Bryan, educator, traveler and radio speaker, who was a county Christian Endeavor Union president at 15, will be superintendent. By its enrollment, its educational literature, and its facilities for mobilizing youth for specific goals in world peace, the fellowship appears to have unusual promise as a means for common action, without committing youth for or against a personal position of complete pacifism. The enrollment becomes worldwide through the means of the World's Christian Endeavor Convention, meeting in Budapest in August, and the eight months' around the world tour of President Poling, in which he will meet and speak to Endeavorers of 34 countries.

Other changes in leadership include the filling of the post of extension secretary of the International Society through the appointment of Robert S. Nance, who has been field secretary of the Kansas Union, with growing responsibilities in the southern states and other areas. Dr. Poling was re-elected president, and the following executive officers were chosen: Honorary vice-president, Dr. Howard B. Grose (editor emeritus of "Missions" and one of the original trustees of the movement); vice-presidents, Dr. William Hiram Foulkes, Harry N. Holmes, Dr. A. E. Cory; associate secretary, Dr. Stanley B. Vandersall; financial secretary and treasurer, Carroll M. Wright. Two state field secretaries will be added to the executive committee, on nomination by their own associates, under a new by-law. A general council is created to aid in fixing policies and united activities, in which members will be the presidents and field secretaries of state unions, denominational young people's national leaders, and representative trustees of the International Society. It is noticed that the state presidents in general tend to average younger in each succeeding biennial convention. The median age at Philadelphia of all delegates probably stood at 19.

Guests of the convention, to the delight of the delegates, included Mrs. Francis E. Clark, who with the late Dr. Clark founded the first Christian Endeavor society, and William Shaw, former pioneering general secretary of the movement, as well as Dr. Grose. All gave stirring messages to the delegates. The music was in charge of Homer Rodeheaver and Professor Raymond L. Lyons directed a splendid chorus of several hundred. The Junior convention, directed by Miss Mildred Haggard and Miss Rebecca Hughes, was particularly notable, for Philadelphia area is rich in Junior membership as in all details of Christian Endeavor work.

The convention has been hailed by Philadelphia church leaders in general as aiding the progress of Christian work throughout that area as well as giving definite direction and practical objectives to Christian social aims, to which the Quaker City is increasingly sensitive. The program here launched bids fair to be historic, particularly when to the impetus of the American convention is added that of Budapest and the various European and Asiatic meetings with similar emphases.

THE MAKING OF A MAN

By Charles R. Stone, Siler City, N. C.

Grace Roberts, 16, blonde, and very vivacious and good looking, was lying in the big orange hammock which stretched across the porch of her home, reading a book, and she was so absorbed in her reading that she did not hear the boy who was approaching the house until he stepped upon the porch and spoke.

"Hello, Gracie," he said, as he mockingly lifted his hat. "You looked so so charming there in the hammock that I decided reading must be a pleasure. At least, if I could look so good while reading, I think I'd read a good deal, too. But I couldn't ever seem to get much out of the stuff."

"Why, William Stevens," she said, rather involuntarily. "Oh—won't you sit down?"

The seemingly amiable conversation that William Stevens immediately began did not long continue. And that was why Grace was rather uncomfortable. She did not like to be near him nor to listen to him. No self respecting girl could endure such a boy as William, for he had too much familiarity.

The unwelcome visitor talked more. Grace's face darkened in hue a little; and if William had been wise, he would have recognized and heeded the look of detestation in her narrowed eyes. But William Stevens emitted even more disgusting language from his lips. At last, unable to endure his insulting speech any longer, she coldly arose, lifted her chin a little, and went into the house.

Suddenly, the pile of newspapers which had been lying on the floor, half hidden from William's view behind the porch swing, moved ominously, and from them emerged the tall, straight limbed boy who was Grace's brother, Fred Roberts. He was profoundly indignant and burning with anger. His brown eyes flashed so darkly that they became almost black.

"Will Stevens! I'd like to smash your ugly face. And that's what I'm going to do. Won't you ever stop being a fool and a weakling!"

"Weakling! Are you talking to me?" stormed the object of Fred's vehement outburst.

"You bet I'm talking to you. Anyone who has the nerve to talk to a respectable girl with such dirty smut as you spread around ought to be beaten half to death."

"You're trying to start something, eh? I'll show you how to talk to me. Maybe I haven't forgot how to lick a sissy like you."

"You're the sissy! You think you're strong; you're weak. You've had plenty of practice bullying boys smaller than you. Furthermore, Stevens, I've heard you talk to other girls like this before. If you had even a little bit of manhood about you, you wouldn't do such disgusting things. Now, I'm going to knock you off your crooked legs."

Fred was 16. His muscles had been strengthened and trained by good exercise and healthful work, and his body was still unharmed by such poisons as tobacco, which many boys his age, including William, used; therefore he had no difficulty in overcoming Stevens. Throwing a good strong punch to William's stomach, he threw the boy heavily, and pitched him off the lawn.

"Will Stevens," he said, "if I ever find you on this lot again before you learn how to be a gentleman (and I doubt that that is possible for you), I'll beat you worse than this. And if I ever find you behaving in a cowardly, ungentlemanly way to any other girl, I'll lick you then, too. Now, scram! I hope you will learn to be sensible."

Late the next afternoon, when Fred and his twin, Grace, were again sitting on their porch, Grace mentioned the affair of the previous afternoon for the first time.

"I enjoyed seeing you whip him, Fred, for he thoroughly deserved it. But I thought you were opposed to fighting."

"Well, I'm not ever going to start a fight with anyone," replied Fred, "but if I ever have occasion to punish any fellow who acts like Stevens did yesterday afternoon, I shall certainly do so. Really, though, I am sorry for Will. His mind is so evil he imagines every decent girl to be as wicked as himself. I wish now that I had beaten him worse than I did."

"Oh! Here he comes now."

William, however, had no intention of starting a quarrel during this visit.

"Fred," he said slowly, "I have come over to apologize to your sister, if you will let me. I'm awfully sorry for the way I acted yesterday. You have shown me what a terrible sap I was. You're a real man, and you've shown me that I am not one. But I'm going to try to be one from now on. It was beastly of me to do like I did yestesday.

"If I had a sister, Fred, I'd like her to be just like yours, if I may say so. And I'd do as you did if any dirty fellow was rude to her."

William lived up to his pledge.

"All Christians throughout the world are on trial. They are on trial on the basis of the mastery they reflect, a mastery to be caught only from the one Master who revealed to all men everywhere the Father. Under the authority of the Redeemer there can be nothing less than brotherhood."—Dr. Samuel W. HE'LL GET ALONG

Small Bobby had been to a birthday party, and, knowing his weakness, his mother looked him straight in the eye and said, "I hope you didn't ask for a second piece of cake?"

"No," replied Bobby. "I only asked Mrs. Smith for the recipe so you could make some like it and she gave me two more pieces just of her own accord."—Toronto Globe.

REIDSVILLE	91
MIDWAY	90
WINSTON-SALEM FIRST	86

Now that Tabernacle takes its permanent place in capitals, the question comes, Who shall take its place in this column? What a scramble there was, not for first place but for third place. Reidsville takes second by virtue of Tabernacle getting out of the way and Midway moves to second because Reidsville got out of her way, but the third place was the one sought. And there were lots of charges scrambling for it. Among these were Gibsonville, Fountain Place, Siler City, but WINSTON-SALEM FIRST came up with the proper credentials and so we welcome her to a place of honor in this column.

Having determined who was to be in the column of honor, let us look at the receipts for this week. As on several other occasions Rev. J. R. Anderson, of the Lincolnton-Bessemer City charge, stands at the head of the list. That selling papers every week is sending that charge right on up. The next two in order are daughters of Randolph County, Mrs. F. J. Cox, of State Street, Lexington, and Mrs. B. W. Little, of Charlotte. These Randolph citizens are great on working for the church paper.

Next in line is Rev. C. B. Way, the pastor of Flat Rock charge, whose work as reporter in the First church, Burlington, was outstanding when the editor was pastor there. Brother Way's good manuscripts are always welcome at this office. If Davidson's contribution had all been sent in by one person this charge would be next in line, but because theirs is divided into two parts, Asheboro gets ahead of them in the receipts column. But even so, very few charges, if any, have made a greater gain over last year than Davidson has. They also sell papers by the week. After this we have a goodly number who send in one or a fraction of one subscription.

Our receipts this week amount to $42.19, all on subscriptions.

Since there will be no paper next week and the editor will be away on vacation, just hold your money until week after next.

"How can we climb out of the mess into which my generation has plunged us? Bring to your problems open minds, unselfish hearts, and God-controlled wills. Love your fellowmen sincerely. The demand of the hour is for men and women whose word is as good as a bond—in religion or in economic life or in public affairs. Too many of us want fruits that we do not pick, harvests that we have not earned."—Hon. Lester H. Clee, D. METHODIST PROTESTANT CHILDREN'S HOME
1935
HIGH POINT, N.C.

We are presenting on the first page this week a picture of the children in our Children's Home at High Point. The reason for presenting this at this time is that the Home will celebrate its twenty-fifth birthday on August 22. At first we were in doubt whether to present a picture of the buildings of our Children's Home or to present the picture of the children, since we did not have a cut that would present both. But after some deliberation we reached the conclusion that children are more important than buildings and that there is nothing that makes the appeal to the human heart that a child does. When Jesus was here on the earth the disciples showed Him the buildings of the temple and He said that not one stone should be left upon another, but when the people brought young children to Him He took them up in His arms and blessed them.

And so we want to think about little children—our little children. For a quarter of a century our church in this state has been helping little children through our Children's Home. And it has been a blessed experience, both to the children and the church. It has been possible through this home to furnish shelter and food and clothing for a goodly number of children who might have suffered had it not been for our home. These children have come from various sections of our state and from a variety of homes. In some cases both parents have passed on and the children have been left without any strong arm to defend them except the strong arm of kind-hearted people. In other cases one of the parents has passed away, leaving the other one unable to provide for the family. But in every case there has been a real need and the church, to the best of its ability, has met the challenge. It is true that if we had had more money we could have helped more children. Those who have been helped are only a small fraction of the large number that needed assistance. But we have helped enough to convince us that it has been a paying investment. It has paid in that it has helped a great many children to have some of the comforts of life which all children so richly deserve, and the venture has amply justified itself in the characters that have been produced. In most of the cases the children have shown their appreciation and have made good. Some of them today are a blessing to the state and to our church. But whether the children have turned out in every case just as we would like for them to do, it has been a labor of love for the church to help them. We doubt whether there has been any department of our missionary work that has appealed to as large a percentage of our people as has the Children's Home. Some of our strongest laymen have shown a love for the institution that has been beautiful to behold. They have helped the Home and the Home has helped them, and so it has been a double blessing.

We trust that when the twenty-fifth birthday comes around on August 22nd that we people of the church may lay an offering on the altar of the Home that will clear the Home of the burden of debt that has been hanging over it, so that henceforth this noble institution may go forward ministering to a larger number of children who so much need our help.

Vacationing in Asheboro

Through the courtesy of Miss Esther Ross the editor and his wife were permitted to spend a delightful vacation of eleven days in Asheboro. The Ross home easily lends itself to the idea of a vacation. This house, which was built as the home for Captain Wainman, a retired officer in the British army, was once thought of as a kind of "mansion." With its many rooms and its one hundred and ten feet of front porch, there is ample space for quite a goodly number of people. Nine giant oak trees, each one worth a thousand dollars on a hot day, stand guard around the house lest the sun should shine upon some part of the porch. Since the passing of Brother R. R. Ross three weeks ago, his daughter, Miss Esther, has been the only member of the family and we were especially glad to accept the kind invitation to spend our vacation there in the hope of taking some of the loneliness out of life for her. It was a complete rest for the editor and his wife and we feel much more like making the typewriter hum than we did before the vacation. The time spent in Asheboro was doubly pleasant because of the large number of old friends we were pleased to see and the many good meals of which we partook. Also the generosity of Miss Ross and Mrs. Earl F. Bulla who took us to places of interest helped wonderfully in making this one of the best vacations ever.

CHILDREN'S HOME ANNIVERSARY

Rev. J. C. Broomfield, D. D.

My first visit to the Children's Home at High Point was in connection with the laying of the cornerstone of the main building. Rev. L. E. Davis, D. D., was then president of the General Conference, and together we attended that ceremony.

From that time until the present I have retained an active interest in the Home, and have regarded my membership on the Board of Trustees a distinct honor.

I regret my inability to be present at the anniversary celebration. We have four annual conferences in session that week, and my first obligation is to them.

Anniversaries at our Children's Home are always occasions for joy and congratulations. Because of the approaching anniversary registering the quarter-century mark our congratulations assume deeper significance and our joy is unusually sweet.

I have always regarded the Children's Home as our most worthwhile philanthropy, and have rejoiced in its success. Its justification will continue to be found in the steady harvest the years will bring.

The Editor Did Not Write It

In our last issue we printed a contributed article with the title "Lend Me a Dollar." The original article was signed with an "X" but both the printer and the proofreader overlooked this and it appeared without signature, which may have caused some people to think it an editorial. While we regret the omission, yet we can find justification for both the printer and the proofreader in the fact that the letter "X" is used so frequently to cross out something that it was but natural that this was the interpretation placed upon this signature.

WHAT THE BIBLE SAYS ABOUT SEAS

By Rev. T. M. Johnson, D. D.

Continuing our study of the big outdoors, the reader is invited to observe, with the minds and through the eyes of Bible speakers and writers, the second of the suggested Three Graces—the Seas.

The Red Sea

Of the seas mentioned in the Bible, the Red Sea, in the making of Hebrew history, seems to have been of most importance in the thought of the ancient Hebrews. However, it is mentioned only twice in the New Testament, once by Stephen to give emphasis to the power of God and the leadership of Moses (Acts 7.:36), and once by the writer of Hebrews to give emphasis to faith (Heb. 11:29).

But perhaps no single incident in the earlier history of the Hebrew people made a more profound impression than the miraculous escape from Egypt at the Red Sea. The historian gives quite an interesting account in detail of how the sea, which seemed about to be a barrier to turn the escaping slaves back into bondage, was, under the direction of God and leadership of Moses, used as a means of escape and complete freedom from bondage! Ex. 14. This same writer notes the impression the experience made. "And Israel saw that great work which the Lord did upon the Egyptians: and the people feared the Lord, and believed the Lord, and his servant Moses." Ex. 14:31.

The high class poem written to commemorate the event indicates the importance the Hebrews attached to it. There is space here for only a brief extract. To have even a moderate appreciation of the sublime beauty of this poem-song, one needs must read it in its entirety, in the Revised Version which gives it in poetic form. It is said to be the oldest poem in the world by at least something like a hundred years.

"I will sing unto Jehovah, for he hath triumphed gloriously:
The horse and his rider hath he thrown into the sea.
Jehovah is my strength and song,
And he is become my salvation:
This is my God, and I will praise him;
My father's God, and I will exalt him."

—Ex. 15:1, 2.

The record of the song extends through verse 21. But when we have merely read the song in its entirety in the revised, we still have a very inadequate conception of its power when sung by two great choruses of voices, one male, the other female, answering each other antiphonally, led by such vigorous characters as Moses and Miriam, accompanied by timbrels and the movement of the singers known as the "dance." As well expect to get an adequate conception of the power of an anthem or a great hymn by merely reading it. "Then sang Moses and the children of Israel." Ex. 15:1. "And Miriam . . . took a timbrel in her hand; and all the women went out after her with timbrels and with dances and answered them." Ex. 15:20, 21. Such was the Hebrew conception of what transpired at the Red Sea.

Nor is that all. The power of it, by tradition and through song, was woven into their life down the ages. "And didst see the affliction of our fathers in Egypt, and heardest their cry by the Red Sea . . . And thou didst divide the sea before them," etc. Nehemiah 9:9, 11. "He turned the sea into dry land: they went through the flood on foot: there did we rejoice in him." Psa. 66:6. "He divided the sea, and caused them to pass through; and he made the waters to stand as a heap." Psa. 78:13. Other similar passages could be given did space and the patience of the reader permit.

The Great Sea

The Bible notes the commercial value of the sea. "They that go down to the sea in ships, that do business in great waters." Psa. 107:23. The sea was used to convey cedars and other timbers from the Lebanon mountains for the building of Solomon's temple. "We will cut wood out of Lebanon, as much as thou shalt need: and we will bring it unto thee in flotes by sea to Joppa; and thou shalt carry it up to Jerusalem." 2 Chron. 2:16. That is, the Mediterranean Sea, called the Great Sea during Bible times, forming the western boundary of Canaan as formerly called, and later called Palestine or the Holy Land.

The boats that plied the Great Sea afforded convenience for the Apostles. "So they (Paul and Barnabas), being sent forth by the Holy Ghost, departed unto Selucia; and from thence they sailed to Cyprus." Acts 13:4. That was on Paul's first missionary tour. Later, when Paul and Barnabas had separated, "Barnabas took Mark, and sailed unto Cyprus." Acts 15:39.

Luke, writing Acts, makes vivid the story of Paul's preaching tours by weaving into it accounts of sea voyages, the meeting of friends, and other lesser experiences. "After we had launched, we came with a straight course unto Coos . . . And finding a ship sailing over unto Phenicia, we went aboard and set forth. Now when we had discovered Cyprus, we left it on the left hand, and sailed unto Syria, and landed at Tyre: for there the ship was to unlade her burden. And finding disciples, we tarried there seven days . . . And they brought us on our way, with wives and children, till we were out of the city: and we kneeled down on the shore and prayed. And when we had taken our leave one of another, we took ship; and they returned home again." Acts 21:1-6.

The Dead Sea

Referred to by Old Testament writers as "the sea of the plain" and the "salt sea," this most unique body of liquid seems not to have had a name at that time, hence was designated by a brief statement of its nature or location, that is, "salt" as its nature, or "of the plain" its location. Those writers seem to have noted no use of it except to indicate boundary lines, or as marking "the end of Jordan." Josh. 15:5.

The New Testament, so far as I can discover, makes no mention of it or reference to it. One wonders whether Jesus ever stood on its shores, or whether He ever saw it unless from some elevation in the distance.

The Sea of Galilee

This "most loved sea in the world" is called in the Old Testament by the rather euphonious name "Chimereth." In the New Testament "Sea of Galilee," "Sea of Tiberias" and "Lake of Gennesaret" are used interchangeably to designate it, but usually the first named is used.

In approaching, whether in person or in thought, this sea, near which, at which, and on which Jesus wrought and taught so strenuously, one needs to guard against the danger of giving emphasis to the place out of proportion to the emphasis given what the Master said and did and the spirit He manifested. It is holy ground and should be so regarded. But made so by what Jesus did there rather than by the mere fact that He was there.

Many of His activities clustered about this sea. Somebody has counted the number of recorded miracles of our Lord and declared them to be thirty-three, eighteen of which were probably done in the vicinity of this sea. Ten of these miracles were done in the city of Capernaum, one of the nine cities of not less than 15,000 inhabitants each, that bordered the sea.

Let no one suppose for a moment that thirty-three was the total number of miracles performed by our Lord or that it approximates the total number. No one knows the number, but there were many. "Great multitudes came unto him, having with them those that were lame, blind, dumb, maimed, and many others, and cast them down at Jesus' feet; and he healed them." Matt. 15:30. Incidentally, it may be noted that that scene was near this sea.

To my thinking one of the most profoundly impressive appearances of Jesus after His resurrection was on the shores of the Sea of Galilee. When they had brought the fish ashore and had partaken of the repast prepared by Jesus, this conversation followed:

Jesus: "Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me more than these?"

Peter: "Yea, Lord, thou knowest that I love thee."

Jesus: "Feed my lambs."

Jesus: "Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me?"

Peter: "Yea, Lord, thou knowest that I love thee."

Jesus: "Feed my sheep."

Jesus: "Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me?"

Peter: "Lord, thou knowest all things; thou knowest that I love thee."

Jesus: "Feed my sheep."

WHAT'S RIGHT WITH THE CHURCH

By P. E. LINDLEY

III. Its Growth

When Jesus used the mustard seed to foretell the kingdom's growth, he was indeed prophetic. Planted as a small but living germ in the minds of the disciples, the Messiah's message soon took root in the hearts of a few followers—a slow but enlarging reality—institutionalized itself, and finally spread around the world. While of course it is true that certain sections of the globe do not as yet enjoy the immediate blessings of corporate church life, the whole earth is, through its resolute efforts, being reclaimed as the Lord's own. Land and sea have been crossed and recrossed with the gospel evangel and dotted here and there are organized groups of consecrated believers. The church has grown! And growth is always evidence of life. True to history and encouraging to the faithful must have been the Founder's promise: Fear not, little flock, for it is the Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom.

When the New Testament canon was closed, dark indeed was the hope of the church. The Roman Empire in majesty and pride sought surely to blot out the life of the new religion. Fire and torture, sword and dungeon, did their worst. Emperors with the arm of the state and philosophers with worldly wisdom fell upon the infant church in awful fury; yet she endured it all in fortitude and faith and came forth brighter than ever, like gold tried in the fire, comes forth from the burning.

There were many periods of persecution but the most severe broke out in the declining days of the Empire. Pagan and Christian forces were in deadly array. In the year 303 Diocletian ordered the confiscation of church property, demanded the imprisonment of all bishops, and subjected all believers to a cruel torture. This failing to choke the life of the new movement, the following year he made his last desperate stroke to exterminate the whole cause by offering Christians one simple alternative: denounce their faith or die. The cause appeared hopeless. But the saints braced themselves for the crisis and with the help of God stood firm to the end. Many perished, of course, sealing their devotion with their blood; but the testimony of the martyrs was soon rewarded with new converts and the church was growing again.

By 313 Constantine was ruler in Rome. With him the persecution came to a close and Christianity was openly accepted and proclaimed as the religion for the state. Think of it! What a dramatic and revolutionary change had taken place! From darksome prisons and secret meeting places where a mere handful of despised worshipers gathered to sing and pray, the new movement, now acknowledged and defended, came forth triumphant, in new power and prestige, to face the world again with the undying story of the Cross.

This particular account is only one of the many hardships through which the church has passed. Growth is the very nature of the kingdom. Its infancy is now far passed and each succeeding year finds new developments and expanding plans. At the increase of its usefulness there shall be no end. More men and women attend her services today than ever before; more missionaries cross the seas, and more loving service is rendered in the Master's name than at any time since "the disciples were called Christians first at Antioch."

Such growth in the church can only be explained by acknowledging the hand of the Divine in her onward way. God prospers the church. No other organiaztion, commercial, political or humanitarian, can point to such a record. The church, in truth, is the body of Christ, and Christ is alive for evermore. He loved the church and gave Himself for it, and now His spirit continues to move in her plans and purposes, assuring life, growth, victory. Men may give of their utmost either to advance or hinder the work, but the final choice must come from above. In the words of Dr. Qualben, "the history of the church is the history of God's kingdom on earth." Men and women can enjoy the privilege of sharing in the progress of this inspired institution, or individuals here and there may deflect its course for a time, but no one is able to thwart the plans of the Almighty. The church has grown and will continue to grow.

Let, then, everyone appreciate more fully the meaning of the membership he holds in a church. It is a pearl of great price. Exchange it not for the awards of ease and indifference or any other merchandise with which the world trafficks. When you belong to the church you belong to a going concern. You are a part of the greatest movement on earth. Glorious has been its history; more glorious will be its future. For, as one historian writes, "the church can never die, it will never see the decrepitude of old age; but, like its Founder, it will live in the unfading freshness of self-renewing youth and the unbroken vigor of manhood to the end of time. Single denominations and sects, human forms of doctrine and government, having served their purpose, may disappear and go the way of all flesh; but the Church Universal of Christ, in her divine life and substance, is too strong for the gates of hell. She will only exchange her earthly garments for the festal robes of the Lamb's Bride, and rise from the state of humiliation to the state of exaltation and glory, to enjoy the eternal sabbath of holiness and peace."

LET US GIVE JOYOUSLY

One striking thing that still persists in my memory is the radiant joy on the faces of the pastors and Children's Home secretaries who had put their churches on the Honor Roll last year on Children's Home Day. This meant they had secured as many names as were on their church rolls, with a penny a year for the age of each person named.

Inasmuch as the financial goal was not reached last year, it is necessary to try again, and the same plan is being used with the method of working it changed.

The Bible speaks many times of joy, and quite a number of times of great joy. One memorable passage reads: "Then the people rejoiced, for that they offered willingly, because with perfect heart they offered willingly to the Lord: and David the king also rejoiced with great joy." I come of a family that enjoys ferreting out information, and it was interesting to me to find out how much giving these people did to cause them to rejoice so greatly over their gifts to Solomon's temple. Using Cruden's Concordance, and taking the lowest estimated value of a talent and figuring only in round numbers, I found that the worth of the talents of gold and silver they had given, in terms of our money, was one hundred twenty-three million, one hundred eighty thousand dollars. This does not include ten thousand handfuls of gold whose value I have no way of determining, and large quantities of brass and iron and some precious stones that were found among them and given.

The question in my mind now is if those people in that ancient day should receive such great joy from giving to the erection of a temple, why shouldn't we who are alive today be glad enough of it to contribute willingly the small sum asked of us, to sustain these living temples of our Children's Home?

IMPRESSIONS OF THE CHILDREN'S HOME HIGH POINT, N. C.

By R. L. Shipley

The Children's Home at High Point has left in my mind pleasant memories. My visits to the Home have been few and at intervals far apart, but a very clear impression has come to me.

First of all, I seem to sense an improvement in the Home which has been continuous. Each succeeding visit showed me a Home that was better than it was the time before. Attractiveness and convenience have always seemed to be increasing. Time has not made the buildings dingy or out-of-date but more modern and pleasant. This has been an evidence of wise administration with care for details. With a budget always running a bit above the necessities it is a marvel that the upkeep and improvement of the property have been maintained. My memory of the buildings is so very inexact that I could not tell of any improvement in detail, but this is the general impression which I have. It seems to me that such progress more than justifies the continued and augmented support of the Home.

My other impression is that of happy growing childhood. The children of our Home have their individuality unimpaired. They did not seem to be institutionalized in either dress or deportment. To me the chief treasure in human life is that subtle thing which we call personality, which is basic to all virtue and influence, which must underlie the value of any individual to the community. The children playing at ease and with spontaneity about the yard seemed to have a freedom and happiness in childhood which promised sane and strong character. The years have seen the promise fulfilled in those who have left the Home to make homes of their own.

The Children's Home at High Point is no longer an experiment or a venture in the Methodist Protestant Church. It is an establishment. The graduates have proven its character building qualities. Its progress evidences its wise administration. Its present size makes it too large to be supported by a single conference just as its wide service makes it fitting that all should share in the Christian task of caring for the little ones entrusted to our church. The call to help comes at a definite date. The occasion is the Twenty-fifth Birthday, August 22, 1935, and the date ought to be celebrated with substantial gifts. The North Carolina Conference led the church in this most Christlike ministry. The church should follow by supporting the home with gifts that will pay up all outstanding obligations and start the new epoch with new hope and a better chance of doing better work.

Mrs. Hammer Out Again

During the editor's vacation he had the pleasure of walking to the table with Mrs. W. C. Hammer, of Asheboro. This was Mrs. Hammer's first time to go to the table since her serious automobile accident while returning from the Annual Missionary Convention in Indianapolis in May. It is always a pleasure to sit at Mrs. Hammer's table, but especially so on this occasion. She is now taking short rides almost daily.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord.

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

The Home Stretch

We mailed out pastors' report blanks last week. This week we start on the last quarter of the conference year. The end cometh soon. We must not lose sight of the fourth dimension, the time element, in all achievement. For man needs time as well as power to accomplish things. And he who fails to use wisely his time in both planning and in labor, as a pastor, will find at the end that he has shortened his accomplishments thereby and he has no one to blame for it but himself. No pastor or congregation can do in one quarter all that ought to be done in a year. Yet many make the mistake of waiting until three or four weeks of the meeting of the Annual Conference before they really take an interest in what the conference expects them to do. Our failures can largely be charged to this neglect. We may raise the cry that our people are not able to do the things, when in reality we should have said they failed to start in time to do them. Your president has endeavored from time to time to call the attention of our people to certain claims the churches were expected to pay—those who co-operated are in much better shape than they could possibly have been had they waited until now. Many of our churches have yet to raise all or most of their conference claims, and more than half of their pastors' salaries now in three months. It is too bad that some of our people are still too averse to change to be willing to try a method that brings success to others while they languish in the pit of their defeat. It does look like a group of people who have always failed would get tired of it sometime. We hope they shall. Bill Arp used to say that he who was bit by the same dog twice was better adapted to that thing than to anything else. Still we shall expect better things of you, brethren.

More Pennies, Please

Last year we received thousands of pennies or their equivalent in dimes and dollars and were able thereby to reduce the debt on operating the Children's Home just about half. This year we want to finish the job so well begun then. We will need all those friends who rallied to our support then and more. Of course, every one will put at least one more penny into the gift this time because every one of us is one year older than then. You remember, it is a penny for each year old the contributor is. That is the plan. Now, beloved, what is needed to make the 22nd of August the biggest possible success at all is to have the largest number of contributors possible present then. No, we are not excusing anyone because they helped us last year. Instead, we want you to find some person who did not help then and get him or her to send along a gift with yours; or better still, to come to the Home on that day and bring it yourselves. It will be a great inspiration to see the loyal friends of the Home that day. They will be there, unless they are sick or live so far away they cannot make the return trip that day. Let us repeat, we want to pay off the balance of that debt that day. We want the largest number of friends of the Home present that can get together for such an occasion, and we want to get the most fun out of it. So come along and let's do the thing good and strong.

Those Group Meetings

While we were unable to attend the meetings held in eastern Carolina, they were held, i. e., all except the one at Weavers which was called off by the pastor. The attendance at Hollister was 40, at Pleasant Hill and Spring Valley 30, respectively. We are grateful to Bros. Neese, Peeler and Medlin for carrying out the program as planned.

The second group was held at the following churches: Chapel Hill, Davidson circuit, 40 present; Bethel, Mocksville circuit, 35 present; Zion, Liberty circuit, 20 present. I was assisted by Bros. Johnson. Ridge and Bowman. I appreciated the splendid co-operation of these brethren and of those who attended from the different churches. We shall comment upon the purpose of such meetings later.

First Church, Charlotte—Rev. G. H. Hendry, Pastor

I visited this congregation July 28 at the morning hour for worship. The large tabernacle, 42x95, was used. It was my first visit there since it was erected. It is of brick, stands back of the church, not yet completed, having no floor and only temporary seats. But it has ample space for a large choir and audience. It was possibly half filled, which was splendid for this congregation. It is easy to speak in and the congregation was attentive. It is altogether quite an addition to the effectiveness with which this church is endeavoring to serve its community. The increase in membership under the present pastorate has been wonderful, two members were received at this service, making a total of 103 for the year, the pastor states.

Although the pastor has been serving without a fixed salary, he has received upon an average of $100 per month, I believe; the payments on parsonage debt have been met regularly, the church's allotment for High Point College is paid; the pastor assures me the other conference claims will be met, and besides this the parsonage has been greatly improved by the hands of the interior decorator. If you ask me what has happened to First church, I will have to say I do not know, unless, as a member of that church told me, Charlotte has had a great spiritual awakening.

Sorry to miss my appointment at Roberta. I was afraid it was most too much for my strength, as this was my first attempt at preaching since my illness the 30th of June. I expect to visit this church later, date will be given soon. Pastors, please do not make three appointments for me on the same day until later when I feel sure such labor will not be too heavy for my physical strength.

Congratulations to Mt. Carmel Church

Last Sunday we dedicated Mt. Carmel church, Lexington charge, Rev. C. G. Isley, pastor. The church was originally a Reformed congregation, but was taken over by our denomination many years ago, we do not know the circumstances. It was then a small church building.. A few years ago it was rebuilt. It is a frame building, but substantially built, with several Sunday school rooms and ample auditorium. The occasion was a combination of homecoming, dedication and the beginning of the revival meeting. The revival services were to begin at night with Bro. Grant assisting. There was a good congregation, the church was comfortably filled for the morning worship. The ritual was largely used, thus permitting the people to participate in the services. This church has a custom for the members to bring their tithe to the altar once a quarter; last Sunday was the day for this to be done. Several came with their tithes. We congratulate our Mt. Carmel friends in their splendid achievements.

Rankin Memorial Lays Cornerstone

Sunday afternoon the cornerstone of this new structure being erected in High Point, Rev. Edward Suits, pastor, which takes the place of English Street church, was laid. The roof is not yet on, but we used the sub-floor for standing and a good-sized audience was present. Here is being erected a most substantial building, beautiful in design and will amply take care of the Sunday school and congregation for many years to come. And another thing, it is being erected at a most moderate cost. We have only words of praise to Pastor Suits and the congregation for what they are now doing. The English Street congregation is being saved to the denomination and a community in High Point which was far removed from other churches will be served by this church. The church is a memorial to the well-known friend and member of the First M. P. church, High Point, Capt. A. M. Rankin. No layman in our entire conference is more widely and favorably known. It was a happy thought of the pastor thus to honor one of our most splendid laymen. We regret that Capt. Rankin was unable to be present in body, but we know he was there in spirit. The services were participated in by Revs. J. D. Williams, J. M. Morgan, Pastor Suits, Judge Lewis Teague, Bros. Lee and Bowers and Miss Embler. The last three are members of this congregation. The service closed with prayer and benediction by Dean Lindley. We were indeed glad to have a share in this service, as we had a share, with Pastor Suits, in taking over the former church from the Reformed congregation in 1920.

Plan of Appointments

August 11—Mitchell's Grove, Guilford Circuit, 11 a. m.

August 18—Pending.

August 25—Pleasant Union, Mt. Pleasant Circuit, 11 a. m., and Gibsonville at night.

R. M. Andrews.

Mr. McDonald Has Apple Orchard

One of the interesting things to be seen in the Sandhills these days is the large apple orchard near West End in Moore County, owned and operated by Mr. M. C. McDonald. There are seven thousand trees in the orchard, six thousand of them bearing. The trees are so heavily laden with apples that in many cases the limbs are resting on the ground.

SCHOOL OF INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS

By Rev. S. W. Tayloor, D. D.

Article 3

Dr. Otto Nathan, former adviser to the German government on economic questions, and now lecturer at Yale University, was on the program for four addresses, one of which was a popular evening address delivered in the auditorium of the east campus. At this time his subject was "Experiences from the Depression—A World View."

Dr. Nathan said that we learned three things from the depression: (1) the hurt of too much politics; (2) the necessity of an internationally sound currency; (3) the necessity of proper international trade relations.

He spoke at length on what can be done to help in the next depression. Four things were enlarged upon: (1) a uniform currency between nations; (2) find some way to pass laws that are economically necessary and politically possible; (3) recogniez the existence of cycles in economics, and (4) do all possible to prevent too much boom and too much depression.

We may expect recurring depressions, Dr. Nathan thinks, because, in his judgment, the economic world moves in cycles, the natural consequence of which is booms and bursts.

In the opinion of Dr. Nathan, capitalism has seen its day. It can not, he thinks, meet the economic needs of a growing world. Russia is committed to this opinion, and her dictatorship is based on the theory that such a government is needed for the next twenty to forty years in order to build up a system to take the place of capitalism. But Russia's ultimate aim, he says, is democracy, expressed through communism.

The speaker thought that it was possible for the United States to have a large influence in Europe. He wants us to be a lender nation. A free flow of capital over national frontiers is a necessity, he thinks, for economic recovery and security.

Dr. Nathan is a close student of economics and speaks as an authority on world economic conditions. His lectures were highly informing, and he was heard with the deepest of interest, though he speaks in broken English. He is out of Germany now because of the hostility of Nazi Germany to the Jews.

Another very popular lecturer was Miss Jeanette Rankin, the first woman elected to Congress in the United States. She is now the legislative secretary of the National Council for the Prevention of War. She was scheduled for four lectures, her subject being "Organizing Public Opinion Against War." She was in Congress when we entered the World War, and told of her vote against it. She said that she regretted very much to go against her President, but that she had to be true to her conscientious objections and to her personal judgment. She said that if the vote had been a secret one Congress would have voted against our participation in the war. The Congressmen found out, she said, that the people back home were for war, and they voted accordingly.

During her four lectures she had a great many informing and interesting things to say about war, and the lecture room was usually full when she spoke. In the limited space allotted for this article I can quote her but briefly.

The greatest difficulty in getting rid of war, Miss Rankin thinks, is the war system. We have thought in terms of war and not in terms of arbitration in settling national and international differences, until war has become a well-established system in the world. What we need is to change the system. There are two great hindrances to changing the system. (1) The munitions manufacturers. War means profits to them, and profits produce long and loud arguments for war. (2) The militarists. They, too, thrive on war. It is their bread and their meat. And they have trained so long to think in terms of armies and navies, and war equipments that world peace is to them a visionary dream. The strength of the military influence in our country is seen in the army and navy lobbying at Washington. There is nothing in Washington equal to it, Miss Rankin declared. The official duty of 1,500 men there, wearing civilian clothes, is to lobby for the army and the navy. Governments make war, the speaker declared, and not the people. Where the public sentiment against war is strong and assertive, governments are slow to declare war. She made much of the Kellogg Pact, which makes it illegal for nations to settle their differences by war. She thinks if war in the world can be kept off for five years it will probably be kept off permanently. Miss Rankin is a zealot for her cause. She is well informed, and her arguments are strong and convincing, and pleasingly made. She believes strongly in the ultimate outcome of the organized forces for peace.

SILVER ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION OF THE CHILDREN'S HOME

In our hearts there are a few things which are especially dear to us. As we grow older these are cherished more and more. There are many places and people we should be acquainted with in order that we might have more pleasant memories. Among these, I think it is well worth-while to mention Dr. and Mrs. Dixon and the Children's Home at High Point. I wish it were possible for every one in our denomination to visit this place. Then I am confident you would do your very best in helping them get the things they really need. There is a great work to be done and it should be our pleasure as well as duty. Little things that each of us can do mean a great deal, so let us do these to help the more unfortunate boys and girls who are looking to the people in our churches for privileges that will enable them to find real happiness in life.

The Silver Anniversary celebration will be on August 22. Please don't forget to be filling the offering boxes—the money will not even be missed if put in all along. However, for those who perhaps won't participate in this way, a special offering should be taken the Sunday before the above date so they will have a chance to contribute at the last minute.

We want to make this a most successful celebration. Our hearts will be made happy and of course Dr. and Mrs. Dixon and the children will be overjoyed.

Lula Maude Boyles,
Secretary of Children's Home.

A SERVING CHILDREN'S HOME CHALLENGES METHODIST PROTESTANTS TO SERVE

By Rev. T. J. Whitehead

The Methodist Protestant Children's Home has been one of the main agencies of the Methodist Protestant church in bringing the Kingdom of God into the world. This year finds the Home completing 25 years of service. During this period the Methodist Protestant church has been able to be a real friend to many who have been in need. Mothers left alone without any means of support caused by the death of the father of the family have found a Christian friend in the Children's Home. Fathers have found it possible to supply a much needed mother's attention and love through the Children's Home. Boys and girls who have lost both parents and have had no home have been able to find a Christian home in the Methodist Protestant Children's Home.

The Home has provided moral and religious training for boys and girls. Christlike character has been developed as a result of the faithful work that has been done by the leaders at the Home.

Children in a Children's Home are like all other children. They have to have food to eat. They must have clothes to wear. For these 25 years our Methodist Protestant Children's Home has been providing these things for children who could not have secured them otherwise.

During the life of this institution it has carried on its work through free-will offerings made by organizations and people who have appreciated the service that it has rendered to children. These offerings have come from churches, Sunday schools, Christian Endeavor societies, clubs, and individuals. A review of the work of the Home for the past quarter century and its possibility for the years to come are being revealed to us in the special celebration that we are putting on in connection with the 25th birthday. There comes to every Methodist Protestant a challenge to continue to serve and increase his service that the Children's Home may continue to serve and increase its service in the future.

OUR RESPONSIBILITY

By Rev. F. W. Paschall, S. T. D.

Life has many responsibilities. The individual who has the correct viewpoint of life would not have it otherwise. A richer, deeper, nobler life is found as one measures up courageously and faithfully to the responsibilities of life. The great souls of history did not shirk their responsibilities. The individuals whose lives are a benediction and blessing to mankind today do well their appointed tasks.

One of the highest responsibilities of all life is our responsibility to childhood. The shirking of any responsibility is disastrous, but how tragic, how heart-breaking are the results which follow the neglect of our responsibility to childhood. There is no creature quite so helpless as the child. He not only must have food, clothing, shelter and protection; but he must also have Christian nurture, guidance and training so that he will grow "in wisdom and stature and in favor with God and man." We ought to hang our heads in shame, there ought to be a severe lashing of conscience when we have to sing, "Bring them in from the fields of sin." How tremendous is our responsibility to childhood! The type of person who sits under the steering wheel and rides in our automobiles is far more important than a system of good roads. The type of person who works in the shop, the mill, the office is far more important than the building of larger factories. A healthy soul is far more important than a healthy body. It is far more important to teach boys and girls how to live for Christ and His Kingdom than it is to teach them how to make a living.

Our responsibility to childhood is greatly intensified when the child becomes dependent or is orphaned through circumstances over which he has no control. In our Children's Home in High Point we have more than one hundred such boys and girls. Dare we fail them? Will we treat lightly our great responsibility? We dare not turn a deaf ear to the plea of the orphan and we can not face God unashamed if we treat lightly our responsibility. May this be our attitude here:

"Dear Lord, I do not ask
  That Thou should'st give me some high work of Thine,
Some noble calling or some wondrous task;
  Give me a little hand to hold in mine.
Give me a little child to point the way
  Over the strange sweet path that leads to Thee;
Give me a little voice to teach to pray;
  Give me two shining eyes Thy face to see.
The only crown I ask, dear Lord, to wear
  Is this—that I may teach a little child.
I do not ask that I should ever stand
  Among the wise, the worthy or the great;
I only ask that, softly hand in hand,
  A child and I may enter at the gate."

FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE N. C. BRANCH

The observance of the 25th anniversary of the Children's Home of the Methodist Protestant denomination, seemed to spring into the minds of Mrs. Mabel Williams Russell, first matron of the Home, and of Dr. A. G. Dixon, present superintendent, at the same time, proving the truth in the time old saying, "Great minds run in the same channel." There is widespread interest in the celebration throughout the general church, and while a general appeal has not been made, those who have followed the history of the Home and children are planning to take part either in person or otherwise. Those who were active in opening the Home in that old schoolhouse at Denton cannot forget the preparations for the opening, the placing of the furniture, meager but adequate, coming as it did from various churches; meeting the branch line train from Thomasville, which brought the first three children, Bessie, Bobbie and Clelle Clouse, who had come from Asheville. To these children goes the gratitude of many who realize that their temperament, obedience, courage and conscience meant much in the moulding and making of the lives of those who came later. Reminiscences, though dubbed as indicative of age, do crowd the minds of those who shared in the small beginning which was prompted by faith. That same group spread the leaven which has leavened the whole denomination in loving, tender and affectionate interest which will rally round this splendid institution which is outstanding in interest and success in the entire denomination on its anniversary occasion. Especially to the women of the North Carolina Branch of Women's Work may I urge that the same earnest, faithful co-operation which was manifested in the beginning of the Children's Home be characterized in you, the workers of today. Let us make this the banner day for our institution.

Mrs. Wm. C. Hammer, President,
N. C. Branch Women's Work.

AUGUST 22

Sometime ago I was asked to edit a special "Children's Home Anniversary Number" of the Herald. As part of that task I wrote a number of folks who I thought were interested in the Home, and would like to say so in print. What response they have made to the request, this issue of the Herald will tell. I trust you will read what they have to say, and, if they have any suggestions to make, that you act upon them.

Again let me remind you of the date—August 22. That is one of the milestones in our Conference history, and its importance ought not to be overlooked by the friends of the Children's Home. Twenty-five years of caring for Christ's little ones in His name and for His sake. All honor to the women who started the work in Denton a quarter-century ago!

But we ought to do more than honor them. We ought to help them. And we can do it in no better way than by helping to lift the burden of debt.

So let's rally to the Home—and show our appreciation and our interest by doing two things: Coming to the celebration—if the paralysis epidemic doesn't prevent our holding it. And making an offering—a cent for each year of your age, or more if you will. Bring it, send it. But let the Home have your financial help and your earnest prayers.

C. W. Bates.

STEWARDSHIP

Am asking all the Auxiliary secretaries in the Branch to help Dr. Andrews in every way possible to put on the tithing campaign, beginning August 18 and closing with the last Sunday in October. Put on plays and pageants and have stewardship taught. There are some outdoor plays and pageants that can be easily staged in the back yard or in the church. In September will be a good time to have all-day classes in stewardship. Dr. Andrews will be depending on the work that you as secretaries can render.

Dr. Glascock, Sec. of Stewardship.

We have just received the pictures of all our children, as of April, 1935. Every child who was in the Home in April has a good picture in this group. These pictures are to be given to churches whose families have contributed 100 per cent to the birthday offering for the Home.

We will depend upon the pastors to certify to us what churches are entitled to a picture. The pictures are made, and we are anxious to give them to you. Get every family in your church to contribute and report to us.

A. G. Dixon, Supt.

OUR STORY PAGE

THE CONNECTING LINES

Roswell had been away from home for a week on a visit. The first night after he came home, he said to his mother, "While I was at Uncle Thedford's I didn't say my prayers at all, and God took care of me just the same. Why can't I quit saying my prayers at home? It is such a bother to have to do it every day."

"You may try it that way for a while, son," his mother replied. "You needn't pray for a week from tonight."

Roswell was surprised at his mother's answer, but he was glad, too, that she had given her consent for him to quit praying.

In a day or two Roswell's father went to New York City to be gone a week. The house seemed very lonely.

"We will write to father every day, won't we, mother?" said Roswell.

And his mother gave him such a strange answer. "No; it will be such a bother," she said. "Your father left us plenty of everything, and he knows about everything here there is to tell him."

"But we will want to write," said Roswell. "Don't you s'pose he will want to get letters? We can tell him how much we love him."

"Oh, he knows that!" said mother.

The next day Roswell said, "Let's phone to father on the long-distance."

"Let's not bother about it," said his mother. "As long as we are well, and have plenty of money, it is not worth while to bother with the telephone. It is nice to have the connecting lines between here and New York; but I don't care to use them unless we should get into some kind of trouble or need something."

Roswell looked strangely at his mother, and at bedtime he said, "Mother, I am going to say my prayers again—because I want to."

"I was sure you would want to before long," said his mother. "You know we have missed father, even while we have plenty of everything to live on. Well, it is a great deal harder to live without your Heavenly Father, and you needn't ever do it—all your life—unless you choose to."

"I guess I don't want to live all the time like I did at Uncle Thedford's," said Roswell.

"I'm sure you don't," said mother. "We wouldn't think of wanting to break down the telephone lines between here and New York. With them we can call father any hour, day or night. Well, when you neglect to pray, you are tearing down the lines that connect you with your Heavenly Father, and so you will soon lose touch with Him."

"I don't want to do that," said Roswell.

"Suppose we call father on the long-distance, and tell him how much we have missed him," said mother.

"Oh, let's!" cried Roswell. "Isn't it great to have the connecting lines?"—Author Unknown.

BILLY'S JOB

"Father, I want a job," said Billy, pulling down the paper his father was reading and looking at him earnestly. Father looked at him.

"A job," said Billy. "To earn money," he explained. "Dick carries the papers, and Robert cuts Mrs. Brown's grass and shovels her snow. They say I can't have a job—I am too little."

Father put down his paper. "I will give you a job, son," he said. "You may keep the kindling basket full all the time and I will give you a shiny quarter every week. But for every day you forget and do not fill the basket I shall have to ask you to pay me back a nickel."

"I won't forget," said Billy, and ran happily away.

For three weeks Biliy kept the kindling basket full. But one day he was invited out to dinner, and in the excitement of thinking about it, he was in bed before he thought of the kindling.

Somehow or other he couldn't sleep. He kept thinking of Dick and Robert and how faithful they were to their work. Soon a little boy just half dressed was creeping softly down the stairs so as not to awake anyone. He came up with a basket piled high.

In the morning father woke him. "Baby Sister was very sick with the croup in the night," he said. "We had to build a fire in a hurry to heat some water. If we hadn't gotten it quickly, it might have meant that Baby Sister wouldn't be here now, for it was hot water and medicine that saved her."

Billy's heart almost stopped beating. Suppose he hadn't gone.

"I'm glad I went," he said to himself.—Child Gem.

A BOY'S GRATITUDE

A poor, sick, lame boy sat by the window of a cottage, reading his Bible. Suddenly he looked up and exclaimed, "O Mother, I am so happy!"

The mother's eyes filled with tears. Her boy had so few things to make him happy. She asked, "My boy, what makes you so happy?"

The child lifted his pale face, and answered, "O Mother dear, it is because God is so good, and I love Him."

"What put this into your mind just now?" she asked.

"Why, I have been reading in the Bible about His goodness in many things, and above all His greatest goodness in sending Jesus to die."

Surely when we think about the goodness of God in giving Jesus to die for us, we realize that indeed the "Lord hath done great things for us," and our hearts are glad.—Bible B's.

SALVATION'S THREE TENSES

Salvation is threefold, past, present, and future. It includes deliverance from the penalty of sin (past); from the power of sin (present); and from the presence of sin (future). Each of these is clearly taught in Scripture, and "salvation" in its fullest meaning includes them all. Those who have been reconciled to God by the death of His Son will inevitably be "kept safe in His life" because of our Lord's resurrection.—W. H. Griffith Thomas.

THE HIGHWAY TO LEADERSHIP

By Rev. N. G. Bethea, D. D.

A Persistent Will

Jesus steadfastly set His face to go to Jerusalem. "I will" is the keynote of all accomplishment. Persistency in our purposes brings us to the goals of life. Pioneers in anything have won in their fight against difficulties. When our pioneer fathers landed here, they said, "This be our rest." They did not mean by that to stop. They meant that here was a wide field of opportunity. Rest from persecutors that had hindered their progress heretofore. Rest from tyranny. Anything but rest from exposure, hardships, everything that would daunt the coward. The forest was to be cleared, the savage driven back, wild beasts to be encountered, but no stopping for the man who had the pioneer spirit.

Pioneers are needed today in making this a spiritual world where there shall be greater opportunity for service to man. We have reached that point where we have pioneered in everything but righteousness. We have the opportunity today to change all this for Christ in building a new world wherein dwelleth righteousness.

"Can't" has dethroned "I will" in many lives, and they have drifted into a state of lethargy from which they must be awakened. We call upon you young people to take advantage of the opportunity! It will take persistency of spirit to win. But you have that if you will only determine by the grace of God it shall be put into effect for His glory. Hardship and opposition are in the pathway for every one who works for the betterment of the race. But what of it? There is glory enough for every one in this path if traveled! So many things look easy in life, people who are succeeding well. But back of that success lies a hard-fought battle that has brought the victor to the summit where he may enjoy the fruits of victory.

Many times lack of interest comes from an unwillingness to pay the price. Let that will power be backed by heaven's power and nothing short of the glory of God is yours. Let not the vain practices of a sinful world keep you from the summit of usefulness which is reached only through divine power. Self-denial is a high price to pay for doing what is right, but it is that which is profitable unto all things.

Our conversation sometimes is hard to steer in the right direction, even to talk about good things. The average conversation is a mind impoverisher. Amusements, possessions, gossip is the general topic of conversation. It takes determination to get out of that sometimes, but persist in talking occasionally about the things worth while and see if you do not find an enrichment of mind that is not to be found in these other things. Many a mother's boy or girl would have been worth more to the world if parents had talked more about the things eternal rather than so much of the world.

A Confidence That Dares Dream

The dream of the inventor has made the earth both great and small. Magnified the things that have been neglected, brought the world closer together by discoveries and inventions that help us to understand each other better. This should give us a confidence in others that will set the pace for a world brotherhood. Not in name and one that falls out over the material things when jealousy over these material profits arises, but one divinely cemented brotherhood that will abolish wars and contentions.

We should magnify the work of the philanthropist that knows no color or race, and contend against those who profit by the lowering of human values for gain, either in war or in selling that which does not take into consideration the betterment of mankind. The selfish dreamer that sees only profits, though morals and life and religion are sacrificed, these should be replaced by those who dream of a better day when that which destroys shall be outlawed, when that which was once used for a curse to man shall become an instrument for his uplift.

A confidence that gives hands, feet, mind and heart to religion in its dreams of a better day is what is needed. Look to the future young people and my prophecy is that those who are keeping themselves clean at this day when there are so many things to allure will be the leaders not only in things religious, but in affairs of state as well, ten years from today. This I do not believe is an idle dream. The best people are promised the earth. "Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth." The poor people of today who are true to the Christ ideals will be the leaders of the future. Why? Because they can be trusted when the storm of temptation breaks. They are the ones who are strengthening the mind by keeping it clear of the things that befog and cause one to relax in the hour of greatest danger. Belshazzar was drunken at the time when his city should have been guarded most carefully. Dissipation always brings a moral let-down when the greatest danger is near. The enemy thus plans to ruin his victims.

A young man rushing from the church was asked if the sermon was finished. "No!" said he. "It is preached. It now remains to be put into effect." A courage, a confidence that dares dream and that makes dreams come true is as much needed today as in the days gone by. Then it took a determination to bring great inventions, discoveries, settling up new territory, building up the waste places of lands that had been discovered to a condition that they might be used for man's benefit. Now it will take the same kind of spirit to save these same things to a better and Christianized civilization, that man may not destroy himself by the work of his own hands.

Oh, for such a vision as will lay down the crown for the cross and count it all joy to suffer privations if need be to carry on for Jesus Christ in the face of indifference, laxity of living, and all the different ways that the enemy is using today to get people away from the ideals of Jesus.

Such a faith as will enable us to see the day that is to be with such clearness of vision that the day that is will not daunt. There are many things to discourage but what is it that is of any worth but what it takes a will power that will not surrender to anything save to the will of the Master leader. Then when He is followed faithfully and loyally we may be assured that victory will be ours.

I exhort you, therefore, that your determination shall be as you go out from here to put into practice the things that you have learned in such a way as to win others instead of causing them to think that you have not been helped. Not doing these things, of course, simply that you may gain that kind of a victory, but proving by your life and activity in the Kingdom that you have been drawn closer to God and that you are not only better prepared for leadership as a result of your coming here but that you are a better follower as a result of your coming. Thus proving yourself worthy, your life will soon be such as God can use in places of trust that will enable you to be one who follows Jesus in such a way as to lead others to Him, and a life of betterment for all with whom you may mingle.

(The above address was the concluding one in a series of devotional services given at the Leadership Training School held at High Point College some weeks ago.—Ed.)

MATERIAL CROWDED OUT

The articles dealing with the anniversary of our Children's Home crowd out several church reports and obituaries this week. These will be run next week.

DR. AND MRS. SPAHR VISIT

Dr. and Mrs. S. K. Spahr, of Greensboro, drove down to Asheboro to the home of Miss Esther Ross last Saturday afternoon and remained until Sunday morning.

DR. TAYLOR ASSISTED IN MEETING

Last week Dr. S. W. Taylor, of Asheboro, assisted Rev. P. E. Bingham in revival services at New Hope church on the Mecklenburg charge. Rev. N. M. Harrison supplied for Dr. Taylor at Asheboro last Sunday.

MAKING THINGS FIT

Some people may wonder why we leave out certain articles and yet run a lot of other brief articles that some people think could be left out. One answer is that many times the short articles are written at the last minute to fill a certain space where some other article would not fit.

Thank you to all who have contributed.

We call special attention to the beautiful thing the two families in Asheboro did in sending a memorial offering to the Children's Home to do honor to the memory of Bro. R. R. Ross. He was an honored and faithful member of the Board of Trustees of the Home from the time it was opened here in High Point until his death, and he gave to it his best thought, most hearty co-operation, and loving service. His friends do him honor by thus remembering him with a gift to the institution he loved so dearly and helped so cheerfully.

25th Anniversary August 22

We are still planning for and expecting a large crowd of our friends here on August 22 at 10:30 a. m. with their picnic baskets. We hope it will be clear weather and that the exercises can be held on the campus here, but if it should be raining we will go to First church, High Point, and try to begin the services on time. The indications are that we will get a good birthday offering from friends in other conferences. And we confidently expect a good offering from EVERY CHURCH in the North Carolina Conference.

Please Help Us

You will work your plans for this birthday offering up to and through Sunday, August 18, we take it. Then on Monday, the 19th, if possible, please get your offerings into a check or money order and mail to us so we may have results tabulated ready to make announcements on the 22nd. If you cannot do this, then bring your gifts with you. Thank you and God bless each of you.

Yours in His service,

A. G. DIXON, Superintendent.

Albemarle.—We held our third quarterly conference July 24. Bro. J. H. Karkey was declared elected as delegate to the Annual Conference. We had good reports. Mrs. C. S. Moton, president of the Auxiliary, had a splendid report as to what they had been doing in a financial way and they had also received six new members. Also a good report from Mrs. J. R. Johnson, church treasurer, June 23rd offering, $15.20; June 30, $27.30; July 7, $24.88; July 14, $71.00; July 31, $32.00. So we can see the effect of the tithing. We are having splendid congregations considering the hot weather. We have a loyal band of good workers and we thank them for their loyalty to the church and pastor.

Bethany, Randolph Charge. — Our revival meeting began the second Sunday in July and closed the following Sunday night. Rev. Joel B. Trogdon was the pulpit help. He preached good sermons and we had a wonderful revival. There were 24 conversions and 15 united with the church. The church has been greatly revived. Let's try to give the new members the help they will need to overcome temptation. Let's try a little harder to be real friends to them, and if they should fall by the wayside, try to lift them up. So many times the church fails to give the needed encouragement to new converts. If we will stay close to God, He will help us know how to guide the weaker ones. The various organizations of the church are doing good work. The Aid Society held their meeting Sunday at the church. Officers were elected for the coming year. Mrs. A. T. Allred was re-elected president, Laura Etta Routh secretary, Gracie Baldwin treasurer. The members agreed to take a number of cans to fill for the Children's Home.

We are glad to report that Miss Alleno Julian is able to return home from the Randolph Hospital. She had an operation for appendicitis and is recovering nicely.

The third quarterly conference will meet at Bethany next Saturday affternoon.

Palestine, Flat Rock.—Our revival meeting began third Sunday at 11 o'clock. Our pastor had for his help Rev. W. L. Harkey, paster of Weaverville charge. He came for both services Sunday and did all the preaching until the meeting closed Friday night. Mr. Harkey preached good sermons each service, so simple and plain that even a little child might understand, and we pray the seed Brother Harkey has sown in explaining the work of God to our people may fall on good ground and bring forth an abundant harvest for the upbuilding of the Kingdom of our Lord. The visible results were ten professions and eight joined our church Those joining were Ruth Landreth, Inda Williams, Rebecca Shelton, Roy Still, Tom Purgerson, Gordon Tucker, Paul Olbert, Walter Landreth. We give them a warm welcome into the membership of Palestine. May the older members of our church so help and encourage them that they will have no other desire than to walk humbly in the footsteps of our Lord and Savior and to serve Him as best they can is my prayer.

Our people enjoyed Mr. Harkey's stay among us, and I do not think a more pleasant, likeable man has ever helped at Palestine. It seems every one liked him, and many have said they hope he will come again. So, Mr. Harkey, we invite you to visit Rockingham County again. And thank you for the sweet sermons and the untiring efforts you put forth to make our meeting a success. Many thanks to these children for special music: Miss Mildred Way, Louise Way, Janette Pearman, Louise Parish, Helen Knight, and Master C. B. Way, Jr. They did splendid singing.

At the close of the afternoon and evening services Pastor Way and family were given a pounding. Mrs. Way was able to attend all our services except two. She and the children visited in our homes, which we all appreciate very much. Mrs. Traves Sharon was unable to attend services. Mrs. Hilton Sharon was also unable to attend services.

Pine Hill, Davidson Charge.—Our revival meeting has just closed. We had a very good meeting but not like we should have had. Good sermons were preached. There ought to have been many souls saved. Rev. J. T. Bowman, of Denton, was our pulpit help. He sure did bring us fine messages. We all were very glad to have him and Mrs. Bowman with us. Also Mrs. Bingham was with us in our meeting to help us out. We pray there will be many souls saved yet in revival meetings. I believe if Christian people would get nearer God there would be more souls saved. Times are not like they were when we older people were young, when people would shout and praise God, but that is almost a thing of the past. I pray that it will be so again.

Our Sunday school is going very good under the leadership of B. C. Lanier.

MRS. F. L. SMITH.

Seagrove, Seagrove-Love Joy Charge.—Our revival services began the fourth Sunday in July and closed last Sunday night. Our pastor, Rev. E. G. Cowan, was assisted in these services by Rev. N. G. Bethea, of Greensboro. Dr. Bethea did some fine preaching and we hope he will come this way again. We believe much and lasting good was accomplished by this meeting. There were eight that united with the church. Three came by letter and five on profession of faith. There are several more to join at an early date. Dr. Bethea left on Friday night and Pastor Cowan continued the meeting until Sunday night.

We were glad to have with us on Sunday of the meeting Mr. and Mrs. Elsie King, of Laurinburg, N. C., former members of Fair Grove church. Also we were glad to have Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Smith, of Greensboro, who are members here, spend the week and attend the meeting. Also Miss Louise King, of Laurinburg, N. C.

Mr. Winborn Hulin, of the Love Joy church, spent part of the week with us and we were glad to have him. Mr. Hulin is a brother of Rev. J. W. Hulin, who was once our pastor, and is a faithful worker in the church.

Pastor Cowan is assisting Rev. C. H. Hill in his revival services this week at New Zion, Why Not charge.

We are having a splendid Sunday school under the efficient management of our superintendent, S. G. Richardson. Although the paralysis scare has lowered the average attendance somewhat for the last while, we hope the attendance will be much better now that the epidemic has somewhat subsided.

Mr. and Mrs. Romie Russell and daughter, Nell, of Alexandria, La., are spending the summer here and we are glad to have them attend church and Sunday school. Our Christian Endeavor Society is progressing nicely under the management of L. A. King, Mrs. L. A. King and Mrs. S. G. Richardson. A picnic and watermelon feast was enjoyed by the Juniors on the church lawn recently.

The Ladies' Aid Society will meet with Mrs. J. M. Greene August 16. We appreciate the splendid co-operation given us by Fair Grove, the Christian church here and neighboring Baptist churches during the revival services as the attendance was good.

Haw River Church, Glen Raven Charge.—Rev. J. P. Pegg was with us today at the 11 o'clock hour. After the sermon, communion service was observed by many. The evening service was called off because of the illness of the pastor's child. Rev. Mr. Pegg has the sympathy of the church, and we wish his child a speedy recovery.

Our Sunday school has regained its normal attendance since the paralysis has decreased.

The Philathea Class has increased so much that extra seats had to be added.

We are glad to report that Mr. Paul Suits, who is in McPherson Hospital following an operation, is convalescing nicely.

Mrs. M. J. Rogers, who has been ill for quite a while, is well and able to attend church again.

Our revival will begin September 18. Rev. Fred Paschall, of Burlington, will be the pulpit help. We are looking forward to Mr. Paschall's coming with great pleasure. I'm sure we have the prayers of all Christians for a great revival.

Lebanon Church, High Point.—One more Sabbath farther on in life's journey. It was a good Sabbath yesterday for us. Two good sermons by the pastor, also several visitors whom we were pleased to have worship with us. One hundred and ten were present for Sunday school. This was a fine showing considering the ban on children's attendance because of the emergency ruling.

We are giving our pastor his vacation in August. This time he is granted the three remaining Sunday night services in this month. There will be the usual morning worship at 11 o'clock.

Rev. and Mrs. Morgan and children were away last week visiting their son, Mr. Oscar Morgan, in Shelby, and their daughter, Mrs. William Clay, in Fallston.

It is hoped conditions will permit the return of children to church services soon. We are especially interested right now in getting the Junior Choir organized and also getting the missionary work resumed among the children. That has been temporarily suspended, much to our regret. Our monthly financial report is feeling the effects of it also. The children are naturally cheerful hustlers. Their offering last year averaged around $8 per month. The adult circles are meeting this week, Circle No. 1 with Mrs. J. H. Hedgecock and No. 2 at the church.

The Ladies' Aid recently sponsored a very enjoyable silver tea. This was given at the home of the president, Miss Emma Wray, on Hamilton Street. Many members and also friends called during the evening. Miss Esther Brooks, Miss Wray and Mrs. W. F. Bailey served sandwiches, cake and tea. The offering goes to the fund for hut furnishings.

On Sunday night, July 28, the Senior C. E. Society presented an interesting program in the church.

At some early date a play given by local talent will be presented. Please be listening for the final announcement.

The Young Men's Class, Mr. Jones, teacher, recently had an enjoyable watermelon feast at the City Lake Park.

Miss Rebecca Reavis, of Dallas, Texas, is visiting her brother here, Mr. J. W. Reavis. She is a teacher in the Dallas schools.

Cid, Why Not Charge.—Just a few lines to say that Cid Sunday school is still improving. While we are not making any great gain, I think I can safely say we are making progress.

Our pastor, Rev. C. H. Hill, preached a very interesting sermon last Sunday at 2 p. m. for us and to us. His subject was "Hid from the Presence of God." He pointed out many ways in which people try to hide from God. His messages always set our souls on fire with love from heaven and help us to strive harder for the home not built with hands.

A wedding of much interest was solemnized in the presence of a few choice friends at Lexington, N. C., Saturday, July 27, 1935, when Miss Beatrice Lambeth, of Cid, became the attractive bride of Mr. Clifford Bean, of Denton. Mrs. Bean is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Lambeth. She was a member of Cid M. P. church and attended regularly.

Mr. Bean is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Bean, of near Denton. The happy couple will make their home near the bridegroom's father. We wish for this couple a long, happy and prosperous life together.

Mr. and Mrs. Baxter Wright are the parents of a small daughter, born July 17.

Bethesda-State Street. — Homecoming at Bethesda church second Sunday in August. The pastor will preach at 11 o'clock. Rev. Edw. Suits will deliver the homecoming address at 2:30 p. m. Friends and former residents of the community are invited to enjoy the day with us, also former pastors of the church.

This is the beginning of the Bethesda special meeting. Preaching by Rev. Edw. Suits during the week at 3 p. m. and at 7:45 p. m The public is cordially invited to attend.

Children's Day exercise, which had been postponed for child-health reason, was held fourth Sunday in July. The program was impressive and the offering fair. The child in the Bethesda community, two years of age, seems to have fully recovered from infantile paralysis.

The Bethesda Auxiliary is making progress filling jars for the Children's Home; also with the Lord's Acre idea mostly in garden plots cultivated and the proceeds turned in to the treasury. The Lord's Acre of cotton, cultivated by the Christian Endeavor Society, is promising.

State Street Auxiliary is doing a rather thriving business selling ice cream these hot Saturday afternoons. The stewards are considering seriously ways and means for making a substantial reduction of the church debt by the time the conference year closes.

It was quite refreshing to have the children back in Sunday school and church at State Street after their absence of several Sundays.

A pastor remarked in my presence that poundings in his locality have been rather scarce of late. I suggest that he and others of like experience try a shower as a splendid substitute. It was the "revealing meeting" of the J-O-Y (Jesus first, Others second, Yourself last) Philathea Class meeting of State Street Sunday school. As an honorary member I had been assigned a "sister" three months prior, as had all regular members of the class, by the drawing of a name. When the time came to reveal to the class the name of the sister each had drawn, by presenting a gift, the member of whom I was sister presented her gift in an orderly, dignified manner. And lo! that was a signal, and the shower began. The adage, "When it rains, it pours," was true in that instance. Handkerchiefs and socks galore and of great variety, ties, shirts and other wearing apparel and useful articles. It was fun for the ladies and fine for me—when I had recovered from the embarrassment due to the surprise of it all. I am persuaded that even Dr. Pritchard, with his experience as a weather prognosticator, could not have forecast that shower.

Kistlers-Union, Cleveland Charge.—Church activities are moving along nicely. Several things of importance have occurred. Bro. Troxler has filled all appointments up to the present time.

Last July we consolidated with our sister church, Pleasant Hill, and tore down our old church and began to erect a new one. On last Sunday we dedicated our new church to God with all claims and debts being paid in full. So you can readily see we are a happy people up here. We had a great day Sunday, although we were somewhat disappointed as we were looking forward to hearing Bro. Andrews at 11 o'clock. We were very sorry that he could not come due to illness. We trust he will soon be strong again and will visit us later. Bro. Troxler filled his place and made a wonderful substitute, for he brought an excellent message to a large audience. After the morning service a bountiful dinner was served in picnic style and everybody was refreshed.

At 1 o'clock we returned to the church auditorium where we enjoyed other good programs. First, some fine quartet singing rendered by Mr. Ellis Hoyle and his singers from Fallston, also Mr. Overman Ivester and his group from South Shelby. We welcome these singers back again. At 2:30 we enjoyed an excellent address by Hon. Clyde R. Hoey, of Shelby, whom we are looking forward to being our next governor. This message was very appropriate for the occasion. We were indeed glad to have in our audience a number of visitors and old acquaintances. We especially enjoyed having Mrs. N. G. Bethea with us. We hope she will come more often.

Our revival meeting will begin on Wednesday night before the first Sunday in August and continue for several days with services twice daily. Pray for us that much good may be accomplished. Rev. R. S. Trorler will do the preaching.

Our Sunday school is still on the increase and more interest is being shown.

The ladies held their monthly meeting with much interest. Mrs. O. V. Warlick was elected president. We hope the Auxiliary will take on new life. The ladies are stepping right up to the front in their work. They have just recently laid a new carpet in the church which adds much to the inside. The church as a whole appreciates this work. The men are doing things also. They have just finished painting the outside of the building. Thanks so much to the ladies and men of our church.

Our third quarterly conference will meet on Saturday, August 3, at Mt. Moriah church. Every one is invited to attend this meeting.

Flat Rock Charge.—The past month has been a busy one for the writer. Three of our revivals were held, namely at Gideon's Grove, Bethany and Palestine churches. A report has been made of the Gideon's Grove meeting. The meeting at Bethany began the second Sunday with Rev. W. L. Harkey, pastor of the Weaverville charge, as pulpit help. He did some of the best preaching ever heard there, according to some of the members. There were a few reclamations as a result of the meeting. We hope to receive some members by certificate later.

The revival at Palestine church began the third Sunday in August, with Rev. W. L. Harkey as pulpit help. He did splendid preaching, delivering soul-stirring and heart-searching sermons. Some of the members described his preaching as the best they had heard there in recent years. The following members were received at the closing service Friday night: Roy Stills, Walter Landreth, Gordon Tucker, Paul Albert, Tom Perguson, Ruth Landreth, India Williams, Rebecca Shelton.

The writer was engaged last week in the revival meeting at Canaan church on North Davidson charge. We enjoyed our work with those people and it was a pleasure to be with the pastor, Rev. C. L. Grant. The meeting closed Friday night.

We began the revival meeting at Bethel church last Sunday. Rev. Wayne Curtis, of Burlington, the engaged help, arrived Sunday morning and sang at the morning and afternoon services. We were pleased to have a group of singers, 42 in number, from Lebanon Baptist church, near Greensboro, and Rev. C. M. Oates, pastor of the church, with us for the Sunday services. The group of singers furnished the music to the delight and inspiration of the large congregations present at each service. A. P. Jarvis was leader of the choir. A male quartet also sang two selections at the afternoon service. Our services are held at 3 p. m. and 8 p. m.

Since our last report we have been remembered with gifts from the following: Mr. and Mrs. Hassel Angel, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Lemmons, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Angel, all of Gideon's Grove church. We thank each of them for the gifts which are appreciated.

Visitors at the parsonage one day last week were Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Briggs; their son, Clifford; daughter, Grace, and grandchildren, Doris and Glenn Page, the latter of Norfolk, Va. The Briggs family are from Tabernacle church, West Forsyth charge, and we always welcome a visit by members of a former charge. Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Way and son, Thomas Hardin, and J. H. Thomas, of Burlington, were visitors at the parsonage last Sunday afternoon.

Our regular appointments for next Sunday will be at Gideon's Grove church at 11 a. m. and at Flat Rock church at 3 p. m. The ordinance of the Lord's Supper will be observed at each church. C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Dulin's, Mocksville Charge.—Our Sunday school is being well attended during summer months. Rev. R. L. Hethcox filled regular appointments with splendid sermons.

The third quarterly conference was held at Bethel church last Saturday. The votes for delegates to go to Annual Conference were counted. Mr. Clay Allen, of Union Chapel, was elected.

The annual homecoming and revival will be held the first Sunday in September. All our former pastors are cordially invited to be with us. We wish to ask all our former pastors and Christian people to join us in prayer for a great revival here this year.

Work has begun on the Sunday school rooms and we hope to have them finished by the homecoming day.

Since our last report the death angel has called two of our members home, namely Mr. B. L. Carter and Mrs. Mary Jane Howard. Mrs. Howard was our oldest member, aged 98.

We are sorry to learn here of the serious illness of Rev. W. M. Howard, who is in Statesville Hospital recuperating from an operation for appendicitis. We hope he may soon be able to be out again.

Concord, Saxapahaw Charge.—Our revival meeting began last Sunday and continued until Sunday evening. Rev. G. H. Enfield preached at the 11 o'clock service, using as his text, "Be sure your sins will find you out." Our pastor preached in the afternoon. Rev. A. D. Shelton, of St. Paul's M. P. church, Greensboro, came to be with us during the week. Brother Shelton brought to us some of the plain gospel truths during this meeting.

We appreciate very much the good work he did while he was with us. We also enjoyed having him in our homes. We give him a cordial welcome to come back any time he can. We are praying that our people will continue to live for God and to work for Him and not sit idle and let the good work of Brother Shelton die, but let it live on forever.

There were several of our church members who had fallen by the way that came back and reconsecrated their lives anew to God. We also had some new converts. The doors of the church will be opened Sunday morning at the regular appointment.

We were glad to welcome visitors from other churches at our services. Were glad to have Mr. and Mrs. Tom Coble, of Haw River, with us for one afternoon service, also Miss Livvie Bradshaw, of Salem church.

Our hearts were made sad this week at the passing of one of our members, Mrs. J. S. Pickard. Rev. W. M. Loy conducted the funeral, assisted by Rev. Mr. Shelton and Mr. Enfield. Our heartfelt sympathy goes out to the family in their loss.

Our church can now boast of a new coat of paint on the inside which has added greatly to the appearance of the church.

New Hope, Why Not Charge.—Our revival meeting began on the third Sunday in July and closed Friday night of the same week. Rev. C. H. Hill, the pastor, did all the preaching. His sermons were so inspiring and the church was aroused to a sense of duty not felt before for some time. The first part of the week his sermons were directly to the church and Christian people. On Wednesday and Thursday nights his sermons were for the unsaved. His sermons were the "Six Steps to the Throne," based on the visit of the Queen of Sheba to the temple of King Solomon, his subject being "Grandeur Without Godliness." On Friday at the afternoon service he held a "love feast," his sermon and all the songs being on "Love." Each one present was asked to break bread with others whom they loved or had been benefited by something said. It was a wonderful time.

On the fourth Sunday night we held our Children's Day exercise which had been delayed on account of the infantile paralysis throughout the country. Every one enjoyed the occasion and the children rendered their pieces well.

Next Saturday the circuit rally will be held at Pleasant Hill church. Every one who can is invited to attend this service. Bro. W. B. Moore, of Darlington, S. C., has written for a place on the program at this service with his band of singers.

I forgot to mention we had 13 known converts during the revival meeting.

I. Theme—Christian Leadership.

(a) Song—"Stand Up for Jesus."

(b) Devotional—Leader, Callene Phillips.

(c) President—Call to worship. "If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will and it shall be done unto you." John 15:7.

(d) Topics for Study.

2. Christian Citizenship—What It Means to Me," Mrs. Nellie Curtis.

(e) Duet—Mrs. H. F. Amick and Rebecca W. Causey.

(f) Business. During the business session it was decided to order worship programs and study material for our worship programs. We collected $7 toward our goal to raise money for our July meeting. Each month we try to have a different project to raise money. We also decided definitely upon a flower fund in case of a death in the immediate family of any member of our Auxiliary. We plan to hold our August meeting with Mrs. Andy Lineberry, who is too old to do active work in her circle.

(g) Song—Last verse of "My Country, 'Tis of Thee."

After the meeting adjourned the hostesses served a course of cantaloupe and ice cream which was delightfully enjoyed by every one. We want new members next month.

West End, Greensboro.—After a vacation of several weeks and a number of inquiries as to where the reporter was, decided best thing to do was to let you know that West End is still going, if not so strong, in this heat!

During the prevalence of infantile paralysis our Junior, Primary and Beginners' departments were closed and of course attendance dropped off in all departments, but there was a noticeable increase in the whole church last Sunday.

Our pastor has been very considerate of our comfort during these hot Sundays, just giving us the best part of the service, his sermon, and dispensing with very much ritual or music. His thoughtfulness is appreciated, I am sure.

Dr. Bethea finished his series of sermons on "The Life of Christ" and characteristics of some of the disciples on Sunday evening, July 28. Each one of these proved to be enlightening and beneficial. On Sunday morning his subject was "Man's Crowning Desire," John 12:21, "We would see Jesus." Among other things he said the business of the church was to present Christ as man's crowning desire. At the evening service every one joined in the singing of old hymns and the pastor gave a short history of each.

Circle No. 1 met in the afternoon, August 5, with Mrs. M. H. Waynick, with 10 members present. Plans were made for raising funds for anniversary gift and a period of fellowship was enjoyed.

Circle No. 2 met Monday evening with Mrs. V. C. Stockard, 107 Granite Street. Eleven were present. Noteworthy was the number of visits and other social service work done during the past month. They also made plans to raise their apportionment for anniversary day.

A number of recreational outings have been taken by different organizations of our young people, supervised by a committee composed of Mr. L. W. Routh, Sunday school superintendent; L. M. Foust, and Dr. N. G. Bethea. Those members of the Young People's Choir who have scored a required number of points for choral work during the past year are being given a trip to the beach this week-end.

The percentage column stands this week just where it stood in our last issue. But we are serving notice on all who stand still that it is not a safe position to be in. Somebody else is anxious for first place in this column of honor and unless those at the top move on somebody will come along and shove them out of their position.

And now let us look at the receipts of this week. While it is true that there was no change in the names of the charges in the column of honor yet there was some money sent in we are glad to say. And if we had a dozen or two like the one that heads the list, how it would make us smile! Rev. C. B. Way, the pastor of Flat Rock charge wrote us early in the week to reserve first place in the receipts column of this week for him as he thought he could qualify. At the last minute he brought in his contribution and it was a life-saver. It is the kind that makes business managers smile for it is the kind that pays the bills. Now this is what we have been looking for for weeks. Early in the year we had lots of such folks but the most of them went into summer quarters. We are glad they are beginning to come out again.

Brother Way's contribution is followed by two of equal rank, namely that of Rev. G. B. Ferree and that of Rev. D. R. Williams. Thanks, a lot, to both of you. Then Rev. H. L. Isley, Rev. G. L. Curry and Mrs. E. S. Taylor follow with more than one subscription. And while we appreciate the larger amounts we want to say that we greatly appreciate the smaller amounts. Enough of these will pay the bill.

Our receipts this week amount to $45.91, all on subscriptions.

In our final message about finances this week, let us say that we need badly some subsidy as well as subscriptions. You folks that are boasting about everything being paid up-to-date except the Herald Subsidy come on and pay that. We need it and need it badly.

Who Will Come to the Rescue?

Ordinarily we do not bring the financial matters of the HERALD to this page; however, we feel that we are justified in doing so this week. Our nice bank balance of last winter has diminished until this week it will practically be wiped out. We cannot cut expenses. The editor, who is also the business manager, works for nothing, and the bookkeeper gets only four dollars a week. The printing contract is so low we are afraid to mention it. And yet our expenses amount to around $80.00 each week. It would seem strange to be trying to pay the printers through the McCulloch Memorial Fund and at the same time run up another bill. Our solution of the problem lies in subscriptions and subsidy. Let everybody come to the rescue.

Editorial Crowded Out

In order to use as much as possible of the material we have on hand this week we are giving over most of the editorial page to other articles. We will content ourselves with a few brief notes. The prospect now is that we will be largely caught up with material after this week. We like to have plenty of material on hand, for we need it in balancing up the paper. Our correspondents will please be patient with us at times when material is crowded out.

We Cannot Share the Joy

One pastor wrote this week that he was glad his report was crowded out last week because it was unsatisfactory to him and asked that his new report be substituted for the old one. The reason we cannot share the joy with him is that it costs money to set type and it seems a pity to throw away type after it is set up. The better way would be to allow it to be used the next week and then later to follow up with any omissions that might have been in the first article.

Children's Home Anniversary Celebration Called Off

We call attention to the article from Dr. A. G. Dixon, Superintendent of our Children's Home, saying the formal observance of the 25th anniversary of the founding of the Home has been called off on account of the prevalence of the infantile paralysis. We are sorry this had to be done, but we trust that people will send their offering to the Home just the same.

H. A. Garrett Very Ill

Brother H. A. Garrett, the former Superintendent of our Children's Home at High Point, who suffered a stroke of paralysis while visiting in the home of his father-in-law, Rev. T. F. McCulloch, several weeks ago, is now critically ill at his home on R. F. D. 1, Burlington. Practically all hope for his recovery has been abandoned.

Rev. W. M. Howard Out of Hospital

Rev. W. M. Howard, the pastor of Moriah charge, who was operated on for appendicitis in a Statesville hospital two weeks ago, has gone to the home of his parents near Mocksville. We trust he may soon be well again.

Our New Church at Fallston

We are pleased to present on our cover page a picture of the church at Fallston which is being torn down to make way for a new and more serviceable building. Also we are glad to reprint the following article, taken from a Shelby newspaper, which gives some very interesting facts concerning the organiaztion, the old church and the plans for the new building. We congratulate the pastor, Rev. H. F. Fogleman, and all the members of this church on their determination to build a house of worship which will meet the needs of our people in that important center. May they succeed abundantly! Now read what the paper says:

"An event of historic significance in the religious life of Cleveland will occur Sunday evening when the last public services will be held in Old Friendship M. P. church at Fallston, first church to be established there, and the building in which the early Baptists of that community met under the leadership of Rev. Thomas A. Dixon, father of the writer, Tom Dixon, Jr.

"The old church will be salvaged and a new building will be erected, situated in part upon the site of the present building.

"In many respects the church is one of the landmarks of Fallston. The nucleus of the present school system of Fallston was organized and once housed in this building. The early Baptists met in this church for worship under the leadership of the late Rev. T. A. Dixon, distinguished Baptist leader, thus bringing to pass a unity between the present Baptist congregation in Fallston.

"One of the most interesting facts concerning the individual life of the church grows out of the fact that the late Noah Wright served the church as Sunday school superintendent for 66 consecutive years. He also left a legacy which is now being used to assist in building the new church. The church now has a membership of approximately 400.

"The influence of the church has gone out through its own denomination. It now has four members actively engaged in the ministry of the M. P. church: Rev. J. D. Morris, Pinnacle, N. C.; Rev. C. E. Morris, Danville, Va.; Rev. E. A. Bingham, Denton, N. C.; and Rev. P. E. Bingham, Matthews, N. C.

"The fellowship that exists between the three churches in Fallston is indicated by the nature of the program to be rendered Sunday night. Lloyd Wilson will represent the Methodist Episcopal church, South, and Mrs. W. F. Hamrick will bring a message from the local Baptist church.

"Rev. E. A. Bingham, of Davidson, who recently assisted in a successful revival held in the church, will also have a part on the program, as will all local ministers who may find it possible to be present."—The Cleveland Star, Shelby, N. C.

Dr. and Mrs. N. G. Bethea in Asheville

Dr. and Mrs. N. G. Bethea, accompanied by their daughter, Mrs. Wilcox and Miss Blanche Hardee, of Halifax county, are in Asheville this week. Dr. Bethea will be preaching each evening in revival services in our church. He considers this his vacation.

I WAS SURPRISED

When I got back from spending a few days with my folks up at Weaverville, I found some mail here that came after the forwarding date expired. In the mail I found two letters with checks in them, checks made out to me, but which belong to the McCulloch Fund. And I was surprised. I had decided that all the springs had dried up, when, lo and behold, somebody struck a rock—instead of throwing one—and the waters gushed forth. Tabernacle sends in their first remittance to this fund, and Orange Chapel, on Saxapahaw, adds a little to their apportionment. And so we have gone over the $1,800 mark.

I hope these two remittances are an earnest of good things to come, and that from now on the money will begin to come in again until the whole amount is raised.

In the Herald of September 5 I shall run the apportionments and the amounts paid by each charge to date. This for your encouragement, elucidation and edification. (How's that for big words?)

The fund stands as follows:

Previously reported	$1,781.33
Orange Chapel, Saxapahaw, additional	2.75
Tabernacle, Tabernacle	25.00
Total to date	$1,809.08

WHAT THE BIBLE SAYS ABOUT MOUNTAINS

By Rev. T. M. Johnson, D. D.

"I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help" (Psa. 121:1) is suggestive as to how the mountains shall appear to us when viewed with the minds and through the eyes of Bible speakers and writers—things helpful.

Mountains, the third and last of the suggested Three Graces. Whether we think in these studies of the Three Graces according to the mythological idea of physical beauty and grace of attitude (origin of the Three Graces), or according to the theological idea of grace as unmerited favor, the rivers, the seas, and the mountains seem to fit into the thinking. River scenery, sea and lake scenery, and mountain scenery afford much of the beauty and charm of the big outdoors. So also the three rank high among the inanimate benefactors of man and beast. In nature's great watering system, rivers are the aqueducts, seas are the reservoirs, mountains have an important part in lifting the moisture to the clouds. "They (the waters) go up by the mountains; they go down by the valleys unto the place which thou hast founded for them. . . . They give drink to every beast of the field: the wild asses quench their thirst." Psa. 104:8, 11.

Men Meet God in the Mountains

It seems innate in man, a sort of intuition, that a good place to meet God is the mountains. It may be that at least in part the idea was to get away from people into seclusion, and the mountains afforded a good opportunity for this. But that was not all. The elevation of the mountains tended to elevate the thought of man—up where God was thought to be.

We find indications of this human instinct outside the Bible. Buddha hied away among the hills and into the jungle in his search for religious satisfaction. Japan has her religiously sacred mountains, the most noted of which is Fujiyama. The Greeks believed their Zeus and other celestial gods dwelt on snow-capped, cloud-crowned Mount Olympus, in a sunny realm above the clouds. Mohammedan pilgrims to Mecca are wont to spend one night in the holy mountain Muzdalifa nearby. If the above throws light on the meaning of what the Bible says about mountains, well. If not, the reader is asked to pass it by unnoted.

Moses went upon Mount Sinai to receive the law (Ex. 19:11). Elijah entered a contest with the prophets of Baal on Mount Carmel (1 Kings 18:20), and fled from the fury of Jezebel to Mount Horeb and met God there (1 Kings 19:8). Met God in the mountain, to be sure, but in the soul of Elijah was the meeting—"a still small voice" (verse 12). The significant phrase, "a still small voice," marks progress in the evolution of prophecy through revelation, and to my thinking throws a flood of light on how God inspired the men who wrote the Scriptures. It should be noted that this Horeb is the same mountain at which God appeared unto Moses in the burning bush (Ex. 3:1), called here, "the mountain of God, even Horeb."

The practice of Jesus going into the mountains gave tremendous emphasis to the phase of mountain beneficence here now being considered. "He went up into a mountain" to preach the greatest sermon ever recorded. Matt. 5:1. "And Jesus went up into a mountain, and there he sat with his disciples," perhaps for conference. John 6:3. "And when he had sent them away, he departed into a mountain to pray." Mk. 6:46. "Jesus taketh Peter, James, and John his brother, and bringeth them up into a high mountain apart, and was transfigured before them." Matt. 17:1, 2. After His resurrection, "Then the eleven disciples went away into Galilee, into a mountain where Jesus had appointed them, and when they saw him, they worshiped him." Matt. 28:16, 17.

The Two Great Mountain Peaks

The two greatest though not highest if measured in feet as mountain peaks usually are. But if measured in thought-units, instead of foot-units, I am persuaded the two now to be considered tower higher toward heaven than any others in the world.

Mount Sinai

The readers of this article, if there are such, are invited to read devoutly the entire 19th chapter of Exodus, noting the majesty and dignity of the communication between heaven and earth in preparation for handing down and passing out the greatest legal code that has ever been written. In In this and what followed heaven reached farther down and earth reached higher up than ever before. Hence measured in units of the principles here involved, Sinai is the highest mountain peak in the world. Note that it was not a matter merely between God and Moses, but the multitude of the people were brought in. "And Moses brought forth the people out of the camp to meet with God; and they stood at the nether part of the mountain." Ex. 19:17.

"So that all the people . . . trembled . . . and the whole mountain quaked greatly." Verses 16, 18. Evidently it was an awe-inspiring scene. In view of the principles set forth in that legal code and of present conditions, I am wondering if it would not be a wholesome thing in our day if it could be truthfully said: "All the people tremble."

Mount Hermon

Is said to be the highest in feet and most prominent in appearance of all the mountains of Palestine. The Psalmist writes: "The north and the south thou hast created them: Tabor and Hermon shall rejoice in thy name." Psa. 89:12. Again in the gem setting forth the beauty of brotherly love (Psa. 133) the writer says such love among men is as the dew of Hermon, and as the dew that descended upon the mountains of Zion." Psa. 133:3.

But that which makes Mount Hermon tower toward heaven alongside of Sinai is that it was here our Lord was transfigured. It is interesting to note with what calmness the Gospel writers narrate this most wonderful event in the life of Jesus. They state it in a simple way as though it had been just an ordinary occurrence. Of course, neither of the three that have written the record of it was present to witness it. The account of it may be read in Matt. 17:1-8, Mark 9:2-8, Luke 9:28-36.

I shrink from making any comment or offering any interpretation. Luke in verse 28 tells the purpose in going into the mountain. In verse 29 he tells what Jesus was doing, and in verse 32 what the favored three disciples were doing when the marvelous experience came. In verse 31 he tells what the two heavenly visitors and Jesus talked about.

To the reader I suggest that you read the account of it and ponder. Read again and ponder. And again read and ponder and receive the heavenly impression.

"Heaven comes down our souls to greet,
And glory crowns the mercy seat."

SCHOOL OF INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS

By Rev. S. W. Taylor, D. D.

Article IV

Dr. Elbert Russell, dean of the school of religion, Duke University, discussed in four lectures "The Heart of the Christian Message."

In discussing this subject, Dr. Russell made it forcefully clear that the kingdom that Christ came to establish in the world is a kingdom of peace, and that the spirit, purpose and program of this kingdom is totally at variance with war. War engenders hate. Booker Washington said, "The greatest harm any man can do me is to cause me to hate him." "We cannot," Dr. Russell declared, "keep up our large national armament program without making the people hate somebody. Jesus came not to give the world hate, which makes for war; but love, which makes for peace. The heart of the Christian message is love, and love worketh no evil among nations as it does not among individuals."

Patriotism, Dr. Russell declared, does not find its highest expression in war. But that it does is a mistaken conception by many, he thinks, as reflected by the answer of a large number of school children to the question, "What is patriotism?" The answer was, "Fighting for your country." Patriotism, according to Dr. Russell, concerns itself with the highest welfare of the people, and the highest welfare of the people is not found in war. Therefore, the highest type of patriotism is not in fighting for one's country.

Dr. Russell does not find in the Christian message a sanction of peace by armament. Nor does he find it in philosophy or the actual experiences of nations. For many years prior to 1914 Germany had developed a powerful "mailed fist"; but instead of maintaining peace it precipitated war. National armaments create, the speaker declared, a bullying attitude, and such an attitude is a sure provoker of war. He cited illustrations of nations going into peace meetings, rattling sabers and shaking swords in the face of other nations. It is easy to see how such meetings engender more war than peace. The greatest security for peace, he declared, is not in arma-

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord.

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

Twenty-five Years

How long a time is that? It is long enough for three generations of Bunny Rabbits to grow up and die with old age. It is the lifetime of two generations of collies; but few horses live longer. A human being reaches his maturity in 25 years; 25 years of married life brings the silver anniversary to the couple. The Children's Home is 25 years old. Twenty-five years of constant service—relieving helpless children of the hardships incident to poverty, incident to an orphan life. During these years hundreds of boys and girls have gone out from this Home to battle with the hard realities of life fortified for the struggle by the nurture received here. The Home has been a blessing to all who have entered it; it has been a richer blessing to some than to others because some had a better attitude towards what it offered than others. But the record of its deeds is golden because it has been a blessing to the state, to the church and to the individual. Now we have an opportunity to show our appreciation of what has been done. How shall we do it? We can say beautiful things about it, but remembering 1 Cor. 13:1, we will not stop there. Let's bring our gifts, the gifts of love, to it on the 22nd of August. The minimum should be a penny for each year of your age; but if you are able, make a silver offering, a dime for each year from some will be the measure of their love. And there will be others who employ another standard of giving, but whatever we do or give, let it express our love and appreciation of the splendid services the Children's Home has rendered helpless children in all those 25 years.

Do You Pay the Tithe to the Lord's Work?

Of the pastors' reports received up to date a majority of them say they expect to join in the tithing campaign we are putting on the 18th of August to run through October. If these pastors receive anything like a half-hearted support in this they will receive more than enough money to finish paying the conference claims and the pastors' salaries for the year.

While it is true we have no rich members in the North Carolina Conference, many do not so much as own their homes, yet were our people to give systematically to the Lord they would not suffer and the causes to which they contributed would have an abundance. Too bad we talk about this matter much more than we act. Our professed faith fails to materialize in works and so the whole cause goes by default.

Do you remember our plan proposed recently, to begin laying aside the tithe the 18th instant, continuing until the last Sunday in October? To apply the incomes therefrom to the Annual Conference claims, pastor's salary and World Service until these goals are met? We hope we can have in the HERALD during the next few issues statements from the reporters as to what extent our people are joining in the effort. Some of our churches tithed last spring and will not join in now, but the majority of them did not. These we especially ask to participate now.

Those Group Meetings

A careful study of our churches has convinced me that we are in need of a larger enlistment of our church members in the work of the church. We have members enough with means enough to support in a splendid manner all the projects of our boards and institutions. While we do not have any members of great wealth in the North Carolina Conference, and do have a large number who do not even own their homes, yet with those of moderate means contributing in even small amounts to our churches we would have enough and to spare to carry on our conference program. We repeat, the problem before our conference is to enlist enough of our unenlisted people to accomplish this. It can be done, and if done, it would not call for any larger contributions of those now contributing, while many of our people by no means give as much as they could well afford to give. And if we could get the hearty support of those now supporting the conference program in our efforts to reach the unreached in this phase of the work, we could do this in a short time. That is, if our official members who really support the church program would themselves become interested in enlisting the 75 or 80 per cent of the members of their churches in some phase of the work of the church, what we are seeking to do in the group meeting would be accomplished without even holding the group meetings. That explains our purpose in these meetings. We shall be glad to stage one at any of your churches; we have several men who will gladly co-operate in putting these programs on. It is your move now, beloved.

Mitchell's Grove, Guilford Circuit
Rev. T. A. Williams, Pastor

We visited this church last Sunday. The pastor has been ill for several weeks but was able to attend the services. A very good attendance was present. I notice an enrollment of Sunday school as 92 and present 87; that is very fine. Two Sunday school rooms have been added since I visited this church last year, which must greatly help the work of the school. We have some very fine people in this church, people who are loyal to the denomination, and we believe they will put Mitchell's Grove on the honor roll this year. This church has already paid apportionment for A. C. expenses and Superannuates; Fairfield, Vickery and Hickory Grove have paid apportionment for A. C. expenses also; Fairfield and Hickory Grove apportionment for Superannuates; Hickory Grove has paid church extension and A. C. debt retirement. Pastor Williams is eager to get back into the work of the pastorate and we ask the prayers of all our people that he may speedily recover his health. There is no more loyal, faithful pastor in our conference than Brother Williams.

CHILDREN'S HOME DAY

We have looked forward to Children's Home Day this year with fond anticipations for several reasons.

First, this is the 25th year of service for the Home, and we were anxious to have our friends come in great numbers on that day to celebrate with us and to rejoice with us in recounting some of the accomplishments of the Home during its first quarter century.

Second, we were anxious to have you here in great numbers to see the children who are now in the Home, to hear them sing, and to hear some good speeches by those chosen to deliver the addresses.

Third, we wanted, as nearly as possible, every one who was reared in the Home to come back and mingle with each other once more on the familiar grounds, and we wanted some of these to sing and speak to the people.

Fourth, our children especially were looking forward to eating chicken and pie and cake and other good things with you. They will miss it greatly.

Fifth, we were, and are still, looking to that day for a great financial uplift to the Home. A good start has been made on that, as you will see in the financial report this week. Most of it has come from without the N. C. Conference. But we know the churches in the conference are working and that great things are coming. Somehow God will help us to get "Twenty-five Thousand Dollars During This Twenty-fifth Year of Service." The 22nd of August will help to tell the story.

With Regrets

Lest our great care for six weeks and more be set at naught by a large gathering in August, our medical advisers, especially the Guilford county health officer, have directed that we call off the meeting for this summer. They say "postpone the meeting," but by the time we could hold it late in September so many other things will be in the way that it seems wise to call it off for this summer.

The Oxford Orphanage had to call off their annual meeting, and the Mills Home had to call off their fiftieth anniversary meeting. A number of family reunions have recently been called off, and President Roosevelt has just called off the National Scout Jamboree which was to have met in Washington August 21 to 30. All this has been done lest some child or young person get the infantile paralysis.

The Birthday Offering

We believe you will respond just as liberally with the birthday offering and send it to us as you would if you could come and bring it to us. The greatest disappointment will be to the children here, so to what you were planning to send for their benefit add the extra that you would gladly put into a dinner for them and into gasoline to get you here. Help us to make it up to the children with something extra on that day, such as a watermelon feast or a weiner roast, or something extra beyond the regular routine meals.

It is with very deep regret that we call off this meeting for which we have planned for months, but if through such a gathering a child should take infantile paralysis the general public would not easily forgive us.

Pray for us that all of us, workers and children, may be able to bear the strain of a shut-in summer, and come out of it sweet-spirited. We thank you for your continued interest. Send your offerings to us on or about the 22nd. Thank you.

Faithfully yours in His service,

A. G. Dixon, Superintendent.

ment, but in a right spiritual basis, and the gospel message of the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man supplies that basis.

As an illustration of the spirit and working of the kingdom of God, which is civilization's only hope of security, Dr. Russell made much of the family spirit and practice. The family, he said, is most like the kingdom of God; and as the world becomes imbued with the family spirit and adopts the family practice, the brotherhood that Jesus came to establish will become more and more in evidence. The very characteristics of the family make this evident. The family is built on love, co-operation, unselfishness, kindness. Consequently there is no place in the family for competition. The law of the family is that the strong must bear the infirmities of the weak, which is certainly the law of God's spiritual kingdom. In the old civilizations of the Far East, as China and Japan, this family law is so well established that in these countries the family has become the oldest and most secure social system. Both China and Japan lean on the family for social, political, and industrial security. A striking contrast was made by the speaker between the security of business and the security of the family. Ninety-five per cent of all business ventures end in failure, he declared. That per cent of family failures would startle us. The thing that makes the family secure above business is the principle upon which the family is founded. If we want to find what is most secure in national civilization, we will find it in Jesus' teaching of the Kingdom of Heaven, the speaker declared, and the family is the most perfect illustration of the spirit and practice of that Kingdom, as it applies to social relationships. And just as the Kingdom principle, as it works in the family, can be made operative in society, will peace and good will be loved, and war hated.

WHO IS YOUR DELEGATE?

As Secretary of the Conference I should like to know. Will the pastors please help me find out by sending me a postal card with the following information on it: Name of delegate, delegate's address, charge, pastor. That's enough. And it won't take long to do it. And I'm asking you to do it as soon as the third quarterly conference is held. Many of them have already been held. You need not send a card to Dr. Andrews. I will furnish him with a list.

OUR STORY PAGE

A SISTER'S INFLUENCE

Some years ago, as I sat on the piazza of a summer hotel, I noticed among the crowd a party of young people, two or three pretty girls, and as many bright young men, all waiting for the mail.

"Oh, dear!" said the prettiest of the girls impatiently, "why don't they hurry? Are you expecting a letter, Mr. Allison?" and she turned to a tall youth standing near.

He smiled. "I'll get one surely," he said. "It's my day. Just this particular letter always comes. Nell is awfully good; she's my sister, you know, and no fellow ever had a better one."

The pretty girl laughed, saying, as he received his letter: "Harry would think he was blessed if I wrote once a year."

Gradually the others drifted away, but Frank Allison kept his place, scanning eagerly the closely written sheets, now and again laughing quietly. Finally, he slipped the letter into his pocket, and, rising, saw me.

"Good morning, Miss Williams," he said, cordially, for he always had a pleasant word for us older people, as well as the young.

"Good news?" I questioned, smiling.

"My sister's letters always bring good news," he answered.

And, unfolding this one, he read me scraps of it—bright nothings, with here and there a little sentence full of sisterly love and earnestness. There was a steady light in his eyes, as half apologizing for boring me, he looked up and said quietly: "Miss Williams, if I ever make anything of a man, it will be Sister Nell's doing."

And, as I looked at him, I felt strongly what a mighty power Sister Nell held in her hands—just a woman's hands, like yours, dear girls, and perhaps no stronger or better; but it made me wonder how many girls stop to consider how they are using their influence over these boys, growing so fast toward manhood, unworthy or noble, as the sisters choose.

There is but one way, dear girls; begin at once, while they are still the little boys of the home circle, ready to come to sister with anything. Let them feel that you love them. The great, honest boy hearts are both tender and loyal, and if you stand by these lads now, while they are neither boys nor men, while they are awkward and heedless, they will remember it when they become the courteous, polished gentlemen you desire to see them. Do not snub them. Nothing hurts a loving boy soul more than a snub, and nothing more effectually closes the boy-heart than thoughtless ridicule.

Have patience, girls—that gentle patience whose perfect work will surely win the smile of the Master, who grants to all who do the Father's will that you shall be his sister, and for the sake of Him who dignified with His divine touch these earthly relationships, shall we not be more tender, more patient, more loving with these sensitive, great-hearted lads who call us sister, and remember the wise man who said: "Shall the woman who guards not a brother be lightly trusted with husband or son?"—Reformed Church Record.

HOW LITTLE WILLIE PREACHED

I have heard of a little lad who loved the Lord and wanted to be a preacher, but felt he was too young—too little.

"When I get a big man," said he, "I mean to be a preacher."

"And what kind of preacher do you intend to be?" asked his mother, looking at him fondly.

"What kind of preacher?" repeated Willie. "Oh, like the one we heard last night! He took a text—a lot of texts—and 'splained them, and he gave out hymns and prayed, and then got off the platform and shook hands all round."

"And so that's your idea of a preacher, is it?" said his mother, laughing. "Well, Willie, you're not quite up to that yet, but still you're not too young to preach."

"But I can't 'splain texts, Mother."

"Can't you explain this one?" said she, as she opened her Bible and read: "Be ye kind one to another" (Eph. 4:32).

"But there's nuffin to 'splain in that text—it just means what it says, Be kind to everybody."

"It does, but it needs to be explained. Now, just you take it as your text, and preach from it, and explain it by being kind to everybody. Try it for a week, dear boy. Show people what it means. Jesus will help you in your preaching."

"I wasn't thinking of that kind of preaching," replied Willie. "But," added he, after a pause, "I think I'll try it, and I'll ask Jesus to help me. I'll start at once, Mother."

And Willie did. He started right away.

At school he thought, "It's kind to attend to what teacher is teaching us, and not to get whispering. Teacher so wants us to learn." At play he thought, "It's kind to be pleasant, and to play fair, and not to get vexed if losing the game." At home, when his mother sent him on an errand, he thought, "It's kind to mother to be quick, and not to loll about looking in at the shop windows, or playing with other boys. And then," said he to himself, as the thought came, "there's that box of chocolates in my drawer. It will be kind to give it to sick Mary, who is so poor that she can't buy any for herself." Thus, during the week, Willie preached from his text, as he thought of a dozen other kind things he could do.

At the end of the week his mother said, with a smile, "Well, my little preacher, and how have you been getting on with your preaching—have you been explaining your text?"

"I think so, Mother, for Jesus helped me. I've asked Him every morning to do so. And, oh! Mother," Willie burst out saying, "do you know that everybody, or nearly everybody, I've met seems to have been preaching from the same text, for everybody has been so kind to me."

"That," said his mother, "shows how well you have explained your text, and how successfully you have preached from it, and shown what it means. People have been impressed by your preaching." . . .

When Willie grew to be a man, he did become a most useful preacher of the Word of God. But Willie never forgot the lesson his dear mother taught him: that if he would be a really successful preacher, and explain the truth to others, he must practice what he preached.

"By manifestation of the truth," said Paul, "commending ourselves to every man's conscience in the sight of God" (II Cor. 4:2).—Gospel Stories for the Young.

This makes a good start on the silver offering for August 22. Every offering is greatly appreciated. A dear lady scarcely known to us from a little church in a little conference sent her personal check for $500. Happy? You should have seen us when we opened the letter. God bless her and may her tribe increase.

About the same time I was handed a box which had been given to my wife, and when I looked I found 25 big, full grown silver dollars with the following note inclosed: "These 25 silver dollars, our silver anniversary gift, show in a small way our appreciation and gratitude for the work which has been and is being done in our M. P. Children's Home which was begun in Denton in 1910. May God richly bless each worker and each child in the Home. Signed, Mrs. C. L. K., Pres., Ladies' Aid Society." Our hearts are already lightened as we anticipate similar happy and liberal responses from all the churches in the conference and from many dear friends outside the conference.

The 22nd day of August, 1935, is destined to be a great day, a day long to be remembered in the history of our Children's Home. A great birthday offering from every church in the conference is our expectation.

That Picture of the Children

The pictures are here ready for you. Every church whose families contribute 100 per cent to the birthday offering is entitled to a picture. Pastors will please let me know promptly if you have a church on your charge with every family contributing. That, of course, means the families you know how to locate. We thank you and may God bless every one of you.

A. G. DIXON, Superintendent.

FROM BROTHER MOORE

Dear Editor:

We have had such a fine trip to Pleasant Hill, Why Not circuit, I would like to mention it in the Herald.

I have been a subscriber to the Methodist Protestant Herald for over 20 years and I cannot be without it. I call it a letter from home. While I hold my membership in a little church on the Why Not circuit called Macedonia, I am away down here in South Carolina in the shingle business with the Lord as my partner and having a happy time step by step.

We had such a wonderful trip August 3 to Pleasant Hill, Why Not circuit, to the annual rally day it is too good not to tell. As I made mention of the good time we always have on those days, why certainly our choir wanted to go. We got busy and hired us a school bus and soon 28 were ready to go. We started from Darlington about 6:30 and a few minutes before 10 we got there.

All were thirsty but soon our thirst was quenched when we found the cool spring of water which needs no ice. This was interesting to us from the south to drink from this cold spring of water that we never see at home. Then in a short while the people gathered and the air was rich with songs and speeches and prayers and talks from the most talented bunch of children I ever heard in my life, and the wonderful memory of the older ones. It made us feel we were sitting in heavenly places. The leader of our choir said they were the most enlightened children she ever saw. Surely the parents and teachers of these wonderful children are happy to have them in their care. It seemed to me the noon hour came too soon, for we were having such a good time. But the long table was well filled, everybody filled and plenty left. Then in a short while we gathered for the evening service and it, too, was great. Space will not allow us to mention everybody but Russell Williams, president of this rally, and his co-workers made us feel so welcome. We cannot express in words our appreciation to Pleasant Hill, New Hope, Flag Springs and New Zion for their excellent program. At the close we called on the president of our singing choir, Mr. D. Carl Cook, a man with a great big heart, and he was so filled with the Spirit that he just made us feel it was good to be there. Then our very, very talented leader of the young people, Mr. Owen Weatherly, an excellent Christian young man, expressed the appreciation of the good day in very touching words. Then the lonesome time came when we must say good-bye, but on route back, with the safe, sane and sober driver, Mr. Helms, we came home safely, filled with delicious peaches and ice cream. We want to thank him too for being so careful. We just want to go again.

W. D. MOORE.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

MRS. J. E. PRITCHARD, Editor

GRACE CHURCH AUXILIARY TO PRESENT PAGEANT

Grace church Auxiliary, under the supervision of Mrs. M. D. Stout, secretary of benevolences, will present a pageant, "The Lighted Highway," on Monday night, August 19, at 8 o'clock in the Sunday school assembly room.

There will be special music, also a talk on stewardship and tithing by Dr. Harris Glascock, our state secretary of benevolences.

The pageant will then be given. It is splendid and well worth your time to see it, if near enough to attend. All are welcome.

The offering will go to the Children's Home for their 25th anniverasry on August 22. May we each one do our best to swell the treasury. A penny for each year old is not asking much from one person, but all those birthday pennies will make thousands of dollars to relieve the indebtedness on our Children's Home, which is so dear to every true-hearted Methodist Protestant. The beauty in the simplicity of the pennies is that even the tiny little ones, also the young, the old, the good provider, he poor provider, the rich, the poor may all share in this donation. Then all alike can say, "I had a part in that grand birthday celebration to help Dr. and Mrs. Dixon care for their big family in the Home."

Folks! Give, give, and give more than your years old, and if it must be a sacrifice, then make that sacrifice. You will gain a blessing of Him who said, "Inasmuch . . ."

MRS. J. M. STONE.

CHILDREN'S HOME ANNIVERSARY

The 22nd of August will soon be here. In fact this week is the last week we have to urge you to do your part in this anniversary celebration of our Children's Home. Let every one see to it that we have in our anniversary box one penny for each year of our life and as many more as is possible. Last week the special anniversary number carried splendid articles from both men and women, friends of the Home. All they said was true and all they asked we could do. Let's express ourselves in dollars and take them if possible, making the day a great success for the children, superintendent and ourselves.

MARY JANE ROSS WRITES HER FIRST LETTER

Little Miss Mary Jane Ross, the six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Ross, of Asheboro, while visiting her cousin recently wrote her first letter. Here is what she said: "Dear Mother and Daddie: I am having a great time. We went fishing and caught two little fish. The chickens ate them. Love to all. Mary Jane."

We consider this a very good letter for one who has not yet gone to school. And the handwriting was more legible than some that we receive from older people.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Mission Band, Gideon's Grove Church.—The Mission Band of Gideon's Grove church, Flat Rock charge, held its regular monthly meeting Saturday, August 3, at the parsonage. The program committee, composed of Maurice Gordon and Helen Angel, directed a very interesting program. After the program the meeting went into business session and election of officers was held. The following were elected: Maurice Gordon, president; Helen Angel, secretary; Doris Lemons, treasurer; Mildred Way, pianist. The sick committee elected as follows: Miller Angel, Mary Adell Preston and Orelia Friddle.

Our leader, Mrs. C. B. Way, decided to resign at the meeting. We all regretted so much to give her up that she agreed to take a rest and then take up the work again when she was feeling better. Mrs. Sam Lemmons was chosen to act as leader during Mrs. Way's absence. We are all ready to stand by Mrs. Lemons and work for her as we did for Mrs. Way. The meeting adjourned to meet with Helen Angel in September.

A delightful social hour was enjoyed. A guessing contest was held and Doris Angel was the winner. Delicious refreshments were served.

We held a lawn party at the parsonage on Saturday, July 20, the receipts were $15.90.

Gibsonville.—Our pastor, Rev. Mr. Stubbins, will assist Rev. Mr. Curry, pastor of Tabernacle church near Greensboro, in a revival meeting there beginning August 4.

Our primary Sunday school department continues closed on account of infantile paralysis.

The Young Ladies' Missionary Society held their July meeting at the home of Mrs. Walter Petty. Their topic was Christian stewardship. This is a very active organization of the church and is doing a great work. The Woman's Auxiliary held their business meeting Wednesday evening, July 24, at the home of Mrs. George Yow with a large attendance. The Girls' Bible Class with their teacher, Mrs. B. B. Greeson, held their class meeting Tuesday evening, July 23, at the home of Miss Jeanne Owen. This class as well as all the other classes are always thinking and planning of beautiful ways to help carry on the work of the Kingdom. At this meeting they decided to make tiny umbrellas that would hold lots of money to increase their treasury.

We are always glad to have visitors in our church and Sunday school. Sunday morning we had with us Miss Ruby Green, from Asheville, N. C. She is the guest of her sister, Miss Lillie Mae Rountree. Mr. Paylor was carried to St. Leo's Hospital, Greensboro, for an operation. Mrs. F. G. Hamner is sick at her home on Burlington Road. Mrs. Irene Zimmerman has returned home from Rainey Hospital, Burlington, much improved. We are hoping for them all a speedy recovery.

Our church and Sunday school are planning to remember the Children's Home, High Point, with a large donation on their 25th anniversary the 22nd of August.

Sunday morning, August 2, our church voted to give our pastor a four weeks' vacation at the time he wishes to take it. Rev. Mr. Stubbins has been doing a great work in our church and in our city and we pray God's richest blessing upon him and upon our church. MRS. CORA ALLEN, Reporter.

Creswell Charge.—Since our last report our charge has suffered greatly in the passing of two of its most loyal members, that of D. I. Davenport, an elderly man, and of Abram Jennings Davenport, a young man of only 26 years. Both of these men will be greatly missed in their respective churches.

In our former report we should have said that Bro. D. I. Davenport had made a provision prior to his passing that will now enable his home church, Mt. Hermon, to have a new roof of first-class material. This will cause this church to be finished anew completely. Having recently been painted outside, and this week will be completely refinished on the inside through the efficient work of the Ladies' Aid.

At this time we are still under quarantine and therefore unable to put on any extensive programs of church work. We are still able to get the adults to attend the regular services, but when the children are absent it seems that much of the service is also lacking. We trust the quarantine can soon be safely lifted and we can work in a normal way again. L. E. MABRY.

Asheville.—I wonder if others missed the Herald as much as we did here in Asheville. Our members really look forward to its arrival, and I heard several say they had missed it this last week; but we are all mighty glad Dr. Pritchard and the publishers could have one week's vacation, and especially since it was such a hot week, at least it was here.

Last Saturday afternoon was ideal picnic weather and those who were able to go certainly enjoyed the general Sunday school picnic which was held at Bent Creek. Several were unable to go for various reasons, and they were missed. We hope for better luck next time.

There was a pretty fair crowd out on Sunday for church and Sunday school. Our children are coming back by degrees, but they are coming back. There is some illness around, we regret to report. Miss Frances Cunningham, Mr. Sam Hendrickson, Miss Polly Gentry and Betty Jane Pratt are all on the sick list. We do hope and pray each of these will soon be restored to their normal health.

I do wish to mention the music program of last Sunday night a week ago. I was not here, but I have heard so many favorable reports, I think the ones responsible should be given a vote of thanks. Mr. James H. Bailey, being the music director, was of course in charge; he was ably assisted by Miss Nancy Clouse, pianist, and the regular choir and a few outside friends. We are grateful to you all for a good program and please do it again.

Circle No. 2 of the Woman's Auxiliary will meet on Wednesday, 3:30 p. m., with Mrs. G. P. Younginer, 91 Elizabeth Street. All are urged to attend.

The Fawcett Bible Class are to have their meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Boling this (Tuesday) evening. A real good time is in store for all who can go.

Our special services are to be held from August 18 to 25, with Rev. N. G. Bethea bringing the messages. It is hoped that all who are can able will attend each night and will pray for the success of the meetings.

Cedar Cliff, Mt. Hermon Charge.—With the revival just passed we are striving to do more for Jesus. The services have been splendid and soul-stirring. They have revived our spirits and inspired in us a desire to do greater things in the future. We shall always be grateful for the messages brought us by the pulpit help, Rev. W. M. Howard, of the Moriah M. P. church of Greensboro, N. C. His work here shall live long in our midst, and his characteristics in our hearts. And we earnestly pray that God will be with him in his endeavor to preach the gospel.

Mrs. Kate McBane was laid to rest at this church about two weeks ago. Her death occurred after a brief illness of about two weeks. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Payne and was also a member of this church.

Whitaker's Church.—It has been some time since I made a report. However, our interest has not ceased entirely; hope attendance along all lines will soon pick up. Several of our number are on the sick list; some have been to the hospital but are at home again, we hope much improved.

We held our third quarterly conference at Whitaker's Chapel July 24. Attendance was not so good, two very faithful ones absent on account of sickness; business carried on very well, finances good.

We are interested in the Children's Home birthday anniversary, do hope everything will come up to Dr. Dixon's expectations and that Methodist Protestants will show their loyalty and devotion to the cause of Kingdom work. Best wishes to the editor, workers and all interested readers of the Herald.

Liberty.—Our revival began the third Sunday in June and continued for ten days. Dr. Fred Paschall was with us to assist Bro. Love. Dr. Paschal brought us such wonderful messages. We feel that the church was greatly revived and lasting good was accomplished.

All the work of the church is moving along in a very interesting way.

Mrs. B. J. Gregson was hostess to our Philathea Class recently at her attractive home.

Mrs. A. J. Brower was hostess to Circle No. 2 of the Woman's Auxiliary Wednesday afternoon. At the same hour Mrs. V. H. Dameron was hostess to Circle No. 1 of the Auxiliary.

Mr. R. H. Love, the father of our pastor, visited at the parsonage a week in July.

Rev. and Mrs. Fred R. Love are visiting Mrs. Love's parents at Weaverville this week.

Mrs. W. C. Shepard, who has been quite ill for seven months, is improving more now.

Rev. Earl Cook, pastor of Roberta Methodist Protestant church, assisted Rev. Mr. Love at Zion church. He is a devout church worker. We hope our Liberty people can attend the revival at Shiloh beginning next Sunday, August 11.

I hope to give a more lengthy report next time. BERTINE SHEPARD, Reporter.

Friendship, Fallston Charge.—On Monday morning of last week the old church bell at Friendship pealed out its last message from the tower that had long been its home. It was a moment of mingled sadness and joy, sadness because of the fond memories of old "Friendship" cherished in the hearts of all who knew and loved this old church, joy because we were glad the time had come when we were ready to begin work on the new church that has long been a dream we hoped to see realized.

Much progress was made last week and actual construction will begin this week. Some brick have already been placed on the grounds and more are arriving.

It is wonderful to see the fine fellowship and cordial good will that exists among the workmen. We feel that no mistake was made in the selection of the building committee, which is composed of the following members: Mr. R. A. Lackey, Mr. C. A. Wright and Mr. Vance Royster. It is an inspiration to all to watch our chairman, Mr. Lackey, while not as physically able as he once was, yet to see how cheerfully and faithfully he stays on the job. We are thankful he is able to lead in this work, hope he may be spared to worship with us in the years to come.

As a part of the work is being done free by the members, we feel we shall have cause to be doubly proud of our church when it is completed, because we have sacrificed and worked together toward a common goal. We think our co-operation will strengthen and unite us even more closely as we shall strive to carry on. On the day work was begun the ladies carried a picnic dinner which was spread in the grove and what might have been termed "a little home-coming" was greatly enjoyed by every one present.

Our pastor, Bro. H. F. Fogleman, is greatly interested in our work, and it seems every minute he can spare in this busy season of revivals, and when he needs to be resting, he is on the grounds working with his laymen as one of them. He is a consecrated man and we are learning to appreciate him more and more.

We have felt the need of a new church for a long time and stimulated by this need we hope to carry our present project to a successful end. We desire the prayers of Christian people that we may build to the glory of God and that we may keep the friendly spirit of co-operation to the end. Our revival services began on the third Sunday in July with Mr. Fogleman conducting the services. On Monday Rev. E. A. Bingham, one of our own boys, arrived to assist. We feel this was indeed a revival for the whole church. Bro. Bingham brought us plain gospel sermons that we feel shall always be a help to us. His sincerity and consecration has made a lasting impression on us all. Friendship is proud of him. During the meeting, 16 new members were added by baptism and on Sunday evening, August 4, the last service to be held in the old church, 11 members were received by letter. We welcome these and trust that we each may be able to help the other.

The last service was a union service and was very impressive. Representatives from the Baptist and Methodist Episcopal church, South, of the village were present and expressed their willingness to aid our present undertaking. They invited us to use their buildings any time we might desire. We appreciate these acts of kindness.

The Christian Endeavor Society met last night with about 40 members present. This group expects at an early date to sponsor an entertainment, the proceeds to go to the new church.

The Woman's Auxiliary held its July meeting in the home of Mrs. M. W. Wright and will meet this month with Miss Lon Petty. This is an earnest bunch and we can feel the strength of their influence in the whole program of the church.

Rev. and Mrs. J. D. Morris, of Pinnacle and son, Rev. C. E. Morris, of Danville, Va. were visitors in our community last week. We are always glad to have them with us and wish they could come more often.

MISS JESSIE BAXTER, Asst. Reporter.

Union Grove Church, Mocksville Charge.—Our pastor, Rev. R. L. Hethcox, filled his regular appointment last Sunday. He delivered a beautiful sermon. His text was taken from part of the 10th and 11th verses of the second chapter of St. Luke. In his sermon he told of one class of people who wouldn't even notice Christ as He hanged on the cross. Another class of people mocked Him and cursed Him, while another class had helpless sympathy. But think about the beautiful attitude of the thief that was crucified with Christ, how he cried for mercy unto Christ and asked Him to remember him when He came into the Kingdom of Heaven. Are you like this thief, asking God to remember you, or are you in one of the other three classes?

Our Sunday school is progressing fine. The Young People's Class of our church has divided into two groups and the groups are contesting, which has stimulated a lot of interest in the class.

First M. P. Church, High Point.—Our Sunday school has been closed for a month on account of infantile paralysis.

Our pastor, Rev. J. C. Madison, is taking his vacation this month. He is attending the Pastors' Institute at the University of Chicago. The first Sunday that he was gone we were delighted to have with us Dr. G. I. Humphreys, of High Point College. It is always a pleasure to have him preach to us. Last Sunday Rev. N. M. Harrison gave us an inspiring lesson. At this service C. L. Gray, Jr., sang "Hold Thou My Hand." Miss Beulah Moton, our organist, is also on her vacation. Miss Ila Hensley is playing in her place.

For the month of August we are co-operating with the other churches of the city and on Sunday night we are having union worship service of all the churches of the city. Our pastor will speak at the Evangelical Reformed church next Sunday night.

The Auxiliary circles will meet this week as follows: No. 1 with Mrs. Edward Suits, 801 Woodrow Avenue; No. 2 with Mrs. G. I. Humphreys, 821 Circle Drive; No. 3 with Mrs. J. H. Walker, Colonial Drive; No. 4 with Mrs. Gorrell Payne, 1106 Blain Street; Circles Nos. 5 and 6 will meet Monday night at 7:30, No. 5 with Jewel and Frances Montgomery, 1106 North Hamilton Street, Mrs. Porter Montgomery, associate hostess, and No. 6 with Mrs. R. C. Boyd, 911 English Street.

We are very sorry to report that one of our most beloved members, Miss Lou Pickett, fell recently and broke her hip.

Mrs. W. P. Pickett is also confined to her home with illness.

West End, Greensboro.—Perhaps a review of some of the work done at this place will be interesting to some, for I hear many expressions of interest as I come in contact with people in different places.

The work has been heavy but interesting, and as long as one finds his work that way there is not much room for complaint. We are not claiming that this is the greatest year in the history of this church, and yet there are many things taking place that are history-making to add to the accomplishments of other years.

The first thing that I shall mention is that there have been no disturbing factors so far as I can see. Everything has gone on without friction, and when people are busy about the right thing there is not so much chance for any of that kind that disturbs the "peace of Jerusalem." We are grateful for this and are hoping and praying that this means that there will be a better line-up for the coming year.

We are planning for the anniversary day and to this we are adding the "home-coming" feature. Invitations will be sent to many, especially those who were formerly members. At this time we are planning to cut a sizable slice from the church debt which has been on without any diminishing for a number of years. Several of the claims have been paid, pastor's salary paid to date, and that, the leaders seem to think, is a good omen. Very little money has been raised outside of straight-out giving. That always helps in more ways than one. Why any Christian should object to tithing on any grounds, I cannot see, for where it has been practiced in any degree, or by a few of the members, God's blessings have come in approval. As to the other goals reached, these have been published. They stand before you every week, some of them.

There have been a number of accessions. We are proud of them. Some are making very useful members. There have been some removals. There ought to be more. I am sure that when the books are straightened before conference there will be quite a loss numerically. But what does that matter if you show it up just as it is. I have never cared so much about showing gains when in reality there was no gain.

This church has wonderful opportunity. It is using part of it. Those who are trying to make good use of it are to be commended. Quite a number on this list. Thank God for them. There are some who have their names here who try to induce our people to attend at other places. That reminds me of a citizen who seeks the protection of the American flag and lives here and then works for the interests of another country. That is sailing under false colors. God will take care of that situation in due time. Always does. We are grateful for the co-operation that has been given and we are sure that without this we could not have accomplished what has been done.

There is some interest now on the part of many of our leaders to build a parsonage. A liberal offer has been made for this particular interest and it looks like it will pay to take advantage of it without crippling the payments that are to be made on the church.

City folks do not have that with which to pound the preacher like they do in the country, but the following have remembered us in ways that are in line with some of our good country charges that are so thoughtful of their pastors' needs: Mrs. W. W. Eldrige, Bro. Stine, Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Stockard, J. C. Inmon, Rev. and Mrs. J. E. Carroll, Ray Routh, Jack McFadden, Mrs. Bibro, Mr. and Mrs. Fain, Mr. and Mrs. V. C. Stockard, Mrs. Clark Crutchfield, Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Stapleton, Mrs. W. V. Routh. Thank you, friends, all these things helped. Some of these individuals many times remembered us.

We are hoping and praying for a good wind-up of the year's work.

N. G. BETHEA.

New Hope, Mecklenburg Charge.—There was a mistake in my last report about when our meeting started; said on fourth of July, but was meant fourth Sunday in July. We had dinner on grounds, a large table being spread, and everybody seemed to enjoy themselves. Meeting closed this Sunday night just passed. Rev. P. E. Bingham had for his pulpit help Rev. Dr. S. W. Taylor, a wonderful preacher. One service was held in the morning, one at night. He preached so earnestly that souls might turn and come to Christ, but this is a day when people seem to have joined their idols, and the love for Christ is not in their hearts. They seem to love to hear the gospel preached but do not heed it, just as the preacher has all the work to do. May the Lord help people to wake up, church members anyway. In daylight meeting you can see a few gather around, and these night meetings people will go, they will not sacrifice enough and have the love for Christ and interest enough in their own souls to give Christ the early part of the day.

We as church members should always take time to be holy. Neighbor mad at neighbor, brother won't speak to brother, sister won't speak to sister, father and mother have so much trouble between each other, children against their parents. This is a serious time. Sin is the cause of it all and God cannot bless us till we give up sin. I have been sick in bed for the past two weeks. I live right close to the church but I did not get to attend meeting. I could hear them singing and the gospel being preached, and I would think that would be enough of punishment for me that I could not be in the midst of it. I never miss a sermon through meetings unless I am sick. I have six children and plenty of work at home, but can't find any excuse for not attending church through revival meeting times unless I am sick. Rev. Mr. Taylor and Rev. Mr. Bingham visited me. I thank them for their interest and prayers. They prayed for me.

FAYE AYCOTH, Reporter.

Guilford Charge.—Our church paper reporters seem to be sleeping on their jobs, as they haven't reported in a long time. I guess they will in the near future.

We have had sickness in our home for some time. T. A., Jr., took his bed May 25 and just now is getting so he can be up a part of the time. Mr. Williams was taken sick June 25. He was able to go to Mitchell Grove Sunday morning but he did not preach as Dr. R. M. Andrews filled his pulpit. He brought us such a wonderful message.

Dr. J. D. Williams held our third quarterly meeting at Vickery July 27. Bro. J. L. Cashatt was elected delegate to our next Annual Conference. The fourth Sunday in August our meeting starts at Hickory Grove, with Dr. J. D. Williams as the pulpit help; the first Sunday in September at Fairfield, with Rev. C. O. Ridge; the second Sunday in September at Vickery, with Rev. L. S. Helms; the fourth Sunday in September at Mitchell Grove, with Rev. S. M. Needham.

I want to say we sure appreciate the kindness our friends and members of the charge have shown us. They have kept us in vegetables of all kinds, milk, butter, sugar, lard, coffee, flour, meat and lots of other things that are needed. We can't thank them enough for what they have done and we hope to be able to repay them in some way.

MRS. T. A. WILLIAMS.

Lexington, Mt. Carmel.—Sunday, August 4, was a great day for Mt. Carmel. We had 147 present for Sunday school. At the 11 o'clock hour the new church erected about four years ago was dedicated with all debts being paid. Everybody is very glad of this. Dr. R. M. Andrews preached the dedicatory sermon to a large congregation. This was an excellent message and all who heard it enjoyed it. After the morning service a bountiful dinner was served in picnic style. At 2 o'clock the congregation reassembled in the church to hear the home-coming address by Rev. James Witherspoon, of Lexington, which was thoroughly enjoyed. Special music was furnised by the double quartet of First M. P. church of Concord, the Blue Bird quartet of Winston-Salem and the Reform Four of Lexington.

The annual revival began that evening at 7:45 with Rev. C. L. Grant, pastor of North Davidson charge, doing the preaching. Mr. Grant delivered some good messages each afternoon and evening through Friday night. At the closing service the doors of the church were opened and the following new members were taken in: Mrs. Loyd Helmsteller, coming from St. Luke's Lutheran church; Mr. Oscar Coppley and Mr. Ervin Grubb, coming from the Baptist church, and Mrs. Oscar Coppley from Welcome M. E. church. We were favored with special music from the following during the revival: The Shoaf sisters of Midway, the Berrier sisters of Shiloh and Foy and Clifton Hege and Misses Jennie Belle Long and Vada Swicegood. This was appreciated very much. We were very glad to have the following visiting ministers with us during some of these services: Rev. C. E. Ridge, Rev. H. L. Isley and Rev. Lee Moser.

We are very sorry to report the illness of two of our oldest members, Mrs. Julia Waitman and Mr. Joe Tussey. We truly hope they will be well again soon.

ZULA FRITTS, Reporter.

Greer's Chapel, Shiloh Charge.—The series of revival services at Greer's Chapel came to a close last Friday night. Brother Ridge brought us a helpful and inspiring message at each service. There were several conversions, some reclaimed, and nine gave their names for membership. We were glad to have some of the folks from Shiloh with us, also we are very grateful to the Berrier sisters and Miss Inez Ridge for the special music which they rendered.

The financial condition of the church is very good at present. All the budgets have been paid off except one and a partial payment has been made on that. Provision has been made, too, for the pastor's salary.

The church voted to start prayer services and the first service of this kind will be held next Sunday night. An invitation is extended to all who are able to come and be with us and help make these services a success for the Master. REPORTER.

Shiloh, Liberty Charge.—We are glad indeed to report that Mr. W. P. Pickett, who has been very sick for nearly five weeks, three of which have been spent in Randolph Hospital, Asheboro, is now on the way to recovery and hopes to soon be at home again.

Our revival began yesterday, August 11. Our pastor, Mr. Love, preached the morning sermon, using for his text John 2:5. In the afternoon Mr. W. M. Pike preached, using for his text Psalm 1:3. Both sermons were instructive and inspiring.

Mr. J. L. Trollinger is the pulpit help. We hope the people will be much awake to duty and much and lasting good done will be the result.

Our church is planning to build Sunday school rooms soon.

MRS. GRADY HEMPHILL, Reporter.

Draper.—I hereby acknowledge the deep pleasure of having the privilege to read such a dear little paper as the Herald and to sound a note of praise to God for His wonderful kindness and love to His unworthy servants among its pages.

I feel that our little church is on the go for "higher planes" as every one seems to be filled with a "go ye" in their soul, and in general every phase of the work is doing well under the present situations of trying to meet the needs of the church.

We have a splendid Ladies' Aid Society which puts its shoulders to the wheel and moves things on for the upbuilding of the Kingdom of God and to the glory of His dear Son.

Saturday night, August 10, at 7 o'clock the president of the Sunday school, Mr. N. H. Stewart, will treat the senior class of young men and women for having the highest percentage of attendance of the last quarter, which will be at the reporter's home.

The entire church will motor to Danville, Va., Sunday p. m., August 11, for service at the new Methodist Protestant church. Our pastor, Rev. L. S. Helms, will bring the message. Pray for our success in the Master's vineyard. MRS. MINNIE KING.

Harmony Church, Yarborough Charge.—We held our revival meeting beginning fourth Sunday and had the pleasure of having the Rev. Mr. Isley with us to help carry on the meeting. We all enjoyed having him very much and hope he can come back sometime soon. We got the addition of one new member but hope more will take that step before it is too late. With God's help may they make the decision.

The annual community picnic was held Wednesday night, August 7, with a large crowd present. We also enjoyed talks by Mr. Byrnes, county superintendent of education, and Mr. Camak, of Ware Shoals.

Rev. K. G. Holt delivered a very good and helpful service here at his regular appointment second Sunday night. We should all profit by what he had to say.

We are planning to give an ice cream supper at Harmony church next fourth Saturday night to help raise some money for a few things we need. Hope every one will co-operate and come to make it a success.

REPORTER.

Pensacola Church.—Rev. J. O. Fry held a 12-day revival at our church which closed the first of the month. We feel that there was a great deal of good accomplished. Some new members joined the church who are to be baptized later. Rev. Mr. Green, of Bakersville, N. C., was here for a few services. Everyone enjoyed his sermons very much. We hope he can come again. The Yates family of Concord, N. C., furnished special music for two services. The people enjoyed their singing and music very much and we hope they too can come again.

Miss Mary Lou Silver and Mr. M. H. Blankenship won the attendance prizes for the last quarter in Sunday school.

We are glad to say the new roof on the parsonage has been completed. We wish to thank all those who helped with it.

MRS. W. G. BLANKENSHIP.

Kannapolis.—We are looking forward with a great deal of anticipation to the success of the silver anniversary of the Children's Home. In every way possible we are trying to support this day in particular and especially through the birthday offering boxes.

During these extremely hot days the condition of our church is very encouraging, even though the attendance is not up to par. During the past four weeks we have been in the midst or beginning of a ten weeks' tithing campaign. Each member of the church has been urged to pay the entire tenth to the church, one part of which is applied on his or her gift to the church budget and the remaining part going into the church building fund which now totals several hundred dollars. By this method we have almost doubled the usual weekly offerings to the church.

All conference claims have been paid with the exception of one, superannuates, and this is to be paid this week, if not already paid. Within the next few days we hope to pay the subsidy to the church paper. In fact this subsidy WILL be paid immediately.

The work of the Woman's Auxiliary is going along rapidly under the able direction of the Auxiliary president, Mrs. J. S. Marshall, and with the excellent co-operation of the other officers and circle presidents. This organization recently purchased a new rug for the pulpit, and I am quite proud of it.

As are all the other churches, we, too, are sorry that it was impossible to have the annual Vacation Bible School. However, in so far as possible the young people's work is being continued on through the Christian Endeavor Society and the adult part of the Sunday school.

Plans are being made now in the interest of our fall religious services which will begin the first part of September.

In all of our efforts here we seek the kind thoughts and prayers of our many Christian friends, and especially ask that they pray with us for Mrs. N. E. Tilley, who is now in the hospital in Mooresville.

AUBERT M. SMITH, Pastor.

Shiloh, Shiloh Charge.—On Sunday, August 4, our pastor began the revival at Friendship. This Sunday being our regular preaching day Mr. Ridge secured Mr. Hoyt Wood, a ministerial student from High Point College, to fill his appointment. The writer was not present but I was informed that the speaker delivered a good message from John 1:17.

Sunday, August 18, will be the beginning of the revival services at Shiloh. As has been announced, Dr. F. W. Paschall, pastor of First M. P. church, Burlington, will be the pulpit help. The hours of the services through the week have not been announced. There will be all-day service Sunday with dinner on the grounds as usual. There is much that we would like to see accomplished during this meeting and we ask your earnest prayers for a great success through God's Spirit.

Sunday also is the day that has been set for our birthday offering to the Children's Home. This, of course, means that every member who can is asked to give one cent for each year of his age. All members are asked to take notice, especially those who were not present for the announcement.

MABEL BERRIER, Reporter.

Flat Rock Charge.—The revival services came to a close at Bethel church last Friday night. Rev. Wayne Curtis, of Burlington, was with us during the entire meeting. He rendered very valuable service as preacher and singer. He preached at three services, the pastor doing the preaching in the other services. The results were not what we expected; however, we trust that much good will result from the services. Three members were received at the closing service. These were Mrs. Allie Harrell, Ira Lee Lane and J. W. Pegram, Jr. Bro. Curtis received $13.84 in the offering taken for him.

We appreciate very much a number of gifts received during the revival meeting at Bethel church last week. We thank the following for the gifts: Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Pegram, Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Combs, Pinkney Dwiggins, Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Pope. We have also received a nice pounding from members of Palestine church which was presented at the close of the revival meeting there last month. Others who have made gifts to the pastor and family since our last report are: Mrs. J. B. Albert, Mrs. Bryant Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Lemmons, Mrs. J. A. Eller. All of these gifts are deeply appreciated.

Our services next Sunday will be at Palestine church at 11 a. m. and at Bethel church at 3 p. m. We will observe the ordinance of the Lord's Supper at each church.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Clark's Chapel, Weaverville Charge.—I am glad to report that we are very much alive on this charge, and we feel very gratified with the way the work has been carried on this year.

The revival meeting will begin at our church next Sunday night, August 18, at 8 o'clock, with the Rev. C. B. Way, pastor of Flat Rock charge, assisting our pastor, Rev. W. L. Harkey. Everyone is invited to attend these services.

On next Sunday, August 18, the Eller reunion, which is an annual affair, will be held at Clark's Chapel. An interesting program has been arranged, with services to begin at 11 o'clock, and a picnic dinner to be served at noon, and singing in the afternoon.

We are hoping to have Dr. Andrews, president of our conference, with us on this charge this week. He will speak at Clark's Chapel on next Saturday night at 8 o'clock, at Mt. Zion Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, and at Weaverville on Sunday evening. A good attendance is urged at these meetings.

Our quarterly conference was held at Mt. Zion last Thursday night with a good attendance. Dr. C. W. Bates, pastor of First M. P. church, Winston-Salem, presided.

The Weaverville church, which has been under repair for some time, is now very near completion, and we are all proud of the improvements which have been made.

MRS. CLYDE BLANKENSHIP, Reporter.

Enfield.—The fourth Sunday was a splendid day in our church. Mr. Peeler, our pastor, was at his best and at the morning service preached a very fine sermon on "Citizenship." Mrs. C. O. Roscher, from Richmond, Va., sang a lovely solo which was greatly enjoyed. We had a large congregation and were happy to have members from other churches worship with us. We observed the Lord's Supper and this was a very sweet and sacred service as so many took part. At the evening service Mr. Peeler preached a beautiful sermon on "Take Jesus as Your Example." Mrs. Exum Bellamy sang a lovely solo at this time. The spirit at both services was very fine and each one attending felt it had been a great day.

Mrs. Exum Bellamy's mother, Mrs. R. T. Gaulding, and sister, Mrs. C. O. Roscher, from Richmond, Va., spent the week-end with her and we were happy to have them worship with us. We are especially grateful to Mrs. Roscher for the beautiful solo.

Our Sunday school has fallen off considerably due to the infantile paralysis, but we pray the epidemic will soon be over and we can have our children back.

The Woman's Auxiliary held its July meeting in the home of Mesdames Mary and Egbert Barnhill with Mrs. W. D. Bustin joint hostess. Mrs. R. A. Jordan, president, presided, and splendid reports from secretaries and committees were given. The hostesses served delicious sandwiches, cookies and iced tea. During the refreshment time Elsie Sharpe Barnhill gave a humorous reading, "Peach Pie."

Mr. George Pettitt died July 23 at his home near Enfield after an illness of several months. He was about 78 years of age and had been totally blind for more than 12 years. Interment was made in the family cemetery and services were conducted by his pastor, Rev. E. O. Peeler, assisted by Rev. C. P. Womack, of the Methodist Episcopal church.

Best wishes to the Herald and its readers.

Friendship, Mt. Hermon Charge.—The revival meeting at Friendship church began the first Sunday in this month and closed the following Friday night. Rev. J. L. Trollinger, pastor on the Haw River charge, was the pulpit help. His sermons were good and helpful to all who heard them. We appreciate his work with us very much and hope he can come again.

The quarterly conference will be held in our church on Saturday evening before the fourth Sunday in September at 7 o'clock.

There will be a young people's meeting of Christian Endeavor work at Mt. Hermon church the third Sunday evening in September at 7 o'clock. We hope there will be a large crowd present.

The Woman's Auxiliary will meet with Mrs. W. A. Patterson on Saturday afternoon before the third Sunday in this month at 2:30 o'clock.

On July 19 the Woman's Auxiliary served a supper at the church to the Graham Kiwanis Club. The proceeds amounted to $17.45.

A few weeks ago some of the members of Friendship church met at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Whitehead and gave them a pounding. They received many nice things.

We are sorry to say that Mr. H. A. Garrett remains critically ill at his home here. Let's remember him in our prayers.

Rehoboth, Creswell Circuit.—How rapidly time flies! I can't realize the summer is almost gone and schooldays soon begin. I had hoped to be able to go to High Point the 22nd but I'm afraid I'll not be able, though I hope our pastor can go and others from this section. What a glorious time it will be!

I was able to get to church Sunday and hear Bro. Mabry. He gave us a helpful sermon on "The Raising of Lazarus." He showed us "man's extremity was God's opportunity"; he made it very plain our individual responsibility. Not having heard a sermon since January, it did my soul good to listen once more to the preached word, and so thankful to be getting better. I did not attend the night service, but I know that was good. I have not seen a notice of Abe Davenport's death, one of our Creswell members, and a son of our Mrs. Bettie Davenport, who has been to conference several times. He fell from a car, his head struck first. He was rushed to the hospital, but died. I'll never forget last time I saw him. We stopped at his garage to have some work done. How pleasant and kind he was, and did the work so well. The family have our sympathy in this trying hour.

Friends of Bro. C. V. White will be glad to know he is able to attend Sunday school and church services.

Mrs. S. S. Aumack has greatly improved. I can't report any great things done in our church at Rehoboth, but our faithful superintendent, J. B. White, cleaned the church grounds beautifully and the few that attend are interested and hopeful for larger attendance in the future.

West Forsyth Charge.—Sunday, August 4, was indeed a great day for the people of West Forsyth charge. At 3 p. m. a very impressive service was held on the bank of Yadkin river near Donnaha. As the people lifted their voices in song, singing that grand old hymn, "Amazing Grace, How Sweet the Sound," 27 young people followed the writer into the water and were baptized.

At Baltimore church the same day at the 11 o'clock service, S. G. Ferree, a son of the writer, delivered the message, and after the message two were baptized and eleven received into the church.

On Sunday evening at Stony Knoll church at the 8 o'clock service, S. G. Ferree filling the pulpit again, after the message, three were baptized and 19 received into the church.

Our revival meeting began at Stony Knoll the first Sunday in July. We held our first home-coming service in the afternoon. Mr. Poindexter, a very prominent lawyer of Winston-Salem, N. C., delivered the home-coming address. He used for his subject "Eternal Life." The message was deep, inspiring and enjoyed by all. Rev. C. E. Ridge, pastor of Shiloh charge, came on Sunday and did the preaching throughout the revival. Bro. Ridge was at his best, every message was good, soul-inspiring and uplifting. The visible results were 32 professions and 19 were received into the church.

Our revival began at Baltimore church the second Sunday in July. Rev. F. R. Love, pastor of Liberty charge, came on Sunday evening and did the preaching throughout the revival. Well, Bro. Love did some good preaching, too. His messages were inspiring and enjoyed by all. The visible results were 11 professions and 11 united with the church.

On the third Sunday in July our meeting began at Tabernacle church. Rev. R. A. Hunter, pastor of Forsyth charge, came on Monday evening and did the preaching throughout the meeting. And as usual Bro. Hunter's messages were good and inspiring and every one enjoyed hearing him. The visible results were two confessions and two united with the church.

We want to thank these good men for the splendid service rendered, and their untiring efforts. May the Lord bless them in their work and give them precious souls for their hire.

Now a few words in regard to this work. No pastor ever served a better people. Thank the Lord we have no grumblers, not one have I found. I have found these people to be very appreciative, and are ready to co-operate with their pastor in every way possible. They are optimistic, hoping for the best. No pastor can do his best without the full co-operation of his people. We are making an effort toward raising our conference claims. A few of the claims have been raised, and I hope that we can be successful in raising all claims.

We are glad to report that Harmony Grove church has most of the material on the grounds toward building a new auditorium. The plans are to turn the church around and convert it into Sunday school rooms, and build a new auditorium. When completed it will be a very beautiful church.

Baltimore church has a building project on hand also. The foundation for Sunday school rooms has been laid for some time. And when the people are up with their work this fall they will begin this work. Pray for us.

G. B. FERREE, Pastor.

Tabernacle-Julian.—In his notes relative to the McCulloch Memorial in a recent issue of the Herald Dr. Bates said that because of the fact that funds had not been coming in he had nothing to talk about. It is not so at Tabernacle-Julian at this time. There is much with us to talk about.

Because of conditions perhaps not interesting to the public the Julian church had never until recently had electric lights. The needs had for a long time been seen and talked about, but the matter had not gone further. On a recent Sunday morning the pastor met with a very pleasant surprise when he arrived at the church and found that lights had been installed. The surprise was so great and so pleasant that he had to push the button to see if the lights were really there. The beautiful old chandeliers and other fixtures which did service through the years and which had fixed themselves into the appreciation of the people are to be retained in the outfit of the electric fixtures. This makes the work all the more appreciated. Few things could have been done at the Julian church and community that could have added more to the comfort and pleasure of the people. We are all happy over the improvement. So happy that it is difficult for the people to leave the church and grounds when services are over.

Bro. P. R. Blackard and family conceived the idea that they could be of service in raising funds for the expense of the improvement at Julian by having an ice cream supper at their home. This affair turned out to be quite successful. Among other things it was very evident that this splendid family were held in high esteem by their neighbors by the way they attended and volunteered to assist and by the way the good things offered for sale were bought and consumed. Almost all of the supplies of the occasion were furnished and made by the Blackards, there being only about $2 expense which came out of the actual sales. The Blackards are of our most faithful. They drive 11 miles and are of the most regular at church and Sunday school. Whatever takes place at the Julian church the Blackards are there.

The Julian revival began on the third Sunday of July and closed the next Sunday night. Rev. J. W. Braxton was the preacher and he also led the singing. In both of these capacities he proved himself to be good and very good. We had a most delightful revival. The attendance was good and all the way through the people were happy and we were edified and built up in the religious faith. We had appreciated Bro. Braxton before, but we now appreciate him all the more. We did not have any accessions to the church membership but the meeting did a great deal of good. We were also glad to have Mrs. Braxton and her sister, Miss Little, with us at a number of the services. Rev. and Mrs. J. Elwood Carroll worshiped with us in one of the services and we were delighted.

While it is not necessary to give any details of our third quarterly conference, it is desired to say that it was a most delightful conference. Finances were found to be encouraging, as figures showed us to be considerably ahead of last year at the same date. Bro. C. R. Fields was found to be elected delegate to the coming Annual Conference. He is a good man.

We are giving Dr. Bates something to talk about, as we are going over the top with McCulloch Memorial. The amount allotted to Tabernacle is now being sent in and the amount allotted to Julian is forthcoming. We will pay every cent of this fund. We believe that this is good to talk about.

The ladies of both churches are busy preparing canned goods for the Children's Home. We feel that the children of the Home must be cared for as well as the children of our own homes. Indeed the Children's Home is our own home.

The revival is now on at Tabernacle. Rev. R. C. Stubbins is doing the preaching. We are now in the tenth day of the meeting. Bro. Stubbins was here some years ago and we were anxious to have him come again and we have been delighted with the work he is doing for us. He is indeed good help. We have had nine additions to the church and there will be others before the revival closes. Bros. Ashburn, Bethea, Hutton, McCulloch, Shelton and Pritchard have worshiped with us at different services during the revival. Bros. Ashburn, Hutton and McCulloch are former pastors of this charge. Bros. Hutton and McCulloch are among the 11 ministerial sons of Tabernacle. Bros. Bethea and Shelton have been revival help with us and are known among us because of their good preaching and helpful lives.

Bros. Henry Royal and D. T. Smith, of the Tabernacle church, are in hospitals at present time. Bro. Royal is at Duke and Bro. Smith at Wesley Long. We pray for their recovery and invite others to pray for them.

Death has again come our way. Bro. C. C. Monnett met with a motorcycle accident which meant his death in a few hours. His funeral was conducted on July 17 in Tabernacle church by the pastor, assisted by Rev. N. G. Bethea. He leaves a wife and four children. Mrs. Monnett is among our most faithful at Tabernacle. On July 24 the precious baby of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fogleman was taken and the funeral was conducted by the pastor, being assisted by Rev. J. M. Millard, of the Presbyterian church. Bro. Fogleman is a brother to our Rev. H. F. Fogleman of Fallston, N. C. These dear bereaved ones have our most sincere sympathies.

The weekly article by Dr. P. E. Lindley is crowded out this week, as were some other good articles. These will be run next week.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Sykes

On July 16 the spirit of Mrs. Martisha Pugh Sykes took its flight from earth to glory. She had suffered a long time. In fact the members of the family stated that she had not been well since her husband's death some 26 years ago. While her death was more or less expected, yet her family was unprepared when it came With her passing goes the home of father and mother.

She was born in Orange county in 1861 and lived to the ripe old age of 74. She was a member of the Graham M. P. church and was faithful in attendance until her health prevented.

Those of her family who survive and mourn her passing are: Mrs. Tom Coble, of Graham; Mrs. Effie Rummage, New Jersey; Misses Lucy, Mary, and Tom Sykes, of Graham; H. M. Sykes, of Julian, and one sister, Mrs. G. W. Dodson, of Efland.

The funeral services were conducted by the writer and her body was laid to rest in the Linwood cemetery on Thursday, July 18, at 4 p. m.

The heartfelt sympathy of the pastor and those who learned to love her during her lifetime goes with those who feel most keenly her passing.

Connell

Birdie Leona Connell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Connell, was born July 20, 1906, and departed this life July 24, 1935, age 29 years and 4 days. She is survived by her father and mother and one brother, who reside near Rockingham, N. C.; one sister, Mrs. Eaithel Powell, of Warso, N. C., and 5 uncles and 4 aunts. She professed faith in Christ early in life and united with the Methodist church in South Carolina. In 1926 she transferred her membership to Rockingham Methodist Protestant church, where she remained a faithful member until death. She graduated from Rockingham high school June 1, 1925, and took a teacher's course at East Carolina Teachers' College at Greenville, N. C. She taught school one year at Ellerbe, N. C., in 1933, then later she accepted a position with the Red Cross here in Rockingham. She was elected Sunday school teacher of the M. P. church for three years, and was a member of the official board of the church. She was faithful to her class and to her church. Birdie in person has moved out from us, but in memory and spirit she still lives. And will continue to live in the hearts and minds of those that love and fear God. Birdie will be missed in the home, community, and church. But let us all live such lives that when the summons comes for us we can say, Good morning, Birdie.

Not dead—oh no, but borne beyond the shadows,
Into the fuller clear light;
Forever done with mist and cloud and tempest,
Where all is calm and bright.
Not even sleeping—called to glad awakening,
In heaven's endless day;
Not still and moveless—stepped from earth's
Rough places, to walk the King's highway.

Not silent—just passed out of earthly hearing,
To sing heaven's new song;
Not lonely—dearly loved and dearly loving
Amid the white-robed throng.

Not forgetful—keeping fond remembrance
Of dear ones left a while;
And looking gladly to the bright reunion
With handclasp and with smile.

Oh no, not dead, but past all fear of dying,
And with all suffering o'er—
Say not that I am dead when Jesus calls me
To live forevermore.

The funeral was held at Rockingham M. P. church on Thursday at 10 o'clock a. m. July 25, 1935, in charge of the writer, assisted by Rev. J. H. Trolinger, of Midland charge, and Rev. H. A. Quick, of the Wesleyan Methodist church of Rockingham; Rev. Tom Hearne, of Pee Dee Baptist church of Rockingham. The congregation was large and the floral offering was large and beautiful. The bereaved have our sympathy.

Sarah Jane Murphy departed this life July 16 at the ripe age of 74 years, 7 months and 5 days.

In 1885 she was married to the late Martin P. Murphy. To this union were given 10 children, two having preceded her to the grave. Mrs. Murphy leaves to mourn her passing Mrs. L. H. Hilton, Thomasville, N. C.; Mrs. E. L. Sorrell, Morrisville, N. C.; Mrs. A. L. Berrier, of Norfolk, Va., and Miss Ina Bell, of home; four sons, Grant, E. G., Shelly and M. M., of Thomasville; 31 grandchildren, 12 great grandchildren, one sister, Mrs. P. C. Myers, of Winston-Salem, N. C.; four brothers, C. S., P. A. and R. E. Lambeth ,of Winston-Salem, and W. E. Lambeth, of California.

In early life Mrs. Murphy gave her heart to the Lord and united with Hebron Reformed church. When she was married she united with Mt. Pleasant M. P. church here, where her membership remained until death. Mrs. Murphy was faithful to her church and loved it as long as she lived.

May the Lord comfort the family in this hour of sorrow.

The funeral services were conducted at Mt. Pleasant church by the writer, assisted by Rev. C. G. Isley, of Lexington.

Fogleman

Just as the sun was sinking in the west on Wednesday evening, July 24, the death angels were gathering up their precious jewels. They entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fogleman and took their darling little baby boy to heaven. Another jewel has been taken from earth to glow in heaven.

Little John remained with us only a short while, being only three weeks and five days old. Yet we learned to love him and we sadly miss him. We can almost see his little arms reaching out, beckoning us to come up higher. We cannot bring him back, but we will strive just a little harder to reach heaven to see his bright little face shining in that home in glory.

His grieved and anxious friends prayed earnestly that he might be healed and spared, but the time comes when medical aid will not prolong a most precious life, when faith and prayers will not unite, because the Almighty refuses to lengthen the life cord in this world, when yearning and sorrowing hearts can do no more. While all are saddened because of his going, none feels the loss more heavily than the parents. May the Lord bind up all these broken hearts, and some day may this be an unbroken family in the land where there is no death.

"I heard the sound of a silver bell
At the beautiful twilight hour,
For one we had known and loved so well
Had reached the celestial door.

And the door was opened without delay,
And the porter who opened said, Come,
And the loved one, who went at the close of day,
Passed into his heavenly home.

No one hears the door that opens,
When they pass beyond our call,
Soft as loosened leaves of roses,
One by one our loved ones fall."

He is survived by his father and mother and one sister, Frances Lu, also a number of other relatives.

Funeral services were conducted Thursday afternoon at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Fogleman, by the pastor, Rev. Geo. L. Curry, assisted by Rev. Mr. Millard, pastor of Alamance Presbyterian church.

The pallbearers were four little girls. Mrs. E. T. Coble had charge of the flowers. Burial followed in Tabernacle cemetery.

HIS AUNT.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas God in His infinite wisdom has seen fit to remove from the fellowship of our church the soul of our friend and brother, Abram Jennings Davenport, who during his life was one of the most active members of the Creswell Methodist Protestant church. This young man, though only 26 years of age, had filled a worthwhile place in his church since early boyhood. And,

Whereas, his love for his church was one of the outstanding characteristics, and his faithful and devoted attendance upon the services of the church, and his interest in its spiritual and financial welfare was ever uppermost in his thinking and acting, looking to the advancement of its interests. Therefore:

Be it resolved, by the members of the Woman's Auxiliary of Creswell church: First, that in his death our society laments the loss of a faithful and consistent honorary member. He was always ready to do his part, both for the church and the community. This fact was evidenced by the large and beautiful floral offering and the great concourse of people who paid their last respects at the funeral service.

Second, that we extend to his family our sincere sympathy and assure them that we mingle our sorrow with theirs in their great bereavement.

Third, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the Methodist Protestant Herald and to the county paper for publication and a copy be spread on the minutes of the Woman's Auxiliary, and also a copy be sent to the family.

Davenport

When God in His infinite wisdom saw fit to remove from our midst the soul of Brother Abram Jennings Davenport, the Creswell M. P. church suffered a great loss. This young man, though only having passed his 26th milestone in life, had long been a useful young man in his church. He was accidentally thrown from a moving automobile on which he was riding and fatally injured, and later died in a Washington hospital.

He leaves behind his parents, two sisters and two brothers, besides a host of friends.

This young man was useful both in his community and in his church. He was always on hand to carry his part of the load when anything worthwhile was being done. It is said that at his funeral there was gathered the largest crowd of people ever gathered here in Creswell on a similar occasion. The many flowers given by friends and relatives showed that he was held in high esteem by many.

The writer was assisted in the funeral by the Revs. J. W. Hardy and R. O. Respess. The body was laid to rest beneath a beautiful mound of flowers in the family burying ground.

Our hearts go out in sympathy to his family and those who feel his going most keenly. May the blessings of the Father be yours, and your family be an unbroken circle in the spirit world.

L. E. MABRY.

Thompson

On July 8, 1935, death made its first visit into the home of Mrs. Nannie Thompson and took from her a most loyal and devoted companion, John Newlin Thompson, age 77 years. Mr. Thompson had been in declining health for several years, but was confined to his bed for only about two weeks. Since his health would not permit him to do very much work he had spent lots of his time in connection with the Thompson history. It was remarkable to know how he could remember dates and trace your ancestors back to the very beginning. He will be greatly missed in our community and Salem M. P. church, of which he was a member. May we let his life be an example for us to follow.

Funeral services were conducted at the home on Tuesday afternoon, July 9, by Rev. G. W. Holmes, assisted by his pastor, Rev. W. M. Loy, and Rev. H. L. Isley, and burial was in the family cemetery near his home. He leaves to mourn their loss a devoted wife, one sister, Mrs. W. Graham Crawford, ten nieces and ten nephews.

MISS SHEARIN APPRECIATES HERALD

Miss Kathleen Shearin, of the Hollister church on the Halifax charge, says she cannot see how any Methodist Protestant family can get along without the Herald. We appreciate these good words.

MARRIED

Westmoreland-Hamilton

Miss Gertrude Almanca Westmoreland and Mr. John Adam Hamilton were united in marriage on July 20 by the writer at the parsonage of the First Methodist Protestant church. Only a few friends witnessed the ceremony.

Miss Hamilton is the charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Westmoreland, and is an active member of First church.

Mr. Hamilton is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Hamilton. He is, like the bride, a prominent member of the First Methodist church, and is a popular member of the younger set. He holds a position with the Elk Furniture Company.

We wish for this young couple much success and happiness.

C. G. ISLEY.

Deaton-Ridge

At 8:30 p. m. Saturday, August 3, Rev. Atlas Ridge and Mrs. Mamie L. Deaton were united in marriage at the home of Mrs. Deaton in Lexington, Rev. T. M. Johnson officiating. The ring ceremony was used. There were present a few invited friends and the two daughters by a former marriage of Rev. Mr. Ridge, Mrs. W. M. Bescher, of Farmer, and Mrs. Moody Hunt, of Denton.

Followed by best wishes of friends, the bridal party, including Mrs. Bescher and young son and Mrs. Hunt and two children, left for a brief stay at Myrtle Beach, after which Rev. and Mrs. Ridge will be at home on West Fifth Avenue, Lexington, N. C.

GOD BLESS WORDS

We thank Thee, Lord,
For words of peace,
That used aright
Bring swift surcease.

For words of power
To do and dare,
And words of hope
That banish care.

For simple words
In daily use,
And subtle words
For thoughts abstruse.

For kindly words
We humbly pray:
God bless the words
We use today.

WINSTON-SALEM, FIRST	87½

Only one of the three in the column of honor moves up this week and that is Winston-Salem First, which moves up a point and a half. We are always glad to see a charge move, even though it is only a little. All of these three are in easy reach of the top and we are expecting them to go over some of these days. But we want them to hurry.

Now let us look at the receipts column. Brown Summit comes up from zero and stands at the head of the list this week. Well, that is mighty fine and we are so glad for them to get out of that zero position. Now let them keep climbing. Mebane comes in for second place this week and we welcome them to a higher position. No other place sends in more than one subscription.

But there is one thing we do not expect to overlook and that is the subsidy from Reidsville. They go all the way to the highest point of the mountain, so they GET A STAR. MR. PRINTER, GIVE THEM A BIG ONE. Now Reidsville has set the ball rolling again and we trust others will keep it going. Brother Pastor or Church Treasurer or whoever handles the money, do not let the money even get warm in your hand. Send it right on just as soon as you can get hold of it.

Our receipts this week amount to $22.25, $17.25 on subscriptions and $5.00 on subsidy.

We are badly in need of money now, so won't you help us? Let pastors and Herald agents and anybody else who can, get out and get some money and rush it in, for we will need to pay the bill next week.

REV. WAYNE CURTIS RECOMMENDED

I am pleased to recommend Rev. Wayne Curtis, of Burlington, as an evangelistic singer of ability, and a young man possessing special training as song leader and soloist. He has assisted me in nine revival meetings during the past six years, which afforded an opportunity to observe his ability in evangelistic work.

Rev. Mr. Curtis has studied music in North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee and Texas, and has been engaged in evangelistic work for the past ten years. He has made for himself an outstanding reputation in this field of labor.

Bro. Curtis is well known in our conference, having assisted a number of our pastors in revival meetings. Pastors desiring a song leader will do well to communicate with him. His address is Burlington, N. C.

R. M. COX INJURED

We are sorry to hear that Brother R. M. Cox, one of the most useful laymen at Hickory Ridge church on the Forsyth charge, suffered an injury to his knee in an automobile accident and that the knee will have to remain in a cast for several weeks. Brother Cox represented Forsyth county in the state legislature from 1916 until 1933.

An Interesting Document

Brother L. A. Braxton, of our First church, Burlington, has sent us a copy of the fourth issue of Our Church Record—now Methodist Protestant Herald—dated Saturday, December 1, 1894. Brother Braxton says he is now living in the home of the late R. F. Williams, of Burlington, and that this copy of the paper was given him by Brother Williams' sister. In glancing over this 41-year-old paper we make certain observations which we are passing on to our readers.

The paper has four columns to the page. The printing surface is half a column wider than the present paper and the margins are considerably wider. The paper is four inches longer than the present issue, although it contained only eight pages.

The purpose of the paper is stated in these words:

"What this paper hopes to do: It hopes to look into every one of our churches, Sunday schools, C. E. societies, Missionary societies and other auxiliary organizations of the churches and by a proper appreciation of the work done by even the most obscure worker, awaken a deeper sense of the importance of work for Christ by the church, and lead to greater enthusiasm in such work.

"It hopes to bring from abroad information about new ways of doing work for the church.

"It hopes to encourage free thought, just sentiment and right action in all matters of public interest.

"It hopes to bring to its readers in the course of a year a large fund of useful knowledge in many departments of life.

"With all its serious purposes it hopes to contribute something to the entertainment of its readers in their moments of leisure.

"In short it hopes to aid in bringing the Methodist Protestant church to that position of power and influence among the people which its principles seem destined to exert in the future history of mankind, and to make every man, woman and child within the range of its influence better, happier and more useful."

At the time this paper was printed, the Annual Conference, in session at Asheboro, had just recently adjourned. The report of the stationing committee was given with the initials of the ministers left off, such as: Alamance, Ashburn; Albemarle, Routh; Asheboro and Cedar Falls, C. A. Cecil, etc.

Mention is made of the fact that Conference had set aside one evening for a discussion of the question of a Methodist Protestant church in High Point. Rev. W. R. Lowdermilk was soliciting funds for a church there and some progress had been made. An appeal was made on the Conference floor and $350.00 was subscribed.

This ancient document throws some light on the origin of a certain term which is often referred to even yet by some of our older ministers. The term is "Tobe Shepherd." In the report of the stationing committee this designation was made: Buncombe, to be supplied. Some printer had misread it and ran the letters together, making it read: Buncombe, Tobe Shepherd.

In the report from Bellemont church, which is now on the Mt. Hermon charge, mention is made of the fact that they had in their church some very liberal members, among them being Brother William Stafford. If we are not mistaken, this Brother Stafford was the father of our very useful Tom Stafford in our First church at Burlington at the present time.

In a news item in this ancient paper cotton was quoted at 5⅛ cents a pound and in a land sale advertised by the late J. C. Roberts, of Oak Ridge, whose picture now hangs in High Point College, deferred payments were to bear interest at 8 per cent.

We might have said in the beginning of this article that Rev. J. F. McCulloch was just beginning his editorial career which lasted for forty years and which was terminated by his death on October 1 of last year. As we read this ancient copy of this paper we have a feeling that we are standing on holy ground.

Keeping in Touch With Things

The thought has come to us, How much is it worth to be in touch with things? We might throw a little light on this subject by saying that some years ago one of our young men was sent to one of our border charges where he did not have many contacts with the rest of the conference. This was back in the times when we did not have cars and when we did not have the Summer Conference and the Leadership Training School and we had no Children's Home and not so many churches in the towns and cities. The young man referred to tried to describe his feeling of loneliness in being so widely separated from the rest of the brethren. It is true that there are some people who would enjoy this kind of a life—free from appeals for the other fellow and for institutions. But with the most of us that kind of a life would be miserable. Not that a great many men would not be willing to serve the outlying charges, but to be cut off from association with the other members of the conference and not to have any communication with other people through our various meetings and through the church paper would be a trying life. It would be like one section of an army being separated for months or years from the rest of the army with no means of knowing how the battle was going, whether it meant defeat or victory. The Rev. George Shurtz, who was a chaplain in our army in France during the World War, tells of going into a town in France that had been in the hands of the German army almost through the entire war, until near the close when the city was wrested from the Germans and was occupied by the Americans and how the people went wild with enthusiasm and how they tore up old garments and made American flags out of them when they heard that the American army was near. For those long years these people had had no news from the outside world except what their conquerors were willing for them to have. They did not know what was going on or who was winning the war. They had long since learned that they could not depend on the news which they were getting. Armies are always careful to censor the news and especially so for the conquered ones.

Now the question comes right back to us, How much is it worth to have the latest news and to be in touch with the world? While this might be a profitable discussion if we were to confine it exclusively to secular affairs, yet it has a new meaning when we refer it to religious and denominational affairs. And we do not mean to belittle anybody who does not know and has no way of knowing what is going on, but we are pitying the people who do not know and who do not realize the importance of knowing.

First we want to think about those folks who never go to an Annual Conference. It is true that only a comparatively few people go to Conference. One minister and one layman are all that are required to go under our system, and that is a relatively small number of people. But others are not prohibited from going. It is true that not many of our churches are large enough to take care of very many people in addition to the regular constituted authorities of an Annual Conference. But while people ought not expect to go to Conference and receive free entertainment, yet just as many people as possible ought to go at their own expense. Whether people are delegates or not it is worth a great deal to go to an Annual Conference. People who do go get in touch with the problems of the church as they could do in no other way. The discussions on the conference floor are usually very illuminating and no person can go and listen to the discussions without feeling some kind of an obligation to help in every possible way to solve the problems of the church. If there is a place anywhere where people make new resolutions and are fired with enthusiasm for bigger and better things, it is in an Annual Conference.

And still another feature of an Annual Conference is the fellowship and the renewed acquaintances. Both the laymen and the ministers enjoy this phase of the meeting. There friendships of other days are renewed and reminiscences are entered into that are pleasant indeed.

But not everybody can go to Conference. But since not everybody can go, we want to ask people to think about the privilege of keeping in touch with things through the church paper. And here some modesty forestalls the saying of some things that might be said. But it is true that the people who take the church paper are better informed about the work of the church than those can possibly be who do not take the paper. If it is important to keep in touch with things politically, socially, educationally, how much more important is it to keep in touch with things religiously and denominationally. Some people say that they would not read the church paper if they were to take it. Our reply is that we pity the church member, the person who is a member of the great family of Christ, who does not want to hear from the other members of the family. Almost every week we receive letters from people saying how much they enjoy the HERALD and informing us that it is like a letter from home. This makes us doubly glad. In the first place we are glad that our efforts are appreciated, and in the second place we are glad that there is that deep and abiding interest on the part of the people that makes them glad to hear from other people engaged in a like occupation. It speaks well for the future of the church to know that folks are interested in it.

Now we might mention several other ways by which people can know what is going on, but here we will desist. We trust that all of our people may appreciate more and more the fact that they are associated in a noble task and that as the years come and go there may be a deeper desire to keep in touch with the work of the church which is the work of the Kingdom of God.

WHAT'S RIGHT WITH THE CHURCH

By P. E. LINDLEY

Her Saving Fellowship

One of our sacred psalms opens with the delightful words: Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity. Then follows two figures to show more fully the real value and significance of religious fellowship. In the first place, the spirit of unity is like precious ointment used at the consecration of the priests, fragrant, costly, and pure. This ointment could not be bought and used by unholy and unofficial people. It was not for sale in the markets. Likewise the joys of genuine fellowship cannot be secured for cash, however great the amount offered in payment. It grows up among men who love one another and find pleasure in common tasks of a high order, but no one need think he can go out and buy the blessings of comradeship. That is reserved for those who walk together, rich or poor, in the pathway of service and personal consecration. Friendship is never for sale; riches is not the price thereof, yet those who follow the Lord and delight in His work invariably know the satisfaction of this spiritual oneness.

The other figure through which the same truth is expressed is that of the falling rain and dew upon the dry and thirsty land. As the fresh and reviving rain is to the dying crops, so is true fellowship to the soul of man. Witness the scorched and withering plants in the midst of famine and drought. You feel sad and sorry for the corn, the vines or the flowers as they strive in vain to flower and mature under the blistering rays of the summer's sun. Then comes the refreshing rain. New life, new color appears, and crops renew their strength, rejoice again, it seems, now that their long and natural want has been fulfilled.

In like manner the spirit of man revives, renews, and comes to its own as fellowship is found for the soul. Without unity of spirit and comradeship we languish, starve within for noble ideals, and perish in the deserts of loneliness. It was never intended that man should live alone; he yearns for understanding and companionship; he is happy in the midst of inspiring associates and is miserable in abnormal solitude. There is a social hunger intense in the heart of every one which when satisfied brings bliss and happy self-realization that can be found in no other way.

This sense of oneness and comradeship is fine even when experienced on a low and ordinary plane such as in playing together, working on the same shift, or traveling in a group at sea. Pleasant co-operation is always stimulating, but there is no fellowship to be compared with the pure and ennobling practice of worship. Then it is that friendship is made perfect in the beauty of holiness. We are at our best in worship. The saving, the redeeming elements of our nature are there in control, and to come into communion with people when they are thus moved by their very highest ideals is indeed a blessing. As the precious ointment filled the whole house with fragrance at the consecration of the priests, so that one coming into the door met the sweet-scented odors and began to enjoy the scene, likewise the good and contagious atmosphere of the unified fellowship of worship inspires and attracts by its spirit of beauty and harmony.

A greater reason for the saving quality of spiritual fellowship is that Jesus himself is in the midst. All worship in our churches is gathered about this supreme and saving Friend. He works through the worshiping group to save others. The church is the body of Christ through which His life, His will and His love are made manifest. Let, then, the human life come into the physical presence of this organized body of the Lord and he will experience the upward pull of the divine. Many who could not know the delights of direct communion with the Father alone have easily found it in membership with His earnest followers. One Christian inspires another; we need the human instrumentality to assist us in worship. Consequently the church is right in supplying this organized uplift for the human soul.

The church has, in fact, always been essentially a fellowship. Jesus called the disciples ''not servants but friends,'' and the Apostle Paul had much to say about ''the household of faith.'' The early church shared all things in common and outsiders knew not the delights of its fellowship. It was a brotherhood of like-minded persons who had found a new expression of love in and through the Savior. Dr. Jefferson, in a recent book, declares that ''the Church of Christ if not a brotherhood is a failure.'' The same writer goes on to say: ''The church exists for the express purpose of knitting together the lives of those whom the forces of the world have driven asunder.''

Of all institutions, the church is the most loving. Much has been said concerning the lack of friendliness about certain local congregations. They are formal, cold, indifferent to strangers, so the story runs. But let me state emphatically right here, no person who goes to the church with a fair and sincere attitude fails to find friends! I have tried it myself and know. Those who rail at the unfriendliness of the church are themselves little worthy of its high and saving fellowship. Let a person go to church in a strange land and make known his intention of worship and service and the brethren will welcome him in all grace and charity. The fellow who growls at the coldness of the church has never given the church a chance. Of course, he need not expect the members of a strange congregation to come fall on his neck, set him in the first seat of the synagogue and elect him to the highest position available. Such procedure would be foolish and entirely unwarranted, undermining the sacred fellowship for which Christ died. But let one show himself Christian and he will find Christian companionship.

The fellowship of the church, then, is right. Rejoice in it, enrich and strengthen it. It is the highest expression of your social life. A sentiment worthy to hold in mind is that urged in the book of First Peter: ''Be ye all of one mind, having compassion one of another, love as brethren, be pitiful, be courteous; not rendering evil for evil, or railing for railing: but contrariwise blessings; knowing that ye are thereunto called, that ye should inherit a blessing.''

THE FULFILLMENT OF AN AMBITION FOR CHRIST

By H. T. Orr

Charlotte, N. C., August 20, 1935.—Ever since entering the ministry, Rev. Garfield H. Hendry, our beloved pastor here at the First church, has hoped and prayed that God would open up the way for him to carry on a continuous soul-saving campaign every day in the year. Along about the first of this year he requested this congregation to build a ''hut'' in the rear of the church. He called it a ''hut'' but he must have had in mind this wonderful tabernacle we now have. We did not give him very much encouragement, but finally agreed, and our plans at first proposed a frame structure of small dimensions, but we were thwarted in that by the city building inspector, who informed us that a permit would not be issued for such a building except for temporary occupancy. He stated that if we were going to build a permanent building that the construction must be of brick. We could not give up, so we decided that we would start with the brick building and work as long as the money held out, then we would wait until we raised more funds; but thank God we never did stop, we kept on keeping on till the job was finished. With some hired labor and considerable voluntary labor we began the building. I can look back and see God's hand in every move we made. We had inexperienced men as well as boys way up on top of the 50-foot frame structure but not a soul was hurt. Finally the tabernacle was completed. A wonderful, cool building, approximately 50x100 feet, which will accommodate about 1,000 people comfortably. We do not have a floor in it, never intended to have one, but are right down on God's cool earth, which we have covered with clean wooden shavings, right down where the poorest sinner can come and feel at home and welcome. Mr. Hendry calls it Solomon's Temple. A four or five thousand dollar brick building paid for; that is, the most of it has actually been paid and the small balance has been subscribed for and properly taken care of. We were so happy when we moved into it for the first service. Up to the present time we have had six weeks of continuous revival service and the end is not yet. Dr. T. C. Casaday, M. P. preacher of Montgomery, Ala., and Rev. W. C. Dutton, of Monroe, N. C., preached the first three weeks, then Rev. Jimmie Johnson, M. P. evangelist of Bob Jones' College, Cleveland, Tenn., has been preaching for the last three weeks and we have had a wonderful time. Over 400 conversions and reconsecrations. Our large mixed chorus choir has been furnishing splendid singing. Large crowds have been attending the morning services, which have been put on the air over broadcasting station WSOC, Charlotte, and from 800 to 1,200 have been attending the night services. We have had to place chairs by the windows on the outside to accommodate the overflow. God is wonderfully blessing the work of Mr. and Mrs. Hendry here. Mrs. Hendry is a preacher in her own right and a real helper to the pastor. Many souls are being born into the Kingdom through their efforts, and our church is growing by leaps and bounds spiritually as well as in numbers. I am told that a short time ago there were only about 100 active members in our church. We are going to be able to report about 200 new members at the end of our conference year. No other church in Charlotte can boast of 100 at prayer meetings. Some of our churches do not even hold prayer meetings, as their members will not attend. Our church is known all over Charlotte for its spirituality. Jesus said, "If I be lifted up I will draw all men unto me." Jesus is being exalted in our church and His Word is being preached literally as it is in the Bible. It is not being distorted to please a dancing, carousing, Sunday golf-playing, drinking congregation. God has promised that "my words will not return to me void," and they are not at the First church. We are expecting great things in our church and God is not going to disappoint us. He never does when work is being done for His glory. God is directing things here. We have a Sunday school with an enrollment of about 300 and almost 100 per cent attendance. Each and every teacher is consecrated and lives apart from the world and worldly pleasure. There is not a dancing, bridge-playing, smoking teacher in the entire list. If there were, he or she would feel so out of place that they would resign. There has been a spiritual awakening among all the young people, two boys are leaving this fall to study for the ministry, and a number of girls for Christian educational work.

DANGERS OF MAKING DEBTS

"Lend me 25 cents." You have not paid the dollar you borrowed last year yet.

II Kings 4:7: "Go sell the oil, and pay thy debt, and live thou and thy children off the rest." This careless way of making little debts and not paying them soon gets to the ears of many people, and kills the influence of the man who makes them. To say the least, it is evidence of dishonesty, and the man is soon branded as a liar—preacher as well as layman—he who preaches that men should not lie. Do you lie? Are you honest? These debts may be small, but the principle is the same as large amounts. "He that is faithful in that which is least is faithful also in much, and he that is unjust in the least is unjust also in much." And to say "lend me 25 cents" and not pay it is just as bad as to borrow ten dollars and not pay it. A man cannot afford to destroy his influence in any way. Making debts and not paying them is sure to kill a man's influence for good. These words are not intended for the man who has given his note for money borrowed, unless he does not intend to pay his debt.

METHODIST UNION

The three commissions representing the M. E. church, the M. E. church, South, and the M. P. church met in Evanston, Ill., August 14-16. Nearly 40 members of the commissions were present. Ten of our group were there—seven ministers and three laymen. Mr. J. Norman Wills was one of the laymen in attendance.

This was the third full meeting of the commissions. Several separate meetings had been held up to this time by the Committee of Fifteen, which was appointed by the first full meeting of the commission, held in Chicago in August of 1934. This Committee of Fifteen has worked on various phases of the merger, and made reports of their findings to the different meetings of the full commission. In this way the work has been greatly facilitated.

The Evanston meeting is the last that will be held, unless the Committee of Fifteen finds it necessary to call the commission together again. This means, of course, that the commissions have completed their work, in harmony with the orders that they received from their respective General Conferences. The compact which they have formulated for the uniting of these three churches was unanimously adopted, on roll call, by each commission. Just as soon as the compact can be made ready by the secretaries and the Editing Committee it will be given to the church press. No long time will be required for this, though it may be October before it can be published.

I shall not attempt here to go into the details of the plan and basis of union, as all of that will be given in the publication soon to follow. I do, however, give it as my humble opinion that a notable church compact has been formulated, and that it has been done in a Christian way. No desire to promote the interest of any group has predominated, nor has such a desire been in evidence at any time during the negotiations. On the other hand, a spirit of fairness and brotherliness has prevailed. The thing that was kept uppermost in all deliberations and in all conclusions was to unite the three churches, not only organically, but likewise in the bonds of Christian fellowship. If this union is consummated, it will provide the most striking illustration of brotherhood that the world has seen since the coming of our Lord.

H. A. Garrett Claimed by Death

On last Saturday morning Brother Henry Arlendo Garrett, of Burlington, R. F. D. 1, passed away after an illness of several weeks. Brother Garrett was one of our best-known laymen, having been superintendent of our Children's Home at High Point for twelve years and having served as field agent for High Point College for two years. He was a member of the last General Conference and was widely known throughout the denomination. Mrs. Garrett, who, perhaps, feels the loss most keenly, is a daughter of Rev. T. F. McCulloch, of Greensboro, and the late Mrs. Eleanor McCulloch.

The funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at Friendship church, Mt. Hermon charge, and were conducted by the pastor, Rev. T. J. Whitehead, assisted by President Andrews and Dr. T. M. Johnson.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord.

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

Obituary Committee for Bro. Whitaker

Pay Apportionment on A. C. Debt in September

Some pastors have already paid this but have not paid A. C. expenses, or church extension, or superannuates. In such case please make an effort to "clean up" what is behind on these claims. We have kept the superannuates for October in our call, but several pastors report it already paid, which is fine. Since we have practically only two months in which to raise all unpaid conference claims, together with what is behind on pastor's salary, it will be a very busy two months and we hope that no pastor or church official will lag behind in this rally for a 100 per cent goal for these claims.

The Disintegrator

In almost every church there is some one or more persons who seem to feel that he or she is designed by his type of religion to keep the plans of the pastor and official board from working smoothly. Such try to get between those willing to work and the work of the church so as to hinder it as much as possible. These agents of evil design are usually most facile in their methods of disruption. They can adapt themselves to any whim and prejudice which may be gripping some misguided church member and use it for the furtherance of their unholy purpose without even the pastor knowing who is the instigator. It matters not that there is no justification for such an act; that the contention of these agents of evil design is all wrong; that the person accused of doing or saying something unkind never intended it that way and would gladly explain it all in a most friendly manner. The thing these agents of diabolus delight in is the opportunity to stage a big display of the reason (?) why the pastor is a failure or prejudiced against some member, or that the officials of the church are evil-minded, or that the church is dying, etc. Having accomplished this 100 per cent, they gloat over their success in their dirty souls while piously parading their regrets that the church is getting on so poorly. It is futile to expect a church to prosper while it is guided by selfish people, whether that person be pastor or non-official member. Selfishness has only one proper place and that not on the earth, certainly not in heaven. It is hard to believe that some of these disintegrators are insincere, but harder to believe that others are sincere as they go about their daily maneuvers of destruction. It is so sweet for some people to have their way in the affairs of the church that they will hazard their spiritual life in order to have it. I have witnessed the work of such pretended friendship for the M. P. church far too many times for my peace of mind. It does not look good for a leader to write the above lines, neither can he express his loyalty while remaining silent.

Rev. C. H. Whitaker and Bro. H. A. Garrett Gone Home

In the passing of these excellent men the Methodist Protestant church has lost two most efficient workers and loyal supporters and the writer has lost two good friends.

Don't Fail to Send in the Offering of Children's Home

It was unfortunate that the celebration had to be cancelled, but the offerings need not be cancelled. If such offerings were taken and have not as yet been sent to Dr. Dixon, please see that they are sent to him at once.

Mt. Pleasant Charge, Rev. J. W. Braxton, Pastor

We visited Pleasant Union church on this charge last Sunday. There was not quite the usual congregation out, I was told. The membership is not large, but much larger than many efficient churches I know. In fact, a church membership need not be large in order to accomplish great things in the community where it is. What is needed more than size is a zeal for the cause. Here we have some very fine people and capable people. I did not learn to what extent the claims were paid, but suppose these will be met before conference in November. This is Bro. Braxton's second year and he is deservedly popular at both churches.

Gibsonville Church, Rev. R. C. Stubbins, Pastor

We visited this church at night. There was a good attendance out and the people listened attentively to the message. This is another two-point work, being with Fountain Place. The work here appears to be in good condition, about all conference claims have been met, and the pastor is hopeful of closing a good year. He reports 32 tithers in this congregation; that speaks well for their grace of giving. It runs up to some 15 per cent of the membership, which is not bad. Bro. Stubbins is serving his first year and is popular with the people. We expect him to bring a good report to the Annual Conference.

PUTITONAPOSTAL

That looks like a foreign word, Russian for instance. But it isn't. If you'll separate it you will find there are several words in it. PUT IT ON A POSTAL. Put what? Why, your delegate's name, address; your name and charge. That's all and enough. But why don't you do it? Two weeks since I made the request. And just sixteen responses. And just two months, or thereabouts, until Conference. Come on, brethren, dearly beloved, and give me the information I need—and the president of the Conference needs. And, if you forget the street number just send it to

THE LABOR SUNDAY MESSAGE, 1935

Our issue of last week carried on page 10 the Labor Sunday message of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America. This is a communication designed to be read in the churches on the Sunday nearest Labor Day. It is an annual release and ought to be used wherever possible even though there may be many who cannot endorse every sentence of the message and who may not even be able to approve of the Federal Council. Probably no one can advocate every utterance of this great organization. The issuance and use of the Labor Sunday message and the observance of the day are to show that "the churches of America have not been and cannot be indifferent to the situation" now prevailing in the industrial world. The church needs to make a testimony of our concern.

Three things in the message are very much in keeping with the deliverances of former years, as we remember them, and are obvious although exceedingly important. On these subjects we desire to make brief comments. There is another section on which we hope to make a longer observation in a future issue.

The first concern of those who study the field of labor is unemployment. There are still 20,000,000 persons on public relief. The people who cannot get work are the major problem among workmen. The curse of unemployment is that it makes men unemployable. This dark section of the picture requires the best and bravest thought of the nation and the most passionate sympathy of all people who think of industry in its relations to individuals. Christians must so think of everything.

The second section of the message deals with the plenty that is possible with our present industrial capacity and the actual scarcity of many of our suffering neighbors. The good news of sufficiency breeds only bitterness in the hearts of those who feel like they are being deprived of their share of the products of the land. There is a clear call for distribution that will be more equal and mean a measure of security to all. This aspect of the picture must be considered, and yet, while grappling with the problem, men ought to admit that there is a wider spread of the comforts and conveniences of life, of sufficient food and clothing, here in America than in any other part of the world and that with all the present distress things are getting better. We should not let our problems blind us to the thing for which we should be thankful.

The last section of the report, and the one which might stimulate the most debate, is that part dealing with the organization of both employes and employers for collective bargaining and social action. The right is recognized by all men. To one who tries to see justice on every side of a question the method of organization in industry now presents some serious problems and makes it very hard for one to express an impartial opinion. It seems that both the employes and employers are organized for conflict rather than co-operation. Both sides seem to seek partisan advantage rather than peace and production. Instances of grinding down labor and chiseling in competition are cited against the employers, but there are also alleged acts of exploitation on the part of the leaders of labor. It has been charged that much agitation and many strikes are brought about to promote political propaganda on the part of those who are opposed to our form of government, that labor leaders have been under suspicion of fomenting strikes so they could secure money or promotion by settling the disputes, that the leaders in the labor unions receive salaries which place them far outside the class of workmen and are interested in keeping the unions strong in order to build up their own incomes. The men who speak for the church must seek to find the right in every particular and avoid partisanship.

It also occurs to us that there is a large body of forgotten men in the industrial situation. They are the men who cannot join the unions because of race, lack of apprenticeship, incompetency and other reasons. These men are generally the strike breakers and the most cruelly exploited class of workmen. They work when they can. They need employment and support as well as the members of labor organizations. They are human, and for employers to use their necessities as an excuse for paying starvation wages is anti-social just as it is wrong for organized employes to ignore them except when they have to fight them.

Another suggestion is that when organized industry fights and imposes violence on a community having no other concern than winning its fight and cares not how badly the uninvolved people of the neighborhood suffer, that this is wrong. There is a vast public that resents the suffering which has been imposed upon it by labor conflicts in which they were only the innocent victims. This is an aspect of the situation that both sides must keep in mind. The public has the right of peace and the orderly processes of social life as well as industry.

The conclusion of the report is that individuals and institutions must be under the control of the mind of Christ. Jesus was a workman. He also planned a great enterprise which required laborers. He is interested in every man. His plans comprehend the good of all. All exploitation, unfair dealing and denial of opportunity are contrary to His spirit. The church and the ministry must impartially preach Christ and measure every act by His example. He was among men as one who served. He did not please Himself. He gave Himself on the cross to make peace. In Him we find our salvation from the selfishness and destructive conflicts which delay the coming of the Kingdom of God among men. — Methodist Protestant Recorder.

The Department of Stewardship

In line with a suggestion of Rev. H. F. Fogleman, chairman of the Annual Conference Committee on Stewardship, we will begin in this paper a department to be known as Stewardship. Brother Fogleman and his committee will assemble material from week to week on this very important subject and we will put it in the best form possible. We trust this department may become very helpful.

Dr. H. L. Elderdice Improving

The Methodist Protestant Recorder told us last week that Rev. H. L. Elderdice, D. D., president emeritus of the Westminster Theological Seminary and one of the best loved men in the denomination, has returned home from a Baltimore hospital and is steadily improving.

SOME LIMERICKS

Selected by LUTHER K. LONG

Ever since limericks became popular in the 1890's I have enjoyed reading them in the papers. From time to time I have clipped and put away those that had a special appeal. Such clippings, however, have a way of becoming mislaid and lost.

Recently I came across Carolyn Wells' Book of American Limericks. While this is by no means a complete collection, it is interesting, and affords healthful amusement. I am reproducing here some that will doubtless interest most readers of the HERALD. I begin with one by Anthony Euwer. This was a favorite of the late Woodrow Wilson. Because he so often repeated it, many persons thought he was the author.

For beauty I am not a star,
There are others more handsome by far;
But my face I don't mind it,
For I am behind it,
It's the people in front that I jar.

Mr. Euwer is the author of several other good ones:

No matter how grouchy you're feeling,
You'll find the smile more or less healing.
It grows in a wreath
All around the front teeth,
Thus preserving the face from congealing.

Now the ears, so I always had thunk,
Should bear sounds to the top of the trunk.
But from her I observe
They seem merely to serve
As racks for the jooler-man's junk.

The hands they were made to assist
In supplying the features with grist.
There are only a few—
As a rule, about two—
And are hitched to the end of the wrist.

The ankle's chief end is exposiery
Of the latest designs in silk hosiery;
Also I suspect
It was made to connect
The part called the calf with the tosiery.

Here are two from E. M. Robinson:

There once was a guy named Othello,
A dark, disagreeable fellow;
After croaking his wife,
He took his own life—
That guy wasn't black, he was yellow!

There was a young man named Achilles,
Whose wrongs always gave him the willies;
So he sulked in his tent
Like a half-witted gent;
Say, wasn't them heroes the sillies?

Reading the four following is good exercise for one's wits:

A sporty young man in St. Pierre
Had a sweetheart and oft went to sierre.
She was Gladys by name,
And one time when he came
Her mother said: "Gladys St. Hierre."

A globe-trotting man from St. Paul
Made a trip to Japan in the faul.
One thing he found out,
As he rambled about,
Was that the Japanese ladies St. Taul.

A guy asked two jays at St. Louis
What kind of an Indian the Souis.
They said: "We're no en-
Cyclopedia, by hen!"
Said the guy: "If you fellows St. Whouis?"

A bright little maid in St. Thomas
Discovered a suit of pajhomas.
Said the maiden: "Well, well!
What they are I can't tell;
But I'm sure these garments St. Mhomas."

Here are some whose authors are unknown:

There was a young woman named Sue,
Who wanted to catch the 2:02;
Said the trainman: "Don't hurry
Or flurry or worry;
It's a minute or two to 2:02."

There was a young person named Tate
Who went out to dine at 8:08,
But I will not relate
What that person named Tate
And his tete-a-tete ate at 8:08.

"There's a train at 4:04," said Miss Jenny;
"Four tickets I'll take. Have you any?"
Said the man at the door:
"Not four for 4:04,
For four for 4:04 is too many."

There was a young girl named O'Neill,
Who went up in the great Ferris wheel;
But when half-way around
She looked at the ground,
And it cost her an eighty-cent meal.

A fellow named Teddy McGee,
Rolling homeward one night from a spree,
Met a parson who said,
"Ah, drunk again, Ted!"
"Sho'm I, parson," gurgled McGee.

A young lady sings in our choir
Whose hair is the color of phoir,
But her charm is unique,
She has such a fair chique,
It is really a joy to be nhoir.

Whenever she looks down the aisle,
She gives me a beautiful smaisle,
And of all of her beaux
I am certain she sheaux
She likes me the best all the whaisle.

Last Sunday she wore a new sacque,
Low cut at the front and the bacque,
And a lovely bouquet
Worn in such a cute wuet
As only few girls have the knacque.

Some day ere she grows too antique,
In marriage her hand I shall sique;
If she's not a coquette,
Which I'd greatly regruette,
She shall share my $6 a wique.

MY FOUR FRIENDS

The last few weeks have taken four very dear friends from earth to heaven. In the order of their going they are Rev. E. G. Lowdermilk, Sheriff R. R. Ross, Rev. C. H. Whitaker and Mr. H. A. Garrett.

In school at Oak Ridge Institute I met and learned to love Lowdermilk and Garrett. They were both clean, honest, straightforward men. They were both, in their turn, superintendent of the Children's Home. They both filled their places in life faithfully and well.

I met Sheriff Ross in his home church about 34 years ago, and from that day until he died I felt that he was my friend. He was a trustee of the Children's Home from its opening in High Point until his death, and a more faithful man to his trust could not be found. His counsels were always wise.

Bro. Whitaker was serving on Halifax charge when I took my first appointment in Rocky Mount, and I was called upon to assist him in a number of meetings during his three years on that charge. He was a fine man to work with, and he was a good preacher, and was without doubt one of the best pastors I ever worked with. I took lessons under him in pastoral work, but was never able to equal him in that sphere.

It was always pleasant to meet and to take counsel with any, or all, of these four friends. They were all great men in their sphere, and my life will always be the richer for the associations with them.

Earth is poorer and heaven is richer because of their going. Each of them left a rich heritage to their friends. God bless their memories. A. G. DIXON.

WILL YOU HELP?

Miss Maude Potter, one of the folks at Bethel Home, recently joined our church at Weaverville. That church is being rebuilt. The folks, and there are not many of them, have already spent some $600 on it, and will have to spend some more before the job is done. Miss Potter wants to help; but her means are limited. But there is a way for you to help her help them. I have met a few men who don't wear neckties. But most of us do. Miss Potter is making, and trying to sell, neckties. Take my word for it, and I am following the word by the deed, when I tell you the ties she makes are in price, material and taste, real bargains. Priced at 25 and 50 cents, they are far better than you can buy in the stores at these prices. Write her for as many as you want, giving preference as to predominating color. And you'll be satisfied. And she'll be happy. (She didn't ask me to say all this. I'm doing it because I want to help.) Address, Miss Maude Potter, Bethel Home, Weaverville, N. C. C. W. BATES.

INVITE YOUR FRIENDS

Shortly after Jesus called him, Matthew made "a great feast" for his old companions, to which he invited Jesus. This was probably designed as a banquet to his former companions. This would afford a good opportunity of avowing his new allegiance, and of introducing Jesus to them in favorable circumstances. Only a whole-hearted, brave man would have done this kind of thing. He had responded to the call of Jesus without the slightest reservation.

His act was like that of a high-minded man, who, having chosen for a wife one who did not belong to his own social set, forthwith introduced her to his friends, and gave them the choice of recognizing her or breaking with him. There are few better illustrations of open avowal of the Master than the conduct of Matthew in giving this feast. Some new converts keep the fact of their conversion a great secret. Their friends find it out only by accident. We speak this to their shame.—The Watchman-Examiner.

WHAT IS PRAYER?

Prayer is weakness leaning on Omnipotence.
Prayer is the heart's trysting time with God.
Prayer is faith laying hold on God's promises.
Prayer is the thirsty soul's cry for the Living Water.
Prayer is hope realizing its fruition in anticipation.
Prayer is the breath of Heaven breathing through the life of man.
Prayer is the atmosphere in which all Christian virtues grow to perfection.—Publisher Unknown.

PARTNERSHIP WITH JESUS IN HIS WORK

I heard somewhere of a bishop who had been traveling over the country preaching for fifty years. One morning he came down to breakfast at a hotel and was seated at a small table opposite a young man. Before the bishop could unfold his napkin the pleasant young man had said, "Good morning."

There was a moment's pause and then the young man said eagerly, "I am a traveling man."

The bishop thought of the thousands of miles he had traveled in his ministry and said, "So am I."

"My line is jewelry," pursued the young man.

The bishop thought of Malachi 3:17, "And they shall be mine, said the Lord of hosts, in that day when I make up my jewels," and answered, "So is mine."

"This is my first trip," said the young man.

This bishop replied, "I have been traveling for the same firm for fifty years."

"I represent my own house, for I travel for my father," continued the young man.

"So do I," said the bishop earnestly.

Then the young man said eagerly, "I am determined to make good, for when I go home I want to carry father a good report."

"So do I," replied the bishop prayerfully.—Earnest Worker.

HE SILENCED THE DEVIL

If you find yourself getting miserly, begin to scatter, like a wealthy farmer in New York State that I heard of. He was a noted miser, but he was converted. Soon after, a poor man who had been burned out and had no provisions came to him for help. The farmer thought he would be liberal and give him a ham from his smokehouse. On his way to get it, the tempter whispered to him:

"Give him the smallest one you have."

He had a struggle whether he would give a large ham or a small ham, but finally he took down the largest he could find.

"You are a fool," the devil said.

"If you don't keep still," the farmer replied, "I'll give him every ham I have in the smokehouse."—Publisher Unknown.

HE WAS SO GOOD

A mother recently found her little girl, Dorothy, reading her Bible and crying while she read. In answer to inquiry why she cried, Dorothy replied:

"I am reading about Jesus. He was so good, and made everybody happy, but when night came, and He was very tired, He had not where to lay His head. If I had been there," sobbed Dorothy, "I would have given Him my pillow."

Save your pennies to send missionaries to tell other boys and girls about Jesus. This will greatly please Him, and give Him rest and joy.—Our Pentecostal Boys and Girls.

GRATEFUL GLADYS

Gladys was six; a little girl with a weakly body, but a very cheerful spirit. She had been in the habit of spending all her pennies on sweets, till one day Mother told her she ought to begin to give a penny to Jesus (in the collection box) on Sunday. Gladys came to the conclusion that it would be a very good plan.

The little girl was suffering from an inward trouble, and one day the doctor said that an operation was necessary.

"If you are a good girl, Gladys, I will give you a penny," said the doctor.

The child was overjoyed.

"What will you do with it?" he asked.

"Give it to Jesus on Sunday," Gladys replied instantly.

"Well," said the doctor, "if that is what you are going to do with it, I'll give you another for yourself."

The operation was performed successfully, and Gladys received the promised reward.

After a short time she was able to attend Sunday school again. Then, with a heart bubbling over with joy, she placed, not one, but both precious coins in the box, and the sweet smile on her face seemed to say, "It's for Jesus, who took care of me."

I wonder if you are grateful like Gladys, or do you cry to the Savior for help, and then, when the trouble is all over, forget to return and give thanks? I hope not.—Unknown.

WHEN BETTY CAME TO BIDE-AWEE

Bide-Awee Cottage was the loveliest place in the world, Betty Lane thought, the day she arrived there to spend a fortnight. The cottage was fairly smothered in vines and set in the midst of a riot of flowers; and on the porch stood the sweetest-faced little lady who just matched the cottage, for her smiling eyes and outstretched hands seemed to welcome you to "bide-awee" in her home.

And Betty was so glad that she had been sent there, instead of to the big house a little way up the street, where a group of merry children were playing in the yard. For Betty's home was the big orphanage where three hundred lived in a number of cottages, each with its house-mother. The house-mothers were very good to their large families; but Betty had often thought how nice it would be to have a mother all to herself instead of having to share Miss Smith with fourteen other little girls. Miss Smith was very kind to Betty, but naturally she had not much time to give to one little girl; so nobody ever knew how Betty wanted a mother to hold and rock her, and listen when she wanted to talk, and to kiss her and love her.

So when she arrived at Bide-awee Cottage, and little Mrs. Ray came running down to the gate to meet her little visitor with open arms, Betty just ran into them and put both arms around her neck and felt herself welcomed home for the first time in her life.

That was a wonderful two weeks to Betty. Her little white and flowery room, "all to herself," seemed to her the loveliest place on earth. In the evenings they sat in the twilight, and Mrs. Ray took Betty on her lap and rocked as they talked. Betty wanted nothing more. The only trouble was that the two weeks would come to an end. And all too soon the last day came. On the last evening, Mrs. Ray felt tears on her shoulder as they sat in the big porch rocker together. "What is it, Betty?" she asked anxiously. "Is anything wrong?"

I—I don't want to go back," sobbed Betty.

Then Mrs. Ray hugged her and cried too. "Why, Betty, I was afraid you would find it so dull, being used to a crowd of children, as you are. I almost thought I should have let you go to Mrs. Brown, who has five of her own. Have you really been happy here with me?"

"Oh," sobbed Betty, "I don't b'lieve Heaven is any nicer!"

"Then," said Mrs. Ray decidedly, "you shall just stay here with me. I have always wanted a little girl of my very own; and I want you, Betty. I am going back with you tomorrow and explain to the matron that I can't spare you, and you will come back with me to Bide-awee—to bide forever—as long as you want to stay."

"Oh," whispered Betty, "I'm glad!"—The Child's Gem.

THE PRECIOUS BLOOD

A lady came to me once when I was preaching some years ago in a western city, and asked me if I wouldn't talk to her husband; that when she spoke to him on religion he paid no attention, and she might as well talk to a post. I told her she had better pray God to convince and convict him.

They used to come to the meetings together, and often as I was speaking I would see her eyes close and her lips move, and I knew she was praying God to convict him. They came about a dozen times during the winter.

One night, after he had taken his seat, I noticed that his eyes looked as if he had been weeping. I gave out one hymn after another, all bearing on the atonement, as that was the subject for the sermon. When I gave out the text, "The Precious Blood," I saw him cover his face and bow his head, and he fairly wept aloud. He followed me into the inquiry room after the meeting was over, and said to me:

"Mr. Moody, this has been the most extraordinary day in my life. When I got up this morning the words 'Precious Blood' came into my mind. When I went down town to my place of business the words 'Precious Blood' were ringing in my mind, and all during the day it was 'Precious Blood, precious Blood.' They followed me here tonight, and when you gave out your text, 'The Precious Blood,' I could hardly stay in my seat. I can't understand it."

"Well," I said, "I can"; and after talking with him for a while he accepted Christ then and there.

He is now dead, but when I was passing through that city years after I asked about him, and they told me in all the years he had lived he had never lost his hold on Christ. —D. L. Moody.

Little Miss Olivia Grant, Canaan, N. Davidson, 4 dresses. Mrs. Lacy Lewis, Asheboro, 1 coat and a box of clothing for girls. Mrs. J. W. McCue, Detroit, Mich., 6 tea towels.

We are thankful today for the privilege of making so good a report.

You are anxious to know just how much the birthday offering is to date. Including what came in today, August 26, the total amounts to $1,844.44. A great many churches have not yet been heard from, so we are still hoping. Nearly all churches and Sunday schools will send in before you receive the Herald this week. If it has not been sent in before, please get it to us at the earliest possible date.

Regular Offerings for September

Because of the infantile paralysis scare during July and August our Sunday schools ran at a low ebb, and the regular offerings for those two months fell off nearly one-half. Please remember that in making your September and October offerings. We thank you for your continued interest.

Yours in His service,

A. G. DIXON, Superintendent.

WILL ROGERS NOBLE EMBODIMENT OF OUR COMMON HUMANITY

The press in announcing his death said: "A cowboy's drawl, a shy grin and a mirthful tongue that convulsed king and commoner alike made Will Rogers an international favorite." Men high in statecraft, aviation, dramatics and sports pronounced him humorist, entertainer, philosopher, friend and typical American. But none of these nor all of them explain Will Rogers any more than does the declaration that Washington was the first American, Lincoln the typical American, or Shakespeare an Elizabethan Englishman explains the Father of his Country, the Great Emancipator or the Bard of Avon.

Something more than a drawl, a grin and a mirthful tongue made this Oklahoma cowboy, proud of his Cherokee blood, the intimate friend of presidents, monarchs, dictators, captains of industry and statesmen, to say nothing of millions in every walk of life who never laid eyes on him or felt the touch of his friendly hand. Will Rogers knew not the limits of land or clime. In him was embodied the soul of our common humanity that made appeal to the universal soul, enabling him to say in the epitaph he suggested for his tomb, "I never met a man I didn't like." Such a soul gave to our universal humanity a man the whole world claims for its own.

The Christian world says of the Man of Galilee that in Him dwelt all the fullness of the Godhead bodily. We love to think of this man of the western plains, so wonderfully human and wholly natural in all he said and did, that in him dwelt the best of our ordinary humanity. This gave Will Rogers the universal touch and disclosed to the average man that which is above crowns and royal blood, a simple faith and a kind heart. In the words of his dear friend, Fred Stone, loving him, missing him, we give him to the ages.—M. T. P., in N. C. Christian Advocate.

REV. S. W. COE, OF BALTIMORE, CLAIMED BY DEATH

The daily press carried the information this week that the Rev. S. W. Coe, a former North Carolinian and for the past half century a member of the Maryland Conference of the Methodist Protestant church, died in Baltimore on Sunday. He was a nephew of Mrs. W. C. Kennett, widow of the Rev. W. C. Kennett, of Greensboro, and was an uncle of Mrs. E. W. Teague, of Grace church.

CHINA

The following names have been given to China: "Middle Kingdom" (center of the world); "Celestial Kingdom," "Dawn Land," "Flowery Kingdom." To the average American, however, China represents a nation of "pit-falls"; opium dens, laundrymen, and chop suey restaurant keepers, rather than a civilization rich in art, literature and history. Too often the more sordid aspects of Chinese life have been given undue emphasis. It is rather unfortunate that the word "heathen" should have been applied to the Chinese, for to the mind of the average American it conveys the idea of an uncivilized people rather than a non-Christian race.

Looking at China as a whole we see an enormous country divided into 18 provinces, each qualified in point of size and population to be a kingdom in itself. The largest, Szechwan, is the size of France, while the smallest, Chekiang, is larger than Ireland. In China's four million square miles—an area but slightly greater than that of the United States—lives one-fourth of the human family. China has a population four times as great as that of the United States and it is increasing in leaps and bounds. China has been well described as a great giant sprawling across a quarter of Asia.

As in the world over, the boys nd girls of China inherit their religion from their parents. This means that they are Confucianists, Taoists, or Buddhists, or more likely a combination of all three. One cannot say that China is partly Confucian, partly Taoist and partly Buddhist in the sense that India is partly Hindu and partly Mohammedan, for every person's religion is a mixture of the three. One may even find a tablet to Confucius, a Taoist idol, and an image of Buddha in the same temple.

The question whether Christianity can supply a need in China which her own religions cannot may be tested by the lives of those Chinese who have been identified with the Christian church. They are not perfect lives, but no one who knows the average character of the men and women who make up the church in China as compared with the average character of the classes or groups outside the church will have any doubt on this subject. Nearly all the movements for social and moral betterment have either originated inside the Christian movement or have had their chief support there. This is particularly true of the outstanding movements against foot-binding, the opium traffic, and the extension of the whole modern movement for elevating the status of woman, and for a fuller recognition of the value and importance of child life.

Mr. Chang Chung Hsien, principal Kalgan school, wrote for us some time ago a splendid article on "Are Missionaries Still Needed in China?" He sums up the article by saying, "No matter how many missionaries will be sent to China, yet they cannot fill every village. For example, there are about one thousand villages in our Methodist Protestant territory and only more than ten churches among them. If we hope that every village has a small church, the Chinese must do the work. But the missionaries have a very important duty, that is to train Chinese leaders to be responsible for those small churches. So this training by missionaries is important in every church in China, because it is the method to lead the Chinese church to be independent. China not only needs missionaries but welcomes them."—Missionary Record.

ATTENTION, EVERYBODY!

Please keep in mind that if every one who got a "Baby Bond" doesn't either fill it out by sending in 1,000 coupons and getting the four seals for the "Bond," or else send the "Bond" back to Mrs. A. G. Dixon so that it may be given to someone else, the Children's Home will not get the $400 bonus money. So secure every coupon you can and send them in as rapidly as possible. We just must get the amount required. We have a whole year to get them, but begin now, and then perhaps you can fill in two.

ROYCE GARRETT IN HOSPITAL

Royce Garrett, the two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Garrett, of Calvary church, was operated on in the Clinic hospital in Greensboro one day last week. He probably will be in the hospital about two weeks.

CHARLES COE ILL

Brother Charles Coe, a member of Moriah church but whose family are members of Calvary church in Greensboro, has been quite ill at his home on West Lee street for the past few weeks.

WELCOME

To non-resident students attending college in Greensboro. And thrice welcome from the pastor and members of Grace church. Whether this fall will be your first year in one of our colleges in Greensboro or your last year, you will find a cordial fellowship at our church.

We have as fine a church as there is any place. Our members are of a high type—the kind of folks that would please your taste and college culture. Our building is beautiful, the equipment adequate, our leaders the best, and our worship service of a high order. As a young person of high ideals and worthy ambitions we feel that you would enjoy making Grace your church home while here in college.

If you are going to attend Woman's College, Greensboro College, or some of the business colleges here and are interested in our church, please just drop me a postal card saying when you will arrive and where you will board. We shall gladly arrange transportation to and from church services for you. If I may be of any service to you getting "settled" in Greensboro, also let me help.

Waiting to welcome you in person, I am

Sincerely yours,

J. ELWOOD CARROLL, Pastor,
Grace M. P. Church.

WINNING FINANCIAL FREEDOM

The Layman Company's pamphlet, "Winning Financial Freedom," has proven to be so popular and effective that once more we are offering it to any pastor free of charge. On request we will send, postage paid, enough copies to supply all the lay officials of his church.

The pamphlet describes a simple method by which the pastor may carry on, quietly and steadily, the education of his people in the principles of Christian giving, without interfering with his other work, and at a cost purely nominal.

For $1.00 we will send to any address 40 pamphlets, 32 four-page bulletins, and 20 two-page tabloids, by about 40 authors. This package includes a Tithing Account Book, two playlets, "Adventures in Tithing" and "The Scriptural Basis for the Tithe." It contains everything we publish, making over 560 pages on the subject of tithing.

When you write, please mention the Methodist Protestant Herald and give your denomination.

THE LAYMAN COMPANY,
730 Rush Street, Chicago.

CALVARY'S MEMBERSHIP HARD HIT

It is unusual for the membership of one church to have more long-drawn-out cases of sickness either in the homes or the hospitals and to have more bereavement on account of the death of relatives than Calvary church has had this year.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Littleton Charge.—It has been some time since I have reported through the Herald, but we are busy. We have held two of our revival meetings and we are now holding the third.

Rev. J. L. Pittard was our pulpit help at Vaughn and he certainly did bring us some inspiring messages. I think the church was greatly strengthened, though we had only one profession and two additions. One reason we did not have greater numbers is because most of the people in Vaughn are members of the church.

Rev. J. L. Love was our help at Hawkins Chapel, and I think I can safely say we had a revival. Our church was revived, there were 34 professions and nine additions. Bro. Love is helping me this week also at Weaver's Chapel and he certainly does do his part. I don't think I ever heard better sermons than have been delivered at Hawkins Chapel and also at Weaver's Chapel.

We can not say yet just how the meeting at Weaver's Chapel will be, but we believe we are going to have a good meeting there. We ask you to pray for us that we may be used of God in bringing sinners to Christ.

R. L. VICKERY.

◆

Denton.—The revival meeting began here the first Sunday in August. Dr. George Brown, from Reidsville, was the pulpit help. He brought us very inspiring messages. Each service was well attended. The people enjoyed associating with Dr. Brown and hope he will come back to see us.

Our Sunday school is getting along fine. Each Sunday during the month of August a different class is taking charge. We find this very interesting to all members.

We are glad to report that our pastor, Mr. Bowman, is out again after a few days of illness. Mrs. Bowman is away for a short time at the home of her parents.

The Christian Endeavor societies will hold their regular monthly business meeting Thursday evening, August 29, at 7:30.

Monday night, September 2, at 8 o'clock, the Young Woman's Auxiliary will meet at the home of Jacqueline Cameron.

MARJORIE CRANFORD.

◆

Brown Summit.—Mrs. Easter and I have been living here in the Brown Summit community since my graduation from High Point College last May. We have been so happy and the church so busy that the summer months have just raced away. This is our first experience in the active pastorate and we would be unable to express the joy and happiness it has brought to us in these few short months.

The membership here is not very large, of course, but there is a fine spirit of friendship and ambition within the church, and I feel that we are making fair progress. We have had a good number of accessions and the financial condition of the church is satisfactory and encouraging.

One phase of our program that I am very happy with is the interest that is being shown in the musical life of the church. We have organized a singing group that meets every week for a "singing," we call it. It is not exactly the usual choir practice, for every one is invited to come in and sing with us for the pure joy of singing. It has served in improving our music, of course, and also in attracting a large group of young folk into the work of our church. This group has visited the other churches of our community and they in turn have visited us, thus helping to bind the churches more together in these interests.

On the fourth Sunday in August we had the White Oak Men's Chorus with us for an afternoon service of music. We had a record audience and a wonderful program. These men are fine singers and seemed to enjoy their work. We hope to have them again soon.

We were indeed sorry to learn that the home-coming celebration could not be held at the Children's Home. Mrs. Easter and I were workers there during the college year last session and appreciate fully what it must mean to the children and Dr. and Mrs. Dixon. We did our best to send a good offering to help ward off this disappointment. May they be blessed with a good offering.

O. L. EASTER, Pastor.

◆

Bethesda, State St.—The second Sunday in August was a big day at Bethesda. It was the annual home-coming and the beginning of the special meeting. The services during the week were characterized by good attendance, impressive sermons by Rev. Edw. Suits, and the spirit of worship. Eight young people accepted Christ as their personal Savior and gave their names for church membership.

August 25 was another good day. Our faithful superintendent has wanted our attendance average for the month of August to reach 200, and we have been working toward that end. He was indeed happy Sunday when it was really done and then some. We averaged 215.

We were glad to have Prof. Clinard, of Winston-Salem, to worship with us and teach the older classes. We were also glad to have the Young Men's Class of Pilgrim Lutheran church worship with us.

The Ladies' Auxiliary is planning an ice cream and chicken pie supper September 7.

MRS. J. O. EVERHART, Reporter.

Siler City Church.—It has been quite a while since a report has gone in from our church, but that does not mean that we are asleep on the job; far from it. All activities of the church are moving along nicely. Our Sunday school has had a little slump the past few hot Sundays, but is taking on new life, and the prospects are a larger attendance in the near future.

Our revival began Sunday, August 18, and ran through August 25, with two services daily. Rev. J. A. Burgess, our pastor, did all the preaching and delivered some of the best sermons it has been our privilege to hear. He held the audience spellbound at each service. While there were no visible results, we feel sure much good was accomplished. We were all delighted to have Mr. T. B. Reynolds, of Julian, with us each night and conduct the song service. Many complimentary remarks have been made in his behalf. We hope he can come our way again. We were also glad to have the men and women's quartets from Tabernacle church and all others who helped in any way. All local churches closed their doors Sunday night to attend our service and that meant a packed house for us.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Brody and children have returned from a ten days' trip to Norfolk and other points.

Mrs. L. L. Wrenn is able to be out after being confined several months.

Mrs. C. H. Fox has been right sick but was able to attend the revival some.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Cooper, Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Ellington and Miss Sallie Smith visited in the home of Mr. Will Smith in Liberty Sunday.

We were glad to have our pastor's wife worship with us at a part of the revival services. MRS. J. A. COOPER, Reporter.

◆

Friendship Station.—We have just closed a very successful revival at Friendship. Rev. J. Elwood Carroll, of Grace, Greensboro, was the pulpit help. He came to us on Monday after the first Sunday in August and remained until Wednesday of the next week.

The people were delighted with his fine messages. Out of the great depth of the Scriptures he brought forth great truths and made them clear and simple. He does not build on the surface, but lays deep the foundation for Christian living. The church was greatly revived, and two were added to the church. The additions were small owing to the fact that nearly all in this community belong to the church. An urgent request was made for his return for the meeting next year. As an expression of their appreciation they presented him with a purse of about $40, and loaded his car with a bumptious pounding.

Friendship is looking forward with new hope to the future. They are raising funds to paint the parsonage. It will soon be a reality.

Our young Brother Oscar Hally, who is now the efficient superintendent of Sunday school, is delegate-elect to Annual Conference. We are expecting a good report at Annual Conference. W. D. REED.

◆

Rockingham.—Our third quarterly conference was held Saturday, August 10, at Pageland, S. C. There was a good representation from three of the churches. We were glad to hear the good reports from each of these churches and to hear of the interest taken in them. We were glad to have Rev. Earl Cook, of Roberta, and Rev. James Trolinger, of Midland, with us. We are planning to build a parsonage here at Rockingham. H. W. Snead was chosen, with other helpers, to see about this matter.

We were glad to have our pastor back with us last night. He has been off for the past few weeks carrying on revivals at other churches. Mr. Bell brought us an interesting message last night from Matt. 16:24, "Then said Jesus unto his disciples, If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me."

Our Sunday school is fine. Last Sunday the attendance was 104. Every one seems very interested.

The Ladies' Aid held an ice cream supper on the church lawn last Friday evening. A large crowd was present and every one co-operated with the ladies in an inspiring manner.

We are very proud of our Wednesday night prayer meeting. The Lord is always present and many times souls are won into the Kingdom of God.

We ask the prayers of the different churches that we may ever strive to do the very best we can for the Master.

First Church, Burlington.—Our attendance is increasing and it is encouraging to see people come to God's house in great numbers. Our prayer is that all of our members will soon be able to say with David, "I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go to the house of the Lord."

Last Sunday night our church choir, under the leadership of Prof. E. C. Hamilton, rendered a program of beautiful sacred music.

Our birthday offering to the Children's Home was $60. We congratulate the Home on its 25th year of service.

We are holding a series of cottage prayer meetings prior to our revival which begins the first Sunday of September. Rev. T. J. Whitehead is the pulpit help.

A MEMBER.

Danville, Va.—The editor is calling for more reports, so in response to his plea here comes one. It has been some little time since our reporter has sent in a report, but we hope to hear from her again before long.

Though our church organization is little more than five months old we feel that considerable progress has been made. We now have a total of 50 members on roll with a promise of others who are coming in soon. Our church school is steadily growing under the efficient leadership of Mr. Joe Lamb and his able staff of officers and teachers. The average attendance is about 80, with an enrollment of more than 100. A goal of 125 in attendance has been set for next Sunday, and committees have been set to work in order to accomplish the same.

We have a Junior and a Senior Christian Endeavor Society. Mrs. Audrey Lamb is the leader of the Juniors, and Miss Ora Whisenant the president of the Seniors, both of whom are doing splendid work. The meetings are held each Sunday evening at 6:30 o'clock, just prior to the preaching hour. First they come together in a joint worship service, then they separate for the two classes. Though handicapped in not having separate rooms in which to meet, much interest is manifest, and their ranks are steadily growing.

Our Missionary Society is fortunate in having as its president Mrs. Ira Elliott, who has had considerable experience in that sort of work. She was president of the Missionary Society of Grace M. E. church before our church was organized. Our Missionary Society has been sponsoring the drive for Baby Bonds for our Children's Home and also the birthday offering for the 25th anniversary of the same. About $15 was realized for the latter.

Thursday afternoon our church school enjoyed a picnic at Kentuck, about nine miles out on the Richmond road. Plenty of fried chicken was on hand, etc. Games were played, and every one had a good time.

One of our most efficient church members, Mr. Ira Elliott, who is chairman of the Board of Stewards, teacher of the Young People's Class of our church school, and who was instrumental, along with Mr. G. H. Guerrant, in organizing this church, has just recently experienced the loss of his mother, whose soul took its flight to be with God some ten days ago. We all share in the sorrow of Mr. Elliott and the entire family, though we feel that what is our loss is heaven's gain.

Sunday, August 18, we were very pleasantly surprised by a visit by some of our good people from the First M. P. church of Kannapolis, which church we served for two years, this church being our first pastorate. The delegation consisted of Mr. R. T. Sides ("Uncle Bob" to us), Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Kiser, Miss Lucile Routh, Miss Elva Sides, and Mr. Edward Sides. They worshiped with us in our morning service, rendering two beautiful selections, a duet by Mrs. Kiser and Miss Routh, and a trio with the aid of Mr. R. T. Sides. After the service we enjoyed a picnic dinner together which they brought from Kannapolis, even to the drinking water. The visit was enjoyed by us immensely, and we hope this will not be their last visit. We are also looking for others of our friends from Kannapolis to visit us in the near future. We think a lot of these people and bid them Godspeed in the service of the Master.

We are looking forward to our revival services which are to begin the first week in October. Dr. Fred W. Paschall, of Burlington, N. C., is going to be our pulpit help, and thus we feel that we have a treat in store for us in being privileged to hear him. Interest is already being manifest, and we're hoping and praying for a great meeting which we need so badly. Pray for us that the Lord will abundantly bless us during these services.

We are now conducting a campaign for the purpose of raising funds with which to build a church building sometime in the future. Shares in the B. & L. are being sold to individual members of the church and congregation, payable in six and two-thirds years. At present we have 36 shares subscribed for, and we're hoping to reach 50 before the campaign closes. One share, payable 25 cents per week, after six and two-thirds years will net $100, though we are hoping to have a building before that time has expired.

Our people are looking forward to having Dr. R. M. Andrews back with us the first Sunday in October. We always enjoy Dr. Andrews' visits, and we're hoping that he can spend the entire day with us.

Thanks to the people here for granting me a 12-day vacation, beginning the first Monday in August and expiring Saturday before the third Sunday. The time was spent in visiting relatives and friends in Cleveland county and Shelby, N. C. We enjoyed the vacation and also enjoyed getting back to Danville once again. While in Shelby we visited my brother, Woodrow Morris, and our good friend, Mr. Watson Falls. The home of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Ramsey was also open to us, and we always enjoy being in their home. I enjoyed being with their pastor, my good friend, Bro. Forest Wagoner, whom I was with in school the past winter. I am grateful to all of these for making my vacation enjoyable.

As we try to carry on in this new work we covet your prayers. May the Lord bless and keep all of us to greater and greater service.

C. P. MORRIS, Pastor.

Bellemont, Mt. Hermon Charge.—Our revival began Sunday, August 25, with two services during the day. Rev. Lee Moser, one of our own boys, preached at the morning service. "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he," was the text he used at this service. This was Mr. Moser's first sermon at his home church. It was delivered to a large and appreciative audience. Another feature of the morning service was a trio, sung by Misses Madge, Gladys, and Grace Murray, of Friendship church.

In the afternoon our pastor preached an interesting sermon, but it was necessary to make this service short because of the funeral of Bro. H. A. Garrett.

On Monday Rev. J. W. Braxton came to deliver the messages throughout the week. They have proved to be very interesting and helpful to all.

Our pianist, Mrs. Paul Lowder, has planned special music for the 7:45 services each evening. On Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock a service will be held at the home of Mr. John Rich in Bellemont. Mr. Rich has been sick for several years, and Bro. Whitehead planned this service in order to bring a little sunshine and happiness to a shut-in.

May we all pray and work together this week that much good may be accomplished.

MARGARET PICKETT, Reporter.

Shiloh, Shiloh Charge.—The work at Shiloh is still moving along very well. Our Sunday school attendance the third Sunday was 329. The birthday offering for our Children's Home was taken and amounted to $51.20.

The third Sunday in August, as usual, was the beginning of our revival services. Rev. C. E. Ridge filled his appointment at 11 o'clock and preached, it seemed, the most forceful sermon since he has been on this charge. His subject was "The Power of Satan." He spoke plainly of the "hooks" which are used by Satan to deceive men and destroy the soul. It seems that more should be preached of the devil, which is man's greatest enemy. We are grateful for men who expose Satan to the fullest extent, because nothing too bad can be said of the evil one. Rev. C. G. Isley preached on Sunday afternoon.

Dr. Fred W. Paschall came to us Monday evening and conducted services through Saturday night. His afternoon discussions were a series of sermons on "The Marks of a Christian." These messages seemed to have awakened the church to its spiritual standing, and we hope that they shall remain in the hearts of every one who heard them and shall bear fruit even for years to come because of the very thought and meditation upon "The Marks of a Christian." We are very grateful to Dr. Paschall for those heart-searching and soul-stirring messages and truly hope that he shall come our way again. Those wishing to unite with Shiloh church will be received at the 11 o'clock service Sunday, September 1.

The regular prayer service was held Sunday morning in charge of the Primary department of the Sunday school. The spirit and response shown in the service seemed to be a direct result of our revival services which were discontinued Saturday night, strongly convincing us that the Spirit is at work in the hearts of our people.

MABEL BERRIER, Reporter.

Asheville.—Interest remains keen in the special services which have been going on during the past week. The congregation voted on Sunday evening to continue through Tuesday evening. Dr. Bethea has given some good sermons which have been appreciated by all who have attended.

Fawcett Bible Class rallied on Sunday and led the entire Sunday school in number present. Mrs. Bolick's Primaries led in the children's department. The Intermediate Class led the opening exercises of the Sunday school, presenting a problem play. Those taking parts were: Polly Gentry, Betty Marlowe, Lola Johnson, Lorene Moser and James Clouse. Miss Nancy Clouse directed the play.

Plans are going forward for a supper to be given September 4. Every one is urged to make plans to attend this supper, as the proceeds are to apply on the local church budget.

We are glad to welcome Miss Melle Smith, who has returned to resume her teaching position at the Swannanoa High School.

Mrs. C. C. McNeil was among those present for services on Sunday for the first time in some months. We are glad she was able to get out.

Beginning next Sunday evening, union services will be conducted by the five churches in this vicinity, the first service to be held at our church. It is hoped all our folk will be able to attend next Sunday evening and each successive evening during the month of September.

M. L. B.

Hawkins Chapel, Littleton Charge.—Mr. Leo Pittard preached for us the third Sunday in August at 8 o'clock; his sermon was greatly enjoyed.

Our revival began the second Sunday in August and continued through Friday. Bro. J. L. Love was pulpit help. Four were baptized and a large group reconsecrated themselves to the Lord. Brother Love and Pastor Vickery visited in many homes during the week. We were glad to have them, and hope Brother Love will come back in the near future. You are welcome. Also glad to have Rev. H. S. B. Thompson, Rev. Mr. Booms from M. E. church, and Rev. W. H. Neese and wife to worship with us, and many other visitors.

First Sunday evening at 8 o'clock the writer held prayer service, topic "Sin." Miss Esther Hawkins read a splendid paper on "What Can the Church Do to Help Young People to Resist Sin?" Misses Mary and Dorothy Green beautifully sang "Though Your Sin Be as Scarlet They Shall Be Made White as Snow."

Third Sunday after Sunday school the class leader, Mr. E. B. Pair, held prayer service. He brought out some inspiring thought about our Sunday school lesson. Mr. Edward Hawkins, our superintendent, asked Mr. Leo Pittard to speak for us the first Sunday morning. Sorry indeed to note he is in Roanoke Rapids hospital. Had an operation for appendicitis. So Mr. Pair asked some to take part in the service for Sunday. Topic, "Is It Hard to Live a Christian Life?"

Our Auxiliary will meet in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hawkins Thursday, August 29, 1935.

Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Hawkins are glad parents of another girl.

Mrs. B. S. Hawkins and daughter, Helen, of Roanoke Rapids, spent second week with many friends to attend the services. Also Miss Elizabeth Dickens, of Weldon, was the guest of her cousin, Miss Mary Virginia Hawkins.

Mrs. G. W. Morgan was guest of Mrs. Clarence Hawkins a while Saturday before last.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Carpenter were the guests of Mr. Tommie Hawkins and children Sunday.

Miss Esther Hawkins spent Sunday night with Miss Maggie Hawkins.

Sorry to note Mrs. Woodrow Shaw is in Roanoke Rapids hospital, also two of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Vincent's children, but expecting them to return home today.

Glad to note Mrs. Berta Hawkins and Mrs. G. L. Green are almost well.

Mr. J. W. Hale is very, very ill.

MRS. CLAUDE HAWKINS, Reporter.

Randolph Charge.—Our meeting at Bethany began third Sunday in July and closed the following Friday night. There were 26 conversions and reclamations, and 19 accessions to the church. Rev. J. B. Trogdon was our pulpit help. Bro. Trogdon preached the real gospel in its simplicity and the people heard him gladly. Mrs. Trogdon was with us part of the time and her presence and work in the congregation added much to the services. We thank them both for their good work. We also thank the people of the church for the things they gave us by way of a pounding.

Our meeting began at Mt. Pleasant first Sunday in August. Rev. Paul Hamilton was our pulpit help. Bro. Hamilton is one of our young men and expects to enter High Point College this fall. He is already a good preacher and one that preaches the Bible. He studied for one year in a Cincinnati Bible school and graduated from Troy High School last spring. The people at Mt. Pleasant enjoyed his work and preaching. We had nine conversions and reclamations and some of these will join the church.

At Bethel our special meeting began the third Sunday and closed Friday night. The attendance increased from the beginning when on Friday night the house was filled with folks. Rev. Furman Wright, one of our young ministerial students at the college, was with us in the meeting. He led the song services and preached two or three times. The Bethel congregation was highly pleased with his work. There were 19 conversions and reclamations and 11 accessions. The pastor greatly enjoyed a short service of Bible study and exhortation to the Intermediates and Juniors preceding the afternoon service. Sometimes there would be 35 or 40 anxious faces to greet him. Bethel has a great future tied up in these young folks. We cannot close without expressing our thanks to these good people for the heavy pounding given us at the close. We say heavy, because the potatoes, apples, tomatoes, corn, etc., filled up our car Thursday night so that we left part for another trip. Since our meeting at Bethany we have received as a gift two buckets of very fine honey from Bro. D. T. Gaster, our efficient Sunday school superintendent there, also one-half gallon from Bro. J. A. Stout at Bethel. We are very grateful for these continued acts of kindness.

Our special meeting begins at Mt. Zion Sunday at 3 p. m. Rev. Edw. Suits will be our pulpit help.

G. L. REYNOLDS.

Graham.—With vacation time about over, our people are returning to church. We had good attendance at both Sunday school and church service last Sunday.

We are looking forward to the visit of Dr. Andrews. He will be with us next Sunday morning. Mrs. J. H. McPherson will have charge of an "Annual Conference" program next Sunday night.

Our revival services will begin the second Sunday in September. Rev. R. S. Troxler will be our pulpit help.

Our pastor and his family spent their vacation at Mullins, S. C., and Lake Waccamaw.

We were happy to have Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Core worship with us last Sunday. They were formerly two of our most loyal workers. They have been making their home in California for several years.

We are glad to report that Mr. T. J. McVey is able to be up again. Mr. McVey was injured in an automobile accident some time ago.

Miss Dona Parks and Aubrey Clark were united in marriage Sunday, August 11. They have our best wishes for a happy and successful life.

REPORTER.

Liberty, Davidson Charge.—Our pastor held his revival meeting at this church the third week in August, with Rev. Glenn Madison, of Thomasville, as pulpit help. He certainly delivered some very interesting sermons. I feel quite safe in saying all enjoyed the fine messages and appreciated his visits in our homes. Would be glad to have him visit the church and our homes at any time.

The interest and results in the meeting were not so good as we had hoped for. There were eight conversions and renewals, and the church was very much revived. There were three added to the church. We were also very glad to have Rev. and Mrs. A. B. Frye, of Maryland, visit the meeting. We appreciate all visitors during the week and at any time you wish to visit our church. We are also very grateful to Miss Pollie Stafford, from New Hope, who was our organist. We also appreciate the service and good work of our pastor, Rev. Mr. Bingham. Very glad to have him as pastor. Hope he can be with us for another year's work if it is the Lord's will.

There will be prayer service at this church the first Sunday night in September. Mr. Bingham will hold his revival meeting at Chapel Hill the third Sunday in September. We hope that very much and lasting good may be accomplished during this meeting and all other churches at present and in the future. We welcome all to church any time you wish to attend.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Ramsey

Osley W. Ramsey, 39, and Walter Drum, 33, drowned in Lake James after losing a frantic race in a leaking boat. Both men were well-known Shelby citizens and Mr. Ramsey was a prominent member of the Shelby M. P. church. They were in a fishing party of five and the other three companions were able to swim ashore, but were unable to aid the unfortunate Mr. Drum, who was a poor swimmer, and the death of Mr. Ramsey came as a result of attempting to rescue him. The tragedy occurred Saturday, August 10, at 6:15, and the body of Mr. Ramsey was recovered about 6:15 Sunday after being submerged for 24 hours.

Funeral services for the deceased were held from the home in West Shelby the following Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock with Rev. C. V. Martin, Rev. F. S. Wagoner, Rev. C. P. Morris and Rev. Mr. Hamby in charge. He is survived by his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Ramsey, Sr., of West Shelby, and the following brothers and sisters: A. A., C. L., J. T., Jr., and Mrs. F. H. Glenn, Misses Verda and Mildred Ramsey, all of Shelby. Interment was at Zion Baptist church.

He also leaves his wife, the former Miss Claudia Jones, and a daughter, Winnie, six years of age.

Mr. Ramsey was a mechanic and for the past three years had been working for the Cleveland Cloth Mill. Of him officials at the mill said that he was a faithful and efficient employe, and was always in line of duty with the mill.

May God comfort the bereaved.

FOREST WAGONER.

Lindley

Mary E. Lindley, daughter of Joshua N. and Mary A. Perry, was born in Alamance county, North Carolina, September 6, 1865, and died August 17, 1935, aged 69 years, 11 months, 11 days.

In early life she professed faith in Christ and united with Bethel church, now on Alamance charge, but, after her marriage, transferred her membership to Center, where she remained a loyal and devoted member till death. She could say,

> "I love Thy kingdom, Lord,
> The house of Thine abode,
> The church our blest Redeemer saved
> With His own precious blood."

She is survived by her husband, A. S. Lindley, and three sons: J. R., J. W., and C. V. Lindley; also by the following sisters and brothers: Mesdames A. J. Clark, J. C. Jones, J. A. Boswell, Bessie Hinshaw and Mr. J. Abner Perry. There are four grandchildren.

The writer had the pleasure of being her teacher. As a pupil she was studious, apt to learn, courteous and kind. These traits characterized her whole life.

She seemed to have had a premonition of the approaching end, for she said to a friend shortly before her sudden departure, "I do not want to leave my people but I am prepared to go."

An afflicted husband lives in anticipation of a glorious meeting where parting will be no more. May God in mercy care for her loved ones and bring them, when life's work is ended, to dwell together with Him where sickness, pain and death are felt and feared no more.

The writer was assisted in the funeral by Revs. H. L. Isley, J. A. Burgess and T. J. Whitehead.

Many beautiful floral tributes showed the affection and esteem of loved ones and friends. Her body rests in Center cemetery to await the glad summons to arise at the resurrection.

DRIVE LIKE A CHRISTIAN

The California synod of the Presbyterian church has passed a resolution calling for "the courtesy and grace which becomes Christians" while driving automobiles. The consideration of one's habits while handling a car as coming within the concern of the church and as a matter of conscience has arrested much attention and the resolution has been widely copied. It is fitting that a Christian church should speak on the subject. If in eating and drinking we ought to glorify God, how much more should we do so while at the wheel of the automobile. We spend much of our time there and there we may be a menace to life and limb, of ourselves, our families and our neighbors on the road. Christian attitudes are never more important than in an automobile.

The casualties of automobile accidents appal the nation and the world. The Travellers Insurance Company of Hartford, Conn., has published a booklet entitled "Thou Shalt Not Kill," which shows by many graphs, cartoons, photographs and statistics the fearful fact that the toll of the automobile is worse than the cost of war. "The Readers' Digest" for August carries an article, which is being distributed in reprints, called "And Sudden Death," in which is described with gruesome, nerve-wracking and almost nauseating details a number of fatal accidents. Nothing but thirty-six thousand deaths and nearly a million injuries in one year would make such an awful tale proper to print. Every automobile driver ought to read this and some, who drive too fast, ought to be stopped and made to memorize it.

Nine out of ten automobile accidents result from too much speed. The Bible says: "He that hasteth with his feet sinneth." Proverbs 19:2. If it is sinful for a man to go too fast on just two legs, how much more mortal is his iniquity when he hurls a ton of steel and glass, carrying sparks of fire and a most inflammable chemical, through a crowded highway when a single error may mean death to himself and those about him.

One fact stands out clear and definite in the entire study of accidents which considers time, speed, position on the road, condition of the car, age of drivers and all other factors, and that is that most accidents are preventable and the result of personal acts in defiance of, or disregard to, the laws of the road. A transgression of the law is sin; failure to consider the rights of others is selfishness, which is the essence of sin; violation of the code which has been made by society to protect the rights of men is criminal—the careless driver is a sinful criminal. He violates the laws of God and man. He is both ethically and legally an undesirable citizen. Church members ought to see the exceeding sinfulness of exceeding the speed limit. The fact that the pamphlet issued by the insurance company and the paper printed in the magazine take their titles from the Ten Commandments and the prayer book indicate how religion is related to automobile driving. Drive like a Christian! Keep your conscience keen while in your car. Destroy not in thy haste men, women and children, for whom Christ died.

Alcohol is a growing factor in automobile accidents. This is a matter of dispute in many cases where it is disguised in reports, but it is so unmistakable in so many instances that the statistics are available. The increase of deaths by accidents attributable to being under the influence of liquor increased last year nearly one-third, while the number of pedestrians involved in automobile accidents increased 49.5 per cent over the previous year. Our cover page suggests that when a man gets his wine and his car too close together there will likely be death at the curve. Someone has observed that conscience dissolves in alcohol. We know that care, consideration of others, accuracy of vision and speed in reactions are lessened by drinking long before one becomes visibly drunk. A little liquor may cause a big tragedy. The drinking driver is a potential murderer. Even though a professing Christian may hold loose ideas on moderate drinking, no Christian gentleman ought ever to indulge in any amount of alcohol in any form, at any place, under any pressure, at any time when he is likely to take the wheel of an automobile. The law ought to make this apply to every man, but for the man who claims to be a Christian, his conscience and his church ought to speak in language unmistakable.

Christians ought not only to be sober and considerate drivers but ought to be protestant against all drunken driving. It is almost impossible to catch the drinking driver before the act. There can be no adequate compensation for the results of drunken driving to the victims of the accident. The punishment of the driver by law after he has been killed or injured is hardly possible, because the self-inflicted punishment breeds sympathy. The only thing to do is to try to prevent drunken driving. That thing the church tried to do, and the state has undone its efforts by legalizing the sale of liquor and selling beer in countless refreshment stands where men buy their gasoline. The deadly, devilish mixture has been placed beside our roads. The Christian ought to personally shun the stuff that makes murderers out of otherwise good men and again consecrate himself to an outlawry of the brew that has bathed too many highways in blood. This is more than a matter of law. It is life.—Methodist Protestant Recorder.

REIDSVILLE	110
SILER CITY	101
MIDWAY	90

Well, any one who has been saying that charges have quit going over the top will certainly have to take it all back and apologize for saying it. REIDSVILLE and SILER CITY both are arrayed in CAPITAL letters this week. We knew they could do it and that they were going to do it. The only thing we wanted them to do was to hurry and thus set the pace for somebody else. Now that they have reached the goal, there will be room at the top for somebody else. Because of what Siler City did, First church, Winston-Salem, had to step down out of the column of honor and Midway had to step down from second to third place. But the question is, Who will occupy that space next week?

Now let us look at the receipts this week. Siler City is in the lead. But she is hard pressed by Graham. Graham has already reached her goal but she keeps right on. Selling papers by the week is responsible for this. We think it is perfectly safe to say that Rev. J. Clyde Auman, the pastor at Graham, has the finest organization for handling papers by the week that there is in the conference. If you would like to try his plan, write him.

We have already sung the praises of Reidsville, so we will say that Danville, the very newest competitor, ties Reidsville for third place in the amount of money sent in. We had not even assigned Danville a quota until this week, but since they have 50 members we have given them a quota of five. See how quickly they raise their quota. And you see they did not have an even start with the rest of the charges.

Mt. Pleasant and Saxapahaw both send in more than one subscription this week for which we are thankful. And Lebanon church on Spring Church charge sends $1.00 on subsidy. Last week we told you that this page was being worked with great haste on Thursday morning and that if there were any errors we would correct them. Well, $5.00 of the amount sent in by Granville circuit was on subsidy. Since we do not give credits on subscriptions for subsidy, we are withdrawing 2½ from their subscription credits and are transferring it to the subsidy column. And Guilford deserved one-half more subscriptions last week, so we are adding that.

Receipts this week amount to $43.80, $42.80 being on subscriptions and $1.00 on subsidy. This is little more than half the expenses for this week and practically wipes out our bank balance. If somebody's bread depends on receipts next week, that somebody will have to go hungry unless the receipts are larger than they are this week.

Getting the Folks Back to Church

Just now there is facing the church leaders in North Carolina one of the most acute problems that has been faced for quite a while, namely, how to get the folks back to church following the vacation season and especially the infantile paralysis scare. There is always a slump in church attendance during the vacation season and every year the problem is more acute. More people take vacations now than formerly. In recent years the center of population in this country has moved from the farm to the city. It is the city church that is hardest hit by the summer slump, due in large measure to the large number of people that go away on vacations. As a rule the farm population does not have time to take a vacation in the summer time, hence there is not the slowing down in the country that there is in the town.

While it always takes a great deal of effort to overcome the summer slump and to get folks back to church, yet this year there is a more serious problem than ever, due to the fact that the children in most cases are the ones that have gotten out of the habit of going to Sunday school. In some counties children have not been allowed to go to Sunday school since the infantile paralysis situation developed some months ago. In other counties there were no ordinances passed, but parents themselves saw to it that their children were kept away from church lest they should contract the dreadful disease. And in this we are bringing no railing accusation against parents, for it would be a terrible thing for any child to have this disease and probably be crippled for life. But whether the children were kept away by a public ordinance or by parents, the truth of the matter is that in large numbers they have stayed away and have gotten out of the habit of going to church. And it is easy to get out of the habit of going to church just as it is easy to get out of the habit of doing other good things.

One thing that has helped church and Sunday school attendance in the past is the fact that children like to go to Sunday school. Many parents have literally been pulled to Sunday school on Sunday morning by some bright youngster who would not be satisfied with anything except to go to Sunday school. The saying, ''A little child shall lead them,'' has been proved true over and over again to the uplift of many careless parents. But when the children form the habit of staying away, then the problem is much more difficult to handle. Sunday schools that in the first part of the year numbered three or four hundred now can hardly get a hundred present. In the most of the churches, congregations are pitifully small. Pastors are chagrined and church leaders are ashamed of it. It is true that congregations in some churches were already too small. Many people seem to have lost the sense of the value of the church. Church services and especially the evangelistic services are made subservient to every other interest these days rather than to occupy a place of pre-eminence as formerly.

Now it would take a wise man to suggest a remedy for this condition. We do not feel equal to the task and what we say here may not be worth much. But if we can suggest something that will partially remedy this evil, then we shall be glad.

The first remedy that we can think of is for pastors and leaders to become alarmed over the situation. People never do much so long as they are satisfied with things as they are. ''Woe unto them that are at ease in Zion.'' When people do become alarmed about this situation, they will find some remedy. It is heartening to know that some laymen as well as ministers are alarmed about the situation. We have talked with them in various sections and they are thinking. But they must continue to think and to think soberly about it, for the very life of the church is at stake. Not only is the life of the church at stake, but religion itself is on trial and the next few years, perhaps, will be critical times for religion.

After people have become alarmed about this they will need to do something about it. And in order to do something about it they will need some definite plans. One thing we can think of is for those who are concerned to be doubly faithful to the church. ''Nothing succeeds like success.'' For people to go to church and see others there is an inspiration, but, on the other hand, to go and not find those that have been appointed as leaders is very discouraging. Some people in the church are going to find it necessary to sacrifice a little pleasure in order that they themselves may be in their places. Sunday school teachers can render a great service by being in their places every Sunday. Nothing does quite so much to kill a Sunday school class as for the teacher to be irregular. Some teachers have become irregular because their classes have been small. But so long as that attitude is taken, classes will continue to get smaller.

In this matter of getting people back to the Sunday school and to church, the Workers' Council can be of great service. This is an organized effort on the part of the Sunday school to solve its problems and what cannot be done by individuals can be done by a group of people. Absentees should be visited systematically and invited to return to church. Services should be planned with these people in view and every effort should be made to make them feel at home when they do return. Class leaders and evangelistic groups ought to be very busy trying to get people lined up for the church, for until we can get people to go to church we stand a poor chance of winning them for the Kingdom. Every honorable method possible should be used and if they are used something will appeal to one person and something else will appeal to another, and thus the problem will be solved. In this time of stress and strain churches should not forget to advertise. It is a curious fact that many churches like to boast of their achievements when things are running at flood tide, but they do not say much when things are running low. At the very times when things are running low is the time the most advertising should be done. If a church has something good to offer, it ought to let people know it so they can attend. The best programs are a failure unless the people are there to hear them. So let the reporters come out of their hiding places and tell us the news of their churches. Let pastors write on various themes for the good of the church and it will help them to get something started and it will help someone else to have some helpful thoughts. Let us get out of this slump and the best way to get out of it is for the pastors to get out of it.

Mrs. Z. A. Hardee Claimed by Death

A telephone message last night brought us the distressing information that Mrs. Z. A. Hardee, of near Enfield, had passed away in a Rocky Mount hospital. Mrs. Hardee was one of the best workers at Eden church on the Halifax charge, and was secretary of the First District of Women's Work. Before her marriage eight or nine years ago she was Miss Kate Davenport, of Creswell. Just a few weeks ago there was recorded in these columns the accidental death of her brother, Abram Davenport. Since the death of Brother Hardee's sister, Mrs. Ralph Rives, five years ago, Mrs. Hardee has played the part of a real mother to Ralph Hardee Rives, the five-year-old son of Brother Ralph Rives. Again, as on several other occasions recently, death has entered the inner circle of friends of the editor. Surely heaven is being filled with a lot of fine people.

Who Will Answer This?

A reader of the HERALD from out of the state wants to know why the ministers of the N. C. Annual Conference do not write more for the HERALD on the important topics of the day. Since the question was asked in good faith and since we do not know the answer we are calling upon anyone who knows to give us the answer. The space is available and there are interesting questions to write about, so it does seem that somebody might use the opportunity.

BIBLE HOLINESS

Holiness is very practical. It is paying your debts promptly, loving your neighbor, forgiving those who injure you, loving your enemies. It means the right condition of heart, the condition of being in tune with God, spiritual health. It is a fruit, and how does it come? Being made free from sin, emancipated from sin, being servants of God, being joined to God in a close union—out of that freedom and out of that union comes the fruit of holiness. But how is that freedom brought about? how are we emancipated from the dominion of sin? There is only one answer—by the Cross of the Lord Jesus Christ.—The Milk of the Word.

WHAT THE BIBLE SAYS ABOUT CLOUDS

By REV. T. M. JOHNSON, D. D.

As the season for roaming the big outdoors is not yet over, the reader is invited to look at the clouds with the minds and through the eyes of Bible speakers and writers. In some instances they appear quite similar, in others quite different, than when viewed with our own minds and through our own eyes.

The Bow in the Cloud

The first mention in the Bible of the cloud is to stretch it across the heavens as a background, a sort of canvas, on which the God of nature paints an object that charms the lover of the beautiful. When the rainbow appears, you stop, bare the head figuratively if not literally, look, admire, adore. This object combines the beauty of the circle and of the prismatic colors. When you see the bow in the cloud, the segment of a circle, do you not feel that you would like to find a position where you could see the entire circle? Perhaps the nearest approach to this is on rare occasions one may see a circle around the moon at night in colors—colors, though faint, of the rainbow. But my pen goes astray, it's of clouds I'm to write.

The thing we are to see, as looking through the eyes of others, is the bow in the cloud as a token of a covenant between God and man. Says God: "I do set my bow in the cloud, and it shall be for a token between me and the earth. And it shall come to pass, when I bring a cloud over the earth, that the bow shall be seen in the cloud: and I will remember my covenant, which is between me and you and every living creature of all flesh; and the waters shall no more become a flood to destroy all flesh." Gen. 9:13-15.

God Enshrouded in the Cloud

God as a wise leader and teacher of men adapts Himself to the stage of their development and their capacity to understand. As a small child can think of God only in the form of a man, so also the race of mankind in the earlier childhood of the race. Hence during that period God, it seems, walked among men and with men in the visible form of a man and talked with them in audible voice. "And they (Adam and Eve) heard the voice of the Lord God walking in the garden in the cool of the day . . . And the Lord God called unto Adam and said unto him: Where art thou?" Gen. 3:8, 9. "And the Lord appeared unto him (Abraham) in the plains of Mamre: and he sat in his tent door in the heat of the day; and he lifted up his eyes and looked, and, lo, three men (the Lord and two others) stood by him." Gen. 18:1, 2. "And the men turned their faces from thence, and went toward Sodom: but Abraham stood yet before the Lord." Verse 22.

During a later stage of their development, though yet somewhat in the childhood of the race, during the leadership of Moses, God appeared unto him and the people in a somewhat less pronounced form, enshrouded in a cloud. "And the Lord went before them by day in a pillar of cloud, to lead them the way." Ex. 13:21. "And the Lord said unto Moses, Lo, I come unto thee in a thick cloud, that the people may hear when I speak unto thee, and believe thee forever." Ex. 19:9. "And Moses went up into the mountain, and a cloud covered the mountain. And the glory of the Lord abode upon Mount Sinai, and the cloud covered it six days: and the seventh day he called unto Moses out of the midst of the cloud.'' Ex. 24:15, 16.

While the cloud, enshrouding the Lord as with a garment, was much, very much, in evidence during the leadership of Moses, it disappeared almost entirely when the great leader and lawgiver passed off the stage of action. The presence of the cloud meant the presence of God, but the disappearance of the cloud did not mean that God disappeared from among the people. Moses was gone, the cloud was gone, but God was not gone.

God in the Mercy Seat

Even during the days of the presence of God in the cloud the ark of the covenant, a small chest the people carried with them, symbolized the presence of God. When the cloud had ceased to appear, the ark of the covenant continued to symbolize the presence of God during the leadership of Joshua and on. So much so that the heathen nations round about seemed to think the ark of the covenant, earlier called the ark of the testimony, was the god of the Hebrews in the same sense their own idols were their gods.

The lid on the ark of the covenant was the ''mercy seat,'' a sort of earthly throne of God. In the books of Moses we read these promises: ''I will appear in the cloud upon the mercy seat.'' Lev. 16:2. Also, ''And thou shalt put the mercy seat above upon the ark; and in the ark thou shalt put the testimony that I shall give thee. And there I will meet with thee, and I will commune with thee from above the mercy seat, from between the two cherubim which are upon the ark of the testimony, of all things which I will give thee in the commandment unto the children of Israel.'' Ex. 25:21, 22. We are not to suppose that the visible divine presence on the mercy seat between the cherubim was a cloud. The Psalmist appealing for divine help wrote: ''Thou that dwellest between the cherubim, shine forth.'' Psa. 80:1.

Poetic Expressions Concerning Clouds

The Psalmist, writing of the majesty of God, sets among other highly poetic expressions this gem: ''Who layeth the beams of his chambers in the waters; who maketh the clouds his chariot; who walketh upon the wings of the wind.'' Psa. 104:3. The prophet, setting forth the speed with which God executes judgment when the time comes, says, ''Behold, the Lord rideth upon a swift cloud.'' Isa. 19:1.

Another prophet, writing with a purpose of the majesty of God, says, ''The Lord hath his way in the whirlwind and in the storm, and the clouds are the dust of his feet.'' Nahum 1:3.

Rain Clouds

The servant of Elijah by command of his master was upon an eminence looking for indications of rain. At the first he reported, ''There is nothing. And he said, Go again seven times. And it came to pass at the seventh time, that he said, Behold there ariseth a little cloud out of the sea, like a man's hand.'' There was scurrying. Elijah had been praying. Elijah's God was in action. Ahab, escorted by Elijah, rode with all the speed his chariot could make. ''And it came to pass meanwhile that the heaven was black with clouds and wind, and there was a great rain.'' 1 Kings 18:43-45. There must have been thunder and lightning along with the rain in this: ''The clouds poured out water; the skies sent out a sound; thine arrows also went abroad.'' Psa. 77:17. ''Who covereth the heaven with clouds, who prepareth rain for the earth, who maketh grass to grow upon the mountain.'' Psa. 147:8. ''If the clouds be full of rain, they empty themselves upon the earth.'' Eccl. 11:3.

Other Clouds

It seems that in the thought and experience of Bible speakers and writers there are clouds terrestrial and clouds celestial. In the New Testament very little is said about the first mentioned kind.

On the Mount of Transfiguration, ''There came a cloud and overshadowed them: and they feared as they entered into the cloud. And there came a voice out of the cloud, saying, This is my beloved Son: hear him.'' Luke 9:34, 35. Matthew tells us it was a bright cloud.

The writer of Acts tells of the ascension of our Lord. ''And when he had spoken these things, while they beheld, he was taken up; and a cloud received him out of their sight.'' Acts 1:9.

Jesus telling of His second coming said: ''Then shall they see the Son of man coming in a cloud, with power and great glory.'' Luke 21:27. Paul writing of the same event says: ''Then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air.'' 1 Thess. 4:17.

John telling of his vision said: ''And I saw another mighty angel come down from heaven, clothed with a cloud.'' Rev. 10:1. Again, ''And I looked, and behold a white cloud, and upon the cloud one sat like unto the Son of man, having on his head a golden crown, and in his hand a sharp sickle.'' Rev. 14:14.

WHAT'S RIGHT WITH THE CHURCH

By P. E. LINDLEY

Her Sacred Hymns

Timothy Dwight, poet and professor, head chaplain in the Revolution and one time president of Yale, wrote one of our finest tributes to the church. The words, written in 1800, are usually sung by the tune ''St. Thomas'' and contain the following lines:

Her sweet communion, solemn vows,
Her hymns of love and praise.

It is these hymns of love and praise I wish to speak about today. Music is a prominent element in our worship and the songs of Zion constitute a great part of the gospel message. One may go to church and do nothing more than hear and share the old hymns of our faith and find a real blessing. The great and immortal hymns of the church are right, and the manner in which they are loved and appreciated is a mark of spiritual culture.

Christianity is a singing religion, and she came by it honestly. The Psalter is undoubtedly the most popular section of the Old Testament and the new dispensation is known for its joy and song. The glorious advent of the Savior was announced through the harmony of the heavenly hosts, and since that day the church has taken up the refrain from Judea to the ends of the earth. Jesus loved singing. In some of the most significant moments of His earthly experience His mind turned to song. When, for instance, the Last Supper was solemnly concluded and "they had sung a hymn," they went into the Mount of Olives. The disciples continued the unbroken tradition of hymn-singing and found it a source of power and edification. In church, in homes, or by the wayside we can fancy they sang out their religious joys to the world about them. St. Paul declared that he would sing with the spirit and sing with the understanding also. Although despised at times, persecuted and punished in the flesh, those early followers, still free in spirit and devotion, could always find a song. An illustrious example breaks through the prison walls when at midnight Paul and Silas prayed and "sang praises unto God." And finally in prophetic visions the writer of Revelation draws back the curtain of the glory world and even there in the New Jerusalem he says, "They sung as it were a new song before the throne."

The great hymns, I have noticed, are usually personal in expression. They are written in the first person, denoting, of course, the genuine religious experience of the author. It is Jesus lover of my soul; Nearer my God to thee; Rock of Ages, cleft for me; Abide with me; and Jesus I my cross have taken. Few indeed are the songs that omit this personal quality of religious experience. Open your book, glance through it for yourself and see how many hymns make prominent this note of individual expression.

There is just now great need that this personal emphasis be cultivated in our moments of devotion. So much is said and written these days about social theories, capital and labor, war and politics, prohibition and PWA, that seldom does one hear an honest-to-goodness sermon on religion. About half of the discourses delivered from the pulpits could very nicely and properly be delivered at the Rotary Club or welfare meeting. We are so eager to save humanity we have lost sight of the individual. Schemes of social economy darken the spiritual skies while individual souls, bewildered and hungry, grope this way and that for want of peace and satisfaction.

But religion is personal. Jesus is the bread of life, and the only way to benefit from bread is to let the individual eater partake of it. Each service of worship ought to provide this nourishment for each separate person. And one sure way of offering this individual menu is to broaden the use of hymns. They nearly always voice one's best self-expression as he turns to meditation and praise. More singing and less preaching might bring pleasing results on the tone, the spirit and the lasting qualities of the meeting. The congregation can express itself much better in song than it can in sermon. Of course the minister derives a great amount of satisfactory self-expression through the discourse, but he, be it remembered, is only one among the hundreds who come for spiritual development.

Another characteristic of great hymns is their note of praise. There are more psalms of thanksgiving than of any other type. This quality also belongs to the Christian experience. Unless there is something about religion to be thankful for there is scant reason for presenting it. Truth is, there is joy and gladness at the very heart of the gospel message and we ought to cultivate the agencies for giving it voice. Hymns will do that. They were written by saints who knew the unspeakable joys of salvation. They come from souls who loved the Lord and walked with Him daily. Those song writers had something to sing about and they never tired of pouring it forth in melody and praise.

This element, too, is needed today. More testimony and less argument would be winning and wholesome. The best recommendation for religion, like anything else, is what it is doing for the people who have it. And when worshipers rejoice and praise the Lord for what He means to them, the careless and skeptical outsiders sit up and take notice. Show the delightful evidences of what Christ and the church mean to us and others will want to share it. Just remember this:

Hell's foundations tremble
At the shout of praise.

Let me say, too, that hymns embody some of our finest sentiments of prayer. They can well be used in the place of an ordinary prayer and with wonderful results. Song writers were praying people and they have set their deepest devotion to music. In this form it has the double advantage in public worship of being easily shared by the whole group and, furthermore, it makes a deep, dignified emotional appeal. Notice how many hymns are really prayers. Abide with me; O Master, let me walk with Thee; Come Thou Almighty King; Dear Lord and Father of mankind; and many others breathe the spirit of devotion from start to finish.

Finally, it should be noted that the great hymns of the church keep Christ at the center. Many cheap, sentimental songs, of course, deal wtih less dignified titles. But the real hymns to be used in worship always point us to the Lamb of God, as John said, who taketh away the sins of the world. They are God-conscious. And at this time when it is so difficult to raise a service to the religious level, I know of nothing better than to lean more heavily upon these artistic and spiritual masterpieces to build up the sacredness, the vitality and the usefulness of the services. The great hymns of the church are right. Learn them, love them, sing them!

THE BOOK OF BOOKS

Tell me, ye sages of time, if ye know a book that vies with the One that tells us of "a Friend that sticketh closer than a brother"?

This Book comes to the sorrowing with its sweet notes of everlasting joy.

It tells the homeless of a Home where eternal peace and satisfaction reigns.

It comes to the slave with the joyous tidings of emancipation.

It comes to the guilty with pardon from the King of the universe.

It sings in the ear of death-doomed man its lofty strain of immortality.

This Book exceeds in importance all the books of men, as much as eternity exceeds an hour.

It exceeds in value all the literary productions of our race more than a diamond exceeds in value its weight in ashes.—Selected.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord.

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

The Annual Conference Debt

This apportionment was made by the Annual Conference to take care of certain indebtedness which was incurred during the very lean years recently. Part of it has been paid out of this source last year and in another year or two we should be able to pay off the balance, if our people respond heartily to this appeal. The assessment is about $2,000. If every pastoral charge would pay the amount asked of it by the Annual Conference we would come very nearly out of the "red" this year. September is the month set apart to raise this by those churches which have not yet done this. We earnestly hope and request both the pastor and official members of these churches to see to it that this money is in the hands of Mr. Allen by the first of October. Many churches paid this earlier and are paying off some other claim during September, but if your church has not done this, please do it at once. As to the unpaid claims, the third pastors' reports reveal that but little has been done on these since the mid-year meeting. So there is no small task before many pastors in finishing these in the two months remaining of the conference year. We want to set up an honor roll of those churches which have met any claim in full beginning the last week in September. We want your church on this honor roll; let me know just as soon as the claims are paid in full.

Correct Your Church Register

It is expected that every church register shall be corrected once a year and the fourth quarterly conference is a good time to do it. In doing this we should have regard to the Discipline. There should be no summary disposal of names of members because the church neglected them and they ceased to take an interest in the services of the church. It often happens that supersensitive people get the idea that the church fails to really appreciate them and they are absent for a while. While this procedure is most childish and should not be humored, such people should not be neglected by the church and thereby allowed to lose all interest in its services. "Love never faileth," and the church is the only way Christ has of showing His love to such people.

I think church attendance should be one of the tests of interest in the church. So when church members who can attend their own church, but fail to do it for any considerable time, are known to their pastor, and he certainly should know, he should not only visit them more frequently, but secure the assistance of such of his official members as he may to visit also that they may discover the cause of this absenteeism before it becomes chronic, thus removing the necessity of dropping their names a few years later. A church which cannot grow is either in the wrong place or has the wrong crowd running it. But there are mighty few of this kind. There are scores of churches which do not grow because there is nobody in them who has enough interest in the church to solicit new members. A pastor who can talk about everything else but never mention the importance of being a member of the church to a person he visits ought to find the field where his interests lie; he is not a good pastor. And the church member who never tries to induce others to join his church is a poor sort of example to set before a rising generation.

The Delegates' Questionnaire

We hope to have in the hands of every delegate to the next session of the Annual Conference a questionnaire which will be of service to the president in making his report to the conference and should help some when the pastors are assigned. It is no effort to discover hidden things about the pastor to his detriment. We presume there are no such, but we hope to discover by this method something of the attitude of members of the church towards the conference and its projects. So when the list of the delegates-elect to the conference is in my hands I shall mail out to them this questionnaire which is to be filled out and returned to me by the date indicated on it. So, friend, delegate, look out for it soon.

Graham, Rev. J. Clyde Auman, Pastor

This church was visited at the morning hour for worship. We found the Sunday school in session. The attendance is picking up some since the polio scare is passing, Superintendent Holt told me. Graham has a fine young man as superintendent of the Sunday school and we believe the school appreciates his services. Our church here is not among the older churches in the conference. I remember its beginning in the county courthouse since I became a pastor. Its present membership is just a little less than 300, and among them are some of the finest people in the town. Our growth has not been rapid and will hardly be so in the next few years, but it has been substantial and is loyally supporting the pastor in his labors. This is Bro. Auman's fifth year, and so far as I saw there was no decline in the favor and esteem he is held there. Sunday was the time when the Annual Conference claims were emphasized. The pastor was hopeful that when the day closed all these claims would be met in full. Some had already been met. The church is preparing for a revival which is set to begin next Sunday with Bro. Troxler preaching. Bro. Auman has found a good way of getting the HERALD into the hands of his members. He has divided the town into districts and has a leader for each district who distributes the HERALD to the members there and collects for same. He says it works very well. The visit was a pleasant one and I came away feeling that the work is doing well here.

Glen Raven, Rev. J. P. Pegg, Pastor

The visit here was in the afternoon and the occasion was the dedication of the church. The house was comfortably filled, an all-day program had been arranged. The church was presented for dedication by the chairman of the Board of Trustees, Bro. Peter Troxler. Pastor Pegg has been looking forward to this glad occasion for some time and he has had the loyal support of many of his members, some raising the needed funds to complete the work, some working with their hands until last Sunday when the indebtedness was 38 cents. This was easily taken care of by the offering. But these people, having spent about $1,500, in cash and labor, on their church, have to show for it a most attractive building with large basement which should be ample for the needs of the community in years to come. A new roof on the main building and additional rooms on each side 14x28 feet were added. The interior had been recently painted, thus completing their labors of love. Here we have a splendid opportunity for expansion. The community is ours and if we shall do our part by it, our church should be a strong religious center in a few years. The pastor expects Glen Raven to be on the Annual Conference honor roll this year; in fact, he says that all the churches on this charge will go there. Haw River has already set the example for the others.

Fourth Quarterly Conferences

I have already received many requests to hold these conferences and shall be glad to be present at every quarterly conference possible during October, if you will want me and can have a conference on some other day than Saturday. I might be able to hold as many as two a day. Drop me a card if you want my services.

Plan of Appointments

September 8—Halifax charge.

September 15—Whitakers church.

September 22—Roberta church.

September 29—Concord, Saxapahaw church, centennial celebration.

October 6—Danville.

THE SECRET PLACE

"He that dwelleth in the secret place of the most High shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty." Ps. 91:1.

"We live in the very jostling times. We are pushed and hustled and elbowed on every side. The crowd is always about us—the heedless, careless, competing multitude. The quieting genius of privacy has been almost banished. We are greatly rushed, and we greatly need the Secret Place. How prone we are to become hot and feverish; to lose the coolness of our judgment; to grow hasty and irritable in temper, and to have our passions heated like an oven. For our crowded, hustling life we are offered 'the secret place'; for our heated and overwrought spirits, we are offered 'the shadow of the Almighty.' We are to dwell in 'the secret place.' Here the word implies settledness as opposed to vagrancy; it suggests the contrast between a stable home and a shifting tent. Never were men more tempted to live their lives in the outer court of things, and neglect or forget the central shrine, the habitation of sovereignty, and holiness, and peace. How mighty is the temptation to live in the vast outsides of our religion! That is really not to live at all. It is no more life than it would be home to sit down in the porch of our house, and never enter the sweet inner living room of happy fellowship and joy."—Dr. J. H. Jowett.

Good News from Brother Reynolds

I hadn't heard anything from Randolph circuit on this Memorial Fund, and I had been wondering what was the matter with the folks down that way. Well, I've found out. While I've been wondering they've been working. And, a day or two ago, Brother Reynolds sent me some of the fruits of their labors. Bethany pays in full. And Brother Reynolds writes that some of the other churches are about ready to report. All right, folks, I'll be here to listen to you and to receive your contributions whenever you report. But, if you please, let it be soon. We are anxious to see these charges get out on this so they can get out on something else.

And Brother Glenn Madison comes along with another good check from First church, Thomasville, and says while the pledges are being paid slowly, he expects to have it all in by conference. And that is only eight weeks off. So it won't be long now. I'm hoping a good many more of the brethren have the same expectation. I've been talking about this long enough for it all to have been raised, if talking can do it. And I'm about talked out, as you probably have noticed.

The fund stands as follows:

Previously acknowledged	$1,859.08
Bethany, Randolph (in full)	4.15
First Church, Thomasville, additional	23.00
Total to date	$1,886.23

Two more churches on the honor roll: Bethany, Randolph, and Brown Summit. There's room for some 170 more, though. Who'll be the next? C. W. BATES, Chairman.

THE METHODIST PROTESTANT CHILDREN'S HOME EXPRESSES APPRECIATION

The 25th anniversary of the Children's Home is now in the past and we are bravely and hopefully beginning our 26th year of service, knowing that the God who prompted a few women to start such a Home, and who has so wonderfully guided and blessed in its work, will continue to bless, and will also continue to raise up those who by their free-will offerings will continue to enable this Home to go forward with its God-given tasks.

We are thankful to the editors of our church papers for the liberal space given to the Home during the last few weeks, and now we simply ask for space to say "thank you" to the hundreds of friends who have kindly and lovingly responded to our needs. We would like to give the names of all who contributed, but it would take an immense amount of space, and then, too, a number of those who gave most largely asked that their names be not published. There were literally hundreds of people who made their offerings, and they were strictly free-will offerings for dependent children.

On account of the infantile paralysis scare in this section we were compelled to call off the program for the day. We think we had a fine program planned, and we believe the people would have enjoyed the day, and we know we would have enjoyed having our many friends gather here, but as that could not be, we tried to make the best of it. Our children asked for a picnic dinner just the same, so we went to work and prepared our own dinner and spread it on tables in the yard and had our own picnic dinner. It took 24 chickens, biscuits and sandwiches, pickles and little cakes, and 24 watermelons. It looked like a bountiful table when spread, but it was cleaned off completely when all had finished eating.

It was a happy day for us, and it was a great day in the history of the Home. Old friends and new friends contributed to the birthday offering, and they will continue to contribute through the years yet to come. The committee set out to raise $5,000 for the day, and we were hopeful that their goal would be reached. But we are thankful that to date we have received $2,046.25, with the promise of more to come.

The day brought forth the following editorial in the High Point Enterprise, and on Sunday night, August 25, we had Dr. George H. Crowell, an educator and preacher, to preach for us, and his visit called forth the letter below. It too was published in the Enterprise.

The editorial:

A Glorious Silver Anniversary

Faith which caused a group of Methodist Protestant women to undertake in a small shack at Denton 25 years ago a shelter for orphaned children is seen fully justified as the Home this week celebrates its silver anniversary as one of the finest such institutions in North Carolina, and one in which the church and community rightfully may take genuine pride.

The growth and development of the service of the M. P. Children's Home in those 25 years has been phenomenal; hundreds of boys and girls without parents to look after their upbringing have found there the foster home which has directed their development into lives of usefulness and character; already the alumni reflect credit and devotion to the institution and its direction through those years of worthwhile endeavor in moulding young lives.

Few things should be more satisfying to this community than the fact that in its midst there is working effectively but unostentatiously an institution building a priceless product by enriching lives of boys and girls bereft of parental supervision but who have a home and loved ones because the vision of a fine group of women planted a seed of genuine Christian devotion and service a quarter of a century ago.

The letter:

M. P. Children's Home a Splendid Institution

Editor of The Enterprise:

As announced, I was out at the Children's Home with Dr. Dixon and the children in their worshipful services last night at 7 o'clock.

The entire family of 115 with the teachers and others were present and joined most heartily in the services and did it in perfect order, attention and behavior, demonstrating the fine work and discipline of Dr. Dixon, his great wife, and splendid teachers.

I have scarcely ever witnessed a more soul-stirring, inspiring, and orderly service unto the Lord. My! How they sang, took heed, and worshiped!

The message I brought them was from Matthew, 21st chapter and the 28th verse: "Son, go work in my vineyard"—discussing the size of the vineyard of the Lord, the work and the honor in doing the same.

The reception of Dr. Dixon, the hearty response of the children in the services, and the vineyard thought, filled my soul with joy unspeakable! It was a great service—I shall never forget it!

I came away convinced that we have here in High Point a great Children's Home and under the direction and management of a great Godly man, Dr. Dixon.

May God's richest blessings ever rest on and abide in the Home and the work. GEO. H. CROWELL.

THE DEPARTMENT OF STEWARDSHIP

COMMITTEE: Rev. H. F. Fogleman, Chairman,
Dr. N. G. Bethea, J. G. Rogers

Ever since the last Annual Conference made me Chairman of our Conference Committee on Stewardship, I have felt that the committee ought to do something more than simply exist.

Accordingly, under this new department we hope to assemble and present profitable material on the general subject of Christian stewardship, especially as it relates itself to our conference and denomination.

For our initial appearance, I have asked Dr. Pritchard to enlarge upon their successful tithing campaign in Calvary church, entertaining the hope that this properly presented may become an encouragement to some of the churches.

H. F. FOGLEMAN.

◆

Calvary's Tithing Campaign

Having been asked by Brother Fogleman to write something about Calvary's tithing campaign, I will say that early in the year the quarterly conference voted to put on a tithing campaign for the months of April and May. A committee of three was appointed to have charge of the campaign and to do everything possible to prepare the people for it. This committee met and decided that the first thing to get people to do was to pay the pledge which they had already made to the church, as there would be no virtue in making any new pledge until the old one was paid. The church budget to which the people had already subscribed included the various items of expense which the church had to raise money for; however, the entire budget had not been subscribed. So the plan agreed upon was that people were to pay their regular pledge out of their tithe and the remainder of the tithe was to be paid to the church to be used exclusively for the church debt.

On the Sunday preceding the campaign, short addresses were made by the pastor, the chairman of the Board of Stewards and a few other interested laymen. Then those that would tithe were asked to stand until their names could be recorded. Quite a goodly number stood. The opportunity was given again the next Sunday and possibly the next in order that those that were not present on the first Sunday might have an opportunity.

Envelopes which had been printed were given to those agreeing to tithe, each person receiving eight, or one for each Sunday of the campaign. People were urged to bring the tithe each Sunday; however, several waited until the end of the period to bring in their returns.

It was decided that a good way to determine the amount of money which the campaign was responsible for bringing in was to compare these two months with the preceding two months. When this was done it was found that the offerings during the two tithing months amounted to a little over four hundred dollars more than did the offerings for the previous two months.

While the money that was brought in was a great help in paying bills, yet there was something else about the campaign that was worth even more than the money, namely the fact that the church began to see the possibilities of tithing. The fact that the church did the thing and did it according to scriptural methods proved to be a great blessing. Now the church has on another campaign for the month of September and the results on the first Sunday were very gratifying.

J. E. PRITCHARD, Pastor.

VACATION GENERALITIES

By REV. W. A. LEDFORD

Vacations have become a part of the life of the American people. The pupil in school, and the hard-pressed laborer of more mature years look forward to their vacations. Dr. Cuyler said, "If a minister does not take vacations, he will grow stale on his congregation, and they on him." Drs. Pritchard and Bates will recall the Pittsburgh minister, lecturing in the seminary and exhorting us not to take vacations because many of our members would not get any. Would be just as plausible to exhort ministers not to educate their children since many of their members could not theirs.

Most of our successful ministers steal away to some quiet place for rest, refreshment, and to take a look at their parish from a distance. The writer has just returned from such a trip with his family. Wending his way over the splendid roads, and through the picturesque country of northern Maryland and eastern Pennsylvania, northern New Jersey, was both restful and rewarding. The first stop was to enquire at the home of Dr. H. L. Elderdice as to his welfare. He was reported to be in very bad condition physically, and his faithful companion on the border land of eternity. They will have the prayers of all their friends. College Hill, emerging into the greater and larger Western Maryland, has changed a deal in recent years.

Gettysburg, Pa., where one of the decisive battles of the world was fought, and where are more monuments than on any other battlefield of the world, not excepting Waterloo, has a perennial interest to the tourists. My next point of interest was more local and personal—Mount Holy Springs, Pa. Most readers never heard of it, and most tourists passing that way hasten on through, but as I motored slowly through I was thinking of that summer of 1907 when Brother Pritchard, the late L. W. Gerringer, and I spent most of the summer there. It was a rather popular resort then, but the famous hotel in which Brother Gerringer waited on tables after he stopped canvassing has closed its doors, and the dancing pavilion has given way to a filling station.

Six miles further north is Carlisle, Pa., a beautiful modern city. Here for years was located a famous Indian school, but the thinning of the ranks of the red men eliminated this school. However, Dickerson College, one of the fine old colleges of Methodism, has stood here for more than a hundred years, and with a united Methodism in prospect, Dickerson stands for a wider and a greater service in the coming years. This fertile Cumberland Valley is among the favored spots of America. Space forbids my pointing out the things that interested me so much in Harrisburg, Lebanon, Allentown, Bethlehem, Easton, and Delaware Warer Gap—the latter place is all that its name suggests, and is the mecca for myriads over annually from the nearby shore cities. It is one of the natural beauty places of all America.

After lingering a while among the beauties of nature and admiring the scenes, we headed direct to the metropolis of the New World. The country is beautiful and prosperous, dotted with many attractive smaller cities and villages. Much might be said of any of them; but I will content myself with speaking of one—Madison, N. J., known to the world as "the Rose City of America" but to Methodism as the seat of Drew University and Brothers College. The tall, stately buildings, clustered among the taller and more stately virgin forest trees, form one of the most beautiful college campuses that it has been my privilege to visit. Here among all this attractive scenery stands a large statue of Bishop Francis Asbury, who laid the cornerstone of the university, and all speak loyalty to the faith of our fathers.

Motorists from the south and west have the choice of three ways of entering New York City, over the George Washington bridge, by ferry, or through the Holland tunnel, which passes under the Hudson river and emerges about the center of the city on the west side. We took the tunnel route. I would like to write of Grant's Tomb (Grant was one of the few loyal Methodist Presidents of the United States), of the Bronx Park, Botanical Gardens, Radio City, the world-famous subways and elevated trains, skyscrapers, and Chinatown, but will limit my notes to Riverside Baptist church, of which Harry Emerson Fosdick is pastor. I was informed that a conservative cost of the church would be about nine million dollars. It has one of the largest and most beautiful auditoriums I ever saw. The tower is about 25 stories tall, and an elevator runs to the 20th. The chimes system consists of 72 bells, and is a gift of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., in memory of his mother. Over the pulpit on the roof is a trumpeteer, which is symbolic of the entire church.

Leaving the teeming millions of New York we motored down the northern New Jersey coast to the world-famous religious center—Ocean Grove, N. J. With such talent as Bishop E. H. Hughes, of Washington, D. C.; Dr. Merton S. Rice, Detroit, Mich.; Dr. George W. Truett, Dallas, Texas, and Gypsy Smith for a camp meeting gives some idea of what is going on there. With six or eight services held daily and packed houses for them all is inspiring. At one service 17 states were represented. Christian peoples from all parts of the world gather here from season to season. It was heartening to see between eight and ten thousand trying to get into one preaching service, and over five hundred adults in one Bible class. I have been attending here occasionally for the past 20 years. It is one ocean front place that is still held for God.

After five days and nights in this restful, soul-refreshing atmosphere, we headed towards home, passing through Philadelphia, touring Valley Forge, where the Continental army camped during the winter of 1777-78 under Washington. Lancaster, the seat of Franklin-Marshall College and Seminary, is interesting, as is York, Emmitsburg, Frederick, Md. Enough written. One general impression that I gathered from the trip, and that is that the American people still are attracted to the things that are worth while.

CONFERENCE ENTERTAINMENT

A word from the pastor of the host church about the coming Annual Conference. We as pastor and people are delighted that the Annual Conference is to meet with us in November. Committees have already been appointed and plans are being made for the comfort and convenience of both ministers and delegates who will attend Conference.

We, however, are taking this opportunity of requesting your co-operation. Let us bear in mind that Henderson is not so large a city as Greensboro and other cities that have served as host to our conference, and that adequate facilities for entertaining the conference are perhaps less abundant than in some of our larger localities. So please co-operate with us and I am sure that all will work out to our mutual benefit.

Shortly you will be hearing more of the plans for the conference. Ministers will receive a postal card requesting the return of information needed by our committees concerning themselves and their delegate. Please do us the favor of an immediate and entire response. It is necessary for us to know just as soon as possible the number to expect for the conference. Where either pastors or delegates expect to bring their wives or other members of their families we need to know that as soon as possible.

The ladies of our church and the co-operating churches are planning to serve meals daily in the dining room of our church. We are expecting the members of the conference to take advantage of this convenience. It is positively planned for the convenience of the conference, and as pastor of the church I can guarantee a creditable meal. By a creditable meal I mean from the standpoint of both quality and quantity. Complete satisfaction will be assured.

Looking forward to your coming to Henderson, may it prove delightful and profitable to all concerned.

L. R. MEDLIN, Pastor.

To the Readers of the C. E. Notes:

Please watch the HERALD; a new system is being followed beginning soon. Instead of all notes being written by the same person, several outstanding leaders of our church in the work of young people and with years of Christian Endeavor experience are being asked to write the notes for a given period of time.

The first of these notes will be written by Rev. Aubert Smith, pastor of our Kannapolis church.

Mr. Smith is a recent graduate of High Point College, and has served pastorates at Spencer and Kannapolis. He is a Christian Endeavor enthusiast, and will give us many helpful suggestions on the topic for our meetings.

Look for his notes next Sunday bearing on the topic for the following Sunday.

OUR STORY PAGE

THE DEPENDABLE BOY

"I trusted you," repeated the big voice of Mr. Richards, the school-teacher, not sternly but sadly.

Charles stood, hands in his pockets and head down as if studying his stout shoes, one heel of which was digging into the soft dirt. Nearby stood his teacher.

"Yes, sir," replied Charles in a low voice. Then he swallowed and looked away. He so liked and admired this teacher of his, and it was all he could do to keep his grimy fist from his eyes. A big, hot tear-drop slid down his freckled nose in spite of himself, and perhaps no one else noticed it.

"I didn't mean to break my word," he began falteringly. "I meant to come right back in time for all my classes. It was good of you to let me take little sister home. When I started back my puppy followed me. I kept taking him home, but he wouldn't stay and wanted to play awful bad. I let him come on; then a rabbit jumped up from a brush pile, and Fly tore after it. I followed, as I could never bear to lose Fly. Did you ever own a puppy, Mr. Richards?"

Mr. Richards nodded, but his eyes sparkled understandingly.

"We lost track of the rabbit, but we were so far away I knew I could never get to school in time for my lessons. That's all, sir, and I'm sorry I broke my promise; and if you'll only trust me again, I'll try to do right—try my level best, sir."

"Trust you again? Why, of course I will!" and a friendly hand was laid on the little bowed head. "Brace up! Take those hands out of their hiding places. They're going to do manly things from now on. That's something like it!" Then the two walked out of the school yard together.

"Let me tell you a little story," said the teacher, "just a short one, but it has a good point. A civil engineer late one afternoon saw his little nephew playing in the street. 'Here, sonny,' he called out, 'just take this little red flag in your hand and hold it until I come back and tell you to drop it.' So he left the boy standing in the street holding up the flag and went about his work. But when the work was finished, he forgot to go back, and passed that way no more until nine o'clock that night. Then, to his horror, he saw the boy still standing at his post, holding the little red flag and shaking with cold. 'Why didn't you run home when the time came?' he cried. 'But you told me to wait till you came back,' answered the boy.

"The man took the boy home and did all he could to show how sorry he was. But the little boy proved that he could be relied upon; and we are not surprised to hear that, years later, he held a very responsible position in a great bank. He was not brilliant, the story goes; only reliable, and dependable. The dependable boy makes the dependable man."

And little Charles spoke from his brave, young heart, "That's what I'm going to be from now on—a dependable boy!"—Publisher Unknown.

WHAT THE STAR SAID TO CHARLIE

"Good night, mamma," said Charlie, as he put his little brown head on his pillow. Mamma stood at the door just ready to go downstairs. "Good night, mamma," he said again.

"Charlie does not act like himself tonight. I am afraid he has not been good all day," thought mamma. But she went down, and Charlie was left alone.

He tossed to and fro for a long time, and could not go to sleep. By and by a little star looked through a hole in a cloud, and Charlie saw it, but could not think why it looked so hard at him.

It seemed to him that the little star said to him, "Charlie, Charlie, what did you do down in the yard? What did you do? I will not let you go to sleep until you tell your mother all about it."

Charlie put his head down under the sheet; but he knew the star was looking at him all the time; and, as it swung to and fro, it seemed to say, "Call her, tell her."

At last Charlie could not help crying, and as soon as mamma heard his little voice she ran up to ask, "What is it, Charlie, dear?"

Then Charlie told her how he threw a great stone and broke her white vase down in the grass, and hid the bits for fear she would find them.

Poor little Charlie cried as he told her, and put his arms around his mamma's neck as she sat on his bed. "Mamma, can you forgive me?" he said, "Shall I ever be your little Charlie any more?"

And mamma said yes, and told him many sweet words about Jesus, and how He taught us to pray for help and forgiveness to our Father in heaven.

By and by she went downstairs again, and Charlie looked up once more to the little star; but what a queer little star it was! It didn't look the same at all. It winked and laughed all over, and Charlie thought it said, "All right now! I told you so, Charlie! Good night!"

But just as Charlie was trying to say good night the words seemed to run away, and off he went to sleep.—Olive Plants.

SOME THINGS TO PRAY FOR

Pray for yourself:

That your home may be filled with the sweet atmosphere of Christian love.

That you may never be ashamed to confess the faith of Christ crucified.

That you may never forget that you have been saved to serve.

That you may have courage to face difficulties with cheerfulness and hope.

That you may have courage to make ventures of faith, and dare all in the following of Christ.

That for love of Him who, when He was reviled, reviled not again, you may keep your tongue from evil speaking, lying and slandering.

That you may see in every man the brother for whom Christ died.—R. A. Reeves, in A Quiet Room, Harper's.

Clothing and Other Gifts

One box of clothing sent by Dr. R. F. Day, from Inwood, L. I. This box contained clothing for boys. We are always so glad to get clothing for boys. From now until Thanksgiving we will be working and planning to clothe our boys for the winter. Any boys' clothing, new or used, will be greatly appreciated.

Outfits for Girls

"Mother Dixon" is in correspondence with various women's organizations relative to fall clothing for girls, and about coupons. These she answers personally, and we do not report same in Herald. We greatly appreciate all the help that comes in this way, and it is a wonderful help.

Note Specially

Some of you will doubtless expect to see in this report money you sent at the last of the week, but Labor Day prevented mail coming Monday, and this is going out at noon Tuesday and still the mail for the day has not reached us. So watch for your names next week. Birthday offering to date is $2,108.58.

And an offering of last week reported as regular offering from Shiloh on Shiloh should have been birthday offering from Greer's Chapel, Shiloh. We gladly correct. We always regret a mistake or an oversight of any kind, and always correct cheerfully.

We thank all of you and may God bless each of you.

Yours in His service,

A. .G. DIXON, Superintendent.

WHY NOT BE HONEST AND STRAIGHT?

The bills put through the legislature for liquor stores were ostensibly for control and limiting the use of liquor. The same crowd made provision for liquor advertising. Why advertise? To increase its use, of course. Why freedom in the sale of beer and wine? To put these in easy reach of the people? To satisfy greed and appetite.

A press dispatch from Raleigh last week indicated a desire to open liquor stores at night that they may better cope with the bootleggers. Certainly, that is the logic of the whole situation. Night is the time to sell liquor. Bar rooms flourish at night, so do the beer gardens. Why not open liquor stores at night if both day and night are to be used to advertise its wares? This is the record of the centuries. It was so in Milton's day.

"When night darkens the streets, then wanders forth the sons of Belial, flown with insolence and wine."

Every man who has any regard for facts or will even keep his eyes open knows that since repeal the consumption of liquor has greatly increased and the wreck and ruin of alcohol is manifest. He must exclaim with Othello:

"Oh, that men should put an enemy in Their mouths, to steal away their brains!"

Honest men have about quit talking about moral reform and social betterment with the legal return of liquor and the stress is now on the tax reductions to follow the income from the sale of liquor. They know full well that liquor never brings social betterment—they know that it brings poverty and shifts the tax burden to the shoulders of the poor and needy; this no honest Christian man can approve. All this is going on at a time when so many crimes are being committed in the name of social betterment. A day of reckoning must come.—N. C. Christian Advocate.

BROTHER A. C. DIXON TEACHES CLASS

Brother A. C. Dixon, a first cousin of Dr. A. G. Dixon, is the very efficient teacher of the Dr. J. F. McCulloch Bible Class at Calvary church. He puts considerable time on the lesson and always brings to the class something worthwhile. Two of his sons are students for the ministry in the Baptist church.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

MRS. J. E. PRITCHARD, Editor

THANK-OFFERING TIME IS HERE

As Will Rogers used to say, "All I know is what I read in the papers." The Missionary Record has given us our plans for the thank-offering service, but I would like to emphasize some things. First of all, a definite financial goal has been set for each Branch. Ours is $600 for the fall thank-offering. This thank-offering is generally observed throughout the denomination in November; but that it may not interfere with the Thanksgiving offering for the Children's Home, we in North Carolina observe it in September or early October. The programs have been outlined in the August and September Missionary Records. Two plays have been suggested. I have read both, and it is my opinion that "The Lost Church" will be a little easier to present. The Board of Missions will give two copies free if an offering is taken for missions. These may be ordered from our associate secretary, Miss Bettie Brittingham, 516 North Charles Street, Baltimore, Md. A third play will be found in the Missionary Record for September. This one is written by Mrs. Henry Maier.

New thank-offering boxes and envelopes are now available. I am sorry that these could not be had sooner; but if you will write me I shall try to supply you with the number you want as quickly as possible.

Please read carefully the August and September Missionary Records, and let's work toward our goal of $600 through our thank-offering services this fall. And remember that it counts on both your Branch budget and your World Service budget, and will mean a great deal to the Board of Missions.

I would appreciate it if when you hold your thank-offering services you will drop me a card telling me the kind of service you held and the amount of the offering. I shall try to report this information in the Missionary column in the Herald as the reports come to me.

Thank-Offering Secretary,

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Greensville Charge.—Since coming to this work there has not been a great deal accomplished other than meeting the regular appointments. Because of the paralysis scare we were asked to postpone all of our annual protracted meetings. We have now been released by the health department and our meetings are under way. Bro. Wm. H. Neese, of Spring Church charge, is assisting us this week at Hobbs' Chapel. We are indeed glad to have Bro. Neese with us and are looking forward to a week of spiritual blessing and hoping that there may be much good accomplished for the Kingdom.

Bro. J. T. Bowman, of Denton charge, will be with us during the second week of September. We are looking forward with a great deal of anticipation to his coming, and trust that we shall have another week of fellowship and blessing.

I have become somewhat adjusted to my surroundings now. I found conditions somewhat discouraging upon my arrival because of preceding circumstances, but am glad to say that I feel things are gradually getting back to normal. I have found a group of fine spiritually-minded people who are willing to co-operate in any way they can. They know how to make a person's stay among them pleasant.

We beg to be remembered in the prayers of all the churches and trust that we may have a pleasant and profitable half year together in our endeavors in advancing God's Kingdom. EUGENE A. LAMB, Pastor.

Hollister, Halifax Charge.—The annual revival began at Hollister on Sunday, August 25. Rev. O. C. Loy, our pastor, preached at the 11 o'clock and afternoon services on Sunday, delivering two splendid sermons. Rev. J. L. Trollinger arrived on Sunday evening and did the preaching through Friday evening, at which time the services were brought to a close. Brother Trollinger preached some very interesting and inspiring sermons while here and they were enjoyed by the people. His singing added much inspiration and interest to the services. We enjoyed hearing him sing as well as preach. The attendance was good at all of the services and we appreciate the interest and co-operation of the M. E. and Baptist people of the community. Mrs. E. G. Glenn worshiped with us in several of the services and she said she enjoyed them very much. We were very glad indeed to have visitors from Eden, Bethesda, Harmony and Union churches worship with us in some of the services. Also we were glad to have Rev. R. L. Vickery with us in the service Wednesday evening. Two new members were added to our church and several reconsecrations. Miss Sue House rendered splendid service as pianist during the revival.

We are looking forward to having Dr. Andrews visit this charge on September 8. Hope he can be at Hollister for the evening service. Some of our people are expecting to attend the revival at Harmony church the third week in September. Dr. N. G. Bethea is going to assist Mr. Loy in this meeting. Our pastor is assisting Rev. R. L. Vickery in a revival at Corinth church this week. We trust that they may have a great revival.

The Woman's Auxiliary will meet with Mrs. E. L. Wood on Tuesday afternoon, September 10. Hope to have all the members present.

Mr. Hunter Norman, one of Halifax county's most prominent men, died at his home in Halifax on Saturday morning, August 31. The bereaved have our sympathy.

Orange Charge.—The revival meeting began at Chestnut Ridge Sunday, August 25, and closed the following Friday night. Rev. R. C. Stubbins preached for us Sunday p. m. T. O. Pender led the singing for us two days. C. G. Isley came to us Monday and did all the preaching from then until the meeting closed.

We had a splendid meeting; 25 were converted, 14 reclaimed, and 17 new members joined the church. We thank Bros. Stubbins, Pender and Isley for their splendid and faithful services. May we give God praise for the results.

B. M. WILLIAMS, Pastor.

Rehoboth, Granville Charge.—The summer is almost gone and a long time has passed since I have been able to report anything from Rehoboth. We are still on the job down here, though our church and Sunday school have been badly crippled by the quarantine on infantile paralysis. Our beloved pastor, Bro. C. L. Spencer, has brought us a splendid message each Sunday and also taught the Adult Class twice each month. We all enjoy our Sunday school lessons so much when he teaches, for he explains them so well.

We are planning to hold our revival the first Sunday in October. So far as we know now Bro. Suits will assist Bro. Spencer in the revival.

The children all came back to Sunday school today and how glad we were to see their bright faces and how glad they seemed to be able to come back. I am asking all to pray for our revival that it may be a true revival in every sense of the word, and that much may be accomplished for the advancement of God's kingdom.

MRS. H. L. WRIGHT, Reporter.

Mill Grove, Midland Charge.—As our camp meetings are over, I trust that the revivals in our hearts are just beginning. I am sure each one feels revived and are in better shape for spiritual work than ever before. If not, we have not gained anything. Our pastor, Brother Trolinger, is starting a series of sermons on what sin has done since the beginning of time to the last verse in Revelation. He has a cloth chart about four feet wide and fifteen feet long with full and plain pictures and explanations thereon. And as Prother Trolinger preaches he will point out to us item by item until the series of sermons is over. Everyone is invited to come. Our regular services are at 2:30 p. m. second Sundays and 11 a. m. fourth Sundays. Sunday school is one hour before preaching hour.

We have heard that another charge in the conference is making preparations to ask conference for Brother and Sister Trolinger next conference year. They have read and heard of such good work accomplished on the Midland charge this year that they want him next year. We don't blame them at all for wanting them, as what you have read and heard about their good work is certainly the truth. We cannot say too much for them. But we are not yet ready to let them go. We also want them back next year. We have no reasonable excuse to afford to let them go. So please don't figure on them any further. With all respect to all our former pastors and their wives, we don't feel like that it is possible to bring up a complaint against them sufficient to be plain enough for our president, Dr. Andrews, to understand to allow a change to be made. We love all our former pastors and their wives, and we also love Brother and Sister Trolinger. They are always ready to help in any way they can for spiritual advice. They would meet with any of the churches on the charge six days or nights per week and then fill their Sunday appointment also if the folks would be willing to be on hand. What else can we ask for? Christ didn't satisfy everyone. Neither do we expect any pastor to satisfy all, but we aro not ready to let them go. Please withdraw your ideas and don't present them to conference, as far as wanting Brother and Sister Trolinger on your charge next conference year. L. W. McCOY, Reporter.

Lebanon Church, High Point.—We had a delightful time last Thursday evening at Lebanon. It was the occasion of our hut opening. Our Ladies' Aid had charge of the program. It was good to have a number of former pastors of this church as well as old friends with us again. It makes our hearts glad to renew old friendships and mingle together in Christian love. At 6 o'clock the basket picnic was spread. Everyone seemed to enjoy this part of the program, appeared satisfied, and several baskets of the fragments were repacked and sent out to some who could not be present on this occasion. While the tables were being cleared, Mr. V. P. Hammer served candy to the children. Our Scripture lesson was then read by Rev. J. C. Madison and prayer was offered by Rev. Edw. Suits. The hut was presented to the church by Rev. Herman Yokely and accepted by Mr. C. B. Welch.

A short address of welcome by Mr. V. P. Hammer was followed by interesting talks by the following former pastors: Rev. J. R. Hutton, Rev. Edw. Suits and Rev. J. C. Madison, also by our present pastor, Rev. J. M. Morgan. Sunday school was then represented by Robert Cook, John Blair and Gene Thacker, in recitations, and Betty Jo Smith sang a song. Also a violin-flute duet by Misses Jewel and Iris Welch. We rejoice that the hut is completed. May it be used by one and all to the glory of God.

Yesterday we observed holy communion at 11 o'clock. There was no evening service. Beginning next Sunday there will be the regular evening worship.

Our special meeting will begin the last Sunday in September.

Our third quarterly conference has been held. Mrs. Glenn Lambeth is elected delegate to our Annual Conference. Mr. Stokes Gallamore is the alternate.

We were glad to have worshiping with us yesterday Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Easter and family, of Burlington, also Misses Iris and Betsy Hammer from Gibsonville.

The Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Morgan spent part of their vaaction in Albemarle visiting Mrs. Morgan's mother, Mrs. D. A. Hatley. We were all delighted to have Mrs. S. W. Taylor, Miss Frances Taylor and S. W. Taylor, Jr., from Asheboro, with us at our "hut warming" Thursday night.

Misses Jewel and Iris Welch, Misses Lake Montgomery, Juanita Hayworth and Charlotte Hammer have returned from a ten-day trip to the state of Michigan. Eleanor Welch returned with them from the National Music Camp.

Mrs. James Clark, formerly Miss Erma Hammer, of Pittsboro, is visiting relatives in the community. REPORTER.

Spring Church Charge.—We have just closed our third and last special meeting. Rev. J. L. Trollinger was pulpit help at Pleasant Hill. Rev. G. B. Ferree assisted at Lebanon. Here we had three additions at the close, and three to unite yesterday. At Spring church Dr. S. W. Taylor was the visiting minister. At this place four united with the church. Each meeting was well attended, each helper did his best, and each church was revived.

Since my last report a godly man has passed on in the person of Joseph William Magee. In honesty, truthfulness, piety, faith in God and submissiveness to the divine will, I think he had no superior. Throughout our four years' acquaintance he was this writer's constant friend. I miss him. (Obituary will appear.) WM. H. NEESE.

Henderson.—During the summer months there is usually a decided slump in church attendance, but that has been less marked this year than in previous ones. All of the regular services were held, and our congregation joined the union services which were held each Sunday night during July and August. The Baptist, Presbyterian, Christian, Methodist Episcopal and M. P. co-operated, making the services interesting as well as beneficial.

The children's departments of the Sunday school were closed during the epidemic of infantile paralysis, but they have opened again now that the danger seems to have subsided. We feel that as a church we have much for which we should be thankful in that there has been only one case in our church connections. That one was little Earline Bruin, granddaughter of W. R. and Mrs. Vaughan. Mr. Medlin has set aside the second Sunday in September for the purpose of taking a gratitude offering, and has asked that each family make an offering commensurate with their means and their feeling of gratitude that this awful malady has not taken any of our loved ones.

The Young People's C. E. Society is increasing its interest, and is expanding its program. We are looking forward to having the next session of the state C. E. convention to meet in Henderson, having invited it to meet in our church. State officers predict the largest attendance in years.

Our pastor is teaching a training course in C. E. methods for the benefit of the young people of the county. About 20 are enrolled for the course.

We are looking forward to having the Annual Conference meet with us in November, and committees are already at work planning for the entertainment of the members. The churches on the Vance and Granville charges are to be associate hosts to the conference.

The Woman's Auxiliary is planning to serve meals for the guests during the conference, which will help considerably in raising our budget. It seems to be an enormous undertaking, but they are determined to prepare attractive, satisfying, abundant meals at a nominal cost.

During the summer months many visitors and former members have worshiped with us. Among them were Robert Tompkins and Miss Anna Tompkins, of Columbia, S. C.; Mr. and Mrs. George Harris Tompkins, also of Columbia; Miss Anne Page, of Augusta, Ga.; Dr. Julian E. Harris, of Madison, Wis.; Mrs. Ethel H. Kirby, of Philadelphia; Mrs. R. M. Andrews, of High Point; Mrs. L. W. Gerringer and daughters, of Greensboro, and Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Lewis, of Atlanta, Ga.

A number of our college students and teachers have also been with us during the summer, and their presence gave us great pleasure. Some of those were Miss Mary Young, Miss Mabel Harris, Miss Margaret Hight, Misses Mary Parham, Kathryn Faulkner, Eugenia Boyd, Page Gooch, Eleanor Young, and James Hight and Luther Boyd.

Two of our young people will enter High Point College this fall, and I am quite sure that the student body will be enriched by their presence, as they are both unusually fine girls. Nancy Parham, the winner of the High Point essay contest, was given a full scholarship. She is the daughter of Mr. Thomas Parham and the late Mrs. Mabel Pirie Parham, and the sister of Mary Parham, who will graduate from High Point College next year; and Mary Mitchell Baity, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Baity. Miss Baity was the valedictorian and Miss Parham salutatorian of the class of 1935 of Henderson High School.

Miss Elizabeth Fox, our choir director, spent the summer at the University of Pennsylvania, taking a course in child psychology under a very noted lecturer. During her absence Miss Alice Faulkner directed the choirs, both junior and senior.

Mr. Medlin is to be away most of this month, assisting in evangelistic meetings. This week he will be in Kannapolis, assisting Rev. A. M. Smith, and September 19 he goes to Mebane to assist Rev. Lester Ballard.

Reidsville.—No, we haven't been too busy to write to the Herald. Our reporter is suffering from writer's cramp, or "sum'n," as Andy would say, and the pastor is suffering from "ennui," as the French would say, which means pure unadulterated laziness in English. This accounts for our silence.

We have observed Easter and Children's Day since our last appearance in the Herald in addition to making our birthday offering to the Children's Home. The offering to the Home was a little larger than it was last year; but it was not as large as it ought to have been.

Now get set for a BIG piece of news. We are building a new parsonage. Since the "cat is out of the bag," you will understand that we have been too busy to write to the Herald, at least we have spent lots of time trying to convince ourselves that we were too busy for anything except the parsonage.

The parsonage has been made possible through the generosity of Mrs. S. J. Kernodle, who is one of the most loyal Methodist Protestants we have ever known. She took over the old parsonage and gave us enough additional money to enable us to erect a seven-room house with all modern conveniences with the exception of a heating system. She did this on the condition that the members would buy and pay for a lot in a desirable section of the city. This they did at much sacrifice; but they did it cheerfully. The house will be ready for occupancy about the time our Annual Conference meets. So you will note, brethren, that the next pastor will move into one of the best and most convenient parsonages in the conference. Now, if you want to occupy this beautiful home you may begin negotiations at once with Mrs. J. S. Moore, delegate-elect, who will have the keys to the house.

The members of the church, feeling the need of a little respite from the arduous duties of attending three church services a week, voted unanimously to have only one preaching service a week during the months of July and August. The pastor is appreciative of the kindnesses shown him by his members. GEO. R. BROWN.

Canaan, North Davidson Charge.—Everything is moving on nicely at this time. Rev. C. L. Grant filled his usual appointment the third Sunday night with an inspiring message to his congregation. Had special singing by the Shoaf sisters, also Misses Long and Swicegood from Midway, which was greatly appreciated. The Ladies' Aid is working very busily in erecting a new Sunday school room for the women's class. Every member seems to be interested, working in some way or another to secure the funds to go for it. They held their last meeting at Mrs. Clarence Hines'. There were 12 members present and two visitors. The evening was enjoyed with great enthusiasm. They are planning to have a lawn party September 7. Hope to see members from other churches there at this time. We feel the need of your friendship. We are in different circles but are all one in the Christian work. We are the sheep of His pasture and feed upon His blood which is the Lamb's blood of life.

May the Lord bless and keep us safe in His fold from day unto day.

MRS. CARL W. CLODFELTER,
Reporter of Ladies' Aid.

◆

Mebane.—We are looking forward to our revival meeting, which will begin September 15. Rev. Luther Medlin, of Henderson, will be the help. The pastor began with Wednesday night in preparation through the services. He used as his subject "Winning Men to Christ in 1935." The program in observance of the celebration of the 25th anniversary of our Children's Home was put on Sunday night, August 25. The program consisted of music, poems, and a story by Mrs. Ballard. Our offering was $25.00.

We are pleased to have one of our girls, Nancy Barnett, to enter High Point College this fall.

One of our oldest and most faithful members, Mrs. C. C. Smith, has been quite ill but is improving now. Mrs. June Smith, who was recently operated on at Duke, is now much improved. We will be glad to have her in her place at church. Mrs. Julius Cheek is quite ill in Watts hospital, Durham. Our prayers go out for her recovery.

The Ladies' Aid Society met Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. R. Jobe, with Mrs. W. W. Wilson assistant hostess. A goodly number were present and the regular routine of business was transacted. Ice cream and cake were served during the social hour.

Miss Margaret Hayes, of New York, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Geo. E. Wyatte. Miss Mary Wills McCulloch, of Greensboro, is visiting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Nicholson.

◆

Shiloh, Shiloh Charge.—Our revival began August 11 and closed August 21. Rev. J. L. Trollinger did the preaching with the exception of three sermons which were preached by Rev. W. M. Pike and Rev. Mr. Barnett.

Mr. W. P. Pickett, a faithful member of our church who has been sick for the past two months, is still confined to his room but is much improved.

Mr. J. A. Crowson, a member of our church, is ill at his home.

Miss Pauline Whitaker, who has been sick for quite a while, is improving.

The Ladies' Aid will meet at the home of Mrs. W. C. Kimes Thursday, September 5.

Our annual Sunday school picnic will be at Julian Saturday, September 7. All of the Sunday school is invited to come and bring picnic lunches.

Mt. Pleasant, Mt. Pleasant Charge. —.The regular meeting of the Business Girls' Circle took the form of a birthday party for Mrs. Caroline Lineberry when the group gathered at the home of Mrs. Lineberry Saturday evening, August 24, and joined in the singing of a number of familiar hymns.

A special feature of the program was the singing of two numbers by the Junior Girls' quartet. They sang "Have Thine Own Way" and "The City of Gold." After the program Mrs. Lineberry was surprised by the presentation of a dress from the Circle. During the business session, Miss Callene Phillips, president of the Auxiliary, discussed plans for a chicken stew to be held late in October. The group then adjourned to meet in September with Miss Edith Smith. Ice cream and grapes were served.

Graham.—The president of the conference, Dr. R. M. Andrews, was with us last Sunday. His visits are always appreciated and his messages helpful and uplifting. Mrs. J. H. McPherson was in charge of the service for the evening. The Annual and General Conference claims were presented in the nature of a pageant, written and directed by Mrs. McPherson. It was very impressive and instructive and the people appreciated the service.

The pastor and people are looking forward to having Rev. R. S. Troxler, a former pastor, to assist in a meeting beginning next Sunday. Brother Troxler will be here from Monday night of next week. Every one has a cordial invitation to attend these services. The hour will be 7:30 each evening.

Miss Mary Lou Okley, who has been seriously ill for a number of days in the Winston-Salem Baptist hospital, is some better, according to the most recent reports.

At a recent quarterly conference Dr. W. C. Goley, a son of the late Dr. W. R. Goley, was elected delegate to the next Annual Conference. The son follows in the footsteps of his father in strength of character and zeal for his church.

A number of our young people plan to enter college this fall. Junius Neese and Price Dixon will enter Elon College; Miss Hazel Amick will enter Louisburg College; Howard Ezelle will enter Westminster College, Tehuacana, Texas, where his brother is the dean of the college.

Orange Chapel, Saxapahaw Charge.—Since our reporter has gone to sleep on the job, I have been asked to report for Orange Chapel.

Our revival services began the third Sunday in August and continued through Friday night. Our pastor, Rev. W. M. Loy, was assisted in these services by Rev. C. G. Isley, of First church, Lexington. Brother Isley's inspiring messages were enjoyed by the congregation, and his influence was greatly felt throughout the community.

We sincerely appreciate the good work he rendered during the entire week. We enjoyed having him visit in our homes. The church extends a cordial welcome to Mr. Isley to visit us often. We believe much and lasting good was accomplished during the meeting. We feel that he left footprints on the sand of time. There were eleven that united with the church. We were glad to have visitors from other churches attend our services.

Have you realized that it is almost conference again? We have got to be up and doing, for there is much work to be accomplished in the next few weeks.

Our Sunday school has collected 700 coupons recently for the Children's Home.

MRS. CLEM CRAWFORD.

◆

Lincolnton.—Due to sickness I have not reported in quite a while. But we have a good report for this week. Our Sunday school reports 114 present and $23.84 collection. The Young Ladies' Class had over $5 collection. I think that is fine, do you?

Our church as a whole is doing very well. We desire the prayers of all praying people that we may be humble and submissive to God's will and grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

Brother J. R. Anderson filled his appointment Sunday morning, taking as his subject "The Two Ways." It was a very interesting sermon. Which way are you on? The right way, or the wrong way?

MRS. LAWRENCE KEENER, Reporter.

Moriah Church.—During the recent illness and absence of our pastor, Rev. W. M. Howard, from the pulpit, one appointment was filled by Dr. Paul S. Kennett, who brought us an inspiring message the first Sunday in August. The second and third Sundays of August we had in our pulpit a very promising young man, Rev. Junius Neese, Elon College student, who preached with force and dignity.

The fourth Sunday in August was the opening day of our revival meeting. It made us very happy indeed to have our pastor so much improved as to be with us again at that time. Rev. Junius Neese delivered his third sermon to us at the morning services. In the afternoon a man who has been many times spoken of as the greatest layman in the M. P. church, Mr. J. Norman Wills, spoke to us in that inimitable way of which he alone is capable. In the evening, Rev. J. Elwood Carroll, pastor of Grace church, preached a wonderfully fitting and uplifting sermon. Morning and evening services were held each day during the past week, ending Friday. The pastor of First church in Burlington, Dr. Fred W. Paschall, was the visiting minister. Enough cannot be said for the good he has done. Truly his messages were inspired from above, and delivered with whole heart and soul.

We had with us several distinguished visitors during the week, among whom were our beloved editor and Mrs. Pritchard.

Tuesday afternoon of this week was the date set for our annual Sunday school picnic.

The Ladies' Auxiliary will meet Thursday afternoon with Mrs. A. V. Kirkman.

The monthly meeting of the Young People's Bible Class will be held at the home of Miss Mary Belle Lewis Thursday evening.

MRS. R. F. BROWN, Reporter.

Mt. Pleasant, Mt. Pleasant Charge.—At the close of our revival eight young people were received into the membership of the church. Mrs. Robert Patrum came by letter from Mt. Hermon charge.

Our Sunday school has been enjoying recently several selections from the Young Girls' quartet composed of Misses Lois Patrum, Iown Clapp, Lucille Phillips and Billy Robinson.

Several relatives and friends of Mrs. Caroline Lineberry gathered at her home last Sunday and gave her a surprise birthday dinner. Her sister, Mrs. Mike Bowman, was also honored as it was her birthday also. Mrs. Lineberry has been missed from church for several months because of ill health.

Among the visitors at the parsonage recently were Mrs. Braxton's sister and young son and Mr. and Mrs. Britt, from Louisiana, and Misses Lucille and Josephine Basket, from Henderson.

HUNDREDS PERISH IN FLORIDA STORM

A tropical hurricane which struck the southern end of Florida on Tuesday night brought death to hundreds of people and destruction to an untold amount of property. These storms which are so dreaded by the people who live on islands or in coastal towns and cities usually travel in August and September. A great many of them originate in the Caribbean Sea and move north to northwest, seldom ever blowing themselves out until they strike land. If Christopher Columbus had known the dangers of this territory he perhaps would have gone in another direction in search of the new world.

NOTICE—SIXTH DISTRICT

The sixth district, composed of Reidsville, Draper, Haw River, Brown Summit, Flat Rock and Kernersville-South Winston, will meet with the Fair Grove church, Haw River charge, on the fifth Sunday in this month. Pastors will make announcement of this meeting, and plan to attend with a delegation from each church. Program will be announced in a few days.

RAYMOND COE VISITS PARENTS

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

AN APPRECIATION

For the many kindnesses shown during the illness and death of my beloved husband, Joseph William Magee, in the way of service, sympathy, and in the gift of flowers, I am inexpressibly grateful.

Special recognition is hereby given Dr. B. J. Atkinson, his physician, and Rev. and Mrs. Wm. H. Neese.

MRS. JOSEPH WILLIAM MAGEE.

Cheatham

Death has again come in our midst and taken one of our most faithful church and Sunday school members, Joseph Daniel Cheatham. "Joe," as he was called by all his friends, was the son of W. H. H. and Sallie Gooch Cheatham, the last of his family, who were all good and faithful members of Rehoboth church. Since early childhood Joe had been a member of the church and not many Sundays found him absent. His cheerful face will be greatly missed by his host of friends who gathered in great numbers to pay their last tribute to his memory by placing many lovely floral designs on his grave.

UNDERSTANDING JAPAN

A proper understanding between Japan and the people of the United States is one of the most important and desirable things in world affairs. A misunderstanding that will lead to hate and war would be a major world calamity that would cost not only untold human lives but retard civilization to an incalculable degree. The tension is increasing and points of difference are multiplying until alarm is in the minds of many thoughtful students of the times. We must understand Japan.

The Christian church should lead in this effort toward knowledge and understanding. The church has invested millions of money and many men in the evangelization of Japan. This was the first foreign field into which the Methodist Protestant church entered, and is still the place of our largest activity. Methodist Protestants, many of them, know and love the Japanese through contact with them in the work of the Kingdom. At the same time Methodist Protestants read the papers and resent the Japanese aggression in China and are particularly interested, because the next zone of conquest will likely include North China in which Kalgan is located. Our feelings toward Japan are mixed. We surely ought to try to understand the Japanese as we think of and feel about the situation.

Dr. Van Kirk has published through the Federal Council a pamphlet entitled "The A. B. C. of American-Japanese Relations" which sells for a nickel, and Dr. Sidney J. Gulick has a new book on "Toward Understanding Japan," which we might do well to read. The Christian ought to get an understanding of Japan from a Christian viewpoint, which means to see the best in the people, to think the best of them, to judge their actions justly and to regard them as brothers of the whole family of God in heaven and earth. The Japanese are persons of like passions as we are and human kin.

We should understand the economic pressure in Japan. It is the most thickly settled land on earth with a growing population. It must have natural resources which are not on the islands which it originally owned and must have an outlet for its products. The life of Japan seems to be necessarily industrial, and colonial expanse imperative to its existence. We must understand this situation even while deprecating and condemning its method of exploiting China.

We ought to understand the psychology of the Japanese. They are our opposites in many things. They have grown to a world power from isolation in 70 years, keeping many of their primitive ideas and customs as they adopt modern techniques. They are sensitive, proud, cocky, and humble in a multitude of contradictory traits. They create beautiful things and sell tons of 10-cent junk for foreign trade. They live below the poverty line and are always in the dread of earthquakes and floods. They love their land and few ever leave it. Their real rulers in commerce and military control are families with feudal powers. The last assassin prayed before murdering a leader. They count not their lives dear unto themselves. They regard the emperor as of divine lineage. They are hard to undrstand, but those who know them from living with them love them and find them lovable, courteous and gentle. A nation which can produce a Kagawa has infinite Christian potentialities and Kagawa is quoted as saying that not one per cent of the Japanese people are in sympathy with the military program of their government but the masses accept it because they fear the aggression of the United States.

We feel sure that if the Japanese understood us there would be less likelihood of conflict. If we can understand them it will help. Let us seek a better knowledge so that there will not be an international crucifixion with the One who knows all about it saying again, "Father, forgive them for they know not what they do."—Methodist Protestant Recorder.

CALVARY CHURCH LAUNCHES NEW TITHING CAMPAIGN

On last Sunday morning Calvary church launched a tithing campaign to run through the month of September. Even though a number of the most dependable families were absent, thirty-nine persons signed up to tithe for the month.

MRS. GERRINGER AND CHILDREN VISIT HENDERSON

Prof. and Mrs. George Wills, of Westminster, Md., are visiting Mr. Wills' brothers in Greensboro. Prof. Wills heads the department of English in Western Maryland College.

REIDSVILLE'S NEW PARSONAGE

Note what Dr. Geo. R. Brown says about Reidsville's new parsonage. We can imagine that there are a lot of ministers who will want to live in it.

RALLY DAY, ANNOUNCEMENT NO. 2

By the time this notice appears in our church papers a number of our conferences will have completed their work for another year. Many pastors will be home again, while those moving to new fields will soon be located and making plans for the development of their charges.

In either case few things can accomplish more than a well-prepared Rally Day program. It will give new life and enthusiasm to everyone, and put into each local organization a finer spirit. It should provide an opportunity to renew our vows, to understand better a common purpose, and to confirm our consecration to the Christ and His church.

The title of one of the worship services provided this year is "Dedicated to Serve," with every element in the service intended to make a contribution to that ideal. It is not meant as a substitute for the spirit of worship but as a positive and helpful support to that end. The play, "The High Way and the Low," is well fitted to add a worthwhile feature.

The other worship service has a significant title also, "Hearing and Doing," and is intended to convey a vital message to children of junior age. If the play, "The Call of Samuel," is used, a very attractive and inspirational program will be the result.

This, as well as other Rally Day material, can be secured, free of charge, by writing

N. B.—In most of our Methodist Protestant schools during the last few years the teachers, as well as the presidents and other members of the administration, have been working on the income basis. That is, after the payment of prior charges for fuel, taxes, insurance, janitor service and similar expenses, whatever remained was distributed pro rata to the teachers and executives. Could there be any better evidence of their consecration to the cause of Christian education? This notable service has saved the colleges and seminary many thousands of dollars and prevented creating dangerous deficits and the creation of obligations which would have brought inevitable ruin.

C. E. NOTES TO BE RESTORED

We are glad for the statement by Rev. L. R. Medlin that the Christian Endeavor notes are to be restored to their rightful place in the Herald. His announcement indicates that they will be in this week's issue; however, they have not arrived yet and the forms are just about made up now—Thursday morning.

MRS. W. F. PARKER'S MOTHER ILL

Mrs. W. F. Parker, one of the most spiritually-minded members of Calvary church, is passing through a period of anxiety on account of the serious illness of her mother, Mrs. F. W. Paschall, of Greensboro. Mrs. Parker's mother lives near her, so it is possible for her to be constantly by her bedside.

MRS. C. A. PARRISH'S FATHER ILL

WINSTON-SALEM, FIRST	91
MIDWAY	90
GIBSONVILLE	84

Last week, when Reidsville and Siler City both reached their goal, we said the question was, What charges would take their places in the column of honor this week? By glancing at the top of this column you can see for yourself that First church, Winston-Salem, is heading the list. Good for them! Now let them push on for the goal. But Midway is only a short distance in the rear, and if she were to put forth a little extra effort she could soon be out. And the third one is Gibsonville. Our recollection is that she was up there some weeks ago but that somebody else came in and took the place away from her. Well, we welcome her back and trust that the next time she gets out it will be by the capital letters route. That is the way to go out with honor.

Now let us look at the receipts this week. Fallston heads the list with a nice payment. They, too, sell papers by the week and they are climbing. And Graham keeps right at it. One week they send in money on bundles and another time on the yearly basis. Anyway they are far ahead of their goal. Connelly Springs, Orange and Lincolnton all come up with more than one subscription this week. Then we have a nice list of smaller payments. BUT WAIT A MINUTE, DID YOU SEE THAT SUBSIDY? First church at Lexington sends in TEN DOLLARS. This pays in full for the First church but not for the charge. When Mt. Carmel sends hers, we will give them a big star.

The receipts this week are $54.17, $44.17 being on subscriptions and $10.00 being on subsidy.

But for the first time since the second week after the conference took over the paper we do not have enough money to pay the bills. Poor somebody will have to wait for his salary this week. If we could get some of the subsidy from the Boards and Institutions as well as from the churches we could make ends meet. Won't you help?

DEFEATING DISCOURAGEMENT

ONE IS YOUR MASTER EVEN CHRIST AND ALL YE ARE BRETHREN.

Seminary Library Westminster Md

VOLUME XLI GREENSBORO, N. C., SEPTEMBER 12, 1935 NUMBER 42

Why the Loss?

President Andrews, in his weekly letter this week, gives us the suggestion for this article in his discussion of the fact that in many places our church has seemingly failed and some other denomination has come in and made a success of the enterprise. And anyone who is familiar with our work in this state knows that this has been true in far too many instances. If one will take the time to go through our old journals, he will find that in the early days of our church we had local churches in Wilmington, Raleigh and Fayetteville. Later we had churches in Lagrange and the surrounding country, Plymouth, Edenton, Rocky Mount and several other places that might be mentioned where now our name is hardly remembered. While it is too late to do anything about it so far as those places are concerned, it is not too late for us to remind ourselves of these failures in order that we might not do likewise somewhere else.

Some one might say that if union is to come and we are to lose our identity as a denomination it does not make any difference. But there is another side to the question. Whether we unite or not with anybody else, we as individuals will still be the same, and if the cause is with us as individuals, then it would be just as tragic to take that spirit into a united church as it is to have it in ours. Furthermore, in so far as we have been able to understand the plan, one of the things which we have always contended for and which was one of our major goals to be attained, namely, equal rights of the ministry and the laity, is a very vital part of the set-up in the new denomination which is proposed. It would be just as unreasonable for a man to decide not to mend his ways because he was to be married as for us to decide that we are not going to correct any of our errors because of the possibility of union with somebody else. The thing for us to do is to go right on with the work of our church and make of it the best church possible, and if we continue to exist as a separate denomination, all well and good, but if we are to merge with other denominations, then it will be all the better for us to have a good organization to merge with the others.

Why, then, has it not been possible for us to measure arms with other denominations in some sections of our state?

The fault certainly could not be in our ideals, for we have as good principles to follow as any others we know. Our church government is modeled in a way after our national government, and we all admit that our national government has succeeded admirably. "One is your master, even Christ, and all ye are brethren" is as good doctrine as we know. Equal rights of ministers and laymen has been our battle cry all through the century. Since these things are so, then we must look elsewhere for the cause of our failure to inspire our people with a greater zeal. Doctrinally, there never has been any difference between us and the Methodist Episcopal church, as the controversy with that denomination more than a hundred years ago did not range around that point. What, then, can we say is the cause of our failure, if it may be called a failure?

In the first place, we would say that it appears to us that we have been too loosely connected. Our forefathers were right, perhaps, in revolting against any system which did not give freedom of expression and action to anyone in matters of church government, but almost all movements go to extremes on some points. And it is perfectly natural that this should be the case. In the effort to rid itself of any evil, almost any organization will go so far in the opposite direction that it is liable to overstep the bounds. In our desire for freedom we obtained a freedom that in a way was destructive of the greatest good, hence we have been too loosely connected. But some one might say that other denominations of the congregational system have succeeded, why could we not do it? In a great many cases there has been some doctrinal question around which these churches have rallied that has led them on to victory. They succeeded in spite of their individuality. But with us it was not a question of doctrine, hence we did not have anything to substitute for the lack of organization. Our forefathers got rid of the presiding elder whose business it has always been to come around and check up on the ministers, and as a result in too many cases we have not felt the urge to push things along as we should. It has been impossible for the President of the conference to keep in close touch with all the people, both ministers and laymen, hence if a minister or a charge either wanted to leave some things undone which the Annual Conference asked them to do, there was no immediate danger of their being called to account for the failure. Rev. C. A. Cecil used to say that under our system a minister could do as little or as much as he pleased and get by with it.

But the fact that we are a comparatively small denomination and that we do have an abundance of liberty and freedom of action and initiative ought to stir us up to a greater effort. While we are not so much under law, we ought to remember that the obligation is upon us to do our best, and that while there is no conference official standing over us with a whip to make us do our duty, our Lord Jesus Christ is watching us and that the very least we can afford to do is to do our best.

Within the last few weeks some people have asked us what we should do while the union question is being settled, whether new enterprises should be started or not. Our answer has been that we should not slacken our pace. We ought not waste our money in building in some other church's territory even if we were going to remain a separate denomination. If we build where a church is needed, it will still be needed regardless of the name of denominations. Our slogan should be, "To the work," and we should show no signs of weakening until the work is done.

WHAT THE BIBLE SAYS ABOUT THE HEAVENLY BODIES

By Rev. T. M. Johnson, D.D.

The silent, unwritten message of the sun, moon, and stars to man is, Look up rather than down, walk in the light rather than in darkness.

Yet, the account of the creation is very specific as to the purpose of the Creator in placing those bodies in the heavens. First, "to divide the day from the night." Second, "for seasons, and for days and years." Third, "to give light upon the earth." Fourth, "the greater light to rule the day, and the lesser light to rule the night." Gen. 1:14-16. The earth is also included in the plan.

It does not require an astronomer to know that with the coming of the sun is day, and that with the going of the sun is night—"to divide the day from the night." The maker of the almanac does not make the seasons or the days or the years; the sun and the earth jointly bring the spring season and follow it with summer, autumn, and winter in unerring succession, and likewise measure to the very second from the beginning of the year to its end and the beginning of another year—three hundred sixty-five days, five hours, forty-eight minutes, and forty-eight seconds—"for seasons, and for days and years." It is not a poetic fancy that the sun is called the "king of day" and the moon the "queen of night," but the deliberate design of the Creator—"the greater light to rule the day, and the lesser light to rule the night."

Freedom of the Ancient Hebrew

The ancient Hebrew was not handcuffed to a clumsy, expensive, forever-out-of-order wrist watch. His time, without expense or worry to himself, was measured for him. "The sun ariseth . . . man goeth forth unto his work and to his labor until the evening." Psa. 104:22, 23. For "the sun knoweth his going down." Verse 19. And he was taught to rejoice and sing praises meantime. "From the rising of the sun unto the going down of the same, the Lord's name is to be praised." Psa. 113:3. I think it was Carlisle who said, "Give me the man who sings at his work."

Also the sun noted for the ancient Hebrew the time to make payments and settlement, and thus have freedom from financial embarrassment. "Thou shalt not defraud thy neighbor, neither rob him: the wages of him that is hired shall not abide with thee all night until the morning." Lev. 19:13. "At his day thou shalt give him his hire, neither shall the sun go down upon it." Deut. 24:15. No contracting of embarrassing debts by the lure of the "easy payment" plan, but a pay-as-you-go system.

Other Sunsets and Sunrises

"The heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament showeth his handiwork" (Psa. 19:1) formerly meant to me only the starry heavens on a clear night. Later it seemed to me the beautiful sunsets, of glowing tints and changing hues, should be included as declaring the glory of God. Such sunsets, seeming to mark the very gateway to the glory world, must have inspired the poet to write

"Beyond the sunset's radiant glow
There is a brighter world, I know."

I look again and observe that the poet-writer of the 19th Psalm elaborates his opening statement quoted above by putting in, as declaring the glory of God, both the sunrise and sunset connecting the two by a pathway of light over which the sun travels as he makes his daily journey across the heavens.

The writer poetically represents the Creator as having placed a tabernacle or resting place for the sun. The following morning the sun "is as a bridegroom coming out of his chamber (sunrise) and rejoiceth as a strong man (rested and refreshed) to run a race. His going forth is from the end of the heaven (the place of sunrise), and his circuit unto the ends of it (the place of sunset). Psa. 19:4-6.

"The god of day sank slowly
To his evening's rest.
His parting smile lay on the sea
And lingered on the mountain crest.
Old ocean a fitting couch beneath him spread,
While heaven, in gold and purple hues,
Drew curtains around his weary head."

Sunset and Happiness

It was the Jewish Sabbath. Jesus had attended public worship in the synagogue and taught the people and cast an unclean devil out of a man. From the synagogue Jesus went into the home of Simon and healed his wife's mother of a fever. "And the fame of him went out into every place of the country round about. . . . Now when the sun was setting, all they that had any sick with diverse diseases brought them unto him; and he laid his hands on every one of them, and healed them. And devils also came out of many, crying out, and saying, Thou art Christ, the Son of God." Luke 4:37, 40, 41.

Imagine, if you can, the happiness in the souls and in the homes of those afflicted. Many of them, no doubt, had no hope of recovery until Jesus came. Then to that inexpressible happiness add the sympathetic happiness of neighbors and friends. It was a great, good day for Capernaum and vicinity. It should be noted that according to the traditions it was not allowable to bring the sick for healing on the Sabbath, but the Sabbath ended at sunset, hence "when the sun was setting" they brought their sick.

Sunrise and Joy

Probably the rising of the sun on no other day ever brought quite so much joy to the world as that first Easter morning when "very early . . . the first day of the week, they came unto the sepulcher at the rising of the sun . . . And entering into the sepulcher, they saw a young man sitting on the right side . . . And he saith unto them, Ye seek Jesus of Nazareth . . . he is risen; he is not here." Mark 16:2, 5, 6. "And they departed quickly from the sepulcher with . . . great joy; and did run to bring his disciples word." Matt.

28:8. On each succeeding Easter morning that word of joy, at the rising of the sun, is passed throughout Christendom, literally circles the earth, and lives in the hearts of men through the year to the next Easter.

Certain Stars

Note the majesty of thought and expression by the writer of the book Job in the mentioning by name of certain stars as having been made by the Creator. "Which alone spreadeth out the heavens . . . which maketh Arcturus, Orion and Pleiades, and the chambers of the south." Job 9:8, 9. And again in this question asked of Job: "Canst thou bind the sweet influences of Pleiades, or loose the bands of Orion? Or canst thou guide Arcturus, with his sons?" Job 38:31, 32.

The Most Brilliant Star

But the star that shines the brightest and the farthest, lighting the souls of men, is that followed by the Magi in their search for the Christ. "Saying, Where is he that is born King of the Jews? for we have seen his star in the east, and are come to worship him." Matt. 2:2. It may be added, a star that never sets.

"TIMOTHY: A CHRISTIAN WORKER IN TRAINING"

The International Sunday School Lesson for September 15, 1935

By Rev. J. Elwood Carroll

Scripture Lesson—II Timothy, Chapter 1.

Golden Text—II Timothy 2:15: "Give diligence to present thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, handling aright the word of truth."

The Christian is an imperfect workman. He is not "finished" in the sense of a manufactured article, then used until worn out. Rather, he is a person who has pledged himself to a new attitude of life. And in the following out of this attitude he hopes ever to attain nearer and nearer to perfection.

A great amount of criticism and church friction would never arise if people could only realize that Christians are not perfect, but are laboring candidates for perfection. Much disillusionment comes from our over-expectations of Christians. There is no desire to minimize the Christian life, nor to have the standard lowered, but merely to admit that we are only candidates for sainthood and not as yet saints. May we be frank and honest enough in our high expectations of Christians to ask, "Am I myself what I am expecting in other Christians?"

Our lesson for today is dealing with this very fact of imperfection. Timothy, a great spiritual leader, had lapsed into a severe state of discouragement. Our most sympathetic explanation of his condition is that Timothy is an imperfect workman in training. Let's stress that thought with the emphasis on "in training."

Timothy was a Christian worker in training under Paul. He had been converted in Lystra on Paul's first missionary journey through the province of Lycaonia. Then upon Paul's second missionary tour, which also took him through this same province, young Timothy set forth as a travel companion and remained a constant companion until near the close of Paul's life. At this time, we find them separated—Timothy is head of the church at Ephesus and Paul is imprisoned in Rome.

Paul is writing a letter of encouragement to Timothy in the latter's discouragement. When we notice the conditions of the two men we would say the reverse ought to be the case—Timothy ought to be writing to Paul. Paul is the one who is spending his last days on earth; these days made dark by underground walls of the Mamertine Prison, the weight of chains about his wrists and ankles, the odor of fumes from a crude lamp or burning torch, and suffering from the smoke in his already weak eyes. Despite all this he rejoiced.

In contrast, Timothy had in his environment all externals necessary for happiness: a good position as pastor of the church of Ephesus which by this time (64 A. D.) ranked as one of the four greatest churches in Christendom (the other three being Jerusalem, Alexandria, and Rome); an adequate income for his support; an abundance of friends in Ephesus; and his spirit of youth—he could not have been more than thirty-two years old. Yet, with all this he is in "tears" (v. 4). The only reason as to why Paul is writing to Timothy, instead of vice versa, is because Paul has attained in religious living and Timothy is yet in training.

In Timothy's training there were open to him many bulwarks of reserve strength. He was free to tap and use any one or all of them. These are also open to the great majority of us today. The following may be mentioned: 1. A childhood training in a cultured, religious home. On the one hand, a very devout, religious mother, Eunice, and grandmother, Lois; and on the other hand, a cultured Greek father. True culture and vital religion are the mudsills of the ideal family. 2. The idealism of youth. God never made a boy or girl with the problems of life without at the same time giving to that boy or girl an adequate supply of idealism to solve every problem. It seems, however, that Timothy had been touched a little by what Shelley pleased to call "the contagion of the world's slow stain." Too many of us have been touched too much by that "stain." 3. The Old Testament. We Christians rejoice that we have not only the Old Testament, but also the New. We need waste no tears in behalf of Timothy's lack of the New, remembering that Jesus, and John, and Paul had only the Old. By their living they made the New. What of our living? 4. The fellowship of the church. Every church worker surely has some one friend at least within the church who can help him in the hour of need. 5. The fact of his converts. We may with certainty conclude that out of his many years of travel and work with Paul, Timothy had made some converts to "The Way." The thought of these should have brought new courage had he only taken time to think of them. 6. Christ through prayer. Yet, may we be patient enough to admit that there are times when even Christians get "too blue" to pray effectively without the aid of other Christians. 7. A spiritual father in Paul. This great bulwark is the one that Timothy relied upon in his dark hour. It is needless to say that Paul did not fail him. Now read again, please, the entire first chapter of II Timothy.

WHAT'S RIGHT WITH THE CHURCH

By P. E. Lindley

The Spirit of Service

Service and sacrifice have ever been close to the heart of the church. Freely ye have received, freely give, might well be taken as the motto of her endless program of activities. Started by the loving and voluntary obedience of the Founder to the hope of saving others, the fellowship of believers has lived and labored to help the needy—to lift the fallen and cheer the faint, as the song suggests. And all the while altruism has been the motive rather than earthly gain. The sick have been visited, the hungry fed, and the forlorn, forsaken hearts have been befriended by the good people of the church, all without stint or gain. Truly the church can say with Job that it has not made gold her hope.

Take first the ministry. As the word implies, the men who are dedicated to this high calling live to serve others. They seem to have caught the sublime evaluation of human helpfulness from the Master who said that the greatest of all would be the servant of all. There is no jingle of coins about the call to preach and those who answer the exalted summons cease to measure life by the golden yardstick. Preachers love people or they would not be in the work. They are ministers and find their greatest joy in inspiring others, helping rid them of the shackles of sin, and supporting their precious but often unstable lives by the nobler example of their own. Let the love of God shine through the pastor's life to bless others and he is happy. Preachers know that when silver and gold, fame and fortune have passed away, something eternal still remains of the human soul, and it is this true and immortal part of man they are, above all else, determined to save. They work in the realm of spiritual values where money is helpless as a measure and earthly goods are not to be compared with the good that may be done for the spirit of man made in the likeness of the Creator.

Itemize the work of the minister and compare it with the usual routine of any other professional man. He counts his official calls by the score, yet adds nothing to his income thereby. The preacher drives his own car thirty-five miles to officiate at the funeral of someone not even known to his congregation and hands in no bill for his work, while the surgeon, electrician or banker making a similar journey in the service of a client would ask not less than twenty dollars and maybe more. It is dangerous to ask personal advice of the lawyer, for he gets pay for giving advice, yet the pastor will arise and go to any sincere soul in need, counsel and pray with him at great length, never so much as dreaming of charging for his services. Clubs and schools, family reunions and civic celebrations call upon the minister to bring a message for the hour which he gladly does. Then, the programs ended, these same institutions forthwith begin to exhibit a fine capacity of forgetfulness, for they can never think of mailing a check. Thus, the pastor gives himself in the interest of others. Individuals, families, lodges, and the whole community draw upon his talents to perform professional tasks, and this, mind you, in addition to what Paul would call "the care of all the churches."

Take next the enormous army of Sunday school workers. Officers and teachers serve Sabbath after Sabbath, guiding and helping the millions of children and young people in our classes, all in the spirit of service. Their time, their talents, their splendid devotion goes without pay. I often wonder why they keep on at it. There are numerous reasons why they might not stand by their tasks so faithfully; but there must be even greater reasons why they do. A million teachers receiving only five dollars per week would cost the churches half a million dollars a year. Yet this million of teachers actually meet their classes every week, usually buy their own lesson helps, and then give the whole service free. No doubt we should pay these fine teachers, but the fact is we do not, but the work goes on just the same. It is a grand example of the spirit of service permeating the Christian ranks.

Forget not the endless number of men and women who serve on boards and committees of the local church, prepare programs, raise money and pilot campaigns for the good of the church group. Night meeting for the men, and cooking, sewing, selling appointments for the women characterize the voluntary co-operation of the congregation. Apparently the women of the community spend more time at church suppers and circle meetings than at any other form of organized life. They love the church and are giving themselves for its benefit.

Remember too those who sing and play in our churches that we may have music of a high order and render the songs of Zion in a manner suitable for real worship. Talents of practically every description can be used in the church, and whenever a person possessing such talent finds himself consecrated to the cause he is then anxious for his abilities to be employed for the Master. Choirs, prayer meetings, personal work, and a great variety of other services you will find being carried on by the membership of the church, all in the spirit of helpfulness.

In the beginning all Christians were expected to show their love and co-operation by selling their possessions and casting the profits therefrom into a common purse. They wanted to serve. That was one way to render service; it was wise in their day. At the present time, under the highly specialized systems of our generation, it is not practical. But that does not in the least destroy the impulse and the attitude prompting the original plan. Someone has said that we cannot live just like Jesus lived, but we can live in the spirit of Jesus. The same is true of the church. We cannot live exactly like the first Christians, yet it is true that we can live in the spirit that characterized their community. And that spirit is a spirit of service.

Who Will Attempt to Answer This Question?

We are inviting both ministers and laymen to write on the question, Why We Have Failed Where Others Have Succeeded. This question is being discussed in Dr. Andrews' weekly letter this week and in our front page editorial. If it should stir up somebody's pure mind and make him want to say something, let him say it. Our greatest danger is indifference.

M. P. Ministers to Meet

The Greensboro M. P. Ministers' Association will meet on September 16 at 10;30 at Grace church.

J. Elwood Carroll, Secretary.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord.

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

Annual Conference Meets

November 6th, 10 a. m., Henderson. Who will be ready? Those who have prepared for the event. Others may not. Some churches enjoy getting ready, others dread it like some who make a trip to the dentist; while there are others who would not be unhappy if there was never another session of the conference. One-sixth of the year stands like an open door into a harvest field to those who want to carry a good report to the conference. It invites all to enter; none are slighted. So, Bro. Pastor and Church Member, let's prove of what sort of stuff we are made in these fifty-odd days. It is largely up to us.

Don't forget the collection for A. C. Debt this month. Are you tithing?

Discovering Leaders

Recently I saw this sentence in a religious magazine: "One of the first duties of the pastor is to produce leaders; therefore, let him rejoice when he sees one trying to emerge."

Mr. Moody used to say that he who got twenty men to do a work was greater than he who did the work of twenty men. That is a wise saying, as has been proved by the deeds of many a pastor.

It is assumed that there is in every congregation at least one potential leader. One man or boy, woman or girl, who is encouraged and trained, could do great things for God. This person may be unknown to all. Virtually like the lad with the loaves and fishes in the multitude whose name is not recorded. Still the lad had the means by which the Master fed thousands of hungry people. And Jesus is waiting to multiply the deeds of some unknown leader in the dying church. It may be today, if there is a disciple like Andrew who knows the lad bearing the potential food for the multitudes. The pastor and church officials make a serious mistake when they go outside of their church membership for leaders in any sphere of service unless they really have no one who can do anything; in such a case there is no chance for growth until leaders are found who are not of this congregation. But some of us are unwilling to use a person unless such an one is already efficient, has skill and experience enough to do the thing wanted done as well as can be done in that community. Thus they leave their potential leaders undiscovered until some other denominational leader with keener insight and greater willingness to train a leader takes charge of them, and soon the former pastor and church people wonder why such and such did not do anything while in their church. The reason is plain—did not have a fair chance in the old church.

Here and there is a church which to all appearances is ready to be discontinued. The pastor may be urging it be dropped from the plan of appointments only to see some other denomination whose pastor had more vision and greater willingness to work take virtually the same folk and develop them into an aggressive band of workers. Instances like this are enough over North Carolina to make us ashamed of our lack of foresight, or shall I say, lack of aggressiveness. As no soldier ever reached headquarters marking time, so those who Micawber-like wait for "something to turn up" die without realizing what a stupendous folly they were guilty of. I suppose one-half of the churches in our conference which are in need of leaders have permitted people to slip from their membership into other churches who have made good leaders there and could have led the membership in the home church had they been discovered and given a chance to train in service. This fastidiousness which is unwilling to endure the mistakes of the potential leader while in training has almost killed some of our churches. I only hope that such cold churches may "frostbite" this fastidiousness and kill it that it may not take root in some other fold.

Fixing Pastors' Salaries

As this should be done by the fourth quarterly conference we must soon face this task. We believe it would help us to understand what should be done about it to review a few reports of the conference statistician. According to the 1928 Journal, our pastors received the maximum salaries, the total for all was $110,744 for that year; and the low ebb was reached in 1933, being $76,836, making a difference of nearly $34,000, or about 30 per cent less than was received in 1928. As there was an increase in pastoral support last year of about 4 per cent, the pastors in our conference are receiving about 25 per cent less for their support now, or last year, than was received in 1928.

There are eighty-five pastoral charges listed in our Journal. As some are served by the same pastor, the list might be reduced to eighty-two. Forty-two of these received not more than $1,000 for the year. Twenty-two received between $850 and $500 for the year, and six pastors received less than $450 for the year.

While there has been a fluctuation in the cost of living during this period, we are now paying more for our groceries than was paid in possibly five years. The pastor uses a car in supplying his work. The upkeep, running expense, and the new car must come out of the pastor's salary. So when you subtract what your pastor pays for serving your work from what he receives, the pastor who receives less than $500 is woefully in debt unless he was able to supplement his salary, and the pastor who received $1,000 took a great slice off that sum to keep the old bus running, and if he needs a new one, this will just about consume a year's salary for the $850 pastor.

What Can Be Done About It?

The easiest, but unkindest, thing to do is—nothing. Let the mossbacks fix the salary for next year without any regard as to the needs of the pastor. That is quite simple. Just give it the absent treatment. It is a habit in some churches. The pastor will make out somehow and he may not complain about it either. His wife will remake some old dresses for the kiddies, reduce the amount of food for each meal, and stretch the little salary out for another year.

But can Christian people afford to do this, unless it is absolutely necessary? If this is the best a church can do, brother, sister, instead of being ashamed that your pastor gets only three or four hundred dollars, glory in it. Tell it about. Thank God for the privilege, for it is a privilege to do our best any time. And I know some people who are doing their best but cannot pay their pastor a larger salary than he now receives. I also know many others who have never known the joy of giving. Their gifts were so small they were ashamed to speak of them and nobody else would. What we give to the cause of religion should be a means of grace to us. If it is not, we do not give with the right spirit. For a gift of money to be a spiritual act must be an act of love.

Please Do This

Brother steward and other church officials, make an inventory of what you think it costs your pastor to serve your charge, to keep his family clothed and fed, and to lay aside a little for old age. Total this and compare it with what you have been paying him. If it is ample, dismiss the subject from further consideration; but, if it is not, won't you please see to it that somehow and from somewhere your pastor shall receive a larger salary for next year? Talk it over with members like yourself who are interested in the matter, and when the time comes to fix pastor's salary for 1936, move that it be substantially increased.

Halifax Charge, Rev. O. C. Loy, Pastor

I visited Bethesda and Hollister churches on this charge. It was my first visit to Bethesda in several years. A porch has been built to the main entrance of the church, which has added to the appearance. Here is one of the historic communities of our denomination. Bethesda is an old church, i. e., its organization dates back many decades. It was here I attended the first "sub-district" conference I ever attended in our church. There was a good attendance back in those days. Two young men who had not been long in the conference were Revs. J. S. Williams and T. M. Johnson; both of them participated in the conference. I could not refrain from thinking of the leaders in that church then, Hunters, Wills, Vinson, Harrison, et al., who have gone to their final home.

There was not a large audience present, but those present were attentive and inspired the speaker in the delivery of his message last Sunday.

At night I was at Hollister. There was a very good congregation present who gave good attention to the message. There is a fine opportunity for expansion on this charge. Many young people are in the community and the pastor is endeavoring to enlist them more fully in the church. The building is much out of repair and must be repaired at an early date in order to save it. We hope to hear that work has begun on it soon. The pastor is hopeful of this church. This is Pastor Loy's second year and the people speak well of him, both as a pastor and as a preacher. We are expecting Halifax to close a good year financially this year. Unfortunately most of our people in eastern Carolina have formed the habit of paying to the claims of the conference in the last weeks of the conference year, and it often happens that as much as half the pastor's salary is paid during five or six weeks just preceding the meeting of the Annual Conference; so at this time finances do not look so healthy but may come out all right.

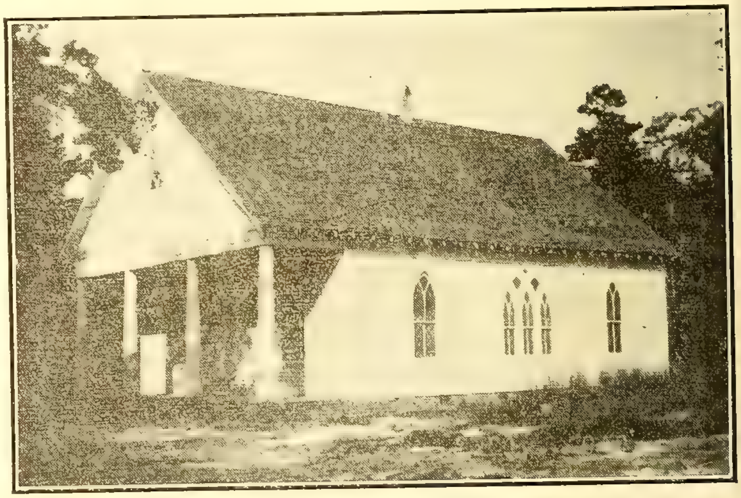
R. M. ANDREWS.

A BRIEF HISTORY OF GIDEON'S GROVE METHODIST PROTESTANT CHURCH

Gideon's Grove Methodist Protestant church was organized in 1896 during the pastorate of Rev. T. J. Ogburn, who was pastor of a group of Methodist Protestant churches in Rockingham and Guilford counties. The church derived its name from that pioneer citizen, Gideon Pegram. There were sixteen charter members, namely: P. H. Angel, W. A. Pegram, P. H. Pegram, R. W. Pegram, E. H. McCrorie, John Pegram, W. A. Young, M. E. McCrorie, S. J. Pegram, L. J. Lee, Mary E. Pegram, Martha V. Lemmons, Laura F. Angel, Mamie M. Bullock, Clarissa Lester, Alice Pegram. Some of these came from Flat Rock, others from other nearby churches.



GIDEON'S GROVE M. P. CHURCH, FLAT ROCK CHARGE
REV. C. B. WAY, PASTOR

From its beginning the church enjoyed a steady growth in membership and soon became an influence for righteousness in the community in which it was located. A very satisfactory increase in membership resulted during the thirty-nine years of the history of the church. The present membership is 134. The following ministers have served the church as pastor: T. J. Ogburn, W. L. Harris, W. F. Kennett, J. R. Hutton, C. A. Cecil, A. L. Hunter, J. B. Trogdon, J. P. Pegg, and the present pastor, C. B. Way. The longest pastorates were those of Rev. W. F. Kennett and Rev. J. R. Hutton.

The first church building erected was in keeping with the needs of the 19th century church and served the membership during a period of twenty-seven years. In 1923 the growing membership of the church and Sunday school necessitated the erection of a larger and more commodious building. The people united heart and hand in their efforts and the present church building was the result. This building was erected during the pastorate of Rev. J. R. Hutton, and cost approximately $2,500.

The church seems to have justified its existence in the community during the thirty-nine years of its history, serving as a lighthouse on the great ocean of time, pointing the traveler to the Christian life. There are three organizations in the church which are functioning well. The Sunday school has been under the capable leadership of Bro. G. A. Middleton, as superintendent, for nearly twenty years. The Woman's Missionary Auxiliary has been organized and functioning for the past seven years, and is directed by Mrs. C. C. Angel as president. The Mission Band, an organization of boys and girls, was organized in April, 1934, with 19 members. During the first year of its history the membership increased to 42. Mrs. C. B. Way, who organized the group of boys and girls, has served as leader of the organization.

The possibilities of the future development and growth of the church seem good, and the next thirty-nine years of the history of the church will doubtless reveal a much greater progress and development in extending the Kingdom of God in the community which the church serves. C. B. WAY.

MORE ABOUT DANGERS OF DEBTS

"I am in a hard place; could you lend me —— dollars?" He lends him the money to help him over a hard place, then he, the borrower, neglects to remember the kindness received, even for years. So long that he is ashamed to mention it, then he tries to persuade himself that he is not able to pay the debt, and being inclined not to pay it, he decides he will not pay because, as he looks at it, he cannot.

Honesty demands that you pay the debt if possible, and don't be too quick to decide that you cannot pay it. Why not pay part of the debt if you cannot pay all of it? The Lord knows whether you can pay part or all of it. It is alarming how many people owe debts and do not intend to pay what they owe, making some little excuse, "He can't get it by law." Someone has said, "God pity the man who is no better than the law compels him to be." Good-bye, Mr. Debt Maker and Debt Dodger. Here lies John Dodge, who dodged all good, but could not dodge all evil, but with all the dodging he could do, he could not dodge the devil. It looks like there ought to be some work for the committee on ministerial moral character to do at the next Annual Conference. X. Y. Z.

"WHAT MISSIONARY WORK CAN OUR SOCIETY DO?"

Christian Endeavor Topic for Sunday, Sept. 22, 1935

By REV. AUBERT M. SMITH

The Text—Romans 15:1-7.

WORSHIP SERVICE

Prelude—"Something for Jesus" (have words read while pianist plays).

Hymn.

Sentence Prayers (by Endeavorers for guidance in daily missionary work).

Scripture—Romans 15:1-7 (have some Endeavorer to read this).

Special Music (instrumental or vocal).

Poem—"It Pays" (to be read by Endeavorer other than leader).

It pays to be a Christian,
  It pays to take a stand;
It pays to do your duty
  On the sea and on the land.
It pays to be a worker
  In the vineyard of the Lord;
It pays to do your duty,
  E'en tho' the work is hard.

It pays to face the trial,
  It pays to do your best;
It pays to work for Jesus
  In the white fields with the rest.
It pays to help a brother,
  It pays to lift his load;
It pays to be a lifter
  Along life's weary road.

It pays to look for others
  Who are now down deep in sin;
It pays to tell the story
  That will save and bring them in.
It pays to tell them daily—
  Not on Sunday just alone;
It pays to give the message
  That will help to bring them home.

It pays to be a sharer
  In the victory of our Lord;
It pays to win the blessing
  And a crown as our reward.
It pays to have the Master's smile
  And hear Him say, "Well done";
It pays to have Him say to us,
  "A faithful race you've run."

—B. N. Sypolt, Council Grove, Kan.

Leader's Talk.

Hymn.

Open Discussion. Several days before the meeting or on the preceding Sunday night each Endeavorer should be asked to bring to the meeting a brief written description of some need or possible Christian work for the society to do within the community or other places. These papers can be taken and redistributed or even read by the owner before the entire society, this constituting the main part of the discussion period.

Hymn.

Soft Music (all heads bowed; have someone read "Lead On, O King Eternal").

Benediction.

Suitable Songs

"Help Somebody Today," "Others," "We've a Story to Tell to the Nations," "Will There Be Any Stars," "Where He Leads Me I Will Follow," "I Love Thy Kingdom, Lord," "Have Thine Own Way," "The Church By the Side of the Road."

Practical Suggestions

Let each Endeavorer signify his or her intention to win some soul to Christ before the year is closed.

The Society President should jot down the practical suggestions made in the discussion period and attempt to lead the Endeavorers in accomplishing some of these. Assignments could be made at the end of discussion or meeting of work to be done by certain members or committees and reports made on the following Sunday evening.

NOTE: To save space, charges that have paid out are not listed. Perhaps churches that have paid in full ought to be omitted also, but since we did not have the names of the churches not paying in full, or not paying at all, we thought there might be a misunderstanding. Churches that have paid in full are starred (*). If there are any errors as to credits, please let us know.

ONCE UPON A TIME

(Guilty pastors will please put their names in the blank spaces.)

Once upon a time there was a preacher by the name of Rev. ————. He was a good preacher and pastor. But he had a bad habit of putting off doing what he was asked to do. For instance, the Secretary of the Annual Conference asked him through the HERALD to put the name and address of his delegate on a postal card and send it in. But Rev. ———— kept putting it off in spite of the fact that the President of the Conference needed the names of these delegates so he could make out the committees, and the Conference host needed the list of names so he could assign homes, and the Secretary of the Conference needed the names so he could make out the roll. But all that was delayed because Rev. ———— put off doing what he was asked to do when he was asked to do it. Is your name Rev. ————?

Fifty-two names have been received to date. That's almost two-thirds. Shoot the others in so you won't have to fill in these blanks. Thank you; I knew you'd do it.

THE DEPARTMENT OF STEWARDSHIP

COMMITTEE: Rev. H. F. Fogleman, Chairman,
Dr. N. G. Bethea, J. G. Rogers

For our second appearance, it might be a good thing to reproduce here under the Department of Stewardship a report carried as a part of the records of our last Annual Conference.

In a measure, the report predicates the work to be done this year, and gives certain definite advice to the pastors and churches in a very much more effective manner than I could do it myself.

It should be the duty of every pastor to encourage everything that is being done to lead our people to the blessings of a greater liberality. This law that was obeyed by the patriarchs before there were any Ten Commandments, Hebrew Tribe, or any Code of Hammurabi, shows that the law of the tithe is like that of the Rest and Worship Day, the One-man-for-one-Woman, and a number of other things that seem to be written in the hearts of the human family.

To be sure there are those who think that this law of tithing has been repealed entirely, nobody ever thought of changing its form. You never hear of a seventh, a twelfth, or a twentieth. Always referred to as the Sacred TENTH.

We should try this from the standpoint of Christian efficiency. It works for the church just as we have been taught it would, for wherever it is applied it settles the question of every Christian enterprise, so far as the appliers are concerned. Over the top in their offerings. People who think of spirituality as something ethereal sniff at the idea of linking prosperity with tithing. But this is a fact that cannot be gainsaid.

The best way of all is the way of grateful love. It is in grateful recognition of God's gifts to us. Some system, some definite portion, is always the way of liberation. No man can follow it and be unhappy. No pinch-penny practices when one recognizes God's claims and deals with Him in such a way as to prove that love is the dominating factor in his life.

Therefore, we urge first of all that the pastor be an example in these things. If he does not believe in preaching and practicing the tithe, let him show by precept and example that he is in sympathy with any move that will bring his people to a recognition of their stewardship, thus following the teaching of St. Paul, when he said, "As ye abound in everything, in faith, in utterance, and in all knowledge . . . see that ye abound in this grace also."

We recommend that the work of the Society of Proportionate and Systematic Givers be kept up, and that each pastor give some attention to the work of stimulating our people to greater liberality and a better system in meeting their obligations to the interests of the Kingdom.

MARCIA'S SHYNESS

"Did you have a good time, dear?" asked Mrs. Wilson, as Marcia came home from Harriet's birthday party.

"Not very! There were lots of games, and good things to eat, but there were so many girls there whom I didn't know, and it's so hard for me to get acquainted. I never seem able to think of anything to say. Maude is going to have a party next week, and I just wish I didn't have to go, for there are going to be strangers there, too."

Mrs. Wilson slipped an arm around her shy little daughter as she said gently: "Suppose you go and try to see if there isn't some one who feels just as shy as you do. Then do your best to help her to get acquainted and have a good time."

It was a happy-faced Marcia who came home from Maude's party. "I did just as you suggested, Mother," she said. "There was a girl there who looked as bashful and uncomfortable as I felt, so I went up and began to talk to her. It wasn't easy at first, but soon we got to talking, and I happened to know some of the games; so I explained them to her, and the first thing I knew, both of us were having the best kind of time and forgot to be shy."

"That's splendid," said her mother. "The very best way I know to overcome shyness is to make things pleasant for some one else."

"I believe it is," assented Marcia. "It worked so well today that I'm going to try it again next time."—Queen's Gardens.

SUCH AS HE HAD

"Trotty" McIvors was a freckle-faced newsboy, who lived with his grandmother over Hogan's butcher shop.

"Trotty" was not his name, of course. He had been called William, but because he went about his work every day with such a regular-steady-going trot, the name of "Trotty" seemed to fit him better.

He was a delightful little fellow. He had a pug nose, which looked as if the end of it had been knocked off by a smile.

Once a cross newsboy said to him, "Say, Trot, what's you allers grinnin' about?" Trotty answered, with a smile, " 'Cause I has to."

Trotty went to Sunday school. Not every Sunday, for sometimes his papers were not all sold until nearly noon, and he had not yet learned that it was wrong to sell papers on Sunday. He only knew that he would be punished if he did not bring in so much money. His grandmother drank liquor, and when there was not money enough for her to get what she wanted poor little Trotty had to suffer. Oh, how he hated the stuff! Touch it? No, indeed, he'd never touch it!

Every little scrap of paper or ticket he got at Sunday school he cherished and hid in a little box next to the roof.

One Sunday his teacher talked about beer and cider and whisky, and told them she would be so happy if she knew they would never touch it. Trotty listened to every word. Then pledge cards were given to them to take home.

"If yez has a pencil I can sign mine now," said Trotty, "for I knows about ber, and I hates it." So, good as his word, he signed the ticket and tucked it carefully away in his pocket.

Next day a sad story was passed around among the boys. One of their number, Bob Hart, had been knocked down by an automobile and carried to the hospital.

"I guess he's a goner," said one of the boys.

"Goin' to die?" asked Trotty, anxiously.

"Yes, sunthin's the matter with his back, an' he can't git well."

That afternoon Trotty begged his way into the hospital and crowded a bit of cardboard into Bob's hand. It was his pledge card, with his own name signed to it.

"I guess that'll git you through all right," whispered Trotty, with his radiant smile. "Heaven's an awful big place, an' I guess you'll need a ticket to git in."

Bob's dull face lighted with a reflection of Trotty's own smile. "You thought I was a goner, didn't yer?" he asked. "But the doctor says he's goin' ter pull me through, an' I'll be a-sellin' papers inside of a week." Trotty did not answer, but only smiled his delight.

Bob pushed a brown hand beneath the pillow. "Say, kid," he said, " 'twas awful good of you to give me your ticket when it's all you've got. It was more'n the bouquet you brung me, an' I won't ever forgit it. An' just as soon as I'm out of this I'm goin' to thet Sunday school with you, see if I don't!"—King's Builders.

A GIANT EVIL

One of the great modern evils that has already assumed giant proportions in this nation is the cigarette. Last year United States revenue taxes were paid on 111,763,441,149 cigarettes, this being an increase of about 8,000,000,000 over the year before. When we consider that there is a body-destroying poison in every one of these; and when we consider that there is a character-destroying poison in every one of these; and when we consider that multiplied thousands of young girls are among the chief consumers of this slow-but-sure-poisoning drug; and when we recall that thousands of little boys, hardly in their teens, are annually added to the list of smokers; it does seem that men who have become addicted to the habit would turn against it as they would a rattlesnake. Amen!—Alabama Christian Advocate.

WHICH LITTLE GIRL?

Doris was a very shy little girl. Whenever anyone came to see mother or father, Doris would hide away. If she was called into the room and someone said, "And this is Doris," she would hide her face in her mother's lap. That was because she was thinking only of herself.

Emily was the same age as Doris. But when strangers came to Emily's house she held out her hand politely and said, "How do you do? I am Emily. Won't you please come in and sit down? I will run and call mother." That was because she was thinking of others.

Which little girl would you rather be?—Unknown.

Total amount of anniversary gift to date, $2,426.20.

We are delighted with the anniversary gifts that have come in during the past week. It began to look like many churches were not going to be heard from. This encourages us to believe that those not yet heard from will respond.

Surely every church in the conference will make a birthday gift to the Children's Home during its 25th year of service.

We are still laboring within that 25th year, and we are still looking for that special gift from every church. Please send it soon.

Our goal for this year is, "Twenty-five Thousand Dollars for the Children's Home During Its Twenty-fifth Year of Service." This amount for the year is needed to put the Home on safe footing. Thirty thousand Methodist Protestants certainly can do that with the good help we have had during August and September from many friends in the other conferences.

If you have this offering in hand, please send it along at once. Thank you and God bless you every one.

Yours in His service,

A. G. DIXON, Superintendent.

TWO WEEKS SPENT WITH WESTERN METHODIST PROTESTANTS

Monday morning, August 19, the writer, accompanied by Mrs. Way and our son, C. B., Jr., left Stokesdale for Weaverville, arriving in that beautiful city in "The Land of the Sky" at 5:30 p. m. Our first hospitality was accorded by Rev. and Mrs. W. L. Harkey in the parsonage of the Weaverville charge. Here we enjoyed a good supper, after which we went to Clark's Chapel church for the revival services which beagn the night before. Here we were engaged for one week in revival services, speaking twice daily. It was a pleasure to work with the good people of Clark's Chapel and visit in the homes of some of the people. The pastor will report the results of the meeting.

Our next engagement was in revival services at Mount Zion church, located at Jupiter. Owing to sickness and other hindering causes, our efforts were not blessed as was desired. Large congregations attended the services, many Baptist people being present at every service. We enjoyed our visits in some of the homes of the people. We were delighted to visit a print shop in the community, operated by the Crowder Brothers.

A very enjoyable affair during the first week was a Methodist Protestant picnic which was spread at the Bates cabin. The showers of rain did not prevent the attendance of practically all Methodist Protestant leaders and pastors in that section. Among those in attendance were Dr. and Mrs. N. G. Bethea, Rev. and Mrs. J. S. Williams, Rev. and Mrs. J. F. Minnis and children, Rev. and Mrs. W. L Harkey and children, Miss Blanche Hardee, Miss Potter of Bethel Home, Rev. Homer Casto, Richard Padgett, Rev. C. B. Way and the Bates family as occupants of the cabin, who were host and hostesses to the informal affair.

The principal sightseeing trip during the two weeks was a visit to Craggy Mountain, which is located about 15 miles from Weaverville. The Harkey family, the writer, Mrs. Way and C. B., Jr., composed the group of visitors. We carried lunch, which was prepared and enjoyed on top of the mountain. A winding road, a distance of six miles, leads from the foot to the top of the mountain, affording a most enjoyable view of the surrounding mountains.

A "stag breakfast" was another enjoyable festive affair, staged in the hospitable home of Rev. and Mrs. J. S. Williams at Asheville. The guests were Rev. J. F. Minnis, Rev. Homer Casto, Rev. W. L. Harkey, Rev. C. B. Way. The hosts, Rev. J. S. Williams and Richard Padgett, and the hostess, Mrs. J. S. Williams, the only woman participant. When the guests were bidding the hosts and hostess good-bye, Rev. Homer Casto said, "I'm too full for utterance."

Our visit to Bethel Home, an institution founded by Rev. Homer Casto, was a very pleasant one. For 16 years Bro. Casto has provided a home for tubercular patients. The Home is in a most beautiful location, overlooking the city of Weaverville, and affording the patients the health-giving mountain atmosphere. We learned there were seven patients in the Home.

A brief visit to the world's largest paper mill at Canton was both pleasant and educational. Rev. W. L. Harkey accompanied the writer on the visit, and we were entertained for dinner in the home of Bro. Fulton Roberts, a member of Clark's Chapel church.

In company with Dr. R. M. Andrews and Rev. W. L. Harkey, we visited Rev. J. O. Fry and family at the parsonage of the Democrat charge.

A few hours were spent in Asheville in company with Rev. J. S. Williams, chaplain of the Mission of the Good Samaritan. We had the privilege of observing the good work which Bro. Williams is doing for "the stranger that is within thy gates" in the city of Asheville. For nearly 24 years Bro. Williams has served as chaplain of the Good Samaritan Mission. We sat in his office, accompanied him on a trip through a residential section, observed his work of delivering milk to families who could not buy milk. We learned that "one of the happiest thrills in the work of the Mission is making contacts between those who need a kindness and those who wish to bestow a kindness." In deed and in truth Bro. Williams is enjoying the satisfaction of practicing the words of the poet: "Let me live in a house by the side of the road and be a friend to man."

In this closing paragraph of my description of two weeks spent with western Methodist Protestants, I desire to give you my impressions of our church people in that section of our conference. First, I was impressed with the fact that the general type of church people are like our central people—some faithful and true, and many unfaithful and disloyal. Second, my impression of their hospitality is that they are just as hospitable as any people I have ever met. There is a great need of an awakening to a sense of denominational pride and the importance of church loyalty among those members of Weaverville charge with whom I became acquainted. It would be a great blessing if our Annual Conference could give financial assistance to the work there in order that a pastor could spend more time with the people, as is the case with other denominations, namely the Presbyterian church and the Baptist church.

We shall not forget our sojourn among our western Methodist Protestants, the hospitality accorded by the people and the pastor, Rev. W. L. Harkey and family, the free service given by the dry cleaning plant operated by Bro. Joe Roberts, and every kindness shown us during the two weeks spent on Weaverville charge.

C. B. WAY.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Mitchell's Grove, Guilford Charge.—As there hasn't been a report from this church in so long, this should be an annual report. In some things we have done better than last year, and others not so well.

There has been one more Sunday school room added this year which makes us two rooms, and we are very thankful for them. The Young People's Class was due this last room, but as the Bible class need was greater they gave it to them. We would like to extend to them our thanks and appreciation for this room. The Sunday school roll is not as large as last year, it being 110 last year, and it has reached only 92 this year. But our average attendance has been better.

The Sunday school presented the Easter and Children's Day program and now plans are being made for the Rally Day program. We are hoping that great interest will be taken in this, that it may be better than last year, which was very good.

Our pastor, Rev. T. A. Williams, has been very sick this summer, also his son, T. A., Jr., but is better now, we are glad to report. He filled his appointment the fourth Sunday in August which seemed mighty good to have him back with us. We are hoping that T. A., Jr., will soon be well and with us again. We are missing him too, as he always had a sunny smile for us.

Our revival services will begin the fourth Sunday in September.

Most of our budgets have already been paid. We are planning on paying up in full by conference. CALLIE BILLINGS, Reporter.

Pleasant Grove Station.—Dear Editor: I noticed in your editorial of last week regarding the fourth issue of the Methodist Protestant Herald or Our Church Record as it was known in its original address. Your reference to the noble aims brought to mind some facts as the year of Our Church Record's birth was during the year I was on my first charge. The first Annual Conference I ever attended was at LaGrange. I was elected delegate from Surry circuit. I was in school at Yadkin College. We were short of pastoral supply, so I was loaned from school to Albemarle Mission for the year 1894. I remember Bro. J. F. McCulloch came to us, young, full of inspiration and optimism. He lay before us at that conference the noble aims of this paper that was to be born the following year, also plans for a college. His idea was first to establish a church paper. The conference gave a unanimous vote to sustain his plans and ideas. Bro. McCulloch moved to Greensboro, N. C., and commenced his cherished though a laborious task to build a greater Methodist Protestant church in North Carolina. First, he set out to build a home for the paper he was to establish. Bro. McCulloch asked me to be one of one hundred men to do this thing. I did and borrowed the money. I was on a promised salary of $225. My love for the church and the faith I had in this young intellectual giant would not let me say no. I received the first copy and every copy since, with the exception of two years, when I had to make every sacrifice to live. It is to me like a love letter from home. I have watched the church grow as I have watched the unstinted labors of this great and good man who literally wore himself out to bring to pass his youthful ideals. I would not minimize the labors of any man, but my own convictions are that the expansion and growth of our church in North Carolina have been due more to the efforts of Rev. J. F. McCulloch than any other one man, perhaps any dozen of us. The older men and younger men at that conference looked upon this young man as a Moses to lead us to higher ground. It has been accomplished.

I want to thank Dr. P. E. Lindley for pointing out "What's Right With the Church." I think we are too prone to emphasize the imperfections and are continually gouging and tearing off the scabs of old sores. What's right with the church? There is nothing wrong with the church of God! Hypocrites, woremongers, liars, thieves may get into the visible church on earth, but they will never know the true church of God. There is nothing wrong with the true church of God. It has the finest brotherhood and fellowship in all the world. I know there are trials, sorrows, temptations, but above all these things there is a Christ, the Son of the living God, a crucified, not dead, but a living Christ who stands in the door of the church with outstretched arms of bleeding mercy, saying, "Come unto me all that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." If there has been anyone that has waded deeper the rivers of trial, trouble, sorrows and difficulties, I know him not, yet in all He has brought me safely. As I have walked with Him for more than 58 years I have found His grace sufficient in all circumstances and His loving fellowship supreme. I am not tired but slightly weary. As I pass the downward slope of time, toward the sunset of life's way, I am day by day packing my grip with heavenly wares to meet my Savior face to face and to rest with Him on that eternal shore.

I am now taking my vacation which my good people voted to give me. I have been silent now for some time. We have such a good reporter I have trusted her to tell you about our church activities. Our silence does not mean that we have not been busy. Our 72 years young George Hilton is still active and always on time and at his post. I would that we had more men and women who love the church and never get old.

Our third quarterly conference found Bro. J. E. Veach duely elected delegate to represent Pleasant Grove in the Annual Conference this fall.

The end of the conference year is almost here and lots to be done. Greetings to all the Herald readers. H. L. POWELL.

West End, Greensboro.—Owing to the fact that I have a couple of other jobs besides that of reporter, and have been very busy at both in the past few weeks, I have not sent in any information from West End. That does not mean that we are dead by any means.

Our attendance in both Sunday school and church services dropped off, of course, during the paralysis scare, but we have put forward some plans to remedy that, and were very gratified to see a good increase in number present last Sunday. A visitation was held on Sunday afternoon, and a number of our church people were called upon who have not been to church for various reasons. We are hoping for good results from this.

Dr. and Mrs. Bethea were home again after a vacation in western North Carolina. Special services were conducted by our pastor during his stay in Asheville for Mr. Minnis.

The Auxiliary met Monday evening at the church, and reports showed that the circles have been working hard for the last month raising their apportionment for anniversary day. They have not been idle along other lines, however, as the social service report was splendid also.

Extensive plans are being made for anniversary day and we are hoping all our friends and former members will worship with us and take part in our celebration. Dinner will be served at the church and members are requested to bring picnic lunch for themselves and their guests. Programs will be available on Sunday for those wishing to mail any out.

The Young People's Choir went to Flat Rock church last Sunday afternoon and rendered a program of songs and anthems. After the singing they enjoyed a watermelon feast with their hosts.

We congratulate Mr. and Mrs. Fuquay, of Guilford College, on the birth of a son, David Siler; also Mr. and Mrs. M. K. Hall, of Elwell Avenue, who have a new baby girl, Wanda Odessa. These names have already been given to our Cradle Roll department.

MILDRED STAPLETON, Reporter.

Asheboro.—Although the reporter has not reported for a while, there have been items from Asheboro at different times.

The regular services of our church have been held through the summer months. Attendance at Sunday school, of course, has been low, but now for a few Sundays it has been much better, since the children are back. Last Sunday there were 275 present and an offering of $9.55. Dr. Taylor always brings us deep spiritual messages. The first Sunday his message was from Acts 3:6: "Such as I have I give." Last Sunday morning it was a continuation of the same subject. He dealt primarily with moral qualities, not our temporal substance.

He said we may withhold our money and our time but we cannot help from giving of our moral qualities; they will be influencing for good or bad, as they are given out.

The attendance at night services is not what it could be. We are hoping these may be taken more seriously, and assist our pastor and others by being present. The messages are of the best and the singing is familiar songs, so that all may take a part.

On the third Sunday evening, August 18, Mrs. Mabel Williams Russell, who was with the Children's Home at its opening in Denton, was with us and gave a very interesting history of the Home from the beginning to now. The birthday offering was taken for the Home in this service.

On Sunday, August 25, our church and others heard two visiting ministers. Dr. G. I. Humphreys, president of High Point College, preached to a large congregation at the morning service, and the evening service was in charge of Dr. R. S. Truesdale, pastor of the First M. E. church of Asheboro, who preached a second excellent sermon of the day. These ministers filled the pulpit for Dr.

Taylor, who was in Virginia assisting Rev. Wm. H. Neese in revival services.

Our pastor announced Rally Day for the fourth Sunday in this month. A "get-together" for our church was announced for Friday night, September 20. An attendance, entertainment, and other committees have been appointed. The Woman's Auxiliary will serve refreshments. All are earnestly requested to be present and enjoy the evening.

We have been pleased to have Mrs. Wm. C. Hammer in our morning services for the last two Sundays. We were also glad to have Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hunter and little girl worship with us last Sunday. They are from Wilmington and were guests of Mrs. Hunter's brother, Rev. N. M. Harrison, and family.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Hendricks and son, James, are now occupying their new home in Graystone Terrace, next door to our parsonage.

Mr. C. J. Burrows, who is now living in Central Falls, is building a home in this new development and we are glad he will soon be moving his family back here.

We wish success to the Herald and the editor. REPORTER.

Stallings, Mecklenburg Charge.—We had our protracted meeting in August. Bro. E. A. Bingham, brother of the pastor, was the pulpit help. He brought us wonderful messages each service. We had a real good meeting. The church was greatly revived. We had four additions to the church. We certainly were glad to have Bro. Bingham with us. Bro. Bingham, come back to see us again.

Our pastor filled his regular appointment yesterday morning. His subject was, "We Preach Christ Crucified." He brought us a good message.

Our Ladies' Aid is doing fine. We have the debt paid off and we are expecting to have our dedication service the fifth Sunday of this month. We hope all our former pastors can be with us at this service.

Our Sunday school is doing fine, we are having good attendance.

Our Christian Endeavor Society meets each Sunday evening. Our young people are doing splendid work.

Christian readers, pray for us that we may continue to do good work.

MRS. M. L. STALLINGS.

Winston-Salem, First Church.—What is the difference between a church and a bear? Give it up? Well, a bear goes to sleep in the winter time and a church goes to sleep in the summer time. Leastwise, that's about what has happened to us over here at Winston. But I think we are about to wake up. A glance at the schedule for the last week or two would indicate that there is a good deal going on in the way of picnics, circle and auxiliary meetings, and so forth.

Attendance at the unified service yesterday was the best in several weeks. Sunday school attendance was about on a par with the same date last year. Not many slipped out, and some more slipped in; so we had a good many present for the worship part of the morning service. Tonight, the Business Girls' Circle meets with Miss Pauline Branson. At the same time the Philathea Class is meeting with Mrs. T. C. Millaway; Tuesday afternoon the Auxiliary meets at the parsonage. Wednesday afternoon the Junior Choir is meeting for a picnic and reorganization at Washington Park. Thursday night the Workers' Council will meet for supper and business. Sunday our revival will begin. And, if you will accept the judgment of this preacher, that's some signs of life.

I haven't had time to hear from the brethren, but we are inviting all the former pastors who are within reach to come over into Macedonia and help us next week. There are enough of them so that each may have a night. If they'll come, we believe it will add much to the interest and effectiveness of the meeting.

The Auxiliary is planning something new for them—a booth at the Forsyth County Fair, which will be held the week of October 7. They are hoping to make enough in the one week to do away with the necessity of having so many suppers throughout the remainder of the Branch year. They are pretty well up with their finances, but there are not many ways of making money open to them, unless they do undertake something of this sort. We wish them all possible success—fair days, and good profits.

C. W. BATES, Pastor.

Clark's Chapel, Weaverville Charge.—We have been having the average attendance in our Sunday school and other services this summer in spite of sickness and other hindrances. We also are keeping up our monthly offering to the Children's Home at High Point.

At the Eller reunion which was held at Clark's Chapel on August 18 an offering was taken of something over $4 which also went to the M. P. Children's Home.

We had Dr. N. G. Bethea to speak to us that day and he gave us one of the most inspiring messages I have ever heard.

The revival meeting which began at our church on August 18 closed on August 25 in order for the meeting to begin at Mt. Zion on that day. We feel that we were indeed fortunate to have Rev. C. B. Way, of Stokesdale, to assist our pastor, Rev. W. L. Harkey, in the meeting.

We had good attendance, and feel that the church was greatly blessed by these services. We were so glad to have Rev. and Mrs. Way with us, and hope they can be with us again.

The Ladies' Aid of Clark's Chapel will hold their monthly meeting at the church on next Wednesday, September 11. We are gratified at the interest and co-operation the women have shown in this work.

Flat Rock Charge.—Our services at Gideon's Grove and Flat Rock churches last Sunday were well attended. Immediately after the service at Gideon's Grove Sunday morning the pastor and family went to the home of Miss Blanche Robinson, of Flat Rock church, where we enjoyed a good dinner and a very pleasant visit. Mr. and Mrs. Herman Murphy reside with Miss Robinson, and they assisted in providing for our entertainment in the home. Bro. Murphy is a member of Flat Rock church, while Mrs. Murphy is a member of the Moravian church at Mayodan, her former home. Before leaving the home, Miss Robinson gave the pastor's wife a year's subscription to the Methodist Protestant Herald. We welcome Miss Robinson into the big family of Herald readers and trust that other Methodist Protestants will follow her example.

Funeral services were held at Flat Rock church last Sunday afternoon for William A. Troxler, aged 63, who passed away in St. Leo's Hospital, Greensboro, last Saturday morning. The pastor conducted the services in the presence of a congregation which completely filled the auditorium and Sunday school rooms of the church. The deceased was never married, and is survived by two brothers, S. H. Troxler, who is a member of Flat Rock church, and J. M. Troxler, of Rockingham county.

We were delighted to have the choir of West End Methodist Protestant church, Greensboro, with us at the afternoon service at Flat Rock church last Sunday. There were 21 members, including the director, Mr. Foust. They rendered several inspiring selections during the service. We were glad to have also a choir from Mt. Zion Baptist church, Winston-Salem, which rendered three selections during the service. A quartet of the West End choir delighted the congregation with two selections just before the close of the service. We trust that these singers will come again, for we thoroughly enjoyed their singing.

Since the return of the pastor and family to the parsonage after an absence of two weeks, we have been remembered with gifts from members of Gideon's Grove and Palestine churches. We express our thanks to the following: Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Lemmons, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Friddle, Mr. and Mrs. B. R. Angel, of Gideon's Grove church, and Miss Glenola Walker, of Palestine church.

Our services for next Sunday will be at Palestine church at 11 a. m. and at Bethel church at 3 p. m. C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Rehoboth, Creswell Circuit.—We are moving on nicely here. Our pastor, Rev. L. E. Mabry, gave us an excellent sermon Sunday morning from 2nd Tim. 2nd chapter, 15th verse: "Study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." I can't tell you of all the splendid things he said. He stressed the importance of work, but the right kind of work, so when we were through with this life, our work would stand approved, nothing to be ashamed of. Our congregation was the largest we have had in some time.

Mr. and Mrs. V. L. Everett have returned to Norfolk after spending two weeks here. We missed them from Sunday school.

Mrs. John Clayton, Portsmouth, and Miss Nell Tarkington, Charleston, visited relatives here recently and have returned home. We greatly sympathize with our Creswell sister, Mrs. Bettie Davenport, in the loss of her daughter, Mrs. Hardee. She was a lovely woman. Only God can sustain the grieved family in this great loss.

Gibsonville, Fountain Place.—Gibsonville church has held its third quarterly conference. Finances in very good condition, with pastor's salary about up to date. This church has made a very good financial record this year as the records will show at the Annual Conference. Mr. D. M. Davidson was made delegate to the Annual Conference. The Sunday school is increasing every Sunday and no doubt will soon be back to normal.

Children's Home birthday offering has been made and no doubt sent in by this time. Dr. R. M. Andrews was with us the fourth Sunday night in August and his message was highly spoken of. The church voted the pastor a two months' vacation; however, he only used about ten days for that purpose. These are a very kind and considerate people and we are often being made happy by their thoughtfulness.

Our revival meeting will begin here next Sunday at 11 o'clock. The pastor will be assisted by Mr. T. E. Staugh, principal of the high school, who will direct the singing. One of our beloved members, Mr. J. W. B. Paylor, passed from this life September 4. An obituary will be sent in soon.

A revival began at Fountain Place Sunday with a fair sized congregation as prospects for a good meeting. Rev. Clifford Peace, a young minister of the M. E. church, South, and a graduate of High Point College, is the help. Mr. H. M. Scott is the delegate to the Annual Conference.

Finances at this church are somewhat behind in some departments, but it is because of the heavy burden of debt the church has been carrying. They are determined to do their utmost to show a good report at conference.

The Sunday school is not large, but we have some fine teachers and a very constructive work is being done. The birthday offering was taken Sunday and I think will amount to several hundred years.

R. C. STUBBINS.

Mt. Lebanon, Randleman.—Our annual revival began Sunday, August 18, and continued for two weeks. Dr. S. W. Taylor, of Asheboro, and Rev. A. D. Shelton, of Greensboro, helped our pastor and we had a good revival. The church was inspired and given a new vision of the needs of ourselves and we are determined to try to be a blessing to the 12 converts who were received into our church on the first Sunday in September. We as a church feel that it was a great privilege to have these two great men with us. And we appreciate the interest and co-operation of the M. E. and Baptist people of the community.

Our pastor, Rev. J. B. Trogdon, worked under a great handicap during the meeting, as his daughter, Mrs. Joe Delk, has been seriously ill in Randolph Hospital and has been given several blood transfusions, but at last report she was considered somewhat improved. Let us all unite our prayers in behalf of this dear sister that she may soon be restored to health and to her family.

Fairfield, Guilford Charge.—Our pastor, Rev. T. A. Williams, has reported twice this year that his reporters were asleep. Too bad, but the nap was not quite as long as Rip Van Winkle's. I'm awake!

Our revival meeting began the first Sunday and closed last Friday night. Rev. C. E. Ridge was our pulpit help. His sermons were very, very helpful to everyone. He presented gospel truths in a forceful manner and his illustrations made the audience understand the truths that he presented. The attendance was not so good because of the rain, but services were held just the same and the results of our revival were very good as it revived the spirit of the church and five young people accepted Christ as their personal Savior.

We were sorry that our meeting had to close so soon, but Mr. Ridge had to help in another meeting this week and Mr. Williams was starting a revival at Vickery church Sunday. It was a pleasure to have Mr. Ridge with us and we enjoyed his association. We will be glad to have him visit in our church and in our homes at any time.

Our pastor has been sick for quite a while but is improving some now. We are glad that he is able to fill his appointments and be with us again. We hope that he will keep improving so that he will be able to be with us again next year.

While he was sick some very capable men from High Point College filled his appointments. They brought us very interesting and inspiring messages which we greatly enjoyed. We want to express our gratitude and appreciation to these men for their kindness and helpfulness to Mr. Williams and to us during his illness.

We have collected 500 coupons for the Children's Home. Our Children's Home birthday collection amounted to $16. We now have 24 one-half gallon cans of fruit and vegetables to deliver to the Home.

Our Sunday school attendance is gradually increasing. May we ask the prayers of all the churches that we may make greater accomplishments and strive to do our very best for our Master.

Liberty.—The revival meeting at Hickory Grove church on this charge is in progress now. Rev. J. R. Hutton is the visiting minister. Consequently Rev. Mr. Hutton brought the message at the Liberty church at the evening worship hour. We were exceedingly glad to have him with us. He was our beloved pastor years ago on the Liberty charge.

We will have prayer meeting Wednesdav night as usual. These prayer meetings are a real benediction.

Mrs. F. A. Shepard was hostess to Circle No. 2 of the Woman's Auxiliary at her home on Wednesday at 3:30. Bertine Shepard was a guest. Mrs. C. E. Frazier was hostess to Circle No. 1 at her home at the same hour.

The Auxiliary will meet in the church Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. Wade Hardin, president, presiding.

Paul Shepard Hardin left yesterday to enter his sophomore year at Wake Forest College. A large number of our young people will be leaving soon for various colleges.

Dr. J. F. Amick, of Marion, Ind., and Miss Joy Amick, registered nurse of Milwaukee, Wis., were recent visitors in the home of Mrs. F. A. Shepard.

Mrs. Wade Hardin was hostess to the Book Club Thursday. Miss Bertine Shepard was a guest.

The shrubbery around our church was pruned last spring and now it is wonderfully beautiful.

We are thankful for men and women who maintain a steadfast fidelity to their church and homes. They do a great work for God and humanity.

Asheville.—Our Sunday school superintendent, Miss Frances S. Cunningham, was back on the job on Sunday, and we were all mighty pleased to have her back again. We do hope she is going to be better now and able to do the things she wishes to do. Our attendance was much better for Sunday school on Sunday too, whether because Miss Cunningham was back, I do not know, but there was certainly a great increase in numbers over the Sunday previous. Perhaps you brought them back, Miss Cunningham—keep it up!

The general church supper held last Wednesday evening was a great success, both financially and socially. All the members of the church co-operated beautifully. The two children to receive prizes for selling the greatest number of tickets were Jack Minnis, first, and Edna Moore, second. The weather was rainy, but there was a splendid crowd out in spite of the rain.

Circles of the Auxiliary met recently as per schedule, No. 2 with Mrs. C. C. McNeill on Thursday last, and No. 1 with Mrs. J. F. Minnis yesterday (Monday). Regular monthly meeting of the Auxiliary will be held at the home of Mrs. J. S. Williams next Thursday, September 19. All members are urged to be present.

We welcomed into our church membership on Sunday last the following: Mrs. J. W. Gentry, Jack Bolick and Jack Minnis. We are grateful for these members, and pray they may profit by their joining with us.

Third quarterly conference is to be held at the church this Wednesday evening. All official members are earnestly urged to be present.

Mrs. L. M. Joyner has returned to her home after an extended visit to friends in and around Winston-Salem. She is not feeling up to par, however, and we are sorry, but trust she will soon be O. K. again. Mrs. Robey Wilson was ill on Sunday, which prevented her attendance at Sunday school. We missed her.

Miss Louise Hanner left during the past week for Bartow, Ga., where she is teaching and doing library work. We miss Louise a lot, she has been teaching a class regularly, so we are now hunting for another teacher. Any volunteers?

Lebanon Church, High Point.—We enjoyed a good sermon by our pastor, Rev. J. M. Morgan, Sunday morning, and another good sermon at night by Rev. T. G. Madison, pastor of Thomasville First church. Rev. Mr. Morgan is helping in a special meeting in Thomasville, hence the exchange of pastors for the night service.

The Senior C. E. Society in a very impressive installation service Sunday evening inducted the following members into office: President, Herman Yokeley; vice president, Mildred Hutchins; secretary-treasurer, Lois Yokeley; program committee, Juanita Hayworth; social committee, Anna Boles; Sunshine committee, Jewell Welch; publicity committee, Helen Readdick; church council, Iris Welch, Herman Yokeley; treasurer, Ida Lambert.

On Tuesday night of this week the Ladies' Aid is having a glass shower in the hut for the purpose of supplying the hut's needs in glassware.

Some good friend, who wishes to be too modest for publicity (called an unknown friend), has offered to put $1 into the treasury each time the ladies raise $4 for the purpose of buying dishes for the hut. We wish to express most hearty thanks for this kindness. Blessings on this cheerful giver.

The new song books for Sunday school have been received and we are highly pleased with them. Now to learn some new songs. There will be congregational singing on Thursday evening of this week at 7:30 in the church. Everybody "who hath music in his soul" is invited to sing.

Our Sunday school superintendent, Mr. C. A. King, and family spent a few days in Wilmington through this weekend. In his absence Mr. J. W. Montgomery served as Sunday school superintendent.

In Sunday school Misses Shirley Welborn, Florence Bryant, Iris and Gene Thacker sang a quartet, "Beautiful Garden of Prayer." Frank Thacker sang "Praise Him! Praise Him!"

Mr. W. F. Easter has moved his family here from Burlington. We are pleased to have them worship with us again.

Miss Charlotte Hammer, daughter of Mr. V. P. Hammer, leaves this Tuesday to enter Greensboro College. This is her senior year.

Mr. Delos E. Hammer has returned to Washington, D. C., after visiting relatives in the community.

Mrs. D. C. Montgomery has returned to her home on North Main street from Wesley Long Hospital, Greensboro, where she underwent treatment last week. REPORTER.

Mt. Hermon Charge.—Mt. Hermon charge has been moving along during the year if the pastor has not written to the Herald for some time. There have been so many things to keep us going that there has been no time for writing.

Beginning with the meeting at Cedar Cliff in July and closing with the meeting at Bellement the last week in August, we have held four meetings on the charge. The pulpit help for each church was: Cedar Cliff, Rev. W. M. Howard; Mt. Hermon, Dr. Geo. R. Brown; Friendship, Rev. J. L. Trollinger, and Bellemont, Rev. J. W. Braxton. All of these men did some very splendid preaching. We feel that all of the churches have been greatly helped by these meetings, even though we have very few visible results to report.

The financial part of our program has been behind, but we are beginning to move up with it now. We have paid the following items in full at all of the churches: High Point College, Annual Conference expenses, Superannuates. We hope to pay off the Annual Conference items during this month. That will give us a month to finish up local items and World Service. If nothing happens to destroy our plans, we expect to pay up 100 per cent.

The parsonage has been greatly improved during the year. It was rented for the first six months of the year while the pastor was completing his school work at Duke University. The money received for the rent was used to finish the upstairs of the building. Just before we moved into the building a new floor was put down in two rooms and the hall downstairs. This improvement has greatly improved the comfort and appearance of the building. A phone will be installed very soon and there is a possibility that we may get lights sometime soon. Dr. Brown reports that Reidsville is getting a new parsonage. I would like to report that Mt. Hermon charge will have a parsonage as good as new when these improvements are completed.

There is to be a young people's meeting for the entire charge at Mt. Hermon the third Sunday night at 7:30. Rev. J. Elwood Carroll, a former pastor, is to make the address. His subject is "Christian Youth Building a New Person." We expect to have electric lights for the first time at the church that night. There will be two new Sunday school rooms that we will use for the first time that day.

Miss Carrie Nicholson, from Bellemont, is delegate to Annual Conference this year.

George W. Holmes III is becoming a real orator. On June 24 he won in the state contest of the Future Farmers of America. Last week he won second place in the Regional Future Farmers of America speaking contest held at Memphis. His subject was "Rural Electrification in North Carolina." George is going to High Point College this fall. We are expecting him to make a record there as a speaker and debater.

The people are very considerate of the needs of the pastor. Many friends have remembered us with personal gifts of vegetables, fruits, and other things. The people at Friendship decided that they would do some collective giving. They came to the parsonage on Tuesday night, July 30, to find the preacher and his wife away from home. They soon got on our trail and told us to come home as soon as we could get there, as it was necessary to hold an important meeting on an important matter that night. We were soon at home. It looked like the meeting would take the form of a wedding or something of the kind from the large crowd we saw standing around in the yard. As soon as the house was opened up, we learned what the mission was at the parsonage that night. It was a pounding. A big one, too. Among the items we found such things as flour, canned goods, fruits and vegetables, honey and over 60 pounds of sugar, along with other things too numerous to mention. Soon after we moved into the parsonage in June, we returned one afternoon to find a box full of presents left by the young girls' Sunday school class at Bellemont. In this box we found dishes, cooking utensils, towels, etc. We remember with pleasure the surprise that the people at Salem on Saxapahaw charge gave us on the closing night of the meeting there. Mrs. Whitehead joins me in saying thank you to all who have remembered us in these various ways. T. J. WHITEHEAD.

◆

Liberty Hill, Anderson Charge.—Yesterday was our regular preaching day. Our pastor, Rev. J. R. Short, brought us two very impressive messages. Sunday night he preached on the end of the wrong way—hell! Hell, that awful place which is worse than we can imagine. But we are glad there is a place more wonderful than we can imagine that God has prepared for us if we live true to Him. But it makes our hearts sad to think how many are coming to the end of the wrong way every day.

We were glad to have Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Stout and sons back with us Sunday night. It has been some time since they have been with us.

Since our last report we have got electric lights in our church. We are so proud of them.

Miss Emma Lee Poole, formerly of here but more recently of Greenville, and Mr. Henry Furches, of Winston-Salem, were married in Greenville last Saturday afternoon at the St. Paul Methodist church. Miss Poole tauhgt school in this vicinity for two years and was president of the Christian Endeavor Society here at the same time. Both Mr. and Mrs. Furches are graduates of High Point College. She has many friends from here who wish them both much happiness.

Our Christian Endeavor is still moving along nicely, but we aren't satisfied yet, for there's always room for improvement.

We ask that you remember us each Wednesday night in our prayer services, that we may serve God more and grow closer to Him each day and be shining lights for the kingdom of God.

Best wishes to the Herald and its readers.

Spring Hill, North Davidson Charge.—Much interest is being shown in the Sunday school from Sunday to Sunday as the Young Ladies' and Young Men's classes are holding a campaign to see which class can bring in the most new members and visitors. This campaign was started in July and will continue throughout the month. The losing team will entertain the winners. Now it looks as if the girls will have to entertain the boys. We are expecting Mount Pleasant's entire Sunday school to visit us Sunday.

Christian Endeavor was held Sunday evening with Clyde Swaim as leader. "Profanity" was the topic for the evening. Friends from Rankin Memorial church were with us at this time. Miss Kathleen Embler, from that church, made a talk and invited us to join the city union. It is hoped that our society will join in the near future.

The Ladies' Aid Society met with Miss Bessie Swaim Saturday afternoon and decided to have a lawn supper on the church property Saturday evening, September 14. Chicken pie and ice cream will be offered for sale. The public has a cordial invitation to attend.

Pensacola.—The first Sunday our Sunday school went on a picnic to Mt. Mitchell state game refuge which is about 35 miles from here. We enjoyed seeing the bears, deer, wildcats, raccoons, pheasants, squirrels and fish. We had a real nice day together. We all carried a picnic lunch and then the adult members provided plenty of watermelons and ice cream for everyone. Several pictures of the group were made. We hope to go again sometime. It is so pretty back in the mountains there where the game refuge is situated.

Rev. J. O. Fry filled his regular appointment the fourth Sunday in last month.

Mesdames Emma Hensley, C. W. Robertson, Mr. M. H. Blankenship and your writer have recently renewed their subscriptions to the Herald. I enjoy reading the Herald very much. I have read every page of every issue for several months. I make it a habit to read the church paper and I am sure it keeps me better informed about our work.

So far as subscriptions are concerned there is not much to rave over this week. The relative standing of the charges in the column of honor is the same as last week. Rev. G. L. Curry heads the list of payments, although Calvary turns in the same amount of money. The only difference is that Calvary's is divided into two parts. Outside of these two charges, no charge turns in more than one subscription. But there are several that do turn in one. If we had enough like these we would get along splendidly. So from this we get a suggestion which we are passing on to pastors and Herald agents. It is this: From now until conference let each church try to send in AT LEAST ONE SUBSCRIPTION each week. If we could do this for a few weeks our bank balance would climb. Suppose you try it. It does seem that almost any church ought to be able to find one subscription each week for eight weeks. Of course this does not mean that you are not to send in more than one in case you can do so. But what we want is to get everybody to working again. On some charges we have not had a subscription in so long we can hardly remember the name of the pastor or the Herald agent. There are subscriptions expiring almost every week and we cannot hear from anybody. What a pity!

While we do not have much to rave over so far as subscriptions are concerned, we do have something worthwhile in the matter of subsidy. Did you see what a check Mr. Allen, the treasurer of the Annual Conference, sent us? It looks more like a million than two hundred dollars. Talk about life savers, this was one. But do not let churches trust in that. It will not last long without the assistance of others. But with a normal weekly list this will last us a long time. Let the churches send in subsidy and the agents subscriptions, and we will be in a good frame of mind.

The receipts this week amount to $226.50, $26.50 of this being on subscriptions and $200.00 on subsidy.

Training for Service

Now that the public schools and the colleges are opening and seminary will be opening soon, it might be well for us to think about training for service. Some of the choice young people of our denomination are going off to school, some for the first time and others to continue the work which they did last year. For those who have gone for the first time we have some sympathy. We not only have sympathy for them but for the parents as well. To many of these young people it means leaving home for the first time. Some of them have never stayed away from home many days before. Their going away means a complete readjustment of their living and their thinking. At home they had somebody to look after them very carefully, but now that they have gone out from home they will have to look out for themselves. Many parents are going to be somewhat sad until they can adjust themselves to the idea of getting along at home without the young people. There is always a peculiar sadness to us for parents to be left alone at home, whether the children go off to college or go out in the world to work for themselves.

But we want to think now about these young people who have gone off to school to prepare themselves for life's work. With many young people there is a thrill about this that comes before the work is really started that somewhat disappears after the grind begins. So many young people are very anxious to get their preparation and to get to work. After the preparation is started and the young people themselves can see so little accomplished from day to day, there is a tendency to become discouraged. Here is where the young people must fight if they would win. To ward off discouragement is just about as hard a job as anyone ever tried. But it must be done. No young person can do his best who is discouraged and is wanting to go home all the time.

Another thing which the young man or the young woman must guard against is the disappointment that sometimes comes when the people back home, the neighbors and friends, do not seem to urge on the young people who are in training as they might be expected to do. Many of these people are busy making money and it may not appear to them that it is so important for young people to go off to school. Others, perhaps, may not even know that the young people are away. In our own experience we can remember how disappointed we were when we returned home from school for the first time and went to the old home church on Sunday of the revival meeting and when we shook hands with folks so vigorously and seemed so glad to see them, some of them said, ''Have you been away?'' We thought the world knew it but were mistaken.

But there is another side to this question that quite frequently is embarrassing to the young people when they do come home, and that is, people expect them to be ready for work too soon. As we have already said, this thing of getting an education is a slow and tedious process. It cannot be accomplished in a day or a year. On one occasion a young man went away to school to study for the ministry and after about three months went home on a visit. The people wanted him to preach and when he told them he was not yet ready to preach they said, ''What, been away at school for three months and cannot preach yet?'' While we believe that every opportunity ought to be used for learning to preach, we do know that a young man shows good sense in not preaching when he is not prepared to preach. It would be good experience for him to make a talk in the prayer meeting or in Christian Endeavor or do some other work that he is capable of doing, but to try to preach when he is not prepared will likely do the young man more harm than good. Church people should be very patient with young people who are preparing themselves for their life's work. They should not expect too much of them at the first but should have an abiding interest in them and do everything possible to encourage them. It is a great honor for a church to have somebody in school preparing for the ministry or preparing to be a missionary or any other kind of religious work. It is a right good sign that there is some religion in a church that can be sending out young people to prepare to do the same kind of work which the older ones have been doing. Some churches quite frequently send out some one and other churches seldom ever send one out. What does it mean for a church to have a student in training? It means that during the lifetime of the one who is being trained, the praises of the old home church will be sung. When the young minister begins to preach he will refer frequently by way of illustration to something that took place back yonder at the old home church. The people who have helped the young man will be held up as examples of what men and women can do. Those who have spoken kind words will be quoted from the pulpit time and time again. And when the minister goes back to the home church and walks amid the graves of those who have been his friends he will tread lightly the sacred soil and he will stand many times with bowed and bared head beside the grave of some former friend and will thank God that this man ever lived. What we have said about the minister will be equally true of the missionary and the church worker in general. The local church should pray for the success of any one who wants to undertake any work for Christ and the church.

"THE POWER OF UNITED ACTION"

Christian Endeavor Topic for Sunday, Sept. 29, 1935

By REV. AUBERT M. SMITH

WORSHIP SERVICE

Prelude: "America the Beautiful." (If possible, use other instruments to assist the pianist.)

Hymn: "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name."

Silent Meditation. (All heads bowed for a moment, leader closes this with a prayer. Try to make the prayer appropriate.)

Scripture: Neh. 4:1-15. (To be read by an Endeavorer other than leader.)

Hymn: "Faith of Our Fathers."

Leader's Talk.

Special Music.

Discussion. Use one of the following questions for a debate: "That the Unity for Which Christ Prayed Is Spiritual Rather Than Ecclesiastical in Nature"; "That Division Constitutes the Church's Greatest Hindrance to Reaching the World for Christ." (Be certain that the debaters are given time to prepare their material or speech.) Or you might call this a "Christian Unity Meeting" and invite other societies or groups to the meeting to take a part on the program—in the debate or through talks. Or you might have an "X-ray" meeting (for details see material at end of these notes). Divide the society into two sides (if possible, facing each other) and have two leading speakers on each side to make talks on "The Reasons for the Failure of the Church" (by first side) and "The Power of the Church Through United Action" (by second side). Give others an opportunity to express themselves in the discussion. At the end of the discussion have the members and visitors stand together in one group and sing closing hymn.

Hymn: "We've a Story to Tell to the Nations" or "Blest Be the Tie."

Benediction.

Suitable Hymns: "The Church by the Side of the Road," "The Church in the Wildwood," "Am I a Soldier of the Cross?" "If Jesus Goes With Me," "Whosoever Will," "Have Thine Own Way."

An "X-ray" Meeting:

Prepare a box in which an electric light is placed. The box should be at least twelve inches square on the open side. Have an outline picture of a church building drawn upon good, heavy, but clear, paper. Tack this over the open side of box, at the top and bottom of the picture, but not at sides. Have the light fixed so it can be turned on or off from without. Now prepare another paper about twice as long as the paper with the church picture, and just enough narrower that it will slide in back of the tacked paper. Now, on half of the long strip smear large spots of black ink. Name the spots "Divisions," "Quarrels," "Human Creeds," etc. On the other half paste good-sized picture of Christ.

That evening the box should be placed high enough so that all can see it easily. Place on side, with paper toward audience. Announce that you are going to X-ray the church for the purpose of finding why some approve of Christ, yet reject the church as an organization.

The second strip should be placed in position so that the spots are directly back of the church. Then turn on your light. The result will be startling, for all over the church will be ugly black spots. Leave the picture thus until all speakers have discussed the shortcomings of the church. Then, one by one, have the other half of your speakers prescribe the "cure," and, as they speak, move the strip of paper slowly until, when the last speaker has spoken, the picture of the Christ is in the center of the church. Close by saying that Christ must ever be in His church—that, as He has been removed, the church has lost her power, and, as He has been retained or restored to His rightful position, the church has increased in power and influence, and men have been brought to Him.

"JAMES: A GREAT CHRISTIAN LEADER"

The International Sunday School Lesson for September 22, 1935

By REV. J. ELWOOD CARROLL

Scripture Lesson—Acts 15:1-21; James 1:1-17.

Golden Text—"Blessed is the man that endureth temptation; for when he hath been approved, he shall receive the crown of life, which the Lord promised to them that love him." James 1:12.

James lived because of his own greatness. His greatness as a leader rested upon what he was and not upon his family tree. Though he and Jude were brothers to Jesus, they stood on their own characters for leadership in the Church. By ten years after Jesus' death, James was head of the great mother Church at Jerusalem.

Because of identical names we may confuse James with others. He is to be kept clear in our minds from the two disciples by that name—James the brother of John and son of Zebedee (Mark 1:19), and James the son of Alpheus (Mark 3:18). The James we study for today is a younger brother of Jesus and author of the epistle "James" (Galatians 1:18, 19).

Jesus and James had played together in the streets of Nazareth, worked side by side in Joseph's carpenter shop, yet how far apart!

> "You may grind their souls in the selfsame mill,
> You may bind them heart and brow;
> But the poet will chase the rainbow still,
> And his brother will follow the plough."

James was a hard-headed practical Christian by temperament. In his youth he looked upon his brother Jesus as an impractical dreamer, hence, like the rest of Joseph's family, "he did not believe on him" (Mark 6:3). He regarded Jesus as an idealistic dreamer, a religious enthusiast who "was beside himself" and whose untimely death fulfilled his fear that His zeal would lead to disaster. While Jesus was living, therefore, James gave him no support.

A tremendous change came in James' life after the death of Jesus. He, like many others, met Jesus! Paul in his summary of Jesus' appearances says, "Then he was seen of James" (I Corinthians 15:7). Henceforth he rises like a star out of the East to become by his works and writings a great leader of the Early Church.

The data for the subsequent career of James are taken from the Book of Acts and the writings of Paul. Within a decade after Pentecost he is the recognized head of the Jerusalem Church. His business was to preach, supervise the social service program, and preside over all council meetings held for the transaction of any business. His kinship of Jesus was a help to him, but certainly he possessed qualities of leadership, else he would not have held such an important position. Upon Paul's return from his voluntary exile in Arabia following his conversion on the Damascus road, he visited Jerusalem and called on Peter and James (Galatians 1:18, 19). On the occasion of his second visit to the mother Church, Paul reported the success of his ministry to the Gentiles to the leaders of the Church—James, Peter, and John—who gave him the right hand of Christian fellowship (Galaitans 2:9). In the fuller account of this visit as told in Acts, it is James, president of the council, who sums up the discussion about Paul's ministry, and proposes the lines of conciliation (15:4-29). James continued in this same office until after Paul's final visit to Jerusalem (Acts 21:18-26), and most likely until his death. Josephus, the Jewish historian, tells us that James was stoned in the year 62.

The greatness of James does not express itself in the enthusiasm and zeal of Paul, but in courageous, calculated living of the Christian virtues during turbulent times. There is little wonder that he then is no mystic, nor impractical dreamer. He is a hard-headed realist. His hard sense writings are fresh and practical words for hard times—words as appropriate today as the day first written.

The Epistle of James, despite the fact that Martin Luther called it an "Epistle of Straw," is one of the finest little books in the Bible. Luther considered it practically worthless because he understood it to oppose Paul's doctrine of salvation by faith. When "James" is rightly read, it becomes a fine commentary on the relationship of works to faith. In short, it is an exposition of why the saying of Jesus is true that there are those who will not be recognized even though they do say, "Lord, Lord." The book has much in tone and message in common with the Sermon on the Mount. This is so evident that some scholars have believed that James merely wrote down many sayings of Jesus which were not quoted by other writers. The more general view, however, is that James was writing his own sayings.

The Epistle is a series of eight great thoughts by which James lived and exhorted others to live. They are sermonettes, or sermon outlines. Here might be his sermon topics beginning immediately after the first verse: (1) "The Development of Patience Through Trials," 1:2-17; (2) "Hearing and Doing God's Word," 1:18-27; (3) "Christianity as an Inclusive Religion," 2:1-13; (4) "Salvation by Faith and Works," 2:14-26; (5) "Wisdom Controls the Christian Tongue," Ch. 3; (6) "My Sinful Self, My Only Shame," Ch. 4; (7) "God's Dealing With the Rich and Poor," 5:1-12; (8) "The Fellowship of the Church," 5:13-20.

There are memory gems in this Epistle which every Christian would profit by knowing, namely: 1:17, 22, 27; 3:9; 4:7b, 10, 17; and 5:16b.

McCULLOCH MEMORIAL FUND

(The list has gotten so long, and takes up so much space that perhaps can better be used for other things, we have decided to report the Honor Roll churches only as they reach that exalted position. The complete list will be printed in the Conference Journal.)

71. Bethel, Randolph.
72. Gray's Chapel, Randolph.
73. Julian.

Randolph County Comes to the Fore

Up where I came from counties don't count for much, except along about election time. But there are some counties here in North Carolina which have a good deal of pride, and whose citizens do a good deal of bragging. Sometimes the habit stays with them after they leave that particular county. Randolph is such an one. And I think the brethren down that way have a good deal to justify their bragging. Especially when it comes to paying on the McCulloch Memorial Fund. Here's Bethel and Gray's Chapel, on Randolph circuit, and Julian—which seems to be on the line if the map I have is any good—all on the Honor Roll this week. And, if reports are to be believed, some more of the Randolph churches are headed in that direction. (It's about time the editor of the HERALD, who hails from those parts, did a bit of raving. He has my permission.)

And the rest of you brethren—don't let Randolph beat you to it, or stay up there all by themselves. You do a bit of digging or climbing, or whatever it takes, so you can take your place in the sun.

The fund stands as follows:

Previously reported	$1,886.23
Hobbs Chapel, Greensville	5.46
Orange Chapel, Saxapahaw (additinal)	2.45
Bethel, Randolph (in full)	4.75
Gray's Chapel, Randolph (in full) ..	9.50
Julian, Tabernacle (in full)	19.00
Total to date	$1,927.39

Well, it's getting up toward the $2,000 mark. October 1 will mark the first anniversary of Dr. McCulloch's death. Let's make a desperate effort to reach the $2,500 mark by that date. If everybody will get busy, IT CAN BE DONE.

Mrs. H. L. Elderdice Passes

The Methodist Protestant Recorder last week recorded the passing of Mrs. H. L. Elderdice, the wife of Rev. H. L. Elderdice, D. D., president emeritus of the Westminster Theological Seminary, Westminster, Md. Both Mrs. Elderdice and her husband were greatly loved by all the North Carolinians who attended our seminary.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

Annual Conference Meets

At Henderson, November 6, at 10 a. m. Try to be ready for that day.

Conference Honor Rolls

We would like to set up the following not later than the first week in October:

The churches which have had a net increase in members this year;

Those which paid in full the accepted allotments for World Service;

Those which have paid A. C. budget, which means church extension, superannuates, A. C. debt, High Point College, and A. C. expenses.

Pastors, drop me a card when you read this and state which of these your churches or church is entitled to be on. If not all, then give the name of church and the claim paid in full. We can change this as we go along. It is important that we hear from you, Brother, if your people have won this recognition.

Herald Subsidy

Many charges have yet to raise this allotment, according to the back page in the HERALD. Dear pastor, this may be waiting for some word from you. Please try to get this assessment into the proper hands at once. The HERALD is needing the money and you should be glad to pay it, thus doing your part for the paper.

The McCulloch Memorial

Now that we are on the homestretch and some of our people have been waiting for this event, we are expecting to see a long list of churches which are yet to appear in the space edited by Dr. Bates. Raise this money and send it in, please, and let's discharge this moral obligation we are due the printers of the HERALD.

If All of Our People Were Like Some of Our People

Did you ever consider what sort of a church denomination we would have if all of our people were like some of the loyal, loving souls we have who are scattered over the territory occupied by us? Just think of them. Loyal to the limit. There is nothing they would withhold from the church because of the love they have for Christ. Their deeds are inspired by this love. What they do is done always with a joy because it is an act of love. Could this Gideon's band be increased a few fold there would not be a charge in the entire conference which would fail of the objectives set by the conference for it.

There would be hearty co-operation where everybody works and nobody shirks. Those out of office would be as zealous for good works as those in office. It would be their joy to see the work progress as much as if the responsibility of it all rested upon them. The old slogan of the sluggard, "Let George do it," would not be heard anywhere. I repeat, if all of our church members were like these, what a fine membership we would have.

And now since this would be so fine, let's see if we cannot improve the personnel of our membership a little by getting some life into the loafer. Let's try to get those who have acted as brakemen all these years to act as firemen. The old gospel car has been held back long enough. We need some who are willing to push her forward with that energy they have spent through the years in holding her back. So come along, friend, listen to St. Paul: "Forgetting those things which are behind and reaching forth unto those which are before, I press towards the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."

Since the work of organized Christianity is too great for one man, even though he be a Samson to do it, let's discard the Samson complex and try to develop the Gideon complex, every one following his leader. Of what service would Gideon have been if he had not known how to lead, and what a failure his undertaking would have been even though he knew how to lead, had his three hundred all wanted to try their own tactics in surprising the Midianites. There are far too many church members still carrying their lights in their pitchers and who have yet to blow their trumpet in attacking the enemy. They are sideline saints. They can tell those who lead how to lead; those who work how to do the best work; but they have yet to assume any responsibility for any share of the work themselves. But a Christian must invest his personality in co-operative service institutions if he is to save his soul.

Whitakers Church, Rev. E. O. Peeler, Pastor

I was at this church last Sunday. The occasion was the presentation of a bronze tablet to the church by the Auxiliary of the church in memory of a wonderful woman, Miss Mamie Johnston. Miss Johnston was one of the most faithful and efficient church workers I have known. She had been seated by the Burlington Annual Conference as delegate from Tar River circuit, the delegate being absent, the year I was admitted to the itineracy. And I became her pastor. I soon found that she was a worker of whom no pastor could be ashamed. She was superintendent of the Sunday school, and the only active steward of that church then. She remained active in the Sunday school and in the finances of the church until her death. But she was also active in the Woman's Auxiliary when it was organized, active in C. E. and everything else which a live church would attempt to do. Her services were greatly appreciated and as a token of such appreciation this tablet was presented last Sunday at the morning service by the Auxiliary. The reporter there will doubtless cover this event, so I forbear. It was a splendid service with a large congregation present. It was also my privilege to preach at the evening service. It is always a pleasure to me to return to this pastoral charge. I feel somehow that it is my home. I greatly appreciate the many whom I esteem as my very dear friends on Whitakers-Enfield pastoral charges.

Pastor Peeler has done a splendid work in the years he has served. Always active, he and his wife have greatly encouraged the people with their labors and put on good programs which are also appreciated. Many of the conference claims are already paid; all will be paid and Whitakers church has finished paying for their parsonage, I was informed. Hurrah for them.

Mrs. J. R. Hutton Claimed by Death

On Saturday night, September 14, Mrs. J. R. Hutton, the beloved wife of Rev. J. R. Hutton, passed away in the Clinic Hospital in Greensboro after a period of declining health for several months and an extreme illness of only a few days. Mrs. Hutton was sixty-five years old and had been married forty-seven years. The larger part of Mrs. Hutton's married life has been spent in Greensboro where she was held in high esteem. She is survived by her husband, who has been a member of the N. C. Annual Conference longer than any other man now in the active work, and by nine children, three daughters and six sons.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock from the residence at 813 Spring Garden street in Greensboro and were conducted by Rev. J. Elwood Carroll, the pastor of Grace church, assisted by Rev. W. F. Ashburn, one of our superannuated ministers, and by Rev. Murphy Williams, pastor of the Presbyterian Church of the Covenant, and the editor of the HERALD.

FEELING AND FAITH

There is an old saying of Samuel Rutherford's: "Believe God's love and power more than you believe your own feelings and experiences. Your Rock is Christ, and it is not the Rock which ebbs and flows, but your sea."

ANNUAL CONFERENCE VISITATION

By G. W. HADDAWAY

Our recent visit to the southwest, which took about two weeks and covered nearly 4,000 miles in travel, included attendance upon the Iowa-Missouri, Missouri, Kansas, Ohio, Indiana and West Virginia conferences, also a two days' visit to our work in Kansas City. We delivered two addresses and sermons almost daily to fine and interested audiences.

Dr. Shipley was our companion in travel until we were compelled to separate in order to meet all the conferences then in session. Three of them met on the same date, including Illinois, Kansas and Ohio.

The fine M. E. church building in Monett, Mo., was placed at the service of the Missouri Conference. They accepted the same for a union night service. The congregation packed the building, including the gallery. It was a gracious offer of our M. E. friends and met by a most hearty response by the Methodist Protestants.

The weather was the hottest we ever experienced, but we are at the office again feeling none the worse after such a strenuous trip.

All of the above named conferences were largely attended. A fine spirit prevailed in all of them. They were more hopeful than for some years past.

PINE RIDGE

For the past few years we have forgotten to send used clothing and any other articles that could be sold in a store to Pine Ridge. The new store may be completed and I hope the North Carolina Branch will come with their clothing for the new store. Mrs. M. D. Stout, of Grace church, is on the job and will send in a nice box this week. The sales from used clothing have reached $2,000 a year. The offering last year was so small I would not like to see it in print. Now all the eighty secretaries of stewardship and benevolences get to work and send in very substantial boxes.

Another thing that is just as important, arrange to have a class in stewardship taught in each Auxiliary the coming fall. Lovejoy's book is one of the best I ever used. Have not less than two periods in the study, i. e., an all-day session or on two consecutive evenings. Will be glad to help in any way I can. Any Auxiliary can meet with me for an all-day session in a study on stewardship.

DR. J. H. GLASCOCK,
Sec. of Stewardship and Benevolences.

Three Well-Known Women Pass

The passing of Mrs. H. L. Elderdice, of Westminster, Md., is a reminder that two other women of Westminster who were well known by the North Carolina students have passed on during the year. These were Mrs. S. Simpson, widow of Dr. S. Simpson who was at one time president of Yadkin College and who later moved to Westminster, and Mrs. T. H. Lewis, widow of Dr. Lewis who was president of Western Maryland College for thirty-four years and president of the General Conference for eight years. Surely heaven is richer because of these choice spirits who are going there these days.

OUR STORY PAGE

JIMMY'S JOURNEY

Jimmy was going with daddy and mother to visit Uncle Henry and Aunt Mary in California. It was his first long ride on the train. He liked to sit at the window and see the trees and houses flash by. He watched the people and looked at everything in the car. Mother told him they would sleep in the car, but he couldn't understand where.

Daddy played with him and mother told him stories. At home they were often too busy. He decided a train trip was very nice, indeed.

But after a time, Jimmy seemed to be tired of everything, so daddy took him for a walk through the train. Then mother gave him a new book. He didn't know she had it, so it was a nice surprise. Daddy read the stories to him and then mother read them; soon he could look at the pictures and tell them himself.

"Jimmy," said mother, "do you see that little boy over there I think he doesn't know what to do with himself, for he is teasing his little sister all the time. Suppose you ask him to come over here and see your new book."

"I'm not sure I want to. Maybe he would tease me."

Mother replied, "We will be very nice to him and I'm sure he will be nice to us."

"So you are Robert Burns," said Jimmy's mother after the little boy had told her his name.

"Yes, but I am not going to be a poet. I am going to be an admiral."

"That will be nice. Have you been traveling a long time?"

"Oh, yes, we have been on this train for days, and before that we were on the ship for a long time. But that was fine. That is where I met the admiral. We came from Scotland and are going to live with Uncle John in California. I'll be so glad when we get there."

"Look, Robert," said Jimmy, "there is a dog town."

"What do you mean by dog town?" asked the Scotch boy.

"Prairie dogs. See that one sitting up and barking at the train. There he goes down in his hole."

"Oh, there are lots of them," said Robert. "Are they really dogs? They look so small."

"No, they are not dogs," mother explained, "but are called dogs because they bark. We call it a town because so many live near together. They pretend to be brave, but hurry into a hole when anyone comes near."

"I like riding on the train with you," said Robert.

"What makes him talk so queerly?" Jimmy whispered to his mother when Robert left them for a while.

"Oh, that is because he has always lived in Scotland. Everyone speaks that way there. The way you talk sounds just as strange to him."

"Does it really, mother?"

"Yes, so don't say anything about it. You wouldn't want to hurt his feelings. You will soon learn to understand him."

At night, when they came back from the dressing room ready for bed, the car didn't seem the same at all, for the porter had made the beds and hung curtains all in front of them.

Jimmy was excited over such a strange place to sleep. He climbed into the upper berth with daddy but bumped his head, so mother took him down and tucked him in the lower berth next to the window. There were so many queer things to look at that Jimmy forgot all about being sleepy. He reached up and rapped above his head and daddy sent an answering rap, but then mother turned off the little light and said they must be quiet so other people could sleep.

In the morning a real old lady had the seat across from them. Jimmy talked to her and brought her a drink of water. It was hard for her to walk in the moving train, but Jimmy liked it. He laughed when a lurch of the car made him go where he didn't expect to.

During the long days on the train the two boys spent many happy hours together. Jimmy told about his home on the farm in Kansas and Robert told about his in Scotland and about the trip across the ocean on the big ship. He talked much about the admiral whom he met on the boat.

"When I am all grown up I am going back and find the admiral," he said.

When it came time to get off the train, Jimmy was really sorry to leave Robert.

"I am glad I asked Robert to come to our seat that first day," he told mother.

"Yes, he is a nice boy. He forgot to tease his sister when he had something else to do."

Then Jimmy and his father and mother said good-by to their friends on the train and got off to find Uncle Henry and Aunt Mary waiting for them.—Story World.

"YE MUST BE BORN AGAIN"

A colored man was carrying a salesman over a squally lake in his sail boat, when the salesman said, "Mose, you handle your boat so well, I wonder if you understand the philosophy of the wind."

The colored man replied, "No, sir, boss, I don't understan' de philosophy of de wind, I jus' knows how to hold de sails."

And this is true. We cannot understand the philosophy of the new birth, but, bless God, we know how to hold up the sail of faith and to catch the breath of the Spirit and God does the rest. "So is every one that is born of the Spirit" (John 3:6, 7).—Extracted in Scattered Seed.

DO YOU SUPPOSE?

"Do you suppose," said Johnny, as his little sister laid away her largest, rosiest apple for a sick girl, "that God cares about such little things as we do? He is too busy taking care of the big folks to notice us much."

Winnie shook her head and pointed to her mother, who had just lifted the baby from his crib.

"Do you think," said Winnie, "that mother is so busy with the big folks that she forgets the little ones? She thinks of the baby first, because he's the littlest. Surely God knows how to love us, too."—Our Little Ones.

EXECUTIVE MEETING NOTICE

The quarterly executive meeting of the N. C. Branch will be held at Weaverville on Thursday, October 3, 1935.

THANK-OFFERING BOXES

The thank-offering boxes and envelopes came last week and I am waiting for your orders. Let me know how many you want, and I shall be glad to send you a supply. The boxes and envelopes are very attractive. And they are free, as you know.

MRS. C. W. BATES.
906 Carolina Ave., Winston-Salem, N. C.

TO AUXILIARY PRESIDENTS, TO SECRETARIES OF LITERATURE, OR TO MISSIONARY RECORD AGENTS

I am hoping that "no news is good news" and that you are working hard to raise your quota of Record subscriptions, but judging from the notices I have received, it looks as if something is wrong. So far the honor roll is small. Our Branch year is about half gone; we have only six more months to do all the things we want to do before our next Branch meeting. Let me urge you to make your Record quota one of the things that you are going to accomplish this year.

Won't you who are not the official "taker" of subscriptions call your agent, telling her that you wish to subscribe? Remember this is your quota as well as the agent's. It is up to you whether you put your Auxiliary on this honor roll or whether it will be one that has failed.

I am appealing to all to come to the assistance of those who are giving us the splendid Missionary Record.

To date this is the honor roll:

1. Concord.
2. Tabernacle.
3. Danville.
4. Denton.
5. Reidsville.
6. Lineberry.
7. Bethesda (State Street).

Who will be the eighth?

Sec. of Lit.

TO THE SECRETARIES OF MISSIONARY EDUCATION

In planning for this year's work and what would be desirable of accomplishment in the realm of missionary education, we can not lay down a hard and fast rule for any Branch and Auxiliary. Conditions are different in every state. In some organizations the secretaries of auxiliaries need to be encouraged to lay the foundations of their educational program. In other organizations where the workers are more experienced, suggestions for a broadened program and new ideas can be easily adopted.

In this brief letter we cannot cover the full range of possibilities in this department, but the energetic, wide-awake secretaries of the Branches are already adopting suggestions received through the promotional agencies of the Woman's Convention, and are encouraging the local groups to use those which are best adapted to their needs.

As the promotional link between the denominational work and the local organization, the secretary of missionary education of the Auxiliary has responsibilities and opportunities sufficient to challenge the most consecrated woman.

In laying the general foondation for our work, let me refer you to the questions which constitute the Annual Report Blanks for this department. In these questions one will find certain things which have been set down as goals desirable for every local group. You will notice that the first three questions deal with the secretary of missionary education herself, her personal preparation and consecration to the work. The work in your Branch will depend greatly upon how these three questions can be answered.

There are two things I desire to stress at this time.

First: Better and more inspiring Auxiliary programs. (Refer to Report, questions number 7-10.) Adequate materials are available to every group, no matter how small or inexperienced; materials which will bring enlightening information. Interesting programs do not grow of themselves. They must be planned carefully and prayerfully carried out. Need I remind you that this requires consecration?

Second: The greatest need and the most vital issue in our whole program is involved in question number three of our report blank: "Do you co-operate with the Branch secretary of Young Peoples' Work in building a program of missionary education for the young people of your Branch? (Meaning the young people of the Sunday school, Christian Endeavor, and Mission Bands.) It would be well to enlarge that question to include the whole church life.

How many churches have missionary education of any type or character (other than an occasional play or pageant) outside of the Women's Missionary group?

Let us set up the ultimate goal in our churches that no age group be without an appropriate program of missionary education. This is not an impossibility, but like all good and desirable things, will not "just happen." It will require effort, tact, inspiration, and zeal. To begin such a program, I would make the following suggestions: Choose with care a missionary-minded woman, or a committee, to carry missionary education into the whole church life. The secretary of missionary education of the Auxiliary may be the logical person. Or a committee may be chosen composed of those who would represent other phases of church activity—the Sunday school, Men's Brotherhood, Christian Endeavor, etc. In the smaller churches we would recommend that the responsibility be placed in the hands of one person.

One may ask: "When shall we find time to include missionary education in our already crowded programs?" The simplest plan would be to promote it through the Sunday school, by having a definite period set aside to present missionary information. It may be ten minutes once a month. It may be three minutes each Sunday. It may be woven into the devotional period or given at the end of the Sunday school session.

One must then choose the project. We would suggest (unless the church has a missionary education program well advanced and is ready for international projects) information concerning our own Methodist Protestant missionary work as a basis for our educational program. We would also suggest for this year an intimate study, one by one, of our missionaries, both home and foreign. The following is a rough outline one could adopt, using one topic for each period:

1. Missionary's picture and story of his life.
2. Where he is working and type of work being carried on.
3. Personnel of people with whom he is working.
4. History of the country where he is working.
5. Life stories of native Christians.
6. Personal experiences of the missionary.

Other topics will suggest themselves as the project develops. Have pictures if possible in each period. Do not spend too much time on one person or project, for interest may lag. With a program of this kind, well conducted, our churches would at the end of the year be well informed about all our missionaries.

In the school which is too small to have separate age-group departments these periods can be conducted so as to interest every age.

Nothing can ever be accomplished without a beginning. We urge therefore that every Branch and Auxiliary secretary endeavor to put on such a program in every church of her Branch. It will be my pleasure to help in every way possible.—Missionary Record.

SUMMARY OF 1935 LEADERSHIP TRAINING SCHOOLS

Two thousand, nine hundred and seventy-one young people and church workers answered the challenge to train for leadership in 30 schools during the past summer. A steady growth of our schools during this quadrennium is revealed by the following statistics:

	1932	1933	1934	1935
No. Schools	20	24	29	30
Students	2,005	2,534	2,994	2,971

Returns to date show that about 300 instructors and administrative officials gave of their time in these schools without remuneration and that more than 1,000 signed Life Service Declaration cards and that the popular attendance will go beyond the 12,000 mark.

The five regional conventions which met preceding these schools brought toegther leaders and older young people from every conference except one in the denomination. About 1,000 of these came vitally in contact with these conventions, which means, as far as statistics are concerned, that about 4,000 young people and their leaders have actually studied ways and means of sharing in the building of a Christian world in 35 gatherings held during May, June, July and August.

These leaders and young people have returned to Methodist Protestant churches, and because of their training and a greater vision of Kingdom service, they should be wielding a mighty influence in every nook and corner of the Methodist Protestant church. Not only has the response been gratifying as far as numbers are concerned, but it is interesting to note that the curriculum has been greatly improved in our summer schools. For the first time we have used the First Series Courses of the New Leadership Training curriculum instead of the old denominational young people's units. Plans have been made to replace the present standard curriculum with the units of the Second Series.

It is also interesting to note that both the conventions and the sheools were financed from registration fees. This has been made possible through the splendid co-operation given to the Board of Christian Education by our 23 well-organized Conference Councils of Christian Education.

We have not received statistical reports from all of our schools, but the attendance at each school has been represented to us as follows (the schools are listed in order of their attendance):

Ohio (two weeks)	384
Maryland	275
Pittsburgh	217
Indiana	216
West Virginia	212
Onondaga	150
North Carolina	126
Illinois	123
Missouri	111
Michigan (Gull Lake)	90
Iowa-Missouri	88
Texas (Pike)	83
Louisiana	85
Mississippi	75
Kentucky	75
Georgia	66
Fort Smith-Oklahoma (Prague)	64
Eastern	58
Alabama	57
Michigan (Miller Lake)	56
Fort Smith-Oklahoma (Panama)	43
Arkansas (So.)	40
Kansas	40
Arkansas (No.)	29
Texas (Tehuacana)	28
Texhoma	26
Fort Smith-Oklahoma (N.E.)	14
Texas (W.)	13
South Carolina	11

We are indeed grateful for each one who shared in making both the conventions and schools such a success.

F. L. GIBBS,
Director of Leadership Training.

DR. LINDLEY TO SPEAK

Dr. P. E. Lindley, of High Point College, will deliver a series of addresses at Mt. Pleasant church, beginning next Sunday night. September 22, at 7:30. The general theme of these addresses is "Human Nature and the Church." There will be at least four addresses in the series, and the dates are September 22, 24, 26 and 29, at 7:30 p. m.

D. L. MOODY CENTENARY AND INSTITUTE JUBILEE

The years 1936 and 1937 hold special meaning for the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago, as marking the Institute Jubilee and the centenary of D. L. Moody's birth. The Jubilee, commemorating the 50th anniversary of the founding of the Institute, will be launched with the Founder's Week Conference, February 3 to 7, and anticipated by a special "Moody Day" on Sunday, February 2, observed by evangelical churches in all parts of the nation. A Campaign of Friendship will continue through all of 1936, and One-Day Bible Conferences will be a feature. Friends and not funds will be the moving objective of this year. At the opening of the fall term at the Institute in 1936, a great home-coming and Christian inspiration week will be promoted, visitors including notable missionaries and Bible teachers from far and near.

D. L. Moody was born at Northfield, Mass., on February 5, 1837. The year 1937 will be given to a celebration of that notable event, beginning with the Founder's Week Conference in February. Through the year Bible conferences and other gatherings will be held in churches and schools in metropolitan centers and elsewhere, stressing the great values for which Moody stood—evangelism and Bible study.

The promotion of the two-year celebration is in charge of a Centenary Committee at the Institute address, 153 Institute Place, Chicago, from which timely information may be had on request.

Let the Good Work Go On

This makes a bit over $200 received on anniversary gift during the week and brings the total to something over $2,600. That is fine and we hope the offerings will keep coming until every church has responded. But why not do it quickly? There are less than two months to conference, and other interests must be cared for. Whatever you have on birthday money send it along, and then pitch in and help round up other finances for the year. If all Sunday schools will send us good regular offerings for October, we are going to be in pretty good shape for conference. We wish we knew who the "Friend" in Statesville is. We would like to say thank you personally, but there was no name with the gift.

Clothing and Other Gifts

Various women's organizations are sending in clothing for girls, and Mrs. Dixon is answering personally. We greatly appreciate this help. Our boys must be clothed for the winter too, so we shall be glad to hear from men and men's organizations with help for our boys.

The Woman's Auxiliary, Graham, 3 shirts, 6 coats, 1 tam, 2 pair overalls, 5 waists, 1 pair pants, 6 pair shoes, and 4 dresses. Woman's Auxiliary, Maple Springs, 35 cans fruit and vegetables. The women of Fairfield, Guilford, 24 cans fruit and vegetables.

We are so glad to begin to get in canned fruit and vegetables so early. We are sure that many more of our good women are working and planning to get together lots of canned goods and other produce for us, and we greatly appreciate it. The men will please donate grain of any kind and also potatoes. All gifts of farm produce or clothing will be very helpful.

Yours in the Master's service,

A. G. DIXON, Superintendent.

REPORTING TO THE CHURCH PAPER

Some report too much, some do not report enough. Long reports will not be read, at least not with as much interest as short reports will. Some reports referring to the pastor or the minister assisting in a revival meeting are very complimentary. He preached a powerful or wonderful sermon. A word of praise for help received from the sermon may or may not help the man who preached the sermon. Perhaps some preachers have been spoiled by compliments in the superlative degree. The preacher who gets so many words of praise may decide he already knows enough, he does not need to study. Doubtless a criticism would be more helpful to some preachers than exaggerated praise. The stretch-out system is a little dangerous. The old Adam loves compliments. Some preachers can't stand praise, very few can bear criticism in a right spirit. We ought to thank a man for an honest criticism, but the old evil nature usually squeals. I believe a holiness preacher (and all preachers ought to be holiness preachers) cannot bear so very much praise because of his wonderful sermons. It is not best to make reports in the superlative degree.

We will boast a little. The greatest compliment I ever got was a criticism. A man, I suppose 60 years old, said to me one day, "I like you very much, but your preaching doesn't suit me. I feel worse every time I hear you preach." The man was not a Christian when he said this. Perhaps the majority of our reporters to the church paper are girls, and married women, and because they are such I will not be severe with them. Women love to talk, and it has been said they talk the least on the shortest day in the year. I am personally acquainted with several of them. They are fine folks, even if they do exaggerate some. G. F. MILLAWAY.

EIGHTH DISTRICT RALLY

The eighth district rally will be held in the Asheboro church Sunday, September 29, beginning at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. All churches in the district are urged to send representatives.

E. G. COWAN, Chairman.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S FELLOWSHIP CLUB OF FIRST M. P. CHURCH, CHARLOTTE, N. C., SHOWING EXCEPTIONAL PROGRESS

The Young People's Fellowship Club, a recently formed Christian club of about 100 members, is showing great interest in the words and works of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

Before each of these members were converted, they were trying to enjoy the pleasures of the world, such as dancing, movies, card parties, liquor parties, etc., but since they have started living the life that God wants all people to live they do not have the least desire to attend any of these so-called parties. In other words, they are living the separated life that we read about in II Cor. 6:17: "Wherefore come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing; and I will receive you." Then we read the first verse of the seventh chapter of the same book: "Having therefore these promises, dearly beloved, let us cleanse ourselves from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit, perfecting holiness in the fear of God."

Since this club has been formed we have had eight members to leave for Bob Jones College, Cleveland, Tenn., to learn more about our Lord and Savior. Herbert Garmon and Oren Bradley have been called to the ministry, Billie Albro is taking a course in music, and Maryon Muse, Ruby Stegall, Charlotte West, Nancy Womack and Mary Jordan are studying for various other works to be used to the glory of God. Our prayers, the prayers of each and every individual member of this club, are for every one of our boys and girls at college. It is our sincere desire that they do the work that they have been called to do, and we do feel that the Lord is going to use every one of them to a great advantage.

We also have two members of this club who are going to enter the college at the first of the coming year. Miss Sally Hollifield will study for the work for which the Lord calls her, and Mr. W. Guy Helms will study for the ministry. Our prayers are for them that they may glorify the Lord's work.

Since our club has been formed, there have been about 20 new members accepted into the club. It is our desire that all members of our club live up to the Fellowship Club creed:

"I believe in the inspiration of the Bible, both Old and New Testaments; the creation of man by the direct act of God; the incarnation and virgin birth of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ; His identification as the Son of God; His vicarious atonement for the sins of mankind by the shedding of His blood on the cross; the resurrection of His body from the tomb; His power to save men from sin; the new birth through the regeneration of the Holy Spirit; and the gift of eternal life by the grace of God."

ARNOLD P. ALLEN, Club Reporter.

FIFTEENTH DISTRICT RALLY

The 15th district rally will be held at Mill Grove church on the Midland charge on the fifth Sunday of this month. This church is located in the town of Midland, N. C. There will be a morning and afternoon program. In the afternoon the missionary work of our district will be represented by our district Branch chairman. A good program is being planned and all the churches in this district are urged to be represented at this rally.

D. I. GARNER, District Chairman.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Union Chapel, Granville.—Our revival services begin Sunday, September 15. We are hoping for the best meeting we have had in many years. Dr. T. M. Johnson will be the visiting helper. Everybody come and worship with us.

The children have begun coming back to church and Sunday school. We are glad to have them again and hope now that the general attendance will pick up.

Mr. Spencer has been bringing his usual good messages on each preaching Sunday.

The Woman's Auxiliary has been holding its regular monthly meetings, but with much smaller attendance. Now that the busy season is over, however, we are sure more will be at next month's meeting.

Our hearts have been made very sad recently by the loss of two of our faithful members. Some weeks ago Mr. Lewis Stone passed on to the Great Beyond. He had been a member of Union Chapel for a great numbee of years. Although he became very old and feeble, he was in his place at the services whenever he was able, up until the end. We miss Bro. Stone and our sympathy goes out to the bereaved widow.

Last week Mrs. Ed Parrish died after suffering many days from wounds sustained in an automobile accident. The manner in which she bore her dreadful suffering proved her wonderful Christian character. We feel that we have lost one of the best and most faithful members of our church and Sunday school and our prayers go out to the lonesome husband and children.

Shiloh Charge.—The reporters keep readers of the Herald very well informed as to the activities of our work here, so it is not necessary for the pastor to write often. However, I do wish to make a brief report about the work here during the year. We have had a very pleasant and prosperous year thus far, and I believe this charge will send the pastor and delegate to the Annual Conference with a good report and all claims paid in full. Mr. J. L. Evans, of Shiloh church, will represent the charge as delegate.

All the organizations in our churches are very active and doing a great work. Our finances are in fine shape. In fact, the most of our budgets are already paid.

Our revival meetings have been held at the three churches with good interest and 17 additions to the charge. Our first meeting was at Greer's Chapel. The writer did the preaching and the people were helpful and appreciative. This is a young church but it has a great opportunity and fills an important place in the life of the community. This church has the "Cotton Patch" again, and it is going to put them over the top financially.

At Friendship we were assisted by Rev. H. L. Isley, of Alamance charge, who came on Monday and did all the preaching to the close on Friday night. He is a good preacher. The Lord was magnified and the people edified with his fine messages. It was a good meeting with 11 conversions and renewals and seven additions.

At Shiloh we had as our helper Dr. F. W. Paschall, of Burlington, who came on Monday and did the preaching to the close on Saturday night. His soul-stirring sermons were greatly enjoyed by our people, and the church was revived, and new life and greater activity is in evidence since the meeting. The visible results so far have been six conversions and two additions to the church.

We are now living in Shiloh's new parsonage that the people have been hearing about, and suffice it to say that it is one of the best in the conference.

C. E. RIDGE, Pastor.

◆

Alleghany, Davidson Charge.—Second Sunday in September our pastor, Rev. E. A. Bingham, preached an interesting sermon, after which he administered the Lord's Supper to a large crowd. We were glad to see so many of the young folk partake. We are glad to see the young folk take so much interest in the singing and Sunday school. Stick to your place and be a worker. One girl joined the church. We hope that she will be a useful member.

On account of the sickness of my sister I have not been able to go to church much. She still keeps very feeble and not able to go to church. While we cannot go to church much, we can put our trust in the Lord at home and pray for our friends wherever they be. We love the church, we love our friends, and we want to see all that are not saved, saved. We were glad to have Mr. Binhgam and family in our home a short while Sunday evening. We are always glad for them to visit us, it does us good. Remember us and come when you can. It helps Mary Ann for friends to come to see her. Don't forget to visit the sick. There is about two months till conference. Let us pay up our pastor. He is so kind to all and tries to do his best. We should do our part to help carry on the work. We all can do something, though it may be but little.

Best wishes to all of the readers of the Herald. ABIGAIL COGGIN.

(This report held over from last week)

◆

Midland Charge.—Our revival meeting began at Love's Grove the second Sunday in August. Rev. H. W. Bell, of Rockingham, was our pulpit help. There were 22 conversions and six united with the church. The offering for Bro. Bell amounted to $25.25.

The meeting began at Mill Grove the third Sunday in August. Rev. J. R. Short, of Easley, S. C., was our pulpit help. Here we had 13 conversions and 11 united with the church. The offering for Bro. Short amounted to $20.00.

The meeting began at Pine Bluff the fourth Sunday in August. Rev. J. P. Pegg, of Glen Raven, was our pulpit help. Here we had seven conversions and nine united with the church. The offering for Bro. Pegg amounted to $16.51.

All these preachers did good preaching and we were glad to have them with us.

Twenty-nine have united with the churches on the charge this year, three having been received before the revival meetings.

Midland charge has a splendid people to serve and we are looking forward to having a good report to carry up to the Annual Conference. Bro. J. T. Voncannon, of Pine Bluff, was elected delegate to represent the charge in the next Annual Conference.

The 15th district rally will meet with Mill Grove church the fifth Sunday in September. Rev. D. I. Garner, of Concord, is chairman of the district. Everybody come.

JAMES H. TROLINGER.

◆

Concord, Saxapahaw Charge.—We are still living. If you don't believe it, just listen. We are planning to observe our 100th birth day anniversary the last Sunday in this month. Dr. Andrews will be with us for the morning service and there will be other speakers in the afternoon with the history of the church and special music. We extend an invitation especially to the ex-pastors of this church and to those who have been members but now hold their membership at other places.

Children's Day was held at this church Sunday morning at the preaching hour.

The young married people's class was entertained last Friday evening by Mrs. L. E Moore and Mrs. Frank McBane at the home of Mrs. McBane in the form of a tacky party, and at the close a chicken stew was enjoyed. Those present reported a splendid time.

Mr. J. L. Davis is still on the sick list. Mrs. T. H. Moore is under the doctor's care again. We hope these members will soon recover.

Conference will soon be here again and we realize we have much work to do in the few remaining weeks. We are hoping and praying to do better this year than last.

BESSIE COBLE, Reporter.

◆

Mill Grove, Midland Charge.—Our Sunday school is progressing very nicely. The attendance has increased some. We had around ten more last Sunday than same date one year ago. Collections increased some, too. I notice that the average attendance is around 60, and considering that we have two more denominations in our little village, and the Baptists having as good attendance in Sunday school as we have, I think it could be a lot less. Let's hope and pray for still an increase.

On September 8, Brother D. W. Page and Sister Nell Green Hartsell Morton joined the church at Mill Grove. We were certainly proud to have them join with us. Brother Page was baptized by sprinkling, whereas Sister Morton was baptized, so I understand, when she was a baby. Also on same date Brother Trolinger baptized five boys by immersion that joined our church during the camp meeting. We are glad to have them all, and trust that we all together can press forward for God's Kingdom.

◆

Corinth, Littleton Circuit.—Our revival services began on the first Sunday in September. Rev. R. L. Vickery, our pastor, preached at the morning services, and Rev. O. C. Loy came for the night services and he did all the preaching until the meeting closed on Friday night, except Thursday afternoon, when he was called away to conduct a funeral service of one of his members. We enjoyed Rev. Mr. Loy's sermons and believe much good was done. Our congregations were very small, due to such a rainy week and so much sickness in the community. There were four professions and many came to reconsecrate their lives to Jesus Christ. We were very glad to have Rev. Mr. Loy with us and enjoyed having him in our home, and want him to come again. We were also glad to have Mrs. Loy worship with us during the services, and we were glad to have Mrs. Glasgow (nee Miss Fannie Barnes) with us during the meeting. It looked like old times to see Miss Fannie in the choir.

We are sorry to report Mr. D. A. Insco, Mrs. G. D. Insco and Mrs. M. J. Morris are on the sick list. We hope for them all a speedy recovery.

Mr. Bonney Morris, from Richmond, spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Morris.

Our pastor, Rev. R. L. Vickery, brought us a very inspiring message last night.

Rev. Mr. Vickery is away this week helping in revival meeting at Lexington. Mrs. Vickery and children are visiting relatives at High Point, N. C.

MRS. B. F. MORRIS, Reporter.

Union Grove Church, Mocksville Charge.—Union Grove's annual revival starts Sunday, September 22. We are praying for a good revival and would like for all the Herald readers to join in prayer with us for a successful revival.

Union Grove Sunday school is very successful. The senior class (young people's class) just ended a contest in the class. The contest proved to be of much help to the class.

The Christian Endeavor Society is very successful in all its meetings. The revival meetings have hindered the society some. I think we will be able to start off the new quarter with much interest and work.

REPORTER.

Charlotte Church, Richland Charge.—Last Tuesday evening brought to a close a ten days' revival meeting in our church. Our pastor, Rev. M. C. Henderson, did the preaching. There were 16 converts. Five people have given their names to join the church. We are expecting these and several others to join our church the first Sunday in October.

A weekly prayer meeting has recently been organized. We pray that this will be successful.

The Ladies' Auxiliary will meet Thursday evening with Mrs. D. T. McCain. The Auxiliary recently served a picnic supper to the Asheboro Kiwanis Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn McCain announce the birth of a son September 7. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bulla announce the birth of a son September 9.

Mrs. J. H. Redding is spending some time with Mr. T. T. Redding and family at Trinity.

One of our older members, Mr. W. E. Robbins, died a few weeks ago. We extend sympathy to the family. REPORTER.

First Church, Thomasville.—I guess I have the reputation of being the laziest reporter the Herald has.

Our revival closed Wednesday night, September 11. It ran for 11 nights. We had a very successful meeting. Rev. J. M. Morgan preached earnestly and there were several conversions and reclamations. We enjoyed having Mr. Morgan to preach for us and also enjoyed having him in our homes.

The doors of the church were open for reception of members. Four joined. We are thankful for these four. Buren Hill and Doris Leonard joined on profession of faith. Mr. A. W. Lackey came by letter from Piney Grove M. P. church. Mrs. Woodrow Myers came from Unity Chapel M. E. church, South, this city. We extend to these people the right hand of fellowship and may they all be great instruments in the upbuilding of God's Kingdom.

The Men's Bible Class had a special treat for their class last Sunday. The Hedgecock Sisters and Mr. V. O. Fossett rendered special music. They were enjoyed very much.

The Ladies' Auxiliary will meet Thursday night of this week at the church.

We are sorry to report that Mrs. J. J. Watts continues ill at her home on Taylor street.

Miss Rosa Mae Pearson is visiting with her sisters, Mrs. T. G. Madison and Mrs. Ralph Leonard.

I would like to pay special tribute to the splendid letter in last week's Herald written by Rev. H. L. Powell. I know every word was true. Write more often. I enjoy them.

REPORTER.

Spring Church Charge.—Spring Church Circuit Auxiliary met in the home of Mrs. H. E. Vassar Wednesday, September 4, at 3 p. m., with 13 active members and one Precious Jewel present. At this time the Auxiliary was glad to welcome two new members, Mrs. J. W. Magee and Miss Erlene Barnes. We were also glad to have as visitors Misses Rebecca Grant and Sara Marie Neese. Mrs. Vassar had charge of the devotions and was assisted by Mrs. M. L. Crew. Mrs. Vassar used as her subject theme for the month "Christ Our Companion in Widening Horizons." The leader had spent much time in preparing for the meeting and the devotions were carried out in a very impressive manner.

During the business hour ways and means were discussed how best to increase our Auxiliary treasury. The dress committee reported goods bought and made into clothing and sent to "our adopted girl" at the Home for her fall outfit. More to be sent later. Mrs. C. E. Dimick was program leader and was assisted by Mesdames W. W. Grant, J. W. Crew and W. L. Mitchell. Mrs. Rupert M. Robinson conducted the question box at this meeting. Plans were made for our fall thank-offering programs. On the fourth Sunday at 11 o'clock we will have our thank-offering program at Spring church. On the first Sunday in October we will have an all-day program at Lebanon, thank-offering program in the morning and a sermon by the pastor in the afternoon. The exact time for the thank-offering program at Pleasant Hill is not definitely decided. The thank-offering program committee is trying hard to make the services the best of any held on the charge during the past four years. We covet your prayers that our desires may be fulfilled. At the close of the meeting Mrs. J. W. Crew led the society in prayer. The hostess, assisted by Miss Erlene Barnes, served delicious refreshments. We wish we might get more of our ladies interested in the Auxiliary work. We wonder sometimes if they really realize just what they are missing. Speaking personally, we would hardly know how to get along in a church without an Auxiliary.

May we leave Spring Church charge for just a moment and mention a charge that was our home for four years. Fifteen years ago we moved to Vance charge and spent four happy years there. That is the place we began to organize missionary auxiliaries. On last Monday we visited in the home of Miss Mavis Hester, the president of the Flat Rock Auxiliary, and it did our heart good to hear her tell of the plans they are making for their fall thank-offering program. This thought came to me: "This was our very first attempt to organize an Auxiliary, and has it paid?" Yes, a thousand times yes. It gives us new courage to go and attempt greater things when we realize that seed sown in former days are still bearing fruit. Flat Rock Auxiliary, we bid you Godspeed.

Back to Spring Church charge again. Schooldays are here again and a number of our young people have left and will leave soon, some to teach and others to enter college. Spring church has sent out three teachers this year, Miss Katherine Crew to Marshville, N. C., Miss Lucille Kee, near Greenville, N. C., and Miss Virginia Massey, Potecasi, N. C. Lebanon is sending to High Point College Misses Virginia and Mildred Grant, and Mr. Alson Thompson. From Spring church go Mr. James Massey to High Point College and Mr. Lunsford Crew to Chapel Hill. Our very best wishes go with all these.

Among our sick at this time are little John Milliard Glover, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Glover; Mrs. Rose Crew, Mrs. M. L. Crew, and Mr. J. W. Crew, Jr. We are hoping for each of them a speedy recovery.

MRS. WM. H. NEESE.

Pinnacle Charge.—We began our special meeting at Pilot church the first Sunday in July. We did our own preaching for 11 days and nights. The attendance was real good all through the meeting. There were seven accessions to the church. The special meeting began at Shoals the second Sunday in July, with Bro. A. D. Shelton the pulpit help. The attendance was fine. The people did appreciate the real gospel preaching Bro. Shelton gave us. There have been four additions to the church and others to come in. Bro. Shelton preaches the gospel that makes men free. "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free."

The third Sunday we began our special meeting at Mt. Zion. Bro. J. M. Morgan was our pulpit help there. This is our largest congregation and there were more unsaved people in the community. The result was 14 joined the church, and three others are coming in tomorrow, making 17. Bro. Morgan's preaching was very acceptable and of a type that was easily understood. Bro. Morgan's earnestness and patience to hold on gives force in a revival. Our people were delighted to have these two good brethren preach, and have them in their homes. They have left a warm place in the hearts of our people who wish for their return any time.

We are to begin our revival at Pinnacle church the fourth Sunday in September. That is our annual home-coming day and we invite all the past pastors and friends and kindred to be with us on that day. Lunch—dinner to most of us—will be served on the grounds. Short talks by all who will participate will be the order of entertainment, together with good music. Rev. C. E. Ridge will come on Monday and do the preaching through the week, and probably through the fifth Sunday into the following week.

Bringing up both ends. Yes, it is hard to do, and is a man's job. The end of material things is one end. The membership end is another end. They go hand in hand if one is to be successful in this preaching business. One might take a well-organized church and preach it to poverty by making the people believe there is time enough yet to raise the finances. Or say I am not preaching for money, brethren, just take your time. I have never seen a man who needed any coaching along that line. This easy, unbusiness method will lead to church poverty. The other end is the membership end, and to ignore it means in the future to disband. God wills that people should come into the Kingdom, and we need them in the church. So to be a good revivalist and get people into the church, and be a good money-getter and raise all the finances, is in my opinion a real man's job. Brethren, should we rate a minister more highly who has raised more money than one who has been more successful in bringing more souls into the Kingdom? Some men have a talent for raising money, some have a talent for winning souls, so let's render to all their dues, honor to whom honor is due. Yes, we need the little man as much as the big man. The woods are full of little trees, the sea full of little fishes, America full of little churches, some churches full of little members, some little denominations, some little preachers, but together they make the woods, the seas, and America, and the great church of God. So let's not glorify the man who brings up the money end, nor the man who brings up the membership end, nor him who brings up both ends, but glorify God who has given men ability to bring up either end, or both ends. And this we will do. So mote it be.

St. Paul, Greensboro.—The work here is moving along very well. We have not recovered from the infantile paralysis scare, but hope to get back to normal before long.

We will start a series of special services fourth Sunday in this month. Bro. Trogdon will be the pulpit help, and we are expecting a good meeting.

Remember us when you pray.

Alamance Charge.—Since a report has appeared from this charge successful revivals have been held at Center, Bethel, and Rock Creek, with Revs. E. O. Peeler, A. D. Shelton, and J. D. Cranford assisting in the order named. Pastor and people are grateful to these brethren for their splendid gospel messages. As a result of these meetings there were 43 additions to the church, 7 at Center, 20 at Bethel, and 16 at Rock Creek. On the second Sunday in this month Mr. and Mrs. Percy Lindley transferred their membership from Center to Sapling Ridge because of convenience, and Frances Maxine Whitehead, the eight-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Whitehead, joined this church on profession of faith, making 53 accessions on the charge this year. The attendance was good and there was a fine spirit in all four meetings. We are thankful to our heavenly Father for these good meetings. Rev. G. W. Holmes preached on Sunday afternoon of the Bethel meeting and Rev. A. O. Lindley at Rock Creek, each bringing good sermons. It was a pleasure to have the following ministers as visitors during the Rock Creek meeting: Revs. A. O. Lindley, S. K. Spahr, J. E. Carroll, A. D. Shelton, J. R. Hutton and J. D Morris.

Mrs. Cicero Lindley, who spent some time in a High Point hospital, has returned home much improved. Brother Arlendo Lindley is still unable to attend church. We miss him. Others who have been sick are better.

Center recently had a "canning" at the home of Mrs. C. C. Richardson for the Children's Home. A harvest home offering is also being planned at each church for the Home.

Miss Marcie Foust, of Bethel church, will represent Alamance charge at our next Annual Conference.

The following have remembered the pastor with donations: Mr. J. W. Whitehead, Mr. M. E. Graves, Mrs. Rezzy Forest and Mrs. J. H. Thompson. They have our thanks.

Shoals, Pinnacle and Mt. Zion Charge.—It has been several months since we've gotten off a report. But we had our revival starting the second Sunday in July. Rev. A. D. Shelton, of Greensboro, was the help. We had very interesting preaching. The crowd wasn't so large on account of work, etc. The revival closed on Friday night.

The second Sunday in August our pastor, Rev. J. D. Morris, filled his appointment. He delivers a very interesting sermon each time.

Our Sunday school seems to be on the standstill at the present. Several in the community are not attending church that could. So we wish to invite them out to join and help us out.

Sunday, September 8, Rev. J. D. Morris preached a very interesting sermon. The church was about filled, and every one seemed to have enjoyed the sermon. Mr. Morris was accompanied by his wife. She is always welcome in the community, as every one seems to think a lot of them both.

The third quarterly conference was held at Shoals church last Sunday a week ago at 2 o'clock. There was a right good attendance.

Kannapolis.—Throughout the past two weeks we, the members of the Kannapolis M. P. church, have been experiencing and enjoying a very successful revival. It was our privilege to have Rev. Luther R. Medlin, of the Henderson M. P. church, to conduct our services for us. Each evening and morning we had very encouraging crowds in spite of the inclement weather on several occasions. There were 20 open conversions and three additions to the church, Misses Irene Benfield and Helen Wilkerson and Mrs. Lillian Braswell, Barrett. Others have expressed a desire to become connected with the church.

On the second Sunday morning while Mr. Medlin was at his own church Rev. O. L. Easter, of the Brown Summit church, preached for us. Each one present especially appreciated his inspiring message and the opportunity of having him and Mrs. Easter in our midst.

We have recently started in our church what we call the Kannapolis M. P. Church Youth Movement. This was a suggestion from Mr. Medlin and, through his valuable assistance a definite program for several weeks was worked out. It includes the religious emphases, under which comes church attendance, Bible instruction, etc.; social emphasis, which cares for programs at convict camps, community prayer services, and other such programs; and last, the recreational emphasis, under which comes wiener roasts, steak fries, a banquet, and hikes. We have already had a steak fry and a program at a convict camp nearby and are looking forward to the other parts of the movement.

For the past number of weeks we have been engaged in a ten weeks' tithing campaign which comes to a close next Sunday. During this time an average of $17 was paid each week on our building fund, and too, our budget was kept balanced.

Only recently the prohibition on the disease, infantile paralysis, has been lifted here, thus permitting our children to attend church and Sunday school. Since the children have returned, there seems to be a different atmosphere in the church and all our work is inviting and encouraging.

Efland, Orange Charge.—Another reporter seems to have taken a vacation. We are still doing things, even though not saying very much.

Sunday morning a large congregation was present to hear the splendid sermon by our pastor. At the close of the sermon the communion service was held.

On Sunday evening we held our Rally Day service. The program prepared by the conference was used very effectively. The pastor spoke on "Why We Have Rally Day," and brought out the lesson from Daniel in a very impressive way. From the comments we are sure the service was greatly enjoyed.

The work of the Auxiliary is progressing under the leadership of Mrs. B. M. Williams. We are working on a winter outfit for a girl at the Children's Home.

A number of our young people are leaving for college these days. We wish for them success.

Circle No. 3 lost a member recently, but our loss is Circle No. 2's gain. Miss Margaret Freeland is now Mrs. Earl C. Taylor. They were united in a very impressive ring ceremony in the Efland M. P. church on Friday evening, September 6, with Rev. B. M. Williams officiating. We predict for them much happiness along life's highway.

Kernersville-South Winston Charge.—We are glad to be able to report to the readers of the Herald that this charge is making some progress. We have held all our special meetings. At Kernersville church the pastor was assisted by Rev. R. A. Hunter. A good meeting, and new members have been added to the church. At Pine Grove Bro. R. C. Stubbins did the preaching, and we had a good meeting. At Sandy Ridge Rev. H. W. Bell was the pastor's assistant. He did good preaching and we believe that much good was done there. At Ai church the pastor did the preaching each evening during the week, the people attended very well, and were attentive to the Word. At South Winston Rev. B. A. Culp, pastor of the First M. E. church of Winston, preached for us each evening during the week. We had a good meeting, and new members were added to the church.

The parsonage committee is having the parsonage painted, which will be finished and paid for before conference. The Ladies' Aid Society of the Kernersville church has recently had the parsonage kitchen painted inside, which is a fine improvement, and is all paid for. They are a fine organization of women, and are now raising money to paint the Kernersville church. We hope this will be done very soon, and will be paid for when completed. At South Winston the Ladies' Aid Society and the organized Sunday school classes have done a fine work this year, having raised money to finish the church building. The Sunday school rooms are finished inside and are now ready for use. The church has been painted and makes a fine appearance in the community. All these finishing improvements will be paid for within a few days. We expect to have this church dedicated before the Annual Conference meets. I have never seen a finer working organization than the South Winston Methodist Protestant church.

We have held our third quarterly conference and the elected delegate to the Annual Conference from the Kernersville charge is Miss Hazel Hendricks, and from South Winston Miss Ruth Goff.

The Kernersville Sunday school recently had their annual picnic at Crystal Lake and everyone had a good time. The home-coming day services at Pine Grove church were attended by a large number and proved a fine experience for all who came for the day.

We will have home-coming day at Sandy Ridge church next Sunday; preaching at 11 a. m. Dinner will be served and an afternoon program will begin about 1 o'clock. Hoping that all the churches may have good reports, and that we may have the best Annual Conference ever.

O. B. WILLIAMS, Pastor.

Asheville.—'Twas a glorious day in the "Land of the Sky" on Sunday and almost "everybody and his brother" were out. We certainly do have a grand bunch of young people now. I overheard a remark made by one of our members which made me feel good and I am sure it is encouraging enough to put in the church report, so everyone can feel encouraged. He said, "If this group of young people will stick to this church, we will have a real church one day." I agree thoroughly. We need new life, new enthusiasm and new ideas. All churches need these things. It seems so easy for us adults to get in a rut, and most of us are positively afraid to think. "Every living thing grows!" I wonder sometimes how we would rate if a test were made to ascertain how much we have grown, mentally, of course, in the past ten years.

The Frances Cunningham Philathea Class and the Young Men's Class are having a party at Miss Cunningham's home Friday evening. A record crowd is expected and as a result it is expected each member will redouble his or her efforts to keep things going first-rate at the church. Set the pace, folks, and maybe that Fawcett Bible Class will see your good works and go and do likewise. Not that the Fawcett Bible Class is not doing anything, but their enthusiasm is spasmodic, and there is a good deal of room for improvement. (I may get murdered for making that statement, but I'll take a chance on that.)

Mr. Minnis announced on Sunday that the drive for the furnace fund had been very successful, also that the coal bill had been greatly lessened and that there were outstanding pledges to completely pay up. This is indeed encouraging news, but the pastor's salary is greatly in arrears, so, folks, we are going to have to work some more. Maybe we can pay up everything if every one will help and keep on helping. Let's do our very best!

Mr. J. W. Boling has been elected our delegate to the Annual Conference. Mr. H. L. Hanner, Mrs. C. B. Baker and Mr. L. S. Nevell are the nominating committee whose duty it is to present a slate of officers for the coming year at the next official meeting of the church body.

The Weaverville Auxiliary has been invited to meet with our Auxiliary at the home of Mrs. J. S. Williams on Thursday coming. We are sure of an interesting meeting and an enjoyable afternoon.

Mrs. J. F. Cunningham and Miss Polly Gentry are on our sick list this week. We trust both will be O. K. soon. This happens to be Mrs. Cunningham's birthday too (September 17), so we deeply regret that she is not feeling fine on this her natal day. We all join in wishing her many, many returns and happier ones!

Miss Josie McNeill will be leaving us this week to resume her studies at High Point College. Mrs. McNeill is expecting to go with her and be with her for a few weeks. We wish Josie much good luck and plenty of fun in this her senior year.

M. L. B.

First Church, Burlington.—Our Sunday school attendance is steadily increasing. There were 360 present at Sunday school last Sunday.

Our two weeks of special services came to a close on Sunday night. Rev. T. J. Whitehead was our pulpit help. Rev. Mr. Whitehead brought us some soul-stirring messages. We were very glad to have Mr. and Mrs. Whitehead in our midst. We could not see many results of the meeting, but nevertheless the good seed was sown and we are praying that a bountiful harvest will be reaped later.

We were glad to welcome the following new members into our church last Sunday: Misses Bettie Riddle and Ruth Brady, and Messrs. Ed Combs, Calvin McAdams, and George William Coble.

Dr. Paschall brought us a very helpful message Sunday night on how to live a Christian life. By the aid of Jesus' leadership, the Bible, prayer, God's church, and Christian companions we can live a Christian life.

MABEL THORNBURG, Reporter.

Hawkins Chapel, Littleton Charge.—Rev. R. L. Vickery preached a fine sermon the second Sunday at 11 o'clock. This was a touching service because we partook of the Lord's Supper. It makes us feel like Jesus is nearer. He sat and ate with the twelve disciples which He had learned to love and work with and longed for them to go forward with His work. If we be His disciples, we must always remember St. John 14:23: "Jesus answered and said unto him, If a man love me he will keep my words." And my Father will love him and he will come unto him and make our abode with him."

Our Woman's Auxiliary met immediately after service. For our next meeting we will meet September 22 just before the 8 o'clock service. Our pastor will be away in a meeting, but Rev. H. S. B. Thompson will preach for us. Be sure to come.

Our class leader, Mr. E. B. Pair, was absent Sunday. Mr. Leo Pittard filled his place, reading from the 13th chapter of 1 Corinthians, and made an inspiring talk on love.

Our Sunday school is improving.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Carpenter and daughter, Mr. Tommie Hawkins and two children, Gladys Hawkins, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Hawkins were at Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hawkins' Sunday. Miss Esther Hawkins was the guest of Miss Mary Green Sunday.

Miss Maggie Hawkins and brother, Forest Hawkins, motored to Warrenton, N. C., Sunday to see Miss Lee Ila Rooker.

Mrs. Captain Hawkins and three of her sons, Clifton, Willie and Arthur, went to see another of her sons, Philip Hawkins, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hawkins and son, Louis, visited her mother, Mrs. C. M. Hawkins, Sunday.

Mrs. R. E. Green spent last week with her daughter, Mrs. Herbert Harris.

Mr. Ambrose Pittard was united in marriage Sunday, September 15, 1935, to Miss Elsie Hux.

Best wishes to the Herald and readers.

MRS. CLAUDE HAWKINS, Reporter.

Cid, Why Not Charge.—Since our reporter has gone away the reports from Cid church have been few. But since I have been appointed to take her place I hope to be able to send in one oftener.

Cid Sunday school is improving rapidly, we are glad to know, and we are proud of our good Sunday school teachers. We have learned to love them and want them to feel welcome at all times.

Our revival meeting starts Sunday evening, September 22, at 2:30. Our pastor, Rev. Mr. Hill, will have charge.

REPORTER.

New Hope, Mecklenburg Charge.—Our pastor, Rev. P. E. Bingham, preached for us the first Sunday night in September. We were indeed glad to see Mr. and Mrs. Bingham again. On the last Sunday night in August we were glad to have with us the Rev. Mr. Haywood and Mr. R. C. Furr and the Midland quartet. We sure did enjoy the good talk which Mr. Furr made. He had plenty of fire about him, told how fathers and mothers used to have family prayers and when they came out to God's house, filled with the Holy Spirit, they could praise God. We were truly glad to see Brother Haywood at New Hope again as it had been several years since he was here. We always love to hear him preach the gospel.

We are sorry we did not get to send in our offering to the Children's Home before August 22. But we are sending some this week. We are thankful for those who care for orphan children.

Brother Joe Ross will be the delegate from Mecklenburg to the next Annual Conference.

Mt. Zion, Pinnacle-Mt. Zion Charge.—It has been so long since I reported I hardly know where to begin. I had about everything up to date in my last report, and it was never printed. What was the trouble?

All of the work at Mt. Zion is doing fine except the reporting angle, and well, I'll confess and own up to that negligence myself. We had a splendid meeting at Mt. Zion this year with quite a number of additions to the church.

Bro. Morris, our good pastor, it seems, never fails to bring us a good message. I'm sure he has these people at heart and if we will just be good hearers and doers, much good will be accomplished.

We are glad to mention the fact that Bro. A. L. Hunter, our former pastor, remains in good health.

Our Sunday school attendance remains some better than normal, but could be better and larger if more of us would attend.

We are very thankful for what blessings it has been our good fortune to receive, and we want the prayers of all good people that our work up here may reach out and do more good in the future than it has in the past.

Mt. Pleasant, North Davidson.—The Sunday school is moving along nicely. The average attendance has been good all summer. Last Sunday the Sunday school visited Spring Hill Sunday school. Everyone present enjoyed the worship together.

The C. E. Society reorganized the third Sunday in August. Miss Evelyn Payne was elected president. With her leadership we hope to accomplish much.

The Woman's Auxiliary met with Mrs. Cletus Hayworth last month. They reported a good meeting. The next meeting is to be held with Mrs. Lillie Ball next Saturday night.

The circuit rally will be held at Canaan the fifth Sunday in this month.

It is only a short time till conference, so let us work hard that we may accomplish the work that is laid down for us by then.

Calvary, Greensboro.—With vacation time and the infantile paralysis scare over, our people are returning to church. We observed quite an increase in the attendance at both Sunday school and church service last Sunday.

"The Danger of Losing Our Spirituality" was the theme of the fine message brought to us by Dr. Pritchard last Sunday morning at the 11 o'clock service. He asked the question, "When do men lose their spiritual power?" First, "When they begin to take their eyes off God"; second, "When they begin to tamper with sin"; third, "When we fail to feed our spiritual natures." Some signs of lost spirituality: First, "Irregular attendance at church"; second, "Indifference to the program of the church"; third, "Indifference to the program of the Kingdom."

Quite a large and interested crowd attended the meeting of the Workers' Council held at the parsonage last Tuesday evening. Much business was transacted at the meeting. Following the business session Mrs. Pritchard served delicious refreshments.

The regular monthly business meeting of the Friendly Class was held at the home of Mrs. Paul Glass on Randolph Avenue last Tuesday evening. Mrs. J. N. Griswold, president, presided over the business session. Plans were made to buy fall clothes for the little girl at the Children's Home whom the class has taken the responsibility to clothe. During the social hour a salad course was served by Mrs. Glass.

Members of the Baraca Class enjoyed a fish supper at the hut Tuesday evening. Just prior to the supper Floyd G. Reynolds led the group in singing several "pep" songs. This was entered into very enthusiastically by everyone present. Mrs. Olan Barnes sang two numbers, "Smilin' Through," by Penn, and "When My Honey Sings an Old-Time Song," by Carey. Following the supper, Rev. J. A. Vache, rector of St. Andrews Episcopal church, made a wonderful talk on "Man Power of the Church." Following Rev. Mr. Vache's talk a business session was presided over by J. W. Tucker, class president, during which time new class officers were elected.

Our Woman's Auxiliary met at the hut Monday afternoon. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Harry Julian, Mrs. J. G. Sullivan presided over the meeting. Plans were made for our booth at the fair. Our booth will be located at the same spot as in previous years, so if you get hungry while at the fair you will know where to find some real home-cooked food. Come and eat with us.

Rally Day services will be observed at our church the first Sunday in October.

W. W. Oakes is directing our prayer meeting Wednesday night of this week.

We wish to extend our sympathy to Mrs. W. F. Parker, whose mother passed away last week.

Birth announcements have been made as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Robah H. Fields announce the birth of a son, Roddy Harper, and Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Sullivan announce the birth of a son, William Davis.

David Glass, who spent a few days in the Clinic Hospital last week, has returned home.

J. D. Heritage, husband of one of our choir members, underwent an operation at the Wesley Long Hospital last Sunday.

Shiloh, Shiloh Charge.—Our work is still moving along very well. The Sunday school attendance is still on a gradual increase. The attendance at our preaching services is very good. We recognize visitors at most every service. Last Sunday we were glad to welcome five visitors from Oak Grove church, on Cleveland circuit, which was the former pastorate of our pastor.

It has not been reported that the church floor has been painted, some carpeting rearranged, and additional carpets bought. Some weeks ago a nice pulpit light was donated by Mr. Homer Sink.

Our parsonage treasurer, Mr. Ira Koonts, made a report Sunday showing that our parsonage was completed the first of June, to date $1,673.23 has been pledged, $1,549.73 collected, leaving $123.50 pledged yet to be collected.

On Sunday, September 1, our pastor delivered another good sermon, using the subject "Jesus Only." Text: Matt. 17:8. Last Sunday he preached from the text John 13:17, which climaxed the sermon. One thing that I believe is needed in all of our churches is for every church member to follow more closely and live more directly according to the teaching and preaching of the gospel. We need to see our need of the gospel in the individual's life and realize how small we are and humble ourselves to the will of Christ. Mr. Ridge has asked that every member of the church tithe for the last few months of the conference year. This tithe offering will be taken the first Sunday in October and every member who possibly can is asked to contribute some amount at that date. The manner of receiving these tithes will be somewhat different to the former way, it was announced by Mr. Ridge. We hope that this will prove a great blessing to each contributor.

Next Sunday at 11 o'clock our regular prayer service will be conducted by the C. E Society. Sunday evening at 6:30 the C. E Society will conduct a prayer service at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lanning. Their daughter, Edith, had an operation for appendicitis over seven weeks ago. Edith was in the hospital five weeks. Since returning home she has not sufficiently recovered that she can be back at church, so the C. E. Society thought that a small service would bring a bit of cheer to her and the family. We hope for her a speedy recovery.

West End, Greensboro.—Very glad to report a return to normal in attendance last Sunday, 201 being chalked up on the board. Church attendance was good also. The Lord's Supper was observed at the 11 o'clock hour, and in the evening Dr. Bethea preached on the subject "Dealing Justly With Time." The 20 or more young people who sing regularly on Sunday evening should be an inspiration to the older church members for larger congregations at night.

About 25 members and visitors were present at the Senior C. E. meeting on last Sunday evening. Miss Frances Foust was the leader and an interesting program was heard. Special music was rendered by a quartet of the young people.

On Sunday evening we were glad to welcome Mr. J. S. Williams as a member. He comes to us from Fallston charge by letter.

Our plans are just about complete for next Sunday, when we celebrate our 18th birthday. Services will be held at 11 a. m., 2 and 7:30 p. m. Dinner will be served picnic style at the church and all members are asked to bring well-filled baskets for themselves and guests. You are invited to come and enjoy the day with us! The morning address will be made by Prof. T. E. Stough, superintendent of Gibsonville schools.

Charlotte.—There are so many activities in our church now we do not get reports of them all. We have the most active group of young people to be found anywhere. Recently a Young People's Fellowship Club was organized with about 100 members. Each Wednesday evening they broadcast from the tabernacle over WSOC from 8 to 8:30. Miss Sally Hollifield is president of the club. The midweek services are evangelistic and there are conversions at these services with a very good attendance.

The Sunday school continues to grow. Last Sunday the attendance was 341.

On July 8 Mrs. H. A. Gurley passed away after a long illness. The funeral was held in our church the following day by Mr. Hendry, assisted by Rev. W. T. Nelson. We will miss Mrs. Gurley as she loved her church, was a most consecrated soul and praising the Lord at all times.

September 1 Miss Rachel Tadlock and Louis Garmon were married in the tabernacle immediately after the morning sermon. Mr. Hendry officiated. Louis is the second son of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Garmon. Both of these young people are active members of our church and we wish them a long and useful life.

The Circles met last week with good attendance and interest. Circle No. 1 met with their chairman, Mrs. C. H. Daughtry, at her home on Thomas avenue. Circle No. 2 met with Mrs. T. J. Dellinger at her home on Tenth street, Mrs. G. W. Stegall, chairman. The business circle met at the church to complete their organization, with Mrs. H. G. Garrison.

Fred Love, Jr., is able to be out after being very sick. Mrs. J. A. Perry, after being in the Charlotte Sanatorium two weeks following a major operation, is recuperating at her home on Worthington avenue.

Mrs. C. S. Womack was elected delegate to the Annual Conference. REPORTER.

Hickory Grove, Guilford.—We are moving on nicely here. Our pastor, Rev. T. A. Williams, who has been sick, is able to be with us again, we are glad to say.

We had our revival meeting in August. Rev. J. D. Williams, of High Point, did the preaching. I am sure his messages were enjoyed by all.

Our Sunday school attendance is gradually increasing, but we are hoping it will increase much more now since the infantile paralysis scare is over.

We welcome into our church two new members, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Weedin. May God richly bless and prosper them.

Quarterly conference will be held at Hickory Grove October 19 at 2:30 p. m.

FIGHTING DOES NOT BRING FREEDOM

M. Ashby Jones, of Atlanta, is both a southern gentleman "of the old school" and an enlightened Christian. At the last commencement of Hampton Institute he said: "The American tragedy was that northern people came to look upon the southern people as slave-drivers, every man with a bloody whip in his hand; and the southern people were taught to look upon northern people as industrial tyrants who were seeking to take away their civilization and rob them of their leadership in the country.

"Then they fought. They fought each other with deadly and growing hatred, and every battlefield deepened that hatred, and every campaign inflamed that anger. We come to face the truth that there never has been fought a bloody fight on the battlefield that can free people. The deepening hatreds that grew out of the Civil War have left their marks on both races; and the very fact that war was fought for the freedom of the negro people inflamed prejudice, lit the flame of racial hatred and hostility.

"Reconstruction days followed, to add to that deepening gulf between the races. Conscienceless politicians organized newly enfranchised negroes into a mass of resentment and hostility to vote en bloc, and that very challenge made of the southern white people a solidarity of race and party. The white people robbed the negro of his franchise. Yes, and in doing so they robbed themselves of their political freedom, for when the south went solidly Democratic it lost its democracy. You cannot curtail the freedom of one people without, in the very doing of it, curtailing your own freedom."—Missionary Herald.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Payne

Mrs. Julia Ann Payne was born in Alamance county, North Carolina, May 7, 1853. She departed this life June 24, 1935. Mrs. Payne was a faithful member of Mt. Hermon church. Her friends speak highly of her splendid Christian life.

She is survived by her husband, Mr. A. Monroe Payne, and two children, Mrs. W. M. Coble and Mr. Eli Payne. In addition there are one sister, two brothers, fourteen grandchildren, twelve great-grandchildren, and a host of friends that mourn her passing. May God bless and comfort the bereaved.

Rev. A. O. Lindley, Rev. H. L. Isley and the pastor had charge of the services at Mt. Hermon church on June 26 at 10 o'clock in the morning. The body was laid to rest in the Mt. Hermon cemetery.

T. J. WHITEHEAD, Pastor.

Roberts

Irene Matilda Roberts was born in Madison county, North Carolina, February 1, 1856; died August 28, 1935; age 79 years, 6 months, and 27 days. She was united in marriage with Jasper Roberts who preceded her in death 13 years. To this union were born four sons, Wayne, Ester, Herschel, and Russell, of whom Ester, Herschel and Russell survive; three daughters, Mrs. Robert F. Mock, Mrs. Florence Hughey, and Mrs. S. H. Carter; 11 grandchildren survive her.

Mrs. Roberts became a member of Mt. Zion Methodist Protestant church after her marriage and remained a member until her death. Her devotion to this church of her choice is one of the notable facts of her life, and will remain a pleasant memory and a living inspiration to family and friends. In no place will Mrs. Roberts be missed as in the home. She loved her family with a tender devotion. She was never better pleased than when in company of younger people. Their visits were always a gladdening experience for her in her latter days. W. L. HARKEY.

Hardee

On Wednesday, September 4, in the evening, a deep shadow began to creep over the Eden church of Halifax charge and the surrounding communities as the news began to spread that Mrs. Z. A. Hardee had been called, unexpectedly, to take up a new abode in the land of perfect love and fadeless beauty. It was an inexpressible shock and cause of grief to those who knew her, for to know her was to love her.

Mrs. Hardee was in the very noonday of life when her illness came. Her physicians and nurses worked heroically as her life's sun was so hastily speeding to death's horizon, but all efforts failed, and we have lost her. But we do not sorrow as those who have no hope, for she was a good woman and a faithful Christian worker in her church and community.

She was converted and joined Creswell M. P. church when but a child, and remained a member there until after her marriage to Mr. Z. A. Hardee nearly 11 years ago, after which she removed to Eden M. P. church, her husband being a member and leader in that church. Since joining she has been one of the best workers and most loyal members of the church. She has served as pianist, and has been president of the Woman's Auxiliary for more than one two-year term, being president at the time of her departure. What she did was done well if it lay within her power. Her willingness and unusual ability to serve made her one of our best. She was also serving as secretary for the first district of the Woman's Auxiliary of our M. P. church in North Carolina.

Being a member of the Eastern Star Order, she had become Past Worthy Matron of one of the Enfield chapters, and was serving as secretary at her death. She was interested in civic and community affairs as well as the church.

Surviving to mourn their loss are her husband, Mr. Z. A. Hardee; her foster son, Ralph Hardee Reeves; her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Davenport, of Creswell, N. C.; two brothers and one sister. One brother very recently preceded her to the spirit world. A host of near relatives and friends also survive.

Funeral services were conducted in the home by her pastor, assisted by her mother's pastor, Rev. L. E. Mabry, of Creswell, after which her body was tenderly laid to its final resting place under the big oak in the Hardee family burying ground. The floral display was unusually large and beautiful.

May God bless and comfort the bereaved is or prayer. O. C. LOY.

Thompson

Mrs. Florence Ellen Thompson was born on June 26, 1856. Her soul took its flight from her body July 23, 1935. She was a member of Mt. Hermon church during most of her life. The good life that she lived was a blessing to the community in which she lived.

She leaves her husband, Mr. C. H. Thompson; one son, Mr. F. F. Thompson; three sisters, two brothers, five grandchildren, and a large number of friends to mourn her passing. May God comfort the broken hearts of those who loved her so much.

Funeral services were conducted at Mt. Hermon church at 10 o'clock in the morning on July 25. The writer, Rev. G. W. Holmes and Dr. Geo. R. Brown conducted the service. The body was buried in Mt. Hermon cemetery.

T. J. WHITEHEAD.

Brown

Mrs. Sarah Brown died September 14, aged 85 years, 2 months and 18 days.

Funeral services were conducted by the writer Sunday afternoon, September 15, at Chestnut Ridge church.

Sister Brown had been a member of the above church for a number of years. She lived a long and faithful life.

May God comfort the bereaved relatives and friends. B. M. WILLIAMS.

GIBSONVILLE	87

There is only one change in the charges in the column of honor this week and that is Gibsonville. They move up three points and are getting dangerously near to Midway now. Some of these days Gibsonville is going to be over the top and we will rejoice with them. The agent down there, Mrs. Paul Waynick, is a daughter of a Randolph county woman and that helps a good deal.

Now for the receipts of this week. There is not any doubt about who is entitled to first place. J. J. Mallard, of the First church, Lexington, walks away with the show. But there is another coming up and that is Mrs. Linens from Graham. These Graham folks just keep climbing. The next in line for honors is Mrs. B. W. Little, of Charlotte, another daughter of Randolph. Some of these days we are going to give three cheers for Charlotte also. And Rev. J. D. Cranford, of the Vance charge, who made such a splendid showing early in the year, comes into the picture again. Rev. J. T. Bowman, of Denton, is one of the gradual climbers and he climbs some more this week, as does Rev. C. B. Way, of Flat Rock, and Rev. J. R. Anderson, of Lincolnton. All of this is mighty fine and we are very grateful for every dollar sent in. First church, Burlington, Creswell and Randolph charges all send in one full subscription.

Now for the subsidy. That princely man, Rev. Homer Casto, of Bethel Home, sent us $6.00 and we returned it to him, saying that Bethel Home was not supposed to pay. He immediately sent the check back to us and said, "Can't a man help when he wants to?" Thanks, thanks, thanks. Our receipts this week amount to $53.65, $47.65 being on subscriptions and $6.00 on subsidy.

Let every charge send us something next week.

Workers in the Local Church

Not many years ago the men in the ministry were saying a great deal about the call to the ministry and the mission fields. As we look back over the years we remember that a great many of our sermons were along that same line. Those were days when we were talking about winning the world for Christ in this generation. And in those days there really was a shortage of men for the pulpits of the home land and a shortage of missionaries for the foreign field. But during the last few years the situation has changed. While we are still expecting the kingdoms of this world to become the kingdoms of our Lord, we cannot hope for the task to be accomplished quite so soon. At the present time the emphasis is not being placed so much on men for the ministry as it is upon men and women for the local church. Frankly, we have not heard many sermons on the call to the ministry in recent years. The truth of the matter is that with the most of the denominations there has been a surplus of men for the pulpits during the last few years. A great many men who formerly rendered acceptable service have had difficulty finding work. In the Methodist connection the Annual Conference tries to find a place for the men, while in the denominations that use the call system the men have sometimes waited in vain. This is partly due to the fact that so many churches that formerly supported an all-time pastor have found it necessary to combine with some other church or churches in order to pay a living salary. Every time this is done, some minister is left without an appointment. And so the demand for men for the ministry is not as great as it once was.

But while the demand is not as great as it once was for ordained ministers, there never has been a greater need for consecrated workers in the local church than now. The expanding program of the church has brought this about. If any one should be inclined to doubt this, let him look around about and see for himself. There was a time when there was not much going on around the church building except on Sunday morning. This was particularly true of the country church. The Sunday school was not largely attended and not many workers were required. But now the situation is different. It requires a large number of both men and women to fill the various offices of the Sunday school. The same thing can be said of Christian Endeavor, the women's work, and in fact all of the work of the church. In the local church there is the enlarged Board of Stewards, the enlarged choir, the various committees that are to render service to the community and to help make the church a real blessing to the people. Now it is in this enlarged program that every man ought to be able to find a place for work. It is true that he cannot make a living out of it, but he can do a great deal of good. And, in this work, men have a chance who might have some difficulty in going to school to prepare themselves for the active ministry. It is true that we shall always need ministers and well-prepared ministers. But the kind of training demanded of the modern minister is such that some people cannot meet the test. Since the standard of the school and college is being raised, it is but natural that a better prepared ministry should be demanded. We have great admiration for the men who in the past have gone forth without much training and have made good in the ministry, but knowing the demands of this age and what is expected of the present-day minister, we pity the man who has to go out without much training, for we know he is going to have a hard time. But while this is true, we do rejoice that there are so many opportunities in the local church for real work, work that can be made to count for a great deal.

But while there is a great need in the local church, some people have the idea that that work does not count for much. They seem to feel that if they had the other fellow's job and were out yonder somewhere, life would be one grand sweet song and they could do so much more good. This reminds us of a picture we saw some time ago of two mules in the pasture with a fence between them and each mule was reaching over the fence trying to graze in the other one's territory. To these mules the grass over yonder looked greener and tasted better. Each mule, perhaps, was tired of his own little pasture and wanted to get out. Men sometimes feel that way about it. But when they get out they are going to find that there are burdens to be borne, trials to be met, obstacles to be overcome, and that there is no easy place to serve. Christ, when He was on the earth, did not find an easy place. Wherever He went there were some scoffers and many that refused to believe. The same was true in the life of the Apostles. Persecutions awaited them on every hand, but in the midst of all this they rejoiced in that they were counted worthy to suffer for Christ.

Furthermore, the best way to be called to the field away from home is to be busy in the local church. When a man is prepared for service, some one is likely to find it out. The home church is a good place to get training. The pastor needs somebody quite frequently to be a "handy man" about the local church. The pastor can use him in the prayer meeting and in various ways that will be good training for future work elsewhere. But the one who discounts the work in the local church fails to get the training and experience that are necessary for the work abroad. So, if there is some one who wants to do service for Christ and cannot find a pulpit for all-time service, let him make one for himself in the local church.

West End Church, Greensboro, Celebrates Anniversary

On Sunday, September 22, the West End church in Greensboro celebrated its 18th birthday with appropriate services. In the rush of extra work last week we failed to tell our readers what we saw in the afternoon, but if the West End folks will forgive us for being a little late we will say it yet.

We were not able to be present at the morning service, but we were informed that they had a very fine address by Prof. Stough, superintendent of the Gibsonville schools. At the morning service also, we were told, a large offering was laid on the altar of the church by the Sunday school classes and individuals. This offering was said to be large enough to enable the church to make a considerable payment on the church debt.

On account of a previous dinner engagement we were unable to partake of the sumptuous feast at the noon hour. We were able to be present at the afternoon service and pronounced it excellent. The Young People's Choir, under the direction of that capable leader, Mr. L. M. Foust, rendered a number of choice selections. This choir has become so well known to our people who attend the Leadership Training School at High Point and to other people in our churches that it is hardly necessary for us to say much in their favor.

A brief, illuminating address on the work of the Sunday school was given by Mr. L. W. Routh, the superintendent. The figures given indicated progress, and we expect this school to measure up in every respect to its opportunity.

Mr. L. M. Foust gave a brief history of the Young People's Choir. The financial interests of the church were presented by the treasurer, Mr. F. S. Stockard. The work of the women was presented by the president of the Auxiliary, Mrs. S. H. Stapleton.

Dr. N. G. Bethea, the ever alert and energetic pastor, presided over the service in the afternoon and kept things moving as he usually does. Dr. Bethea expressed great optimism over the outlook for the church and predicted a great future for this growing organization. It was delightful to be in the presence of this good people and we came away happy because we had had this opportunity. We trust they may have many more such anniversary occasions.

South Side Church, Winston-Salem, to Be Dedicated

On next Sunday evening, October 6, at 7:30 o'clock, the South Side church in Winston-Salem will be dedicated, Dr. R. M. Andrews preaching the dedicatory sermon. The church building at this place has been erected about five years and meets the needs of this new congregation splendidly. This new member of our church family has had a hard struggle to come as far as it has come, but it has determination and courage and we predict for it continued success. The last Annual Conference attached this church to the Kernersville charge and gave to the charge the name Kernersville-South Winston. Rev. O. B. Williams is the popular pastor of this church and he and his people are to be commended for the fine work accomplished.

MEETING OF THE ANNUAL CONFERENCE

This is to notify all ministers, preachers, and delegates that the 108th session of the North Carolina Annual Conference of the Methodist Protestant church is called to meet in the Henderson Methodist Protestant church, Rev. L. R. Medlin, pastor, on Wednesday, November 6, beginning at 10:00 a. m.

THE CCC CAMPS AND THE SALE OF BEER

By Rev. Roy I. Farmer

Yesterday there came to my desk two bits of information so far apart in their ideals and yet so strangely combined that I cannot content myself without expressing what I hope will be a righteously indignant protest. Whether or not it is worthy of publication, you must judge. However, I submit the same to your worthy journal as one of the few in America which has not sold out to the use of John Barleycorn, Inc.

The magazine, The Bible Society Record, told of supplying Bibles and New Testaments to the CCC camp libraries and the young men in the camps. Some 2,500 such camps are composed of young men the majority of whom are between 18 and 25 years old. Many of them are as young as 16. A total of 105,000 Testaments has been provided for distribution by chaplains, the government providing transportation. It is a nationwide and valuable work.

But wait! To my amazement and chagrin another magazine, The Ohio Messenger, carried an article under this headline: "Authority for Sale of Booze Given Camps." It said, in part: "Boys in civilian conservation camps all over the country may now purchase beer from government stores operated in connection with these camps.

"On the excuse that 'beer is not considered to be an intoxicating beverage,' authority has come directly from Washington, D. C., giving camp commanders the option of offering beer for sale. . . . Boys in the CCC camps . . . offer fertile territory for the brewers in their 'educate the youth' campaign. . . . The booze interests are making amazing progress in their campaign to 'create the appetite' and recruit millions of drinkers among the young men and women of the country."

With aploogy to the Fillmore Music House, Cincinnati, Ohio, for paraphrasing and enlarging upon a song (published in "Quartets and Choruses for Men") entitled "Bibles and Beer," I hereby enter my protest.

Bibles and Beer

Over the land in their pressing necessity
Dwell the CCC boys both day and night;
We in their homeland with kindly charity
Reach out with longing to send them the Light.
So o'er the nation their good friends are speeding
Gladly to bear them the tidings of cheer;
But side by side with the Word of God, think of it!
Travels its foe, our American beer.

Bibles to teach them the way of salvation,
Lifting them up from the mire and the clay;
Beer to begin their demoralization,
Sinking them deeper and deeper each day.
What must they think of us, giving them double—
Hope from above and despair on their breath?
Filling their anxious hands that entreat us, giving
Bread of Life mingled with poison of death!

What a disgrace in it! what a sad pity!
Say, Christian voters, has this your consent?
Then tell me why, in town, village and city,
You are not working this shame to prevent.
Why do you work, shout and vote with the parties
Pledged, as you know, to this legalized sin?
Shame on a Christian land placing in youthful hands
Beer that is sold, with a Bible thrown in.

Bibles and beer! what a vile combination!
God in His love now combined with this booze!
Who ever heard of the like in creation?
Beer thwarting the will the Bible to choose!
What with need of real work instead of the dole
Mustn't those laddies consider us queer—
Needing food for the body as well as the soul,
We give them portions of Bibles and beer?

—Paraphrase and additions by Roy I. Farmer.

The expose of the brewers' wily raid upon American youth came from the protest of a California minister and filed with President Roosevelt. "The President has called my attention to the letter that you addressed him on July 15th," wrote Robert Fechner, director of emergency conservation work in Washington, D. C., "in which you protested against the selling of beer or any alcoholic liquors in civilian conservation camps.

"Beer is not considered to be an intoxicating beverage and the camp commander in each camp has the option of offering it for sale at the post exchange if, in his opinion, a practice of that kind is desirable," he continued.

O fie! "Not considered intoxicating!" But history says it was wine drunkenness in Rome, beer drunkenness among ancient Germans, and ale drunkenness in England which produced uncontrollable debauchery long before the introduction of distilled liquors. At least, beer drinking is the first step or entering wedge to the use of hard liquors. And the brewers know it!

Let Christian people everywhere protest indignantly this new outrage of booze-blight among youth. Speak against this sale of beer to CCC boys by writing to Robert Fechner, Director, Emergency Conservation Work, Washington, D. C., and lodging a copy of the same with President Franklin D. Roosevelt, White House, Washington, D. C.

Pray that our honorable President may yet say, as the president of Mexico has often said, "Drink is harmful." And pray that he may yet do what the little brown-skinned Mahatma Gandhi, of India, said: "If I were dictator of India, I would close all liquor shops." Brand drinking a curse, not a fashion.

WHY WE FAIL WHERE OTHERS SUCCEED

I fully agree with "Countryman" as to why our churches fail where others succeed.

I was pastor of a church once and there was a member of another church twenty miles away. This member agreed to move membership to my church with the hope that the husband would join with her. The pastor waited for weeks before answering, giving himself time to see the parties and persuade them not to move, finally writing that the husband was willing for her to remain where she was. The probability is that neither the church nor member will be worth anything to the other, and eventually the member will be lost to the church. Selfish pastors! "On numbers they depend," etc.

Some time ago I was pastor of a church in a certain town, and a man and his wife moved to that town, and in a few days the pastor of the M. E. church notified the parties that he had their church letters. This was done without the parties' knowledge of it. If our people would do the same it would save many to our church.

Another reason why our church fails where others succeed is that we do not have the background to draw from. Our churches are so sparsely settled that when we enter a new point, we have not the surrounding charges to draw from, as other stronger denominations have.

Another reason is that we have never developed a denominational consciousness. We ought to be proud of what we are.

ANOTHER COUNTRYMAN.

Miss Cleta Rich Receives Letter from Mrs. Rogers

Miss Cleta Rich, of our church at Asheboro, and a schoolteacher of considerable experience, sent to Mrs. Will Rogers at her Beverly (Cal.) home an article entitled, "An Appreciation of Will Rogers," which was printed in the HERALD some weeks ago, and from Mrs. Rogers Miss Rich received the following message: "The family of Will Rogers will hold in grateful remembrance your kind expression of sympathy." Miss Rich expects to keep this note with her treasured possessions.

With this week's article Dr. T. M. Johnson brings his series, "What the Bible Says," to a close. We are greatly indebted to Dr. Johnson for these very fine articles. We hope to have him write on some other subject later.

PEACE OR WAR—PROGRESS OR DESTRUCTION?

The other morning my newspaper carried on its front page the glaring picture of the world's largest battleship. Its dimensions were astounding, indeed, and startled my mind into many channels of thought as to our present situation in the world today.

From off the page leaped the statement that this great vessel of destruction cost its owners $30,000,000 as merely the first cost; and, of course, there must follow the extravagant monetary expenditure for its operation. Also this operation demands the skill and resource of nearly 2,000 of the finest young men of the land from which it hails. Now just suppose this fabulous sum had been appropriated for some great social or religious project—what a great comment of woes it would have stirred up in our ranks. But it is a warship and nothing can be heard but the thrilling sounds of the drum and fife.

As a patriotic citizen of my country and as a humble and interested observer of human history and human welfare, I wish to ask this challenging question of the world situation today, while the war clouds are hanging very low above us: Why is it that the human family, with the lessons of the ages at its back and the challenge of an enlightened future before it, can not see wherein lies the secret of progress and expansion for which all the nations seem to be clamoring? Why will mankind the world over cleave so passionately to this unruly monster called militarism which, because of its latter-day power, threatens to swallow itself and to destroy its most ardent supporter—man? One of America's ablest preachers recently stated that if a patriotic citizen of any nation wanted really to "protect or fight for his country," let him protect it against warfare and militarism.

As pastor of a very small village church, I have the great responsibility and high privilege of helping to lead and develop the religious and social life of my community. As worthy as the work of any church is of support, we find it hard to secure resources enough to enable the church to realize its many noble aims. Friends, may I say to you, I thrill with the thought of what we could do with $30,000,000 in the Kingdom founded by the world's greatest and wisest citizen—Jesus the Christ. Instead it is used to build machines for human destruction which men feel that they must have to protect them against their fears and prejudices of their brother-men from which the lessons of ages past should have freed them already.

God grant that we shall soon learn the simple logic of Jesus when He said, "He that taketh the sword shall die by the sword."

The question that is being asked most frequently these days is, "Are you ready for Conference?"

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord.

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

November 6th, Annual Conference meets at Henderson.

The Apportionment for Superannuates

If this claim has not been paid in full to date, please take it up with your churches and raise it at the earliest possible date. Send it in as soon as secured.

Finishing Up the Year

We discovered from pastors' third quarterly report that quite a number of churches persist in the old way of applying the money raised to several claims instead of one, so they now find themselves with some paid on possibly all five Annual Conference claims, but none paid in full. It is time now to finish up these claims. See to it that it is done. No church should fail to pay these claims unless it is absolutely impossible to pay them. There are several churches which still are indifferent to, or opposed to, employing real business methods in raising their conference apportionment, consequently they never get them up.

The Membership Gain Honor Roll

I want those churches which have had a net gain of 10 per cent or more in membership this year to report. Such churches we shall give a place of honor among the churches.

First church, Charlotte; Canaan church, Denton circuit, have reported.

The Pastor a Busy Man

Whatever difference of opinion there is as to the pastor as a busy man, all will agree that he should be busy. Most pastors I know have enough to do in their own pastorates to keep them engaged seven days in the week for the entire year. And those thus engaged in building up the kingdom of God are very sure to have good results from their toils. It is true, all pastorates are not alike; some more difficult to get things done in than others. But every one is a challenge to the pastor. If it is hard to get people to attend church, then that fact is a challenge to the preacher. He must go after his congregation. If it is hard to get them to pay money to the expenses of the church, then that should challenge him. The idea of a preacher quitting a work because it is hard is absolutely foreign to our Lord's conception of his duty. In fact, were it not hard, most difficult, our churches might get along without us.

The thought of place seeking is also foreign to our Lord's conception of our ministry. Admitting that it is fine to have a splendid church with fine, loyal members to support us, to do our every wish, is most fascinating. But some who seek such forget that this fine church, with splendid people filling the pews every Sunday, is not there by spontaneous growth. Some pastor labored hard, long and made great sacrifices to produce such. There are other churches where the same sort of labor, prayer, faithfulness, etc., will produce similar results. No preacher ought to seek a church because it pays better salary, has more congenial people to serve and a better parsonage to live in; he should seek a place to labor where he can do his best work. To labor among a people who can understand him, with enough of whom to respond to his endeavors to keep hope alive for future growth. And his labors should be confined to such a pastorate. It is all right to visit old friends, but the really busy pastor does not have ttme to gad around over the country between Sundays very often.

Group Meeting at Union Grove Church

This meeting was held last Tuesday. I was assisted by Bros. Johnson, C. G. Isley, and J. C. Madison. The high school principal permitted the students to attend the morning meeting, and the congregation in the afternoon did very well. Again we discussed the church, worship, essential beliefs, conference program and the general organs and institutions of the church. Our conviction in the benefits of these meetings is growing. It may be a slow process but a sure one, if by it more of our people shall be enlisted in the work of the church.

Concord Church, Saxapahaw Ct., Rev. W. M. Loy, Pastor

This church celebrated its 100th anniversary. There was a house well filled with members, former members and friends of the church. The program called for morning and afternoon services. I was sorry to have to leave before the afternoon program began. At this time a history of the church was to be read and I am sure many interesting incidents and events would be brought out. Doubtless Concord church has rendered splendid service to the community. And could its history be fully written, it would be most instructive reading. No church can continue for that period of time and not make a record worthy of our perusal. This is Pastor Loy's third year on this work and he expects it to close in its usual form, possibly better. Saxapahaw circuit should be one of our best charges in every way; it has some as fine people as the county affords as members of its churches. In the bounds of this charge arose one of our great leaders and church historians, Dr. John Paris. While not wealthy, we have people here as well able to support their church as their neighbors of other denominations. So, taken as a whole, Saxapahaw could well take her stand among the best rural group of churches. Is it a challenge so to be?

Eighth District Meeting, Rev. S. W. Taylor, Chairman

This meeting was called for the afternoon of last Sunday; it was held in First church, Asheboro. The following pastors belong in it: Taylor, Reynolds, Hill, Cowan, Trogdon and Henderson. Taylor and Reynolds were present. No one answered to the call for those present from churches outside Asheboro. It was a harmonious meeting. Those present were in sympathy with the projects of the denomination and are eager to see them succeed.

There are many places where such a meeting could prove of great value to the pastor and the people. This is no exception. The fact that it could be held so close to many of the churches which were not represented indicates something of their need of the meeting. Recently a pastor told me when he held the first quarterly conference of his new charge some of the officials said, "Now Bro. ——, we pay the delegate's expenses to the Annual Conference and the pastor's salary. That is all we pay." But he said they were doing better than that now. We have endured such localities too long for the good of the denomination. In fact, we can hardly claim to have a denominational consciousness in such communities. A church can be selfish in its attitude towards the whitened harvest which invites it as well as an individual who never thinks of anyone's need except his own. And a church will die of such selfishness as surely as a church member will backslide because of it. The kingdom of God just can not move by selfish motives or impulses. Neither can it make progress without the co-operation of those in position to lead. The district meeting is one gesture in the direction of growth, development. It should be accepted as a sign pointing towards better conditions in the church. In fact, there is really no hope of denominational expansion without co-operation.

KEEPING NEW MEMBERS INTERESTED

The supreme mission of the church is to be instrumental in saving souls and keeping them saved. Every program fostered by the church, educational, social, or recreational, should have for its object the saving of souls. When additions are made to a church it is the business of the pastor and church members, too, to endeavor to keep them interested in the church and its program. A leading layman said to the writer recently, "I believe that some who join the church while young actually forget that they ever joined." For a number of years the writer has thought that those who connect themselves with the church, especially children and young people, should be taught concerning the principles of Christian living and what it means to be a church member. This could be done every Sunday for two or three months. Extreme care should be taken, of course, in selecting the right person to do the instructing. Only those who are thoroughly Christian and orthodox should be selected. Failure to do something along this line has been the cause, perhaps, of many losing interest in the church and finally "dropping out" entirely.

This year the writer has received more than fifty members into his churches. He is anxious to keep them interested in the church and its program. Any suggestions will be appreciated.

WHAT THE BIBLE SAYS ABOUT HOLINESS

By Rev. T. M. Johnson, D. D.

It should be kept in mind that these studies on what the Bible says are not exhaustive, only suggestive. Also that they are not theological discussions, involving hair-splitting differences in the use and meaning of terms. However, it seems fitting that a brief statement should be made here with reference to the term "holy" or "holiness." As applied to the Supreme Being, to human beings, to things and places, the meaning of the term varies greatly in both meaning and degree of meaning.

As applied to man as a moral being it means separation from all things or practices that are sinful. As applied to an ecclesiastical official, as a priest, the term means one set apart to perform certain sacred rites, as the offering of sacrifices. As applied to things, as the altar or the priest's garments, it means set aside for certain sacred uses. As applied to places, it means the place is made holy by a holy presence, as the presence of the Holy One.

The Holy Presence Makes Holy the Place

"And when the Lord saw that he (Moses) turned aside to see, God called unto him out of the midst of the bush, and said, . . . Put off thy shoes from off thy feet, for the place whereon thou standest is holy ground." Ex 3.:4, 5. Made holy by the Holy Presence.

Again, "the captain of the Lord's host said unto Joshua, Loose thy shoe from off thy foot; for the place where thou standest is holy." Joshua 5:15.

Another instance is that of the "holy place" and the "most holy place" inside the Tabernacle, the two separated from each other by a curtain called the "vail," and made holy by the presence of the Holy One. The lid on the ark of the testimony was God's throne on earth as understood by the ancient Hebrews. This ark was kept in the most holy place, sometimes called the "holy of holies." "And thou shalt hang up the vail under the taches (clasps), that thou mayest bring in thither within the vail the ark of the testimony: and the vail shall divide unto you between the holy place and the most holy. And thou shalt put the mercy seat upon the ark of the testimony in the most holy place." Ex. 26:33, 34. God's presence there.

Holy Use Makes Holy the Things

That is, the holiness of things consists of the fact that they are set apart and dedicated for use in worship only and not to be used for any other purpose whatsoever. "And thou shalt make it an oil of holy ointment, an ointment compounded after the art of the apothecary: it shall be an holy anointing oil. And thou shalt anoint the tabernacle of the congregation therewith, and the ark of the testimony, and the table and all his vessels, and the candlestick and his vessels, and the altar of incense, and the altar of burnt offering with all his vessels, and the laver and his foot. And thou shalt sanctify them, that they may be most holy: whatsoever touchest them shall be holy." Ex. 30:25-29.

Then with the same holy oil, and in the same way as the things, was the priest to be anointed and set apart to perform the sacred rites by using the holy things in worship. "And thou shalt anoint Aaron, and his sons, and consecrate them, that they may minister unto me in the priest's office." Verse 30.

Then, too, that holy oil must not be used for any other purpose than that indicated above. It was holy, that is, set apart for that one sacred purpose and that alone. "Upon man's flesh shall it not be poured, neither shall ye make any other like it, after the composition of it: it is holy, and it shall be holy unto you. Whosoever compoundeth any like it . . . shall even be cut off from his people." Verses 32, 33. The very formula by which it was prepared was holy, and must not be used for other purposes. Such is the Bible meaning of holiness as applied to things.

An Extension of the Idea

Zechariah paints a beautiful pen picture of a condition when things generally, including the most common, shall be held as holy unto the Lord. The high priest, when on duty, wore on his forehead, engraved on a plate of gold, the inscription, "Holiness to the Lord." Ex. 28:36. The prophet evidently with that fact in mind wrote, "In that day shall there be upon the bells of the horses, Holiness unto the Lord; and the pots in the Lord's house shall be like the bowls before the altar. Yea, every pot in Jerusalem and in Judah shall be holiness unto the Lord of hosts: and all they that sacrifice shall come and take of them, and seethe therein." Zech. 14:20, 21. That is, the property and activities of men, the utensils and their use, all possessions shall be held and used as sacred trusts. They are the Lord's and they that possess and use them are the Lord's, and so regard their possessions and themselves.

People, Individually, Are to Be Holy

Speak unto all the congregation of the children of Israel, and say unto them, Ye shall be holy: for I the Lord your God am holy." Lev. 19:2. "Sanctify yourselves therefore, and be ye holy: for I am the Lord your God." Lev. 20:7.

"I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service." Rom. 12:1. "If any man defile the temple of God, him shall God destroy; for the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are." 1 Cor. 3:17. "A lover of good men, sober, just, holy, temperate." Titus 1:8.

Holy One—Holy Ghost

It is interesting to note that in the Old Testament the Supreme Being is spoken of as the "Holy One of Israel," occasionally by the Psalm writers, quite frequently by Isaiah, twice by Jeremiah, once by Ezekiel.

In the New Testament the "Holy Ghost" is used occasionally by each of the gospel writers, quite frequently by the writer of Acts (giving much emphasis to His work in the early church), and occasionally in the Epistles and Hebrews. Taken altogether, the Third Person in the Trinity figured largely in the thought and activities of the people who made and wrote the history of the early Christian church in the New Testament, incidentally emphasizing the importance of holy living on the part of the members of the church, hence preserving it as a holy institution.

OUR STORY PAGE

"SMILES AND FROWNS"

Edna came into the house, from the yard where the children were playing, and threw herself into a chair. The corners of her mouth turned down, and her lips pouted.

"What is the trouble?" asked mother. "Why aren't you out playing with the others?"

"They are all so mean to me," complained Edna, and the corners of her mouth drooped lower.

"They are," replied mother. "I wonder why." Then she said, "Come here, daughter."

Edna went slowly over. Her mother turned her slowly around facing the mirror. "Frown at the little girl in there," she said.

That was easy to do, for Edna felt just like frowning. And of course the little girl in the glass frowned back at her.

"I wonder if you can make her smile to you," asked her mother.

Edna smiled the least little bit at that, and watched the glimmer of a smile come in the glass. It began to seem funny, and she laughed out. So, of course, did the little girl in the glass.

Her mother smiled to hear the laugh. "Do you know," she said, "that your playmates are very much like the little girl in the glass? If you frown at them they are very apt to frown at you. But if you smile at them they are almost sure to smile at you. Now run out of doors and see how many you can make smile."

Five minutes later there was nothing but merry, smiling faces outside.—Dew Drops.

WHAT MAKES A MAN

Denny curled one of his little legs underneath his small body and dropped his small rosy cheek into his hand.

" 'Course," he said, "there's the old box to fill. Always is an old wood-box to fill when Saturday comes. If Ma only thought so, she could fill it herself and let me do something that'll make a man. Ben Lee says it's doing stunts and going fishin', and things like that, makes you a man."

Then suddenly Denny straightened his shoulders. "I'm going to do something toward being a man," he said. "I'd like to ask Pa the best thing to do, 'cause he'd know. I s'pose I might as well go fill that old box."

When he reached the kitchen he found his mother and Aunt Sue there. The very first words that his mother said were: "Denny, I wish you'd hurry with that wood, and then Aunt Sue wants some peas. You'll have to get them for her, dear."

So, when the wood-box was full, Denny gathered the peas and started back to the house. Aunt Sue started to meet him and smiled as she said: "Mother's half sick, Denny, boy. Try to help her as much as you can today."

Denny looked this way and that. Across the field the boys were doing stunts. Beyond the hill Ben and the other boys were fishing. Then he swallowed twice, very hard. But, of course, if she was sick—then he marched up the path to the house.

After the peas were shelled, there was a stack of baking dishes to be wiped. He noticed how white his mother was, and he said: "I can wash those dishes as well as wipe 'em, if I am a boy. You go and lie down. I'll stay around and answer the door."

When he caught sight of the look that came into her eyes, it seemed at once as if he was at least two inches taller. The dishes done, he wandered into the garden and weeded a while. "Might as well," he said, "as long as I've got to stay around; then I won't have to do it tonight."

Before he knew it he was whistling. It seemed to him that he never felt so good. He had no idea it was five o'clock until he heard some one say, "Mother's been telling me our boy is the best thing ever." Looking up, he saw his father holding out his hand. "Denny," said he, and something in his voice made Denny wink very fast, "here's my hand to the lad who's on the straight, sure road to becoming a man."—Unknown.

A PRAYER IN THE PILLOW

One night the mother of two little girls was away at bedtime, and they were left to do as they would. "I'm not going to pray tonight," said Lillian, when she was ready for bed.

"Why, Lillian!" exclaimed Amy, with round eyes of astonishment.

"I don't care; I'm not going to. There isn't any use."

So she tumbled into bed, while Amy knelt and prayed. The little prayer finished, and the light extinguished, Amy crept into bed. There was a long silence; then Lillian began to turn restlessly, giving her pillow a vigorous thump and saying crossly, "I wonder what is the matter with this pillow?"

Then came a sweet little voice from Amy's side, "I guess it's 'cause there isn't any prayer in it."

A few minutes more of restlessness and Lillian was out of bed and knelt in prayer. Then all was quiet and peaceful, and the two little girls slept.

Dear children, is there a prayer in your pillow and in your heart when you go to sleep at night?—Publisher Unknown.

"TRY IT ON ME"

An influential lawyer once rose in a meeting of Mr. Earle, the evangelist, and said:

"I have often heard of the power of prayer, but I don't believe a word of it. If you want to test it out, try it on me."

The evangelist invited him to come to the front, but he replied: "I will do nothing of the kind; but, if you have 'power in prayer,' try it on me."

In closing the meeting, the evangelist urged all present to pray for the lawyer, at an hour named, and asked the lawyer to note the fact. On the third day that lawyer was crying to God for mercy; and, selling his law books, he became an eminent minister of the gospel of Christ.—The Alliance Weekly.

Clothing and Other Gifts

Mr. Clark Kirkman, Tabernacle, Tabernacle, 8 bags of flour. Some good friend left two bushels of pears for us at S. S. Hauser's store in High Point. Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Dixon, 4 bushels pears.

We are thankful for all these gifts. The flour reported above was a timely gift, and about 50 farmers like that would furnish about biscuits enough for our children for the year. Grain of any kind will be helpful to us. So when the women of the various charges get together their canned goods for the Home, please see that it is accompanied by grain and potatoes. Chickens will also be gladly received. It takes 20 chickens to make us a Sunday dinner.

Please look well to the October offerings, and help us to make the best report ever. We thank you. Yours in His service,

A. G. DIXON, Superintendent.

MRS. J. J. CRAWFORD CHANGES ADDRESS TO CHAPEL HILL

Mrs. J. J. Crawford, who for a long period of years has been one of the leaders at Orange Chapel on the Saxapahaw charge, is changing her address from Teer, N. C., to R. F. D. 1, Chapel Hill, N. C. No, she is not a student at the university, neither is she moving her place of residence, but the postoffice at Teer is being discontinued and she will be served by rural carrier from Chapel Hill. She informs us that the preachers have not done a very good job in eating the chickens which she informed us some time ago she was raising for them.

"ISAIAH PORTRAYS THE SUFFERING SERVANT"

The International Sunday School Lesson for October 6, 1935

By REV. J. ELWOOD CARROLL

Scripture Lesson—Isaiah 52:13 - 53:12.

Golden Text—"With his stripes we are healed."—Isaiah 53:5.

For our last quarter this year we shall study some "Later Prophets and Leaders of Judah." And for today we focus our attention upon the gem of all Old Testament prophecy—Isaiah 53. This passage is so true to the facts of Jesus' life that unless we knew otherwise, we would suppose it to be written fresh after Calvary instead of before it.

Jesus is pre-eminent in our minds so much so that we tend to forget that God spoke vividly to men before Jesus' earthly life. Let your mind recall the great spiritual giants of the pre-Christian era — giants like Abraham and Moses. Put along beside the Patriarchs these prophets and leaders of Judah in her later years.

The latter section of Isaiah (chapters 40-66) is made famous by the prose-poem picture of the suffering Servant in chapter 53. At the time of its writing, chapter 53 was a picture hung on the wall of a sensitive soul. For five centuries that great portrait remained prophecy; but in Christ it became historical fact. The human who conceived the portrait did not live to see it become flesh, but a distant generation did. Millions since have found salvation through the Servant and now thank God for the prophetic picture of Him.

This literary portrait falls into five divisions. Rightfully the last three verses of chapter 52 should be included in the passage. The Revised English version gives the passage in poetic form, composed of five strophes, each increasingly longer than the first. By making five divisions we thus have each section to begin with the principal words of that division. (1) The first division (verses 52:13-15) opens with the words, "My Servant shall prosper." These words form a statement of the first great thought and also a summary of the entire passage. (2) The second division (53:1-3) begins, "Who hath believed." Here the thoughtlessness and unbelief of them who saw the suffering of the Servant without understanding its meaning are condemned. Surely Christ died, not instead of us, but in behalf of us. His death does not relieve us from sacrificial suffering but challenges us to it. (3) "Surely our sicknesses" fitly entitles the third section (53:4-6). This is no magic formula for salvation. It is "the Way" traveled not only by Jesus to prove that He meant business by a life of love, but must become in our lives our way to the Father. (4) "Oppressed yet he humbles himself" is the thought of the fourth division (53:7-9). The Servant is put on the wheel of man's sin and broken. A great soul bears suffering without complaining. The real Christian never brags about his sacrifices. He is too grateful to God for them as opportunities to do the Father's will. (5) Thus "Jehovah had purposed" to reveal His love to men (53:10-12). We are again in the general theme of division one and the entire passage.

Questions for Discussion

1. What forms did Evil take in causing Jesus to suffer?
2. Is personal "love" sufficient in itself to build the kingdom of God?
3. Does this portrait of Jesus leave in any way a false impression in your mind of Him? Why? Why not?
4. Is this portrait a true representation of the Hebrew conception of suffering at that time (500 B.C.)? Compare it with Job 1 and Psalm 1.
5. If a man undertakes today to live thoroughly Christian, what opposition will he encounter?
6. How do we "oppress" those today who try to reform our conditions?
7. Can you cite instances in American history wherein a person sacrificed in behalf of others?
8. Have you sacrificed anything for God's kingdom?

NINTH DISTRICT RALLY

Dr. J. D. Williams, chairman of the ninth district, makes the following announcement concerning our final district rally:

The ninth district will hold its final rally of the year at Lebanon M. P. church of High Point on Sunday, October 13, program to begin at 2:30 p. m. An outline of the program follows:

Program Theme—"The Ideal Church."

Devotional—Rev. T. A. Williams.

Well-prepared special music will constitute a part of the worship program. Each speaker is to have only 10 minutes at his disposal. By this we hope to assure our people that the program will be brief and interesting. Dr. J. D. Williams, chairman of the district, will preside over this service.

J. C. MADISON.

FIRST DISTRICT RALLY

What is the Methodist Protestant church doing toward Christianizing America?

We will endeavor to answer this question at a rally of first district, to be held on Thursday, October 24, at Eden church, Halifax charge.

There will be brief addresses on the following subjects: On Toward a Christian America, Alvin Drew School, Dillonvale, Homes for the Aged and Working Girls, Bethel and Children's Homes, Methodist Protestant Literature, and our Methodist Protestant Colleges.

There will be an offering taken for the Children's Home.

I want to urge the people of first district to attend. The program will appear later.

MRS. R. M. ROBINSON.

MRS. D. S. COLTRANE PREPARES PAPER

Mrs. D. S. Coltrane, of Grace church, who is a descendant of the Lowdermilk family prepared a paper on the life of Rev. E. G. Lowdermilk to be read at the Lowdermilk reunion at Pleasant Hill church on the Why Not charge last Sunday.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Shiloh, Liberty Charge.—We were glad indeed to have with us Mr. W. P. Pickett, who has been sick more than two months.

We had our annual Sunday school picnic September 7. Those present enjoyed the fellowship together.

Some of our young girls are away at college. Misses Clarice Whitaker and Helen Henderson are at Woman's College, Greensboro. Miss Lucy Evelyn Whitaker is at Mars Hill.

Our birthday offering for the Children's Home amounted to over $14.

Our pastor, Rev. F. R. Love, preached the fourth Sunday morning at 10 o'clock, using for his text Acts 2:16.

The next Ladies' Aid meeting will be held at the last of the month at the parsonage at Liberty.

The all-day song service was enjoyed by a large number at our church Sunday.

Miss Pauline Whitaker is improving.

Octavia Gilmore, who had her tonsils removed Saturday, is getting along fine.

Our people got two dozen cans from the Children's Home nearly two weeks ago to fill and return later. REPORTER.

◆

Mebane.—We observed Rally Day in the Sunday school Sunday. Quite a nice program was put on by the committee. A large attendance and good offering. Our revival services closed Sunday evening. Rev. Luther Medlin, of Henderson, has been doing the preaching. He is a very pleasing and most interesting speaker. His messages were plain and to the point. The church was revived and three joined the church. The services were well attended. The pastor was quite a help in directing the choir, making the music better and always suitable to the message. His solos were appreciated. We hope Mr. Medlin comes again. A number of our people have been on the sick list but all are out again. Mr. W. A. Shanklin is suffering with an eye. It is feared he will lose the sight.

The Auxiliary met Monday night at the church. Circle No. 3 gave the program. The devotions were entirely music, scripture. prayer, etc. An increased attendance was gratifying.

Quite a number of the Hebron people attended our services at different times, we were pleased to note. Miss Bessie Barnette, of Greensboro, spent Sunday at home.

MRS. H. C. N.

Calvary, Greensboro.—Rally Day will be observed in all our departments next Sunday morning in Sunday school. It will also be observed at the 11 o'clock service. A special Rally Day program will be presented Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock. This service will take the place of the regular preaching service.

Our missionary circles will meet Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock as follows: No. 1 Mrs. J. W. Swain, 1006 Martin street; No. 2, Mrs. A. E. Causey, 411 Whittington street; No. 3, Mrs. E. D. Overcash, 113 Wilson street. The Business Women's Circle will meet Monday evening at 8 o'clock with Mrs. L. W. Gerringer on Bellevue street.

Mrs. C. F. Garrett will be hostess to the Friendly Sunday school class at her home, 507 Andrew street, Tuesday evening at 7:30.

Mrs. M. H. Greer, who has been seriously ill for several days, is much better now.

The women of our church as well as several of our men had a very busy week last week working at our booth at the fair. We had a very successful week and feel well paid for our hard work. We have learned that Dr. Pritchard can do things other than preach good sermons and edit a church paper. He proved himself a first-class dish washer during rush hours at our booth last week.

At a recent meeting of the Baraca Class the following officers were elected: J. C. Coe, teacher; Hester Causey, assistant teacher; T. B. Waugh, president; Calvin Smith, first vice-president; J. P. Hinshaw, second vice-president; H. W. Highfill, secretary and treasurer, and the Lookout Committee is composed of J. W. Tucker, chairman, and W. L. Caudle.

The Christian Endeavor City Union will hold its quarterly mass meeting Tuesday evening at 6:30 o'clock at the Calvary hut. The meeting will be presided over by Miss Alma Taylor, president. Carl Jones, Jr., chairman of the program committee, has arranged a very interesting program for the evening. Following the supper, Rev. Donald Kleiss, D. D., pastor of the Community church, will speak. Readings will be given by Dr. N. G Bethea, pastor of West End church, and Miss Mary Scott Jones.

Mt. Pleasant Business Girls' Circle.—Miss Edith Smith was hostess to the Business Girls' Circle at their September meeting Saturday night, September 21. Mrs. E. H. Thompson conducted the devotional service, and the rest of the time was taken up with a discussion of business matters, including raising money for the flower fund and making plans for the chicken dinner which will be held early in October at the Nathanael Greene gymnasium.

Mrs. Coley Shoffner and Mrs. Carl C. Curtis will be joint hostesses for the next meeting at the home of Mrs. Shoffner.

Union Grove Church, Mocksville Charge.—Tuesday morning, September 24, beginning at 10 o'clock, the group meeting was held here. The purpose of this meeting was to tell the people more about the church and its beliefs.

The first speaker for the morning service was Rev. Clay Madison, pastor of First church, High Point. He spoke on the "Worship Service of the Church." Immediately after Rev. Mr. Madison's address the audience was favored by a quartet.

The second speaker for the morning service was Rev. C. G. Isley. His address was on "What a Church Believes." Prof. Wolfe brought all the high school student body down to the church for the morning service.

In the afternoon Dr. Andrews, president of the conference, was the first speaker. We followed him along the line of "Church Membership." He said the church must grow, serve the community, and financially support the church for it to be successful.

The last speaker for the day was Dr. Johnson. His address was on "What a Prevailing Church Should Know."

I'm sure all that heard these splendid addresses went away from the church with a better understanding of the church and its beliefs.

Bethesda, State St.—Our Sunday school has been progressing nicely this summer with the best attendance and interest we have had for some time. But we were all made sad a few Sundays ago when our faithful superintendent, Mr. C. L. Wagner, put in his resignation as superintendent. He has filled this place for the past 10 years, missing only one in this time. We really felt like we couldn't give him up, but he felt like it was best to change and promised to co-operate with whoever was elected and help in every way possible. The church, after right much debate, accepted the resignation and elected Mr. J. O. Everhart to fill the place. We wish for him the best success. He asks for the cooperation and prayers of all the church people that the work may continue to grow.

Our pastor was with us the fifth Sunday with a very inspiring message. Officers of the church were elected at this time.

Our C. E. Society has done good work. Their cotton patch which they planted on the parsonage lot is white. They are expecting a nice sum from this.

We have our India quilt square ready to turn in. MRS. J. O. EVERHART, Reporter.

Concord, Saxapahaw Charge.—This church observed its 100th birthday Sunday, which was a very enjoyable day to all those present. Sunday school was opened as usual at 10 o'clock. Dr. Andrews, president of the Annual Conference, was with us at the 11 o'clock hour. He brought to us an inspiring message and gave to us the challenge that the generation that now exists will have to do better and be better than those who have passed on in the last century if the church stands in the future. We are proud of the fact that we are members of a church that has stood for these many ages, and it is up to us to meet the challenge that is before us and see that it still stands during the days to come.

We appreciate very much the splendid selections the Central quartet gave to us in the morning service.

The history of the church was read in the afternoon by Miss Edith Guthrie. This was of much interest to the people present.

Mr. Sam Cates, of Mebane, also made a very interesting address. Although Mr. Cates is not a member of this particular church, he is from this community.

We were glad to have Rev. G. W. Holmes and Rev. T. J. Whitehead, both former pastors, with us to bring to us a message. Both were well enjoyed by the congregation, for they were so vital and fitting for the occasion. And not forgetting the timely remarks made by our pastor.

We were glad to welcome visitors from other churches, and hope they will come again when they can.

The following nominating committee was appointed to nominate officers for the coming year, which will be elected Sunday morning:

Mr. Neil Hargrove, chairman, Mr. R. T. Woody and Mr. M. W. Curl.

Conference will soon be here and we realize that we have much work to do to bring us up to where we would like to stand at conference.

We are sorry to report that Brother J. L. Davis does not improve.

Our Sunday school is going very nicely for the fall months. Hope that we may be able to do much better work in the future.

BESSIE COBLE, Reporter.

Granville Circuit.—Since our last report to the Herald we have put a new cover on the parsonage, so it is not leaking any more, and we have made some other improvements around the parsonage. We have also put a new cover on Mt. Carmel church, and painted the floor, put in new tracking in the aisles, varnished the furniture, and we expect to paint the outside soon. At Union Chapel we have covered the church, and we have almost enough money made up to put two new coats of paint on the outside. We expect to begin this next week before this comes out in print. The Missionary Auxiliary at Union Chapel has put new tracking in the aisles, and bought 50 new song books.

We began our revival services at Mt. Carmel church on the second Sunday in September. Bro. Cranford came to us on Monday and did the preaching until the close on Friday night. He brought good, soul-stirring messages each time, and I think much good was accomplished.

We began our revival services at Union Chapel on the third Sunday in September. Rev. T. M. Johnson, D. D., came to us on Monday and did the preaching until the following Sunday night. Dr. Johnson brought good gospel-filled messages from time to time, and much good was accomplished. We had seven conversions and seven accessions to the church.

We will begin our revival services at Rehoboth church on next Sunday, October 6, at 11 a. m., and will continue through the second Sunday night.

We are busy trying to wind up the year and get ready for conference, so until then good-bye. C. L. SPENCER, Pastor.

Alamance Charge.—A very pleasing children's service was rendered at Center last Sunday night, consisting of songs, recitations, and a beautiful pageant. This service was postponed some weeks ago because of the infantile paralysis scare. Plans are already made for rally services at Rock Creek and Bethel, and we hope that Center and Sapling Ridge can hold these services before conference.

Bethel church has just been re-covered with first-grade asphalt shingles, made possible by a donation from Brother Albert Foust. The members also plan to completely work over the interior of this large auditorium. Recently new Cokesbury hymn books were purchased here, making it possible to carry out the regular order of service.

Brother Amos Richardson recently celebrated his 79th birthday and Mrs. Meacham Lindley her 94th. These choice characters rarely miss a worship service at Center. A fine example for younger people.

The fourth quarterly conference will be held at Bethel on Saturday, October 12, at 1:30 p. m. Brother Lonnie McPherson has kindly consented to make an address on stewardship before the business is transacted.

We miss the following of our number who are off in college: Messrs. Vaughn Boone, Owen Lindley, Vernon Braxton, Ervin Workman, and Misses Evelyn Lindley and Charlotte Hallman.

Mrs. George Roberson, of Bethel, wife of our choir leader, is in the hospital seriously ill. Mrs. Dewitt McPherson has just returned from a Durham hospital. We hope that both of these ladies will be restored to health.

We are glad to report that Alamance charge has had a net gain in membership of more than 10 per cent this year. Others will join before conference. Every effort is being put forth for a good financial report at conference.

Mr. and Mrs. H. K. Webster have our thanks for a fine quantity of scuppernong grapes. H. L. ISLEY.

Rankin Memorial.—The day to which we have looked forward for so long is almost here. On the coming Sunday we are planning to hold services in our new church. However, our "big day" will be on the following Sunday, when our pastor, Rev. Edw. Suits, can be with us at both the morning and evening services. We are so proud of and so thankful for our new church, and it is with the greatest of joy that we start holding our services there. We can not express in words our thankfulness to our pastor for all he has done for this church.

We were delighted to have our former pastor, Rev. C. H. Hill, in the Sunday school on the past Sunday; also Mrs. Hill. We are always glad to have our old friends visit us.

On Sunday evening several of our members went over to Thomasville to the West End church, where our pastor is beginning a revival. We were glad to have this opportunity of worshiping with them.

Our Ladies' Aid Society held a chicken supper on last Saturday evening and realized a good sum.

We are hoping that all our organizations will take on new life now that we are going into our new church and that they all will do more real work than they have been doing.

Pray for us that our work may go forward here and that we may accomplish much for Christ. REPORTER.

Mill Grove, Midland Charge.—Last Sunday, September 29, the 15th district rally was held at Mill Grove. Churches in this district are Midland charge, Roberta, Concord, Kannapolis, Friendship-Porter, and Albemarle. All were represented except Albemarle. Speakers and their subjects were as follows: C. M. Misenheimer, welcome; O. B. Furr, church paper; Rev. Earl Cook, from Roberta, superannuates. Dinner on the grounds. Afternoon services: Rev. W. D. Reed, from Friendship-Porter, Annual Conference expenses; Rev. J. H. Trolinger, Midland charge, Children's Home; Rev. Aubert Smith, from Kannapolis, High Point College; last speaker, Rev. D. I. Garner, from Concord, church extension. We had a very good day, enjoying all speakers' talks on their subjects. We also had some special music, our quartet and singing from Concord church. We welcome each and every one back with us again. The next district rally will be at Friendship church, so I understand. Let's all be there and make another good day. Just what date, so far as the writer is concerned, is unknown, but will be announced later.

I call the attention of all, just about 30 days to finish up our year's work. We are behind with pastor's salary. People, please give this a serious thought. We must pay the debt of the church. The pastor's salary is one of the most important things we have to look after. Have your money ready when the steward calls on you. It will be appreciated if you will see the steward without having to be called on.

First Church, High Point.—First, the writer would like to express her sincere appreciation to the assistant reporter, Miss Grace Koonce, who so graciously consented to report the activities of this church during the summer months. Now that she is again teaching, the reporting vacation of this scribe comes to an end.

Of special value to the church since my last report has been the ministry of flowers. The circles of the Woman's Auxiliary in rotation furnish flowers for the altar. The church has been the recipient of many lavish gifts of flowers, and most artistic arrangements of them. On one occasion this reporter sat directly in front of two people, evidently newcomers, who whispered quietly, but loud enough to be heard from the pew just in front of them. This was the comment: "Do you see those flowers?" "Yes, aren't they beautiful? Whoever arranged them was an artist!" "I'm coming to this church again. I'm sure I'd like people who love their church enough to do that much for it!" Perhaps many who have devoted their flowers to church altars have not realized the value of it.

The Woman's Auxiliary has experienced a severe blow in the resignation of the president, Mrs. C. C. Robbins, on account of her health. We have been very fortunate in securing Mrs. C. L. Whitaker for president for the remainder of the year.

The annual fall thank-offering service was observed at the morning worship service September 29. Rev. Mr. Madison preached a very timely sermon on the subject, "The Harvest Is White." The offering amounted to $20.

Absence of children from all services during the summer materially lessened the attendance of adults also, but now with the lifting of the ban we seem to be in an entirely different atmosphere.

We welcome the students and faculty of High Point College to our services again. At the same time we regret that the opening of the graduate school of Duke University makes us have to give up Mr. C. L. Gray, Jr., who has been a valuable addition to our choir during his vacation.

At a recent worship service Mary Lane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Ballard, and Patricia Kay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Vance, received the rite of infant baptism.

An experiment is being tried for Sunday evening services. A program committee is selecting subjects whose discussion have a tendency to meet special needs of our day, and they are being discussed by speakers who in the discretion of the committee can best deal with them. The audience is permitted to enter into the discussion after the speaker has presented his views. The discussion on Sunday evening, September 29, was led by Mr. O. A. Kirkman on "No One Wants to Be Christian."

Promotion Day has just been observed in the Sunday school, and a pageant is being prepared for Rally Day which we will observe on October 6 in the Sunday school auditorium at 9:45 o'clock.

We are very glad to report that Miss Lou Pickett, who has been in a local hospital since June 30, when she broke her hip, is able to be at home on Steele street again; and that Mrs. W. P. Pickett, who has been ill since early June, is able to sit up most of the time.

We regret that Mrs. T. T. Ferree is confined to her bed. These are three of our oldest members. Miss Delia Barker has been unable to be out for some time. Captain Rankin has been on the sick list also, but seems to be improving.

MRS. R. M. ANDREWS, Reporter.

Haw River Church, Glen Raven Charge.—Our revival meeting began September 18 and ran through September 27. Dr. Paschall. of First church in Burlington, was the pulpit help. He did all the preaching except the 11 o'clock hour Sunday morning. Dr. Paschall's preaching was splendid, and was enjoyed by all who attended the services. The church was very much revived. We had several conversions. We feel very much indebted to Dr. Paschall and hope to have him with us again.

We are planning to install a new heating system to our church before cold weather.

The fourth quarterly conference of this charge declared Charlie Coble duly elected as delegate from this charge to the Annual Conference.

◆

First Church, Charlotte.—To begin with I wish to give God all the glory and credit for what I am going to relate in the following article. All I have is dedicated to the Lord for His glory, not only what small talents I may have but also my family and our meager earthly possessions.

I have been keeping and breeding pigeons ever since I was a small boy, in fact about 30 years. I now have some beautiful snow-white pigeons called White Kings, large birds weighing nearly two pounds each. They are real show pigeons and prize winners.

I knew a young man who was going to the devil and taking his family along with him. His wife had been led of God, as she stated. to attend our tabernacle services and had accepted Christ. She asked me to help get her husband to come to the meetings. I knew he loved pigeons, so I asked God to bless the gift and made him a present of two pairs of my best birds and he accepted them. I could tell he was well pleased with them, so I asked him if he would attend our tabernacle services if I would come for him and his family in our car. He said he would. At the appointed time I took my wife and we went for them. I don't claim any credit for myself, as I did nothing within myself but let God use me as He directed. We took them to the service and without going further into the details he accepted Christ and joined our church. He later testified that he was converted the minute I put my foot on his porch. I want to give full credit to his wife and other good people who were praying. I left my wife in our car while I went into his home. I don't believe this fine young fellow would object to me giving his name, so I am going to do it. Mr. W. Stephen Croft. Stephen, as we call him now, found Christ, and like Andrew of old went and got his two brothers and his sister and brought them to Christ. Gladys (Mrs. Croft) went and got her sister and brought her to the Master. Then they went after their neighbors and brought two fine young ladies, Misses Ruby and Sarah Allen, and their brother, Arnold, into the kingdom. All are now daily testifying and working for Jesus. A neighbor on the other side, Mr. Guy Helms, accepted Christ and has answered the call to the ministry and preached his first sermon in our tabernacle last Sunday night and through his exhortations several souls were saved.

Stephen and Gladys are both a power for God now. Gladys is treasurer of our Young People's Fellowship Club and doing a good job of it. The Fellowship Club holds two street meetings every Saturday night and both are always there with their testimony and personal work and are leading many to Christ.

There are others in our church doing wonderful work, but I cannot tell about them all now.

Last Sunday we had 340 at Sunday school, an all-time record, and 12 new members joined our church. May Jesus Christ be praised.

First Church, Lexington.—Although we have not had a report in many weeks, we certainly have not been asleep. In fact, we have been doing a great work. In the last stewards' meeting, which was held the second Tuesday night in September, means of building a new church or rather an auditorium were discussed and settled. We decided to buy the amount needed in shares of building and loan and each member responsible for as many shares as he or she wishes to have. We expect to begin this the first Sunday in October and hope to be a success.

Our fall revival, which ended last Wednesday night, September 25, was indeed a great success. The pulpit help was Rev. R. L. Vickery, of Littleton. He brought very inspiring messages each night that made every one learn to love him as if he were a member of this church. His sermons were delivered in such a way that anyone could understand them and which touched the hearts of every one listening. As I said in the beginning, we had a great revival. There were something like 47 conversions, most of these being young people.

The doors of the church were opened the last night of the revival and 16 new members were taken in, some of these by profession of faith and some by letters from other churches. We are happy indeed to have these new members and are sure they will be a great blessing to our church. The choir during the revival meeting was under the direction of Mr. B. F. Sink, of Lexington, and we had some wonderful singing. Special music was furnished during the meeting by various quartets, trios, duos, soloists, etc., and was enjoyed by the congregation.

Our Sunday school attendance is showing a steady increase, as is our preaching service, and we hope they will continue to do so.

Two recent marriage ceremonies of interest performed by our pastor, Rev. C. G. Isley, are those of Mr. James Mallard, son of Mr. J. J. Mallard, of Lexington, to Miss Mary Belle Talbert, also of Lexington, and Mr. T. D. Westmoreland, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Mestmoreland, of Lexington, to Miss Louise Miller. The latter couple were two of our new members taken in at the close of the meeting, and the church wishes both couples a happy and successful life.

We are sorry to relate the deaths of two of our members since our last report, Mr. Glenn Brown and Mrs. George Jones. The church wishes to extend its deepest sympathy to the deceased loved ones and relatives.

I wish to relate here of the proceedings of our C. E. Society at First church, as the people have not heard from the society in some time. At the present time the society is divided into two sides in which a contest is being held. The purpose of this contest is to raise money, and the purpose of this money is to buy song books for the church, something that we need very badly. The C. E. Society has taken the problem upon its shoulders to raise enough money to supply the church with song books and we hope that they will succeed. We also hope our C. E. Society will grow.

Last Sunday a committee of four men, Mr. J. J. Mallard, Mr. Roy Wallace, Mr. H. C. Koonts and Mr. J. H. Yates, was appointed to select officers for the Sunday school for the coming year. This committee will meet on Tuesday night of this week to select these officers.

The last thing I wish to report of interest is the program of the Crazy Water Crystals Company of Charlotte, N. C., which was held in the Lexington high school auditorium on Saturday night, September 28, sponsored by the Ladies' Auxiliary of First church. It was a great success, with the large auditorium being filled to capacity and the aid of both the firemen and the police of the city being called in to keep the crowds away from the doors. Of course this may sound like boasting a little, but it is true. The program was enjoyed by all who did see and hear it and will be held again next year.

Shiloh, Shiloh Charge.—Things look very favorable at Shiloh for a successful ending of the conference year. Our pastor gave a report a few weeks ago showing that most of the financial obligations have been met. Our Herald quota has not been reached, but special efforts are being put forth now by the C. E. Society to help our Herald agent reach the goal. All budgets are paid in full. Sunday, October 6, will be our day for the special tithe offering. Each member is asked to make some contribution.

The monthly prayer service was conducted by the C. E. Society. The subject for discussion was "The Courage of Jesus." The young people show a great interest in the church and are putting forth great effort to see the year ended successfully. The attendance was 100.

The Woman's Auxiliary held a meeting last Sunday with reports from all three circles. The work in brief is: Circle No. 1, Mrs. C. E. Ridge, chairman, 15 members, collected $63.51; paid out $52.84. Circle No. 2, Mrs. Raymond Fritts, chairman, 14 members, collected $225.98; paid out $229.68. Circle No. 3, Mrs. Floyd Leatherman, chairman, 17 members, collected $109.02; paid out $69.57. Total collected, $398.51; total paid out, $352.09. The Auxiliary budget is paid in full and they have taken the responsibility of raising the balance of Shiloh's part due on the McCulloch Memorial Fund. The fall thank-offering service will be held the third Sunday night in October.

Not only are the organizations doing good work financially, but show a great spiritual interest. We hope that no one will put too much emphasis on the material things, but that the spiritual part will still be held up and built even greater in the Master's service.

New Salem, Randleman Charge.—Our pastor held the revival meeting at this place the third Sunday in September. Rev. H. W. Bell, of Rockingham, was the pulpit help. There were nine conversions and six united with the church. The offering for Bro. Bell amounted to $25. We were very glad to have Bro. Bell with us and enjoyed having him in our homes and want him to come again. We were also very glad to have Revs. W. F. Ashburn and A. D. Shelton, of Greensboro, and Rev. M. C. Henderson, of Asheboro.

The Sunday school is moving along very well. The average attendance has been good all summer.

Since our last report we have bought new song books for the church. We are so proud of them. We have also paid the debt on the piano.

We wish to extend our sympathy to Mr and Mrs. J. H. Skeen, whose son passed away recently.

Mr. Fred Allred, of Worthville, has been elected delegate to the Annual Conference this year. MRS. R. F. WARD, Reporter.

Gray's Chapel, Randolph Charge.—Our revival meeting began the fourth Sunday in September and closed Friday night. There were 12 conversions during the meeting. Rev. J. M. Morgan, of High Point, who was our pulpit help, brought interesting and inspiring messages. We were glad to have Bro. Morgan with us and visit in our homes. We were also glad to have Rev. A. D. Shelton and Rev. G. F. Millaway during one service, the latter preaching a very helpful sermon. Mrs. Clark, of California, preached one sermon during the meeting.

Funeral service was held September 16 for one of our members, Mrs. J. M. Davis. Our church extends its sympathy to the bereaved family.

State Street.—The J-O-Y (Jesus first, Others second, Yourself last) Philathea class of State Street met with Mrs. W. T. Neal on Thursday, September 25. Mrs. J. F. Burkhart led the devotions. The business was presided over by Mrs. John Bax Leonard, the president. The attendance was large, including several visitors.

The group celebrated with Mrs. Neal her birthday. The teachers, Mrs. John B. Leonard, presented Mrs. Neal with a nice cake, which was sliced and served as part of the salad course of refreshments. It was the "Revealing meeting." The fun began when the members each started revealing who her "sister" had been during the past three months by describing her, and the other members guessing who from the description. Names were then drawn, one by each member, who would be her "sister" secretly for the next three months.

The interest was enthusiastic. The class will work to have 100 per cent present on Rally Day, Sunday, October 20.

CLASS REPORTER.

Pine Bluff, Midland Charge.—We are still getting along just fine. Rev. Mr. Jenkins brought us an interesting sermon last Sunday night at 7:30 o'clock. Everyone present enjoyed it. We had a very large attendance. We are planning to go over the top with our pastor's salary by the next quarterly meeting, which will be held at Pine Bluff church October 22. Dr. Andrews is planning to be with us on that night. We will surely be glad to have him with us.

We had service at our church last Wednesday night, a Bible class discussion, and we are planning to have it every Wednesday night. Our pastor will also be with us to discuss the Bible. Every one enjoyed this service.

SUMMARY OF THE FINDINGS OF THE FIVE REGIONAL CONVENTIONS

The separate findings of each convention were carefully mimeographed and distributed to each registered delegate. We have all appreciated the stimulating editorials on the subjects by Dr. Shipley through the columns of the Methodist Protestant-Recorder. We now give you a compilation of all of these findings by seven of our outstanding denominational leaders. We hope that these findings will be a great help to all who read, in constructing a more effective Christian program. All the conventions were organized into two commissions. The summary of each commission follows:

Building a Christian Person

(By Dr. J. C. Broomfield)

The Christian person is a new creation in Christ Jesus; begun in the new birth, and continued in the normal processes of growth in grace.

This new person will have a vital Christian experience; a strong faith in the Reality, Availability, and Adequacy of God; a Christian philosophy of life, which will determine his attitude toward himself, toward things, toward others and toward God; and a Christian hope for the world based on the scriptural promise of the ultimate triumph of righteousness.

The new person will deny himself the right to rule his own life; will accept doing the will of God as his major objective; and will follow Christ wherever He leads.

Out of such persons, and by such persons, a Christian order can be established, and a new world built.

We place ourselves on record as favoring every worthy effort to secure an open commitment of the individual to Christ; and every worthy agency used in building the individual into the fullness of the stature of the man, Christ Jesus.

Building a Christian Home

(By Dr. C. E. Forlines)

1. Its Nature. Neither a family without a dwelling place, nor a house without an occupant, is a home. A family in its dwelling place constitutes a home. For the home to be Christian the members of the family must be Christian. Certainly this, but it is not enough. Good materials do not necessarily guarantee a good building. The good materials must be suitably related. Though all the members of a family be Christian, this does not constitute a Christian home. The thought that it does is one of the great defects of our modern homes. If the home is to be Christian, the family as a family must engage in Christian worship and service.

2. Its Characteristics. The Christian home is grounded in Christian marriage. Such marriage is a civil contract and as such should be entered into under the official act of a Christian minister. But Christian marriage is much more than a civil contract. It is an act of God joining together in holy wedlock a Christian man and a Christian woman. Beauty is a second characteristic of the Christian home. Beauty is the revelation of an ideal in the real. The high Christian ideals for the home as they are realized in the actual home make it beautiful. Faith is a third characteristic. This involves mutual understanding, mutual trust, and mutual loyalty. A fourth characteristic is love. For the implications of love read the 13th chapter of First Corinthians.

3. Its Dwelling Place. It should be a good building, well furnished, and suitably located. It should be in a good community—a community made up of other Christian homes, and Christian churches, schools, and industries—a community which recognizes that its chief business is the rearing of children into Christian persons and which is devoting all its energies to the realizing of that great end.

Building a Christian Church

(By Dr. F. W. Stephenson)

We can build a better church only through a spiritual revitalizing of the body of believers. This will be achieved when it is more perfectly constructed on the foundation of the New Testament and Peter's inspired confession; when our services of worship are more carefully planned; when our leaders and teachers are more adequately trained; when our teaching and evangelism are lifted to higher levels; when our message, fellowship and ministry are so developed that they not only do something to individuals and society but they do something for them; and when such service projects are undertaken that opportunity will be given to manifest and express true Christian attitudes and beliefs.

Such a church will reveal to a confused and troubled world the actual ideals of the Christian way. It will create a faith in Christ which will find expression in His way of living.

Building a Christian Community

(By Dr. J. W. Hawley)

The very term "Christian community" defines our goal, and suggests a Christian purpose that, when we have discovered the needs of our community, will do something about it.

As Christians we must promote a social life in which the spirit of Christ prevails in every human relation. That the church is confronted with this responsibility is an unquestioned fact.

Some of the immediate tasks which present themselves to us are as follows: A careful survey to discover the actual conditions which prevail and our opportunities for helpful and co-operative service.

The creation of a wholesome social life through directed activities and the provision of Christian entertainment.

The elimination of undirected idleness through the employment of Christian leaders to supervise the social life of the community as a unit.

The purification of the movies by public opinion and legislative acts.

A co-operative relationship between the church and the school by which morals and temperance are taught daily.

The mutual sharing of all privileges and resources by all groups, overcoming racial discrimination, sectarian rivalry, and the inequitable distribution of wealth, natural resources, and opportunities.

Building a Christian Nation and World

(By Miss Bettie S. Brittingham)

Let us recognize that, calling ourselves Christians, we have not built a Christian nation or world. We believe that Christ's idea of the Kingdom of God is the only hope of the world in its total life, social, economic, industrial, and the missionary enterprise is a contribution to that hope. As Methodist Protestants we can assist in this work by carrying out our denominational program through all departments of the church. We deplore the fact that added leisure has led to increased drinking and crime, therefore we recommend that we use our influence in establishing reading rooms and providing wholesome social and recreational contact. We are eager that all races have equal opportunity and that there be a just distribution of the means of living. We recognize the importance of developing a peace consciousness. We believe that this is essential in abolishing war among the nations, and this can be done only as the individual practices the teachings of the Prince of Peace.

Training Youth Leaders

(By Dr. P. E. Lindley)

All commissions on "Youth Leaders" were as one in emphasizing the constant need of vital spirituality in the lives of the leaders themselves. Definite plans for devotion, meditation, and personal growth are everywhere to be encouraged. Dignity and high purpose are to characterize the leader; a love for people and a passion for service being at the center of his thought. Confusion and discord have no place among those who march at the forefront of youth, but a fuller understanding of the actual nature and needs of growing life is by all means imperative. It is affirmed that youth will yield to the impressive, the real, and the beautiful, finding the highest possible pleasures in a devotion to the highest interests of life. Ways must be found to attract the ablest among them, and technique devised to motivate their work. Organizational machinery will have to be more adequate in order to make effective a rich, comprehensive, yet flexible, program for young people. The mind of Christ is to be interpreted in all human relationships and definite conditions provided to make effectual such attitudes as neighborliness, good will, and world peace. All local plans are to be integrated with the ongoing program of the whole denomination.

Christian Leadership Education

(By Dr. Lawrence Little)

The relation between leadership education and the task of building a Christian world is most intimate and vital, and we would place primary emphasis upon our need for a more effective leadership in the work of the church. Just as our Master spent much time and energy in training His disciples, so must the present-day Christian church seek to better prepare those who are called to places of responsibility. The importance of an adequately trained leadership in the educational work of the church is increasingly recognized, but as yet the making of an adequate leadership training program is only in process. Because of the changing demands of life, no curriculum can be considered perfect or final. We have used the Standard Leadership Training Curriculum sufficiently long now so that we have discovered many of its weak as well as its strong points, and we would suggest more extensive experimentation with other types of curricula. We would recommend that our Board of Christian Education continue to support the International Council of Religious Education in its effort to build a more adequate program of leadership education and that increasing use be made of the new First Series and Second Series courses.

Miss Esther Gallimore and Mr. Dannie Garner were united in marriage on September 15 by the writer at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Gallimore. The ring ceremony of the Methodist Protestant church was used. Numerous friends and relatives witnessed the ceremony.

Mrs. Garner is the charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Gallimore and an active member of Canaan Methodist Protestant church.

Mr. Garner is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Garner, of Farmer, and brother of Mrs. P. D. Hamilton, of Denton M. P. church.

We wish for this young couple much success and happiness. J. T. BOWMAN.

THE BANKHEADS MOVE TO DANVILLE, VIRGINIA

Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Bankhead, two of Calvary's valuable members, have moved to 635 Jefferson street, Danville, Va. Brother Bankhead is a section foreman for the Southern Railway Company and has been transferred to a new section. We are sorry to lose them from Greensboro.

REV. W. F. ASHBURN ASSISTS IN MEETING

Last week Rev. W. F. Ashburn, of Greensboro, assisted Rev. T. A. Williams in revival services at Mitchell's Grove on the Guilford charge. A splendid revival was the result, with several additions to the church roll.

REV. AUBERT SMITH ENTERS DUKE

Rev. Aubert Smith, who has been serving the Kannapolis church and writing the Christian Endeavor notes, has entered the Duke School of Religion at Durham. This explains why the Christian Endeavor notes came from Durham last week instead of Kannapolis.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Moore

To have been the pastor of a man like Brother J. Dillon Moore, of the Fair Grove church, is one of the high privileges and long-to-be-remembered experiences of my ministerial career. Quiet, unassuming, genteel and a gentleman of the old school, he stood out prominently among the other men of his community. Brother Moore was one of those rare sweet souls that comes across the pastor's path, like a bright light out of a darkened window, the brillance of which is never forgotten.

During most of the six and more years I knew him and served as his pastor, he was a semi-invalid, being unable to attend church services often, and the impressions that have come from our friendship were gathered through frequent visits in his home, a place where we were always blessed and made just a bit more cheerful for the tasks of the parish. During these recent months I have missed him, the church will miss him more and more as the years come and go. But, missing his presence among us and his kindly counsel and lovely companionship tends to influence each one who knew him to live more worthily of such a sacred friendship.

Brother Moore lived that he might live forever, and had no fear of what men call death. It was no dark valley to him, for it became the avenue through which he passed into the presence of his Eternal Home, and there found the mansions for which, in recent months, he had so much longed for.

Buried from the old church he loved, and resting within the shadows of her walls, he awaits the day when Jesus shall call such as he to the Resurrection glory.

J. L. TROLLINGER.

Bartee

Midway church does not seem the same, neither will it be the same again, since Bro. J. W. Bartee went home early in the summer. Being one of the oldest members of the church caused him to be something of a landmark. This is to be expected, because landmarks should not be soon forgotten. But, somehow, it seemed to us that he was a little different.

In spite of the fact that he was almost four-score years of age, he was young in thought and spirit, and I almost said, and will say, in activity. The weather did not affect his habitual attendance. Like most people of his age, he always sat in the same place, and that within itself is an added inspiration to the man in the pulpit. Optimism was evident in everything he said and did. Tolerant of other people and their ideas, yet firm in his own personal convictions, and eager for new truth and a new and better way to express the faith that was his own experience.

The outstanding characteristic of this great and good man seemed to be his high regard for mankind. If "charity covers a host of sins," then many were covered by this man's attitude toward others. Finding no pleasure in criticism of others, but a great joy in pointing out the good in them, seemed to be a great force in his life. For almost seven years we were his pastor, and never once did we hear him say one unkind or uncharitable word about any one, and when some one else, consciously or unconsciously, would drop a word of unkindness, he appeared hurt within, and hastened to change the topic of conversation. More than once has he remarked to the pastor, "None of us are as good as we can be," and with such a consciousness he went about making himself better and lifting some one else into a larger experience of that which is good.

Last October Midway church was dedicated, free of all encumbrances, and no one was happier than Brother Bartee when that service had been performed. He had helped carry this burden with the same spirit other burdens were carried, and it seemed that when Midway was free again he too was free.

His going left more sad hearts around Midway than we can ever know, for all who knew him loved him, and the little mound that marks the resting place of his body is to us a shrine where devoted loved ones and friends stop for a short while during the weekly visit to Midway church. J. L. TROLLINGER.

Freeman

Jesse H. Freeman, son of W. S. and Mrs. Freeman, was born in Randolph county 44 years ago and passed to his eternal reward while a patient at Duke University hospital in Durham on September 26, 1935. For the past 20 years Brother Freeman had lived in Guilford county, and at the time of his death his home was about four miles south of Greensboro. He was a member of Moriah Methodist Protestant church and had the reputation of being a good, honest, hard-working man. He is survived by his parents, who live in High Point, and by his wife and four daughters and one son. Three brothers and three sisters also survive him.

The funeral was held at Moriah church on Saturday morning, September 28, and in the absence of the pastor, Rev. W. M. Howard, who has returned to school, was conducted by the editor of the Herald, assisted by Rev. E. W. Jones, of High Point, and Rev. J. E. Shaw, of Thomasville.

Troxler

Samuel Russell Troxler, son of Geo. R. Troxler and his wife, Sallie E. Cobb, was born April 20, 1876. He received his education at Elon College and later settled at the old home place near Brown Summit, and for nearly a generation served as rural mail carrier.

Brother Troxler joined Fair Grove Methodist Protestant church almost 50 years ago, and remained a staunch and consistent member until his death.

When we see a man facing inevitable defeat knowing full well that the thing encompassing his life, casting a sinister shadow across his path, bringing daily apprehension to those nearest and dearest to him, refusing him the privilege of the joy and happiness of life that are rightfully his—and in spite of all this he meets life with head erect and eyes sparkling with eagerness for, and his heart unafraid of, the conflict, we call him a hero.

Brother Troxler was so handicapped physically, and endowed mentally and spiritually. Those of us who spent that last long vigil by his bedside saw those distinctive traits living and fighting until the last. When the long looked for, yet much dreaded, end came, it came not as if a mighty warrior had fallen upon a defeated battle field, but rather as to a tired boy, who after a long, tiresome day of busy activity falls to quiet and restful sleep. He had lived among us and for us, and the power of that wonderful personality will not soon fade from our memories.

If it were mine to write his biography, it could be stated simply and eloquently and in few words. He was the incarnation of unselfish service to and for those whom he loved, and who loved him, and was never too tired or weary to give of his service to those who needed it. The outstanding grace is that of practiced and cultivated patience, made perfect through long years of physical suffering.

"In your patience possess ye your soul," were words fulfilled in Brother Troxler's experience. He taught us through example more than by precept what dynamics can be wrought through patience in all things.

We may be encouraged in the realization that we knew him, and knew that he had lived so that when the summons came a few months ago that he was not driven as a slave to his dungeon, but quietly wrapping the draperies of his couch about him, laid down to peaceful and pleasant sleep.

Russell Troxler is not dead—for to us who knew and loved him best, he can never die. He is resting after a long, weary and tiresome day spent in making the world a better place in which to live. His body rests beneath the cedars of Fair Grove cemetery, but his soul is marching on.

J. L. TROLLINGER.

Hutton

Mrs. Josie Hutton, 65, beloved wife of Rev. J. R. Hutton, of Greensboro, passed away at Clinic Hospital on Saturday evening, September 14, at 9 o'clock. Mrs. Hutton had been ill only a week and seemingly seriously ill only four days.

Funeral services were conducted from the home, 813 Spring Garden street, on Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock with Rev. J. Elwood Carroll, pastor of Grace Methodist Protestant church of which Mrs. Hutton had been a member since coming to Greensboro, in charge. Brother Carroll was assisted in the funeral service by Rev. W. F. Ashburn, of our denomination, Dr. J. E. Pritchard, pastor of Calvary church and editor of the M. P. Herald, and Rev. R. Murphy Williams, of the Presbyterian church. Interment was in Green Hill cemetery.

Active pallbearers were Dr. M. K. Hook, J. A. Smith, C. C. Fordham, A. Wills Staley, Dr. A. H. Johnson, and Norman Kirkman. The honorary pallbearers were J. Norman Wills, F. R. Stout, C. L. Pollard, and E. E. York.

Mrs. Hutton, a daughter of the late Peter Robert Coble and Elizabeth Fentress Coble, was born in Guilford county, near Pleasant Garden, January 7, 1870. She received her education in the Pleasant Garden school.

Besides her husband, the Rev. J. R. Hutton, Mrs. Hutton is survived by nine children: J. Laurence, Katherine, Frank R., Elizabeth, Fred, George C., Charles C., and Wilbur, of Greensboro, and Mrs. Wyatt Crews, of Winston-Salem; a sister, Mrs. R. C. Cox, of Greensboro, and nine grandchildren.

Mrs. Hutton had been a fine Christian woman all her life. For several years she was a member of Tabernacle church, then transferred her membership to Grace church about the turn of the century. Later she removed her membership to another church while not living in Greensboro, but upon her return to the city in 1912 she reunited with Grace church and remained a faithful member all her days. She gave herself unreservedly to her family which was established in 1888, and has reared a fine group of boys and girls. All of them are now adults and ready to take up the useful work which their mother had carried on so beautifully.

J. ELWOOD CARROLL.

"WE SUMMON THE CHURCHES"

At the now famous Stockholm Conference on Life and Work, attended by religious leaders drawn from all over the world, there was adopted a Message to the Churches which said: "We summon the churches to share with us our sense of the horror of war, and of its futility as a means of settling international disputes, and to pray and work for the fulfillment of the promise that, under the sceptre of the Prince of Peace, 'mercy and truth shall meet together, righteousness and peace shall kiss each other.'"

And so, in this world of crisis, the Federal Council summons the churches during the Armistice period to honor the nation's war dead by dedicating themselves afresh to the task of establishing upon the earth the Kingdom of God in which "mercy and truth shall meet together" and in which "righteousness and peace shall kiss each other."—From Federal Council of Churches' Armistice Day Programme.

MATERIAL THAT DOES NOT FIT

Quite frequently in making up the forms of the Herald we have some space that must be filled but the articles we have set up will not go in the space to be filled. Sometimes it is necessary to hold over such articles another week and use something that will go in the space available. Making up the forms of a paper is no easy task. We have found that there are many angles to the printing business that the inexperienced does not know about.

OUR ERROR LAST WEEK

Rev. Luther Medlin informs us that we were in error last week in stating that the Christian Endeavor notes were to be written by a different person each month, but that the same person would write for a longer period. We have not received the C. E. notes this week but hope Brother Smith will resume the writing of them for next week.

TO WEAVERVILLE

Mrs. D. S. Coltrane, Miss Brona Apple, Mrs. J. M. Stone, Mrs. E. W. Teague and Mrs. S. G. Walters left yesterday morning to attend the quarterly executive meeting of the Women's Work at Weaverville. Dr. Harris Glascock had planned to go but on account of illness she was not able to make the trip.

ALBEMARLE	99
GIBSONVILLE	95
MIDWAY	90

WELCOME to Albemarle! All during the year Albemarle has been steadily climbing and this week she nears the goal. When figured down to the fine points she has 99 and 9-19 of her quota. She lacks only 20 cents of being over. Well, it does seem that when a charge is that near out we might help her over, but if we do this for one we would have to do the same for some other charge, so we will put her up at the top of the column and let her stand there until further notice. And Gibsonville comes from third place of last week to second place this week. We are fully expecting her to finish the job right away.

Now for the receipts this week. Albemarle heads the list of contributors. Next in order is Spring Church charge. This charge is being chased closely by State Street, Lexington. This is another charge that is climbing by selling papers. Next in line is First Church, Burlington, even though she has long since gone beyond the goal. In fairness to Calvary we will say that if all her payments were grouped she would be in fourth place in the receipts column, but we credit the money to the person sending it in as well as to the charge, so Calvary's is broken up into three groups.

While the receipts are not as large this week as on some other occasions, yet the number of charges sending in something seems to be larger than usual. What we like to see is a large number of charges contributing.

The receipts this week amount to $45.40, all on subscriptions. This is little more than half our expenses and it will be necessary for us to reduce our small bank balance still further. It is now dangerously low and we shall have to pay service charge at the bank unless somebody comes to the rescue.

REV. C. B. WAY PREACHES WELL

The editor and his people were delighted with the splendid sermon which Rev. C. B. Way preached at Calvary last Sunday evening. While it had been our good fortune to sign two sets of licenses for Brother Way, one to preach and the other to show that he had been married, it had not been our privilege to hear him preach since he had been in the pastorate.

Is There a Place for the Church Paper?

In this day when the religious press is having a hard time keeping its head above the waves, financially, it might be well for us to think about the church paper, its place and its influence. During the past few years several of the old, well-established papers of the country have either been wholly discontinued or merged with some other publication. Because of financial difficulties, some good people have advocated a further reduction in the number of papers. Some have felt that the financial outlay could be used more advantageously in some other way. Some have taken the ground that in this busy age people do not have time to read all of the paper. Still others take the ground that only part of the paper appeals to them.

In answering these arguments it might be well to say that the church paper was never intended to be a money-making enterprise. In so far as we know, it has never paid large dividends financially. But it was not established with that in view. Those who have established church papers have realized from the first that the enterprise would have a difficult road to travel. But the church paper is a part of the educational program of the church. In some communities a local church publishes a paper in order to keep its members informed about its own work. But in the most of cases the cost is prohibitive, besides the paper has too much of a local aspect. While it is true that a local church paper is too restricted in its field, this is not true with the Annual Conference organ or the General Conference paper. These papers reach out and bring in the news from both far and near. And we might say that the church paper is an educational institution just as much as the college is. It is true that it does not confer degrees nor fit people to enter the university, but it does seek to inform people on the issues of the day and it seeks to let them know what is going on in the church as well as in the world. And the number of pupils in the school of the church paper is vastly larger than it is in the college. Only a comparatively few people can go to college. There are various tests to be met by those who would go to college. There is the scholarship test, the financial test, and the fact that some cannot be spared from the home. But this is not true in the matter of the church paper. Here the young and the old, the highly educated and the poorly educated can find something to inform them, something to inspire them to undertake larger things for the kingdom of Christ. Furthermore, what this great army of people back home know about the church they know largely through the church paper. Not many of them can make the rounds of the churches as the president of the conference does. They must stay at home and look after the work in the local church. What information they have concerning anybody else or any other church in large measure must come to them through the church paper. It is here that a bond of fellowship is formed between those who are engaged in the work of the church. The people on the Albemarle Sound read what the people beyond the Blue Ridge are doing and they learn to feel that they know these people. Even though they have never seen their faces and have never heard their voices, yet they learn to regard them as friends because they are associated together in a great task. What the average person in our church in North Carolina knows about the rest of our churches, our people, and our institutions, in large measure has been learned through the HERALD and the Recorder. How much poorer our people would be without this information. Then do you ask, Has it paid? Financially, no. Intellectually, morally, spiritually, yes, a thousand-fold. During the past year a number of articles have come to this office in praise of the great work which Dr. J. F. McCulloch did for our church. He did this work largely through the printed page. Comparatively few of our people ever heard Dr. McCulloch's voice or saw his face, but he visited them week by week and was an inspiration to them. No, we do not expect the church paper to pay in dollars any more than we expect High Point College and our Children's Home and our Mission Board to turn back large sums of money to the church. But it does pay in the lives that it touches, in the information that it carries from week to week.

Not only is the church paper an educational institution but it is the channel through which practically all of our other institutions and boards reach the people. When a campaign is to be put on for money, the church paper not only gets behind the drive and pushes, but it enables other people to do so. While we may be over-estimating the value of the paper, yet we do not see how the drives could be put across without getting the information out to the people and we do not know how this could reach the people to any great extent without the church paper. So, it is not just a question as to how much money the Annual Conference must put into the paper, but it is a question of the boards and institutions reaching the people with their appeals. It is a question of our people knowing something about what we are and what we have. It is a question of our people knowing something about each other, our friends in Christ whom we have never seen. It is a question of our people who cannot get far from home or who cannot go to the schools having the opportunity of informing themselves about the work of the church to which they belong.

Western Pastors' Federation Meeting

On Monday of this week it was our privilege to attend a meeting of the Western Pastors' Federation, held at Chapel Hill church on the Davidson charge. This church is near the intersection of state highway 109 which leads from Denton to Troy and 62 which leads from Asheboro to Albemarle. This was our first visit to this church and we were very much pleased with what we saw. The church building is of red brick and looks to be large enough to accommodate a goodly number of people. We understand that the building is new, and, as we remember it, it was dedicated just this summer.

It so happened that the pastor of the church was the president of the federation, Rev. E. A. Bingham. Brother Bingham presided over the services, both morning and afternoon, and kept things moving. The morning devotions were conducted by Rev. C. E. Ridge. The first address of the day was by President Andrews on "The Things That Make for Unity in the Programme of the Church." As usual, Dr. Andrews gave us a splendid address and many things to take home with us. The next address was by Rev. G. H. Hendry, of our church at Charlotte, and the theme was "Evangelism." Brother Hendry let it be known very quickly that he believes that evangelism is the outstanding thing before the church, and that if people possessed more vital godliness many of the problems would be solved. The address was interspersed with experiences growing out of the revival which has been going on at Charlotte the larger part of this summer.

Following these two addresses, Rev. J. W. Frank, a former minister in our church and missionary to Japan, first under the auspices of our Board of Missions and now under the auspices of the M. E. church, South, spoke. It was indeed a privilege to have Brother Frank in the meeting, and he was gracious in his reminiscences of our men with whom he labored in the years gone by. He gave us some first-hand information about our work as well as the work of other churches in Japan.

After the morning addresses, dinner was spread on some long tables on the outside of the building. The only comment necessary is that it was fit for a king and the quantity of it was such that those present made hardly a dent in it.

After dinner the entire company returned to the church auditorium for the afternoon services. The principal address was by Dr. S. W. Taylor, of Asheboro, on the proposed union of the Methodist Protestant church, the M. E. church, and the M. E. church, South. Dr. Taylor, in answering the criticism from many quarters concerning the scarcity of information about the plan of the union, explained that a committee was working on the matter of editing the finding of the commissions and that assurances had been given that their report might be expected about December 1. He said that while he was not free to give out the plan in advance of the report of the committee he would say that the Methodist Protestant church was not sacrificing any of the fundamental points that our forefathers contended for. Following the address by Dr. Taylor, some questions were asked which called forth some expressions from different ones in the congregation. Following the discussion on church union, Dr. A. G. Dixon was introduced and spoke briefly concerning the work at our Children's Home at High Point. In the closing moments of the meeting the editor of the Herald made some remarks concerning the Herald, making the statement that if the people would do as well by the Herald in the remaining month of the conference year as they had done in the other eleven months we would be able to close the year without a deficit.

An invitation was extended to the Federation to hold its next meeting in Charlotte, and the invitation was accepted. The attendance for the day was very gratifying, and bore testimony to the fact that people are still interested in the work of the church. Not only were the ministers present but there were several men and women from the churches on the Davidson charge who stayed through the entire day to hear all that was said. Since the Central Federation is inactive, the men in this territory were invited to meet with the Western and several were present. All in all it was a good day and we were glad to be there and to see the friends we already knew and to meet readers of the Herald whom we had not seen before.

Can the Price of the Herald Be Reduced?

We have received a letter from one who is greatly interested in the Herald asking us if it would be possible to reduce the price of the Herald to $1.00 a year. This person thinks the subscription list could be doubled in her church. Well, let us see.

We pay McCulloch and Swain for printing the first 1500 copies at the rate of $2.25 a year for each subscription, which would be equal to $3,375 for printing 1500 copies. Mailing 1500 copies for a year is approximately $100, making a total cost of $3,475 for printing and mailing. We collect for these 1500 copies $3.000, making a loss of only $475 on the first 1500 copies. After we pass 1500 the remainder are printed at a cost of $1.00 a year. Suppose we had a mailing list of 3000 subscribers. The first 1500 would cost $3,375, the second 1500 would cost $1,500, making a total printing cost of $4,875. Add to this $200 for mailing and we would have a total cost of $5,075. At $1.00 a year we would collect for these 3000 subscriptions $3,000, leaving a deficit for printing and mailing alone of $2,075. Since the cost for the first 1500 would be more than double what we would collect, and since there would be a loss on the second 1500 of the postage it can readily be seen that this is an impossible proposition.

But if we had 3000 subscribers at $2.00 a year we would collect $6,000 and thus have a profit of $925.

Miss Margaret Curry Married

Last week Miss Margaret Curry, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. G. L. Curry, and a Mr. Webb, of Greensboro and Washington, D. C., were united in marriage at our First church in High Point, the bride's father performing the ceremony. They will make their home in Washington.

Rev. J. W. Frank to Live at Mt. Airy

Rev. J. W. Frank, formerly of our church and now of the M. E. church, South, who has just returned from Japan, where he has been serving as a missionary, will live in Mt. Airy, N. C., while he is at home on furlough. We are glad to add his name to our mailing list.

"THE STORY OF JEREMIAH"

The International Sunday School Lesson for Sunday, October 13, 1935

By REV. J. ELWOOD CARROLL

Scripture Lesson—Jeremiah 1:6-10; 26:8-15.

Golden Text—To whomsoever I shall send thee thou shalt go, and whatsoever I shall command thee thou shalt speak. (Jeremiah 1:7.)

The greatness of Jeremiah justifies us spending two Sundays in studying him. Today we study the story of the man: next Sunday, the message.

Jeremiah lived in the most crucial hour of the life of Judah. The Northern Kingdom, Israel, had long since been carried captice (721 B.C.). Good King Josiah had arrested, by his reforms based on the book of law found in the temple (621 B.C.) the rapid decline of Judah. Jeremiah lived during Josiah's reign and therein received a taste of how worthy Hebrews ought to live under God's care. Josiah's reforms lasted little beyond the span of his reign.

Josiah's reign was the lull before the storm. Upon his death in the battle of Megiddo, wherein he attempted to deny passage from Egypt through Palestine to Assyria of Pharaoh Necho, the reform party placed Jehoahez on the throne. He lived only three months. Necho returned from Assyria and placed Jehoiakim in the palace. Pagan rites were introduced into the temple. The storm broke.

God spoke to the sensitive soul of Jeremiah. The greatness of Jeremiah is revealed in his humility. What a storm! What a message to speak! Little wonder he humbly halted, "Oh, Lord God! behold, I cannot speak; for I am a child" (1:6). Then God spoke and His words to Jeremiah constitute our golden text. (Compare the call of Jeremiah as recorded in 1:4-10 with Moses in Exodus 3:1-14; with Samuel in I Samuel 3:1-10; with Isaiah in Isaiah 6:1-9; and with Paul in Acts 9:1-9.)

Jeremiah did what God commanded (Ch. 26). He went straightway to the Temple to proclaim whatsoever God should reveal unto him. The formal worship was in progress. The Temple priests were assuring the people that everything would be all right. Sounds like "prosperity is just around the corner," or "God's in His heaven and all's well with man" when one-sixth of our population is on relief and the nations of the world tremble over the far-reaching consequences of war in Africa. The sensitive soul is under no such illusion. Jeremiah spoke.

No small opposition arose over his sermon. The source of the opposition was not a surprise. (1) The priests opposed Jeremiah because he preached an impending doom which was just the contrary of their smooth optimism. Judah was Jehovah's darling, assured the priests, and every harm would turn aside from her so long as the people observed the Temple rites. Jeremiah foretold the chastisement of this pampered darling. No wonder the priests demanded his arrest. (2) The multitude opposed Jeremiah because he condemned their sins. He was no panderer of platitudes, nor tickler of the privileged ears. "The hit dog 'hollered'." With one voice from the priests, and prophets, and people arose the cry, "Thou shalt surely die!" (26:8).

Despite the demand for his life, Jeremiah was released upon the precedent established by granting Micah the right to condemn sins yet retain his freedom (26:18).

Later Jeremiah resorted to other than personal contact as means of presenting his messages. His secretary Baruch wrote down Jeremiah's message and then read it to the congregation in the Temple (36:5). In turn, the princes presented the manuscript to King Zedekiah. The king cut it into shreds and threw it in the fire (36:23). Even with these rebuffs Jeremiah had the courage to announce Zedekiah's downfall. The Egyptians would conquer Judah, he warned. For such words, into the dungeon he was thrown (37:21). But one Ethiopian, Ebed-Melech, interceded for Jeremiah and got him released (38:7). Even with all of Jeremiah's warning the storm broke with the people unprepared. Two heavy waves rolled on the shore (596 and 587 B. C.) and Judah was washed captive. Upon what beach was carried our hero we are not told. Many believe he was carried to Egypt where he wrote the book of Job and some Psalms, especially the seventy-first.

Questions for Discussion

1. Can people in the church be both the conservers of moral gains and at the same time pioneers in reform?
2. Do you see any parallel in the spirit of a mob which demanded death for Jeremiah, crucifixion for Jesus, and death by lynching?
3. Could a true Christian be a member of a lynching party?
4. What is the proper Christian way of dealing with a radical prophet?
5. What are the sources of current objections to reforms?
6. How may we know who is a false prophet and who is a true prophet?
7. Are Christians to compromise with "the standards of the world"? Answer this question in the light of the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

THE DEPARTMENT OF STEWARDSHIP

COMMITTEE: Rev. H. F. Fogleman, Chairman,
Dr. N. G. Bethea, J. G. Rogers

Paul in writing to the Corinthians told them that "your zeal hath provoked very many" to a similar generosity.

In our last appearance here we presented quotations from the North Carolina Christian Advocate in which Bishop Kern discussed their new financial plan.

Today we present further observations from the Bishop, growing out of his recent visitations. The whole thing sounds almost too good to be true. H. F. FOGLEMAN.

◆

We have had a marvelous experience in the districts of the Western North Carolina conference as we have presented to preachers and laymen the challenge of the hour in the realm of benevolences and evangelism. Worthy and responsible audiences have greeted us at every place. Enthusiasm has run beyond all normal bounds and victory is in the air.

Every single district, after a careful check, has said to me that they will pay every cent in full on their accepted benevolent quotas. One old preacher who had watched the conference for forty-five years said, "This is a revolution."

Only the grace of God and the fidelity of our preachers and laymen makes this glorious achievement possible. I am more certain today than I ever was at any moment that every district in Tenth Episcopal Area will report out 100 per cent on benevolences. The spirit of our people is beyond praise and it now becomes evident that like an ever-rising tide, this victory is becoming more certain every day.—Bishop Kern.

WHAT'S RIGHT WITH THE CHURCH

By P. E. LINDLEY

Her Future Hope

Having surveyed several aspects of the life and work of the church and finding them good, I now cast a final look toward the future. This is a natural thing to do, since all progressive people want to know what to expect of the years that are yet to come. No institution can live on the reputation of the past, even though many seem to attempt to do so. Glorious has been the past of the Christian church and even brighter shall be its future.

There is permanency about the church of God. All prophecies pertaining to the life and nature of this kingdom on earth spoke of it in lasting terms. It was to be an everlasting kingdom; the Lord's dominion was to increase with the passing of time, and as to the extent of His government there is to be no end. So the Old Testament foresaw it, and so the New Testament confirms it. There was nothing surer about the teaching of the Master than that His church should stand the test of time. His parables and direct teachings explain it, and in this faith He lived and died.

Of course the particular organization of the church will change from generation to generation. But it will never know decay. Various branches and denominations will arise to carry forward a part of the divine plan and program. They will serve their day and generation and doubtless give place to some other plan of ecclesiastical management. Still the true, main stream of redemptive truth will flow on in its destined and providential course, bringing blessing and salvation to all who yield themselves to its power. Think not, therefore, that the life of the church is completely governed by or hanging on any one form of faith. Your denomination or mine might easily step aside and cease altogether to follow the leading of the Spirit of Christ, yet the Kingdom would go on nevertheless. We are privileged, of course, to give of our best to the building of the kingdom. This we ought to do, still there is wisdom and power enough in the cosmic plan of Christ to move forward in the economy of God, whether we will it so or not.

Theologians speak of the "church militant" and the "church triumphant," meaning, of course, the body of believers on earth and those "whose rest is won." Every day sees many souls transferred from the terrestrial church to the church celestial. The throng of the redeemed is ever increasing and it would seem that the number in the church militant would be diminishing, but such is not the case. There are more church members now than ever, and at the end of the century there shall be still more. Of course, great numbers are being translated to their heavenly home, but likewise recruits are joining the earthly church and starting their joyous journey with the saved toward the better days that lie ahead.

Yes, the future hope of the church is right. It will continue to grow. Her greatest days are yet to be. The past is a written record; the future is full of hope. Turn to Mead's book, The March of the Eleven Men, when you are tempted to doubt the goodness and the glory of the religious movement. Since the disciples began to march the world has been happier, brighter. And by the same logic we can scan something of the greatness of the Christian world as it is to be when Jesus becomes the Lord of Life more deeply enthroned in the hearts of the men who hold the destinies of the world in their hands. The leaven is working in the lump, and before the ages finally yield up their eternal harvests, the kingdom of love and truth will come in a manner only faintly foretold by the most optimistic of the prophets who have gone before. Christ is in His church, and where He is defeat can not be. The work is not over; the battles are not yet turned into victories. But the Holy Spirit will brighten the pathway before the saints and God will march with them into the better generations that are certain to be.

"Mid toil and tribulation,
And tumult of her war,
She waits the consummation
Of peace for evermore;
Till with the vision glorious
Her longing eyes are blest,
And the great Church victorious
Shall be the Church at rest."

We are sorry that Dr. Lindley is bringing his series to a close. The articles have been greatly appreciated.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord.

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

What Some Churches Have Done to Date

All churches on Midland have paid A. C. budget in full; all have had net gains in membership, not quite 10 per cent. All churches on Shiloh have paid all claims, A. C. budget in full and World Service, and have substantial net gain in membership. First church, Concord, has paid all A. C. budget in full. Kannapolis has paid A. C. budget in full and has substantial gain in membership. First church, Lexington, has paid A. C. budget in full, also World Service, and paid pastor in full for year, and besides it has a goodly sum in bank for new church. First church, Burlington, has paid A. C. budget in full, substantial net gain in membership, almost all W. S. in hand, together with pastor's salary. Both will be paid this month. This church also has in the bank a nice sum towards the new church. Pastor Paschall reports the best year in his ministry. Alamance charge has made a net gain of 10 per cent in membership and expects to make a good showing financially. Are there others who can report now?

Try to Keep Your Records Correct

I happen to know that some who send money in to Treasurer Allen are not always particular to state the claim it is to be credited to. This is important, now that we have the Annual Conference budget divided into church extension, superannuates, A. C. debt, A. C. expenses and High Point College. If all these claims are met in full it will not matter so much, but if they are not, and it is sent in as so much on A. C. budget the treasurer will not know which claims the money is to be applied to. Also the money raised for World Service should show so much for Easter program, so much for Children's Day, so much for Rally, etc. This will keep the records straight and will show what has been paid by all the churches on each of these claims.

How About That Offering for Superannuates?

When you read this there will remain just about three weeks, four Sundays, to complete your work in this conference year. We beseech you, therefore, brethren, that you be diligent in business, fervent in spirit as you serve the Lord. Our allotment for the superannuated preachers and their wives is too small not to secure it all. Every penny of it is needed and should be paid, and we do hope that you will see to it that it is paid by your churches.

Danville Church, Rev. C. P. Morris, Pastor

This was my official visit to this little group of workers. I arrived in time to see a very splendid presentation of the Biblical scene of Hannah bringing her son to Eli and the subsequent events. It was well done and evidently made a good impression. It was Rally Day in the Sunday school, the superintendent had set a high goal, and while the weather interfered greatly with the attendance there was present a good attendance. And the people took part with zest. More nearly all present sang than it seems to me I have heard in any like group in a long time.

The church service was likewise well attended. Not so many as at the Sunday school, but still it would have done credit to a much older organization. There are now 52 members in this church. Most of them are adults and a very fine type of people. They are all interested in the church, that is the reason they are there. And as a further testimony to their interest is the fact they are carrying 43 shares in B. & L., looking towards a new church, or shall I say a church building in which to worship. Pastor Morris is well liked and he is enthusiastic about the work. Bro. Ira Elliott is the delegate to the Annual Conference.

South Winston Church, Rev. O. B. Williams, Pastor

The occasion of this visit was to dedicate the church building and to lay the corner stone. Not often both these services are held together, but since there had been no corner stone placed the pastor and church officials thought it should be done and took this opportunity to do it.

There was a good congregation present and all seemed happy as they presented their church building for dedication unto the Lord. There has been quite a good deal of work done here since I visited it some two and a half years ago. It was then with only sub-floor, no ceiling, no paint. It has been ceiled, good top floor laid and painted on the outside. It makes a good appearance as you approach from the street. We rejoice with these people and sincerely trust that this service ushers in their greatest experiences in both their individual and church life.

Western Pastors' Federation Meeting

This meeting was held at Chapel Hill church, Davidson circuit. The officers are President E. A. Bingham and Secretary C. E. Ridge. There had been a full program arranged and all who had parts were present to take part. Besides a good attendance from the western area, there were several visiting pastors from the Central Federation and more laymen and lay women than usually attend these meetings. I think this meeting can be said to maintain the high level of previous meetings attended by me and we believe it is really serving a good purpose as it is carried on.

A DISMAL FLOP

Wets and drys wail together over the sorry fact that the evils which repeal was supposed to eradicate have greatly multiplied in this country.

Drunkenness has greatly increased. Bootlegging continues to flourish. Beer gardens, taverns and road houses debauch youth. And poverty and crime are still with us. Judging from its social and moral results, repeal is a dismal flop.

Judged by economic and financial standards, the record is little better. The real argument for repeal was that it would save taxes for the big taxpayers by shifting the burdens of taxation onto the backs of the drinking workingman.

The Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, the militant wet organization, on oath before a congressional investigating committee, admitted that to be the object of the organization.

Irenee du Pont, Santa Claus to the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, and multi-millionaire munitions and chemical manufacturer, stated that repeal would save one of his corporations ten millions annually in taxes. But it didn't. His taxes are higher than under prohibition.

The people were told over and over again that repeal would make the levy of new taxes unnecessary and would eliminate the need of tax levies which were then on the statute books. But it didn't. New taxes have since been levied, until the present tax burden is the greatest in the nation's history.

Joseph H. Choate, late federal alcohol administrator, assured the people that repeal of prohibition would balance the budget. But it didn't. Repeal came, and the nation faces the most staggering peace-time deficit in history.

One of the owners of one of the largest breweries prophesied that the legalization of beer would produce revenue of more than two billions annually. But it didn't, and, disillusioned, he took his life less than twelve months after the ban was lifted from his product.

For wet and dry, for rich and poor, repeal has failed to produce a single one of the benefits promised for it, either moral, social or economic.—Twin City Sentinel.

Gordon Causey Killed in Accident

On last Thursday evening Gordon Causey, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Causey, of Mt. Pleasant church on the Mt. Pleasant charge, was killed in an automobile accident at Julian. He was 26 years old and was married to Miss Mozelle Smith, of Liberty, last Christmas. The funeral was held at Mt. Pleasant church on Saturday afternoon, conducted by the pastor, Rev. J. W. Braxton, assisted by Rev. J. A. Burgess and Rev. F. R. Love.

THE ABC OF AMERICAN NEUTRALITY, THE ABC OF THE ITALO-ETHIOPIAN CRISIS

One of the most readable series of pamphlets on current world problems is published by the Federal Council's Department of International Justice and Goodwill under the general title "ABC Summaries on World Problems." Two new numbers have been added to this series, "The ABC of American Neutrality" and "The ABC of The Italo-Ethiopian Crisis," both of them written by Walter W. Van Kirk, secretary of the Federal Council's Department of International Justice and Goodwill.

In the first of these pamphlets the author takes into account the prevailing misconceptions of the neutrality legislation recently adopted by Congress, and refutes the argument that the Neutrality Act will hinder American co-operation with other nations for the prevention of war.

In his "ABC of the Italo-Ethiopian Crisis" Dr. Van Kirk traces the historical development of the dispute between these two countries. Particular consideration is given to the economic aspects of the relations between stronger nations and weaker peoples.

Each of these pamphlets is 5 cents for a single copy or $3 for 100 copies.

EXHIBIT NO. 3

Recently the Editor of the HERALD suggested that it might be a good thing for someone to come forward and explain "Why we fail, where others succeed."

Thus far, as I recall, two individuals have responded. This is exhibit No. 3.

First, we have tried to operate an itineracy under a system which never has nor never can give sufficient supervision.

Second, in our deliberations we have too often disregarded the fact that our church is essentially rural, and that ultimately and finally our conference stands or falls by the success or failure of our rural churches.

Third, we have followed a financial system based upon expediency rather than principle; it sought to raise so much money rather than develop so many people.

Fourth, a general disregard of the high and holy commandment, "Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfil the law of Christ."

STILL ANOTHER COUNTRYMAN.

THE WIDOW'S SHOES

A poor woman with an invalid son, a member of the church, could not attend church or the neighborhood prayer meetings for want of shoes. She asked the Lord for shoes. That very day the village schoolmaster called to see her son. Meanwhile he noticed that the boy's mother had very poor shoes. He said nothing, but felt impressed and inwardly resolved to purchase the poor woman a pair forthwith.

He accordingly hired a horse, rode two miles on horseback to a shoe store, bought shoes and requested them to be sent to the widow's cottage without delay. They proved a perfect fit. And that very night the overjoyed woman hurried to prayer meeting to announce that in answer to prayer the Lord had sent her shoes.—Publisher Unknown.

TO THE PASTORS AND LEADERS OF THE METHODIST PROTESTANT CHURCHES

By Rev. J. C. Broomfield, D.D., President,
General Conference of the M. P. Church

A national committee co-operating with the American Bible Society is sponsoring a nation-wide celebration of the Four Hundredth Anniversary of the Printed English Bible, and has invited our denomination to co-operate.

The plan meets with my hearty approval, and I would urge our pastors and people everywhere to unite in observing this significant anniversary. It has been suggested that the period of the celebration be from October 4—the exact anniversary date—to Bible Sunday, December 8. I shall keep you in touch with our plans for co-operation.

PAGES OF POWER

Four hundred years ago, for the first time, our Bible in English was put into print. Thus, in 1535, the "pages of power" wrought by the earnest English translator, Myles Coverdale, began to reach as never before the man on the street, in the field or in the shop, with their story, their message, and their inspiration. What had been the possession of learned men became in a day the common property of the English-speaking people.

Today we look back over four centuries in their history and find amazing evidence of the influence of the Bible in every aspect of their life and work. To meet their call for this Book, more copies of it have been printed and distributed than of any book in any language.

Its poetry, essays, prayers, sermons, proverbs, parables, history, and its supreme biography of all time,—that of Jesus Christ,—directly and indirectly influence our daily lives. They contribute to our civilization, through the arts and sciences, in man's dealings with man, and in the direction of government, to such an extent that he who, perhaps, has never opened the covers of a Bible nevertheless reads its words and phrases in newspaper, magazine, and book.

As We Read and Speak

"Without the Bible it is impossible to understand the literature of the English language from Chaucer to our own day."

In prose and in poetry, as well as in the common speech of everyday life, the Bible's contribution to us is surprising.

"The apple of his eye," "the salt of the earth," "the powers that be," "labor of love," "handwriting on the wall," "a mess of pottage," "the widow's mite," "we are the people," "the fat of the land," "the laborer is worthy of his hire," "whited sepulchres," "all things to all men,"—here are just a few of the hundreds of Biblical expressions used on occasion by every one of us—and in each is a Biblical story that makes its quotation significant.

In American History

How many of us realize the Bible's influence upon the history of the American people?

To common reading of its "pages of power" in England may be traced the forces which resulted in the coming of the Pilgrims to these shores, contributed largely to the settlement of the Thirteen Colonies, and provided a common bond of understanding, that was to make possible a new nation.

When Connecticut was born, its founders pledged themselves to "maintain the liberty and purity of the gospel"; and Roger Williams, under the same inspiration, sowed the seed of religious freedom in his government of Rhode Island.

Through the inscription on our Liberty Bell the Bible speaks to us again,—"Proclaim Liberty throughout the Land to All the Inhabitants Thereof."

In Social Welfare

From the Bible's inspiration have come many of the forces behind our social and economic progress. To the Golden Rule, the principle of brotherly love notably exemplified by William Penn and his Quaker settlement in Pennsylvania, and to the law of equality of men before God which was so revered by Abraham Lincoln, the American people owe a heavy debt. These great teachings of the Bible have combined to bring about popular action to allay the sufferings of the unfortunate; to effect an end to slavery; to promote moderation and temperance in all things, and make for a social order in which right living and right thinking shall be the rule.

In the Home

The strength of a nation is the home life of its people. From the Bible millions of homes in our history have drawn courage, guidance, and joy.

Almost without exception, our greatest leaders have acknowledged the influence of a home devoted to the Bible and its teachings. In the training of children and youth there is for it no substitute.

What our civilization has gained from the printed Bible during four hundred years can be multiplied by us many times over in the years ahead. All depends upon our faith in it and our devotion to its teachings!

For It Is Your Book

Centuries before English was a language, the Bible was begun.

Historians, statesmen, poets, and kings have contributed to it.

Brave men have defended it from destruction.

Patient scholars copied its text by hand, letter by letter.

Learned men have translated it into hundreds of languages.

Consecrated men have spent all they had, forsaken home and country, and have died in flames at the stake.

All,—that YOU might have this book for your own sake—for the world's sake.

Have you made it your own?—National Commemoration Committee, Four Hundred Years of the Printed English Bible, Box 36, Station D, New York, N. Y.

Mrs. H. F. Surratt in Hospital

Mrs. H. F. Surratt, wife of Rev. H. F. Surratt, pastor of Community church in Thomasville, is in St. Elizabeth Hospital in Richmond, Va., where she underwent a major operation a few days ago. The latest report stated that she was making progress, though somewhat slowly. We trust our people will remember her in prayer.

BOB'S BEAUTIFUL HANDS

"O mamma! I am going to have the most beautiful hands you really ever saw. Miss Grace showed us how we could, and we are all going to start right away to make them handsome!" And Bob whirled in from school like a tiny cyclone.

"Isn't that splendid! I suppose Miss Grace has told you how to keep your hands clean and your nails neat, as I have tried so hard to do," and mother took the little fat hands in hers.

"Oh, no, not that way at all, though of course we must keep them clean; but I'll tell you how we are going to do it.

"We had a lesson about hands today around our little table, and we learned a lot of things.

"Miss Grace had us all show our right hand, then our left. Some of the children did not know which was which, but I did. Then we played 'Pretend,' and we had lots of fun. We played the piano and beat drums; we washed clothes, and our faces and hands; we sowed seed and gathered flowers; we made snowballs; we gathered oranges and figs and lemons and picked strawberries; we swept snow from our shoes, and picked up chips, and rang bells.

"Then, while we rested, we told what use our hands and arms were to us and what they did for us.

"They help us dress and comb our hair; they carry our books, and help us write, and play all our games.

"Miss Grace wondered if we could not make our hands of some use to other people, too; and all the children said they would try and have their hands do something for somebody.

"One little girl said she would look after baby, one boy said he would carry in the wood for his mother, another would run mother's errands.

"Then we learned the prettiest verse from the blackboard:

'Beautiful hands are those that do
Work that is earnest, kind and true,
Moment by moment the whole day through.'

"Can't you see, mamma, if we do that it will make our hands all perfectly beautiful?"

And mother was very sure it would.—Council Fires.

PETER'S FEAST OF CANDY

Peter's father gave him ten cents one Saturday morning. "I thought maybe you'd like to buy the children some candy," he said.

Peter was ten years old, but Dave was only eight, while Dot was five and a baby, so Peter always called them "the children."

Peter decided to buy candy before he told the others about it, so as soon as he could he put on his coat and ran around the corner to the grocery store.

Why, what a lot of candy there was in the case! Peter bought a yellow gumdrop and a pink one, too; a black all-day sucker, round and hard like a marble; a lemon and a peppermint stick, two pieces of licorice; a big piece of peanut brittle; a chocolate cream; five lemon drops, and three strawberry drops—all in a big, knobby sack. They looked good! Peter had never eaten all the candy he wanted, and on his way home he decided he would eat it all himself and not tell the children anything about it. He hoped to meet no one.

When Peter got home he went in the back door and climbed the steps very softly. He went away up to the attic, where he knew they wouldn't think of looking for him. It was cold up there, but he found a blanket and wrapped up in it and ate candy as fast as he could.

First he ate a piece of licorice, which stuck his teeth together and made him chew hard. Then he ate a yellow lemon drop, but he was in such a hurry that he bit it up before he thought and it didn't last long. Just as he started on the pink gumdrop he heard Dave calling from downstairs.

"Peter, where are you? Come here!" he called.

Peter sat very quiet. "They know I've got the candy, and they want some," he said to himself, "but they're not going to get any."

At last the children quit shouting and the house was still. Peter put the all-day sucker in his mouth and sucked all the black off until it looked like a white marble, but that took too long to eat, so he put it back in the bag and ate the chocolate cream.

As he ate, somehow the candy didn't taste as good as he thought it would. He ate slower and slower, and after a long, long time, two hours, maybe, he got most awfully tired and went downstairs.

Just as he got downstairs the front door opened and Dave and Dot came running in all wrapped up, their cheeks red and very excited.

"Oh, where were you, Peter?" cried Dave. "We hunted and hunted and called and called. Uncle Ed came and took us for a long drive in his new car."

"And we had candy and cakes," added Dot.

"Yes," agreed Dave, "he took us to a fine shop, and we had hot chocolate and cakes and sandwiches and he bought us each a big box of candy. See, I saved you some. Here it is."

"Here's some of mine for you, too," said Dot.

And both the children wondered why Peter looked funny and wouldn't eat any of the candy.—Publisher Unknown.

THAT EVIL MAN

A garrison is not free from danger while it has an enemy lodged within. You may bolt all your doors and fasten all your windows, but if the thieves have placed even a little child within doors who can draw the bolts for them, the house is still unprotected.

All the sea outside a ship cannot do it damage till the water enters within and fills the hold. Hence, it is clear, our greatest danger is from within. All the devils in hell and tempters on earth could do us no injury if there were no corruption in our natures. The sparks will fall harmlessly if there is no tinder.

Alas! our hearts are our greatest enemies; they are the little home-born thieves. Lord, save me from that evil man, myself.—C. H. Spurgeon.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

MRS. J. E. PRITCHARD, Editor

AN OPEN LETTER TO THOSE WHO BELIEVE IN PRAYER

The work of the church can only prosper when it is carried on in God's way. His way is not the way of elaborate programs and formal worship. His way is the way of life and centers in Jesus Christ.

Christ made it very plain that no spiritual work can be effective except as the worker is indwelt and directed by His spirit. "Without me ye can do nothing." John 15:5. His orders to His followers are to preach His gospel and be His witnesses throughout the world.

The church has never been entirely faithful to His command and in these days many of its members have lost all sense of any responsibility in the matter. They have so reduced their giving to missions that much of the work of years is being undone. It has become a matter of grave concern to those responsible for the administration of mission boards and to those whose hearts are in the work. They are asking: What can be done to stem the tide of unbelief and indifference?

The Committee of Missionary Activity among the churches, appointed by the last Maryland Annual Conference, believes that it is futile to rely on man-made plans, human interest and money to carry on the work of God. There must be a return to that simple faith that relies implicitly on God to carry on His own work.

We believe that when the Lord Jesus said, "Ask and ye shall receive," He meant exactly that. And when He said that "men ought always to pray and not to faint" He was telling men that it was through prayer that the great spiritual forces of the universe are released and become available for the work of God in the world.

When Jesus said to His disciples, "The harvest truly is plenteous but the laborers are few; pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth laborers unto his harvest," He was telling them that prayer was the condition necessary for the securing of workers in His Kingdom.

ADORATION OF JESUS

I never cared,
I never dared
To spend a whole night in prayer—
HE did.

I never tried,
I never cried,
"God forgive them, they do not know."
HE did.

I never fasted,
I never wrestled
Hours with temptation, all alone,
HE did.

I never thought,
I never taught
God's hungry children how to live.
HE did.

I never prayed,
I never stayed
To hear my God speak clear to me.
HE did.

—Russell Dicks.

Let everybody pray earnestly and a great spiritual awakening will follow.

Believing that missions are vital to the life of the church, the committee hopes that the following suggestions may find a response in the hearts of many of our people and that by acting upon them lives may be quickened and the work of the Kingdom may receive a fresh impetus.

First—That all ministers preach a series of sermons on missions.

Second—That they hold special prayer meetings for the purpose of praying for missions.

Third—That in each church, someone, minister or layman, take the lead in getting together a small group of those known to believe in prayer and missions, for times of prayer together.

Fourth—That every individual in his secret prayers plead continually, day by day, for the spiritual awakening of the church, and that the missionary spirit be revived.

Above all, be very definite, name individuals, groups, missions and special causes. Prayer to be effective must represent the heart's desire and must be persistent.

Garrett, and Mrs. Stone was asked to go in person and express to Mrs. Pritchard our regret that she was unable to attend.

Miss Brona Apple, treasurer, gave a splendid report, stating that an increase of over $450 had been reported above the first six months in 1934.

Miss Mary Young read, in the absence of Mrs. Whitaker, Mrs. Whitaker's report, also her report as assistant secretary, reporting ten loans completed and first payment made, with five more pending getting the papers complete. Mrs. Ballard was asked to prepare questionnaire and send to secretary of literature for sending out with literature, in order that we may be better acquainted with our work and workers.

Motion, committee be appointed to confer with Mr. Ballard in regard to slides, and that they be empowered to make a loan of $55 if committee can make proper agreements.

Report of Mrs. Younginer, secretary Scholarship and Workers, accepted.

Mrs. J. T. Bowman, secretary Spiritual Life, asked that we all take more time to read our Bibles and pray. Following her report, we stood and sang one verse of "Take Time to Be Holy," after which Mrs. Stone led in prayer for more consecration.

Adjourned for lunch, which was greatly enjoyed in the dining and living rooms of Bethel Home, which were beautifully decorated in fall flowers. Mrs. Hammer presided, and most all the ladies responded with a toast to the Bethel Home. Rev. Mr. Casto and Miss Potter gave words of welcome. A box of candy was presented by Mr. Auman. Mrs. Coltrane gave toast to Mr. Auman. We found our places at the table by place cards, which proved to be beautiful plaques.

Immediately after lunch we remained in the Home for the devotionals, which were conducted by Mrs. J. M. Stone, which was very inspiring. She was assisted by Mrs. J. S. Williams and Mrs. Teague, who sang "Have Thine Own Way." We then went to the cabin for our afternoon session.

Mrs. J. S. Williams presented a very attractive plate project, and several of the ladies carried plates home with them.

Reports from Mrs. P. S. Kennett, secretary Christian Education, and Mrs. W. F. Redding, Jr., secretary of Literature. A card was read from Mrs. Sides, secretary, stating that she had not done a great deal but was still trying and asking that she be given instructions as to what she might do. Our secretary of Y. P. work was instructed to put on a Youth Movement, and a committee, Mrs. Bowman and Mrs. Andrews, asked to work with her in preparing goals to be reached by the Y. P. or specific work to be done. Motion carried also to give to the Y. P. a budget of $250, special for India, for the remainder of this year.

Mrs. Bates, secretary T. O., gave a very encouraging report, and demonstrated the new T. O. boxes which are very attractive, and urged that we make our offering as much as possible this fall.

Mrs. R. M. Andrews, secretary of Temperance, gave a splendid report which was accepted. Also recommendation to have all reports for Branch meeting mimeographed and

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HELPS

"THE EFFECT OF ALCOHOL ON BODY AND MIND"

(Prov. 23:29-32)

Christian Endeavor Topic for Sunday, Oct. 20

By E. LESTER BALLARD

Preparation

Facts and figures on the subjects for this and next Sunday are available on every hand. The C. E. World Quarterly, Boston, Mass., is the first and foremost source. The Standard C. E. Quarterly, Cincinnati, Ohio, is another. The booklet, "Youth Faces the Liquor Problem," may be obtained from Allied Youth, National Education Association Building, Washington, D. C. "Prohibition—A Program Unit on the Christian Quest" (D. S. Patterson), Methodist Book Concern, New York City, 25 cents, is very good. The Signal Press, Evanston, Ohio, prints very cheap tracts and other prohibition literature. The Lincoln-Lee Legion, Westerville, Ohio, publishes considerable literature. The closest sources are the United Dry Forces of N. C., 1004-10 Raleigh Bldg., Raleigh, and the N. C. Woman's Christian Temperance Union, 300 E. Boulevard, Charlotte.

One of the most effective presentations on the effect of alcohol on the human body was given by a high school chemistry professor before a C. E. Society in Greensboro a few years ago. By the use of test tubes, the albumen of an egg and alcohol, he demonstrated clearly the detrimental effect of the poison on the body tissues and cells. It would be an impressive experiment during this program if you can secure one to present it with suitable comments.

Program

It is usually a poor policy to follow a printed program, item for item. You as a leader, and your society as audience and participants, will reap greater benefits if you prepare it yourself. Here are a few helps, however.

Suitable hymns: "Courage, Brother, Do Not Stumble," "Give of Your Best to the Master," "I Would Be True," "Just as I Am," "Thine Own to Be," "Keep Thyself Pure," "O Jesus, I Have Promised," "Purer Yet and Purer," "Stand Up, Stand Up for Jesus," "True-Heated, Whole-Hearted," "Yield Not to Temptation."

Scripture: Prov. 23:29-32. Comments upon, amplification and illustration of this ancient passage could be presented in application to present-day conditions by several Endeavorers selected beforehand.

Special music: One of the above-named hymns may be sung as a solo, duet or quartet, or some other appropriate music may be used.

Selections from poetry: One or two short poems will doubtless be sufficient. The C. E. World Quarterly quotes two verses of Henry C. Beeching's poem, "God Who Created Me," also found in hymn form in the New Hymnal for American Youth, No. 170. The large number of hymns is given above that the leader might select one or more of them to be read as poetry. Some lend themselves well to musical readings, i. e., the hymn read while the music is being played. This should be rehearsed beforehand between reader and pianist.

Participation

Here are some pertinent statements and facts that may be used. The participants may dress as near like the authors of these quotations as possible, and give them from memory; or they may have printed cards with the authors' names to hold in front of them as they speak.

Quotations: Richard C. Cabot, M. D.: "There is no safety for children on our highways until all those who drive automobiles can be prevented from taking a drink within six hours of the time when they go on the street to drive. . . . Alcohol is always a narcotic—never a stimulant. The supposed value of alcohol as a medicine has been exploded, long ago. In our best hospitals . . . it is almost obsolete."

Knute Rockne (football coach): "Alcohol in any form is absolutely prohibited to the players of the University of Notre Dame, either in or out of football season." He said his team abstained from drinking because he appealed to "the player's loyalty, his interest in the success of the team, and his honor in doing nothing that might in any way interfere with his efficiency as a player."

Helen Wills (tennis champion): "The precision that tennis demands makes necessary total abbstinence—even from beer."

Connie Mack (baseball star): "I wouldn't bother with a youngster who drinks. . . . Alcohol is a preventive of the clean living and quick thinking which leads to success."

Thomas Edison (electrical wizard): "I am a total abstainer from alcoholic liquors. I always felt that I had a better use for my head."

Lewis R. Horton (publisher): "Water is the strongest drink: lions and horses use it, and Samson never drank anything else."

Questions: Can you name anything good intoxicants have ever done for mankind? What is the strongest urge a young person has to cause him to take the first drink? Have you ever heard an habitual drunkard

State Street Church, Lexington.—Sunday, October 6, was a good day for State Street church, Lexington. Mr and Mrs. Bish Watkins, a couple unusually happy in their religious life, joined the church on profession of faith.

The Auxiliary held the thank-offering service during the church hour. Mrs. C. W. Bates gave a talk both encouraging and impressive. The very attractive thank-offering boxes were distributed for the coming year. We were glad to have Miss Ruby Tice, of Winston-Salem, worship with us in this service.

The Junior C. E. was suspended for a month and the Sunday school attendance was greatly reduced because of the infantile paralysis epidemic. But the attendance of both is now normal, that of Sunday school rather above for September. We now have an enrollment of 202 and a goal of 200 present has been set for Rally Day, October 20. The program will be given during the Sunday school hour and the offering for World Service taken.

The Vacation Bible School was called off because of the paralysis danger.

The attendance during our special meeting was quite encouraging. The people seemed worshipful in spirit. The sermons by Rev. H. Freo Surratt were inspiring and deeply impressive. Four were converted and joined the church.

Appreciation is here expressed of the splendid spirit shown and work done by our "Levite," John Bax Leonard, in keeping the church and parsonage lawn mowed during the summer. Mr. Tussey generously assisted much of the time. Their pay was the thrill they experienced.

The president of Ladies' Auxiliary, Mrs. F. J. Cox, and a group of willing helpers netted the church treasury $65 selling ice cream during the summer months. They recently served a chicken pie supper and netted $46.50.

Flat Rock Charge.—Our services at Bethel and Gideon's Grove churches last Sunday were well attended. The weather was unfavorable but the attendance was not affected. The congregation at Gideon's Grove church was delighted with the presence of Rev. and Mrs. B. A. Culp, of Winston-Salem. Rev. Mr. Culp, who is pastor of First Methodist Episcopal church in Winston-Salem, and an evangelist of ability, delivered the sermon, using as a subject "Entering the Palace of the King." It was a very helpful discourse.

A group of children from Our Children's Home at High Point, and Dr. Dixon, the superintendent, will render a program at Flat Rock church next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. This arrangement was made with the superintendent last week and we are pleased to announce their coming, as we have not had a program by the children of the Home during the past two years. We are expecting our people from other churches on the charge to attend the program next Sunday afternoon.

Lexington, Mt. Carmel.—Rev. Mr. Isley filled his regular appointment Sunday morning. A large congregation was present to hear this excellent message that Mr. Isley delivered. The fourth quarterly conference will be held at Mt. Carmel on Tuesday night, October 22. Rev. Mr. Isley urges all officials to be present. At this time the delegate will be informed as to whom we want for pastor next year. I don't think this will be very hard to do, as every one seems very anxious that Rev. Mr. Isley be returned for his eighth year on this charge.

The women of the church will sponsor a booth at the Davidson County fair beginning October 15. We will appreciate the patronage of everybody very much.

Whitaker's Church.—As the warm weather is over and the school season is here and our teachers are back to take up their work with us, we hope to have a better attendance and interest in our Sunday school and other church activities. Some of our own young people have left for school, and that, of course, makes vacancies which must come; however, we hope they will be just as faithful where they are and will be benefited. Our last quarterly meeting for the conference year will soon be here, and we hope to have a finished report by the time. Am thankful our sick ones are improving and able to be about again.

On the third Sunday in September we had a simple but very sweet memorial service for Miss Mamie Johnston, one of our departed. faithful members. We felt it would serve as a rally day, some of our off members and friends being present. It was very fitting that we had Dr. Andrews with us for the special service, and as he had lived in the home with her and knew her faithful, loving work in her Master's kingdom, he made a very appreciative discourse, using as a basis for his remarks the life of Dorcas, the sweet Bible character who was full of good works and alms-deeds which she did. The songs used were from among those she loved to sing. A special selection, "This Is My Task," was rendered by a cousin, Mrs. O. K. Dozier. The bronze tablet with the words, "To the Glory of God and in Loving Memory of Mamie E. Johnston," was presented by Mrs. Mamie Braswell, oldest member of the Auxiliary, in behalf of the Auxiliary in a few well-chosen words, quoting a much used and loved expression of the deceased, "I am glad that the Bible doesn't say we must be successful, but 'Be thou faithful unto death and I will give thee a crown of life.'" Dr. J. H. Cutchin, in behalf of the trustees, in very appropriate and appreciative remarks of the devotion and exemplary life of the deceased and urging others to live as she had lived to the glory of Gol and for the sake of humanity, received the tablet. Dr. Andrews, in behalf of the Annual Conference, and Rev. E. O. Peeler, pastor, accepted it in behalf of the church.

We were very sorry that Rev. J. D. Williams, a former pastor who had also lived in the family, could not be with us. There was a profusion of beautiful flowers, some especially presented for "Miss Mamie" by a dear friend. It was considered a sweet service.

Mt. Pleasant, Mt. Pleasant.—The fifth Sunday evening ended a series of lectures by Dr. P. E. Lindley, of High Point College. These lectures were good, and we trust were profitable to all who attended.

Rally Day was observed in our church Sunday. A very interesting program was given. Mrs. C. C. Curtis and Prof. E. H. Thompson were the speakers. Miss Frances Causey rendered an appropriate vocal solo. The children gave a short program, after which the certificates of promotion were given to several children. This was followed by a sermon by Mr. Braxton.

The junior, primary and beginners are situated in their new rooms. They have their devotional in the new assembly room. The Philatheas also have a new room.

Mr. W. A. Stafford will represent our charge at the Annual Conference.

The Ladies' Auxiliary is sponsoring a chicken supper at Nathanael Greene school gym Saturday, October 12. A program will also be given.

Our community was grieved very deeply last Thursday evening by the tragic death of one of our promising young men, Mr. Gordon Causey. We extend our sympathy to the young widow, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Causey, his brother and two sisters. The many beautiful flowers and overflowing house manifested the esteem in which he was held.

Stallings, Mecklenburg Charge.—Last Sunday (the fifth Sunday) was a big day for us. We had our dedication service that day. Rev. A. Ridge preached the 11 o'clock sermon. He brought us a wonderful, heartfelt sermon, and we all sure did enjoy it. Rev. M. C. Henderson also preached a good sermon; we enjoyed his message. Both Rev. Mr. Ridge and Rev. Mr. Henderson are former pastors and have done a lot for our church, and we were glad to have them and their families worship with us again. A choir from the M. P. church of Concord was with us. They did some fine singing. Each song was like a sermon to us. We extend to them an invitation to visit us again. We had dinner on the grounds. In the evening Rev. G. H. Hendry, from Charlotte, preached the dedication sermon and dedicated our church. We sure did enjoy this service, also the choir from Charlotte There were a good many of Bro. Hendry's folks from Charlotte. We enjoyed having you with us and come back again to visit us

We were so glad to have Mrs. Mood Hunt and Mrs. Marvin Bishop, of Canaan church, with us. We hope you will come again.

Asheville.—We are still here, even though old Jack Frost did descend on us tooth and nail Sunday. However, our attendance was very good in spite of the wintry winds. Am glad to note the Fawcett Bible Class is on the job; it led the entire Sunday school in amount of offering on Sunday. Watch out, Baraca-Philatheas, that bunch will beat you at your own game. These two classes have a contest on during this month and it is with a great deal of interest that the rest of us watch their progress.

Promotion certificates were given quite a number of our children by their respective teachers on Sunday morning. Mrs. E. A. Bolick promoted eight to the Primary group; Mrs. Robey Wilson promoted four to the Junior group. Mrs. J. S. Williams' boys and Miss Irene Miller's girls form the new Intermediate group. There are exactly eight boys and eight girls in this group, and a more wide-awake, co-operative crowd will be hard to find. The Intermediate group just promoted to Seniors will need to watch their progress lest this new class out-race them. We need to promote a spirit of good-will rivalry among our classes. A pride in one's Sunday school and church is a real requisite, provided, of course, it is not carried to the point of intolerance.

We were greatly pleased to have Miss Floy Barrett join our membership on Sunday. Miss Barrett comes to us from the West Asheville M. E. church, where she has been actively engaged in Sunday school work. She has already taken one of our classes and is serving as pianist of the children's department, so she is proving herself a blessing at the very start. We hope we may mean as much to her.

Circles of the Auxiliary have met recently as follows: No. 2, with Mrs. Y. D. Eller, 39 N. Ann street, on Wednesday last; No. 1, with Mrs. L. M. Joyner, 176 Merrimon avenue, yesterday (Monday) afternoon. General meeting of the Auxiliary will be held at the parsonage Thursday, October 17, at 3 p. m. All members are urged to be present.

Fawcett Bible Class held their regular monthly business meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Hanner, 48 Soco street, last Tuesday evening. At this meeting the class agreed to assume the obligation of a long-standing lumber debt. We feel now that it is as good as paid. Thanks, folks!

We must not forget that Miss Melle Smith and Mr. J. R. Moore celebrate a joint (is it the 51st this time?) birthday on Friday, October 11. We join in wishing them happiness on that day and express our hopes that there will be many, many more October 11's for each of them.

Thanks to Rev. J. Elwood Carroll, our teachers are being saved a lot of work. His very splendid notes on the uniform lessons are worth the price of the Herald to those who teach; so we, in Asheville, wish to express our thanks to Mr. Carroll and to the person who is responsible for adding this feature to the Herald.

First Church, Burlington.—This is Rally Month in our church. Our people have been scattered for various causes and reasons during the summer. The stewards and Woman's Auxiliary are going to visit the members of the church. We are anxious for our people to rally to the support of the church's program.

The Evangelistic Club met last week. Dr. Paschall gave the club a valuable lecture on personal work.

A large number of pupils were promoted to new classes last Sunday.

Our pastor is assisting in a revival in Danville, Va. Rev. Milliard Stevens, a senior at Elon College, will preach for us at both services next Sunday.

We extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family of Mrs. Jeanettie Sutton.

West End, Greensboro.—A good number were out for both the morning and evening services last Sunday. Dr. Bethea preached at 11 a. m., choosing his text from Isaiah 64:54, "We all do fade as a leaf." A thought-inspiring sermon was delivered as to the kind of lives we live day by day, knowing the fact that we can die so quickly.

Dr. Bethea, having consented to help Rev. D. I. Garner at Concord with revival services this week, we were glad to have a visiting pastor with us on Sunday evening. Rev. Elwood Carroll, of Grace church, brought us a splendid sermon. His text was taken from Gal. 6:7, "Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap." He showed us in his message the encouraging side of this truth. The Young People's Choir used the anthem, "Incline Thine Ear," as special music.

Circle No. 1 met Monday afternoon with Mrs. F. S. Stockard on Walker avenue. Only six members were present, but enthusiastic plans were made for the rest of the year.

Circle No. 2 met on Monday evening with Mrs. V. C. Stockard, Granite street.

Church members were distressed to hear that Marceline Hall was sick. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. K. Hall, of Bessemer, and was very sick last winter. Everyone hopes that she will be all right real soon, and that this is nothing serious. We are sorry to report that Mrs. Maggie Stafford is still unable to come to church. She has been missed in the congregation for quite a while. M. STAPLETON, Reporter.

◆

Bessemer City.—The Christian Endeavor Society meets each Sunday evening at 6 o'clock. Our devotionals are conducted by our president, Mrs. Ambrose Lutz. We have a splendid attendance. Our society has a contest going on to build the society up. If we reach the goal of 100 in four weeks we will go on a picnic.

The Ladies' Aid Society met on last Friday night at the home of Mrs. A. L. Lutz. After the business was transacted, refreshments were served. After the society had completed their business there was a group of the church members met at the home there and had a prayer service for the revival meeting which started on October 5, our pastor, Rev. J. R. Anderson, doing the preaching. He preached an extra good sermon Monday evening. His text was found in the 103rd Psalm.

The Sunday school is also increasing.

We wish the prayers of all the readers of the Herald that our church will grow in number and faith also.

Mt. Hermon Church, Mt. Hermon Charge.—Just recently electric lights have been installed in our church building, and by a little remodeling two new Sunday school rooms have been added, making eight classrooms aside from the main auditorium. After conference we hope to be able to report some other improvements.

During this period of time Mt. Hermon has lost by death three of the older members of our church, Mrs. Julia Ann Payne, wife of A. M. Payne; Mrs. Florence Ellen Thompson, wife of C. H. Thompson; and Mrs. Mary Jane Holt, wife of J. H. B. Holt. In the passing of the fine Christian mothers, many hearts around Mt. Hermon were made sad. And personally they meant a lot to me. Mrs. Payne was a sister to my deceased mother. Mrs. Thompson was one of our very closest neighbors. And Mrs. Holt was my husband's mother. May we all be better Christians by having known and loved these who have now passed on to their reward.

September 21 at 8 o'clock several of our people drove over to the parsonage to witness the ceremony performed by Rev. T. J. Whitehead when Gladys Keck became the bride of Thomas C. Holt, and Dorothy Russell and Lynn S. Holt were married. Gladys, Thomas and Lynn are members of Mt. Hermon church; Dorothy is from Bethany Presbyterian church. They are now living in this community. We wish for these splendid young people much success and happiness.

September 15 at 7:30 o'clock a young people's meeting for the Mt. Hermon charge was held at our church. Rev. J. Elwood Carroll, former pastor of this charge, pastor of Grace church, Greensboro, came with a splendid message for the youth of the church. Not only the younger ones were present, but many older ones who are in sympathy with the new movement, "Christian Youth Building a New World."

Professor G. B. Robbins, from Alexander Wilson high school, was the speaker at Christian Endeavor last Sunday evening.

The young people of the community are missing the company of those gone away to college. Millard Isley is back at High Point. G. W. Holmes III has just entered High Point this year, and Norine Sharpe is in training at Appalachian State Teachers' College.

Junius Neese, of Graham, now a ministerial student of Elon College, has accepted the invitation of the Philathea Class to come for the fourth quarter and lead the discussion of their class. They are looking forward to an interesting series of lesons. He was present for the first lesson last Sunday. He assisted the pastor in the church service by leading in prayer. We are glad to have him worship with us.

Mr. Whitehead has been very busy filling all regular appointments and attending most all meetings of any kind that are connected with the program of the church. He and Mrs. Whitehead were present for the last Ladies' Auxiliary meeting which was held in the home of Mrs. Clyde Allen. They have been very sympathetic during the sickness and deaths in our community, doing a lot of visiting in the homes. He came to us last Sunday with a very good message at the regular 3 o'clock service. Scripture, Matt., 7th chapter, beginning with the 21st verse, "For he taught them as one having authority."

Fourth quarterly conference of this charge will be held at Cedar Cliff church October 24 at 7:30. Dr. Andrews will preside over the conference. All members are urged to be present.

Next Saturday, September 12, Mr. and Mrs. Whitehead are planning a get-together party to be held at the parsonage in the form of a brunswick stew. All churches on the charge are co-operating, furnishing the different things for the stew. Tickets are being sold and the proceeds are to be used for needy causes around the parsonage. We are looking forward for a good fellowship one with the other, and also a good supper.

We wish to express our heartfelt sympathy to Mrs. H. A. Garrett in the loss of her husband. He was not a member of our church but he worshiped with us often and we too feel the loss. MRS. L. P. HOLT, Reporter.

◆

Graham.—Our Rally Day service was held last Sunday morning. We used the program prepared by the Board of Christian Education. A number of the children, well trained by Mrs. Alvis Wilson, and members of the choir took part in the service.

We were happy to have Rev. R. S. Troxler with us in our revival services this year. He brought some great sermons which we hope left a lasting impression on our people. One night during the services we were favored with a song by a quartet composed of Rev. Mr. Troxler, G. C. Fogleman, C. F. Clapp, and P. B. Core. This same quartet sang at our church 15 years ago when Mr. Troxler was pastor here.

Our pastor returned last Wednesday from Bishopville, S. C., where he assisted in revival services. He reported a successful revival.

Definite plans were made for financing the painting of the church at a meeting of the trustees Monday night.

The fourth quarterly conference will be held Friday evening, October 25.

Mrs. C. H. McPherson, who has been quite ill at the Clinic hospital, Greensboro, is improving and is expected home in a few days.

Mrs. Heenan Hughes has recovered from a brief illness.

The Woman's Auxiliary will meet Monday evening, October 14, at the hut. All members are requested to attend this meeting. Our thank-offering service will be held Sunday evening, October 20. Mrs. C. C. Burke, chairman, Mrs. Charles Stafford and Mrs. J. Clyde Auman are the committee in charge of this program. REPORTER.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Hartgrove

Francis Robah Hartgrove was born in Forsyth county, North Carolina, January 13, 1892, died August 1, 1935.

He was converted and joined Hickory Ridge M. P. church about ten years ago and had lived a consistent Christian life since that time. He was faithful and loving as a husband and father, and was considered one of the best members of the church, always willing to do his part. He will be very greatly missed by his family, his church, and a large circle of friends.

Surviving are his widow, who before her marriage in 1922 was Miss Bessie Merritt; two daughters, Phyllis and Sarah, and two brothers, J. R. Hartgrove, of Germanton, N. C., and T. H. Hartgrove, of Rural Hall, N. C.

Funeral services were conducted from the home and Red Bank Baptist church by the writer and Rev. Fred N. Day, Baptist minister. Interment was in the Red Bank graveyard.

Grabs

W. Frank Grabs was born February 17, 1842, and died August 17, 1935, after being confined to his bed for several months.

Brother Grabs had been a lifelong Methodist Protestant and at the time of his death was a member of the Oak Grove church, Rural Hall.

He was known throughout this section of the state as "the apple man," having owned a fine apple orchard for a number of years. In addition to selling large quantities of apples each year, he gave away many bushels—to the Children's Home at High Point, to his pastor, and to his numerous friends.

Brother Grabs was always interested in the entire church, but had always seemed to take special interest in the Children's Home and the church paper, the Methodist Protestant Herald. One of the last things I did for him was to renew his subscription to the Herald, and I do not recall ever visiting him that he did not inquqire about the condition of the Children's Home and the large family of children there.

He is survived by three brothers, Lazarus, Virgil, and John, all of King, N. C.

Funeral services were held at King Moravian church by the writer and Rev. F. W. Grabs, Moravian minister and a relative of the deceased. Interment was in the Moravian cemetery at King.

Rush

Mrs. Ada Roanna Hunt Rush, born July 11. 1880, departed this life September 24, 1935, being a little over 55 years of age. On February 28, 1901, she was married to Mr. D. C. Rush, who yet survives. In 1907 Mr. and Mrs. Rush adopted a young girl by the name of Calmer Rich and reared her with the attention and care of a real mother. This adopted daughter married Mr. Dan Hill, but she died about a year ago, leaving four small children who since that time made their home with Mrs. Rush. They will now miss the attention and love of Mrs. Rush, who was almost a mother to them. She expressed the hope that she might be able to live and bring these children up in her own home as children of her own.

Mrs. Rush joined the Mount View M. E. church, South, when she was about 15 years of age, and remained a Christian throughout her life. She made known just before her passing that she was ready to answer the final summons, and a friend who prepared a paper to be read at the funeral said: "She was a good, helpful friend. Husband, children and friends will sadly miss the tender and loving service she always gave."

The funeral services were conducted by the writer of this article at Mount Pleasant Methodist Protestant church in Randolph county Thursday afternoon, September 26. The many friends and loved ones extend their prayers and sympathy to the members of the family who are so deeply bereaved at this time.

BISHOP KERN GIVES GOOD ADVICE TO MINISTERS

While we might not agree with Bishop Paul B. Kern in some things, we do agree with him so heartily in the article which we are printing below that we take pleasure in passing this good advice on to our people.

"To my brethren who in the providence of God (let us hope) and in the turn of the itinerant wheel must move this fall, may I say these counseling words which have back of them many years of experience. Leave the parsonage and the premises clean. . . . Pay your debts or make honest and manly arrangements with your creditors if that is all that you can do. . . . When you leave a charge, leave it, and don't keep hanging around nursing your old affiliations and embarrassing your successor. . . . Speak a good word for the man who follows you. Tell them the good things you know about him and if you know some that are not so good let the people find that out without your help. . . Don't relay to your successor your own personal maladjustments in the congregation. There is no particular need for telling your successor about 'how he will have to watch Brother so and so' and 'how Sister so and so didn't co-operate.' You leave the new man to discover his own difficulties. If you have some fine things to say about some faithful folks, there is no law or gospel against that. . . . Study your new field. Don't think that you can carry over every method from one charge to another. Conrgeagtions are as individual as persons and the test of a man is his adaptability. . . . Don't tell your congregation your whole family history on the first Sunday. They will find out about you and your folks without much assistance from you. The less you can say about yourself the more they will like you. . . . Don't break your new relationship on the rock of a difference over salary. I find that when a preacher demands a certain salary usually at the end of the year the stewards demand a new preacher. Better work this thing out on a good-tempered, frank, brotherly basis. In 99 out of 100 cases the church will do the right thing."
—Paul B. Kern, in N. C. Christian Advocate.

FROM PASTORS AND PEOPLE

A Christian Endeavor social will be held in the church basement Friday night, October 11. A supper is being planned by the ladies to be served Saturday night, October 26, proceeds to go toward the heating plant.

We believe much good has been accomplished here this year as our membership has been doubled. Sunday school attendance has increased and as the year draws to a close we are hoping every claim will be paid in full and that Brother Cowan and wife will come back next year and all work together with renewed vigor for still better results. Pray for us. MRS. NOAH WILLIAMS, Reporter.

DID GOD FORSAKE HIS SON?

Why should one ask this question? Because there are many who believe God forsook His Son at the time he hung on the cross. They reach that conclusion from Christ's utterance: "My God, my God, why hast Thou forsaken me?"

A careful study of the Scripture bearing on this subject will reveal the fact that Jesus was not forsaken by his Father and that he was not uttering a plaintive wail of despair. Concerning his Son, God said: "This is my Son in whom I am well pleased; hear ye him."—Matt. 17:5. At the baptism of Jesus, there came a voice out of the heavens, saying, "This is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleased." We have the statement that "God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on him should not perish but have everlasting life. For God sent not his Son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world through him might be saved."—John 3:16, 17.

On one occasion when the Jews sought to kill Jesus because Jesus said God was his Father, Jesus said to them: "Verily, verily, I say unto you, the Son can do nothing of himself, but what he seeth the Father do: for what things soever he doeth, these also doeth the Son likewise. For the Father loveth the Son, and showeth him all things that himself doeth: and he will show him greater works than these, that ye may marvel." John 5:19, 20. In this discussion with the Jews, Jesus said: "I can of mine own self do nothing: as I hear, I judge: and my judgment is just; because I seek not mine own will, but the will of him that sent me." John 5:30.

Again he said: "And he that sent me is with me: the Father hath not left me alone; for I do always those things that please him." John 8:29. Again: "Believest thou not that I am in the Father, and the Father in me? The words that I speak unto you I speak not of myself: but the Father that dwelleth in me, he doeth the works." John 14:10.

Again Jesus said: "Therefore doth my Father love me, because I lay down my life, that I might take it up again. No man taketh it from me, but I lay it down of myself. I have power to lay it down, and I have power to take it again. This commandment have I received of my Father."

These statements clearly show that when Jesus hung on the cross it was in accordance with the Father's will. How then could God forsake him when he was doing that which the Father sent him to do, namely to give his life a ransom for many? Paul does not hint at such a thing as God forsaking his Son, but says God was in Christ reconciling the world unto himself, not imputing their trespasses unto them; and hath committed unto us the word of reconciliation. Now then we are ambassadors for Christ, as though God were entreating you by us: we beseech you on behalf of Christ, be ye reconciled to God. II Cor. 5:19, 20. Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners, and it pleases God through the simplicity of preaching to save them that believe. So then we see that there was perfect harmony between the Father and the Son in the plan of human redemption. You ask: Why then did Christ cry out while on the cross: "My God, my God, why hast Thou forsaken me?" When I was in Lewisburg, Pa., last April, I attended a Lenten service in which the seven ministers of the village treated the fourth word (My God, my God, etc.) and gave such a dark picture of the Father's treatment of his Son as to be a reflection on the Father's character. I felt sad that men who preach the gospel of love do not let Scripture interpret Scripture and thus come to a better understanding of the word. Matthew says that at the ninth hour Jesus cried with a loud voice, saying, "Eloi, E-lo-i, lamasabach-tha-ni?" Twice while on the cross Jesus cried with a loud voice. Have you ever asked yourself: Why was this, and then sought to answer the question? If you will turn to John 8:28, you will find the reason of his crying aloud. He told the Jews when they had lifted up the Son of Man then they should know that he was their Messiah.

When a minister says: "Let us sing 'Rock of Ages, Cleft for Me,'" he throws on the canvas of the people's mind the whole hymn, so when Jesus said, calling out loud and clear, giving the title of the Messianic Psalm, the Jews were given to understand they were crucifying their Messiah, so that it was not a plaintive wail of despair, but the fulfillment of what he had promised, that the Jews should know he was the Messiah, and that his words came true is shown by the fact that under Peter's preaching 3,000 accepted him as Messiah and soon the number was swelled to 5,000 and later to many thousands. It seems to me this explains why Jesus gave the title of the Messianic Psalm in a loud voice so the listening Jews might hear and know they had crucified their Messiah. In Gethsemane the Father sent an angel to strengthen his Son, and no doubt Jesus felt his Father's sustaining presence while on the cross. Twice from the cross Christ called out loud, the last time was when he laid down his life, as he said no man took it from him for he laid it down of himself. He died as he would, when he would, not as a weakling, but as the strong Son of God who said in clear tones that all might hear and know that he did not think God had forsaken him: "Father, into Thy hands I commend my spirit"; and having said this he expired. Tenderly his Father cared for him and declared him to be the Son of God with power, according to the spirit of holiness, by the resurrection from the dead Jesus Christ our Lord. Thus did God prove Himself the model Father for all time so that Paul in writing to disciples could say: Be ye imitators of God as dear children. Fathers should find great inspiration for the proper treatment of their sons in the study of the relationship existing between God the Father and his Son Jesus Christ, and in the study of the life of Jesus may we find unspeakable joy in our sonship to our loving heavenly Father and may we maintain that sonship in the spirit of Jesus who said: "I do always those things that please the Father."—S. Q. Helfenstein, in Christian Sun.

Report of Mrs. J. S. Williams, secretary of Bethel Home, was accepted, and she stated that she would be calling on us a little later for a donation to get blankets for the Home. Tray covers are also needed. If any one wants to send, size 36 by 36 inches.

No report from secretary of Children's Home, but Mrs. Bates urged that we send coupons and any print dresses that you might have that your children have outgrown. Mrs. Ragan was asked to ask Miss Boyles to get behind securing cakes, apples, bananas for school lunches.

Report of Mrs. L. W. Gerringer, secretary, accepted. Mrs. Gerringer's resignation was read and accepted with regrets, and Mrs. Kennett was appointed to fill this vacancy in connection with Christian Education. Mrs. Andrews led in prayer, and Miss Young concluded it, for Mrs. Gerringer, that Christ may be her companion all along life's way. It was voted to have a called meeting after supper.

Meeting adjourned and we had supper at the Bethel Home, after which we enjoyed a song service of old familiar hymns. We then went to the cabin for a short session, at which time a board of directors was elected for the corporation of the N. C. Branch. They were the incorporators.

Mrs. Redding was asked to express to the Bates' our gratitude for the very pleasant stay, Mrs. Teague to write the Weaverville ladies, and Miss Young to express to Mr. Casto our gratitude for the very pleasant day, and she asked that we all sing "The End of a Perfect Day," after which Mr. Casto dismissed us with prayer.

ALBEMARLE	99
HIGH POINT, FIRST	96
GIBSONVILLE	95

No charge goes over the top this week, but several are getting mighty close. If you could have seen the figures when we ran up the percentages, you would have thought that a great many of them were going over the top pretty soon. Albemarle still holds on to top place. But High Point, First, comes right up and demands that Gibsonville get down out of second place and take third place. Well, Gibsonville is still in the running and some of these days she is going over.

And now for the receipts. There is not any doubt about who is in the lead. A blind man could almost see that. High Point First, which has been making a steady climb all the year, is getting in earnest now and is charging the goal line. Well, we knew they could reach the top and we fully expected them to do it. Now we know they are going to do it. And there is a city by the name of Asheboro that is very conspicuous in the receipts this week, although their contribution is sent in in three divisions. If the same person had sent in all of it, Asheboro would be in second place. Both Enfield and Lincolnton make a good showing and the former is getting near the goal. Glen Raven, Mebane and Whitakers send in more than one subscription. And then, what a fine line of smaller subscriptions we do have! It certainly is great to see the list lengthening again. Keep the good work up and within a few weeks a number of charges will have reached the goal, and the conference year will have ended.

And now, for the subsidy! Maple Springs on the Forsyth charge sends its quota. Rock Creek on the Alamance charge sends along the remainder for that charge and this entitles Alamance to a star. Mr. Printer, give them a good one.

The receipts this week are $72.12, $67.50 being on subscriptions and $4.43 on subsidy.

Praying for the Annual Conference

Quite frequently in the public prayer we hear people pray for the Annual Conference. When this is a desire of the heart it is a good thing to do, and we would not have less of it but more. For there has never been a time since the church was founded that it has not stood in need of prayer. An annual conference is made up of a number of ministers and a number of laymen representing a number of churches. These churches are a part of the general church, and the general church is very close to the kingdom of God. Then, what concerns the general church should be of concern to the Annual Conference, and what is of concern to an annual conference should concern our entire denomination and should even reach out to other denominations and to the kingdom of God. When we look at an annual conference in this broad light we can begin to realize to some extent the importance of praying for it that its work might be done in the best possible manner.

It ought not to be necessary to remind any group of church people of the importance of prayer. The Bible is so filled with the thought and the idea of prayer that we already realize the importance of it if we have been students of the Word even to a small degree. Our Lord said much about prayer and did much about it. Tennyson, the poet, has said that more things are accomplished by prayer than this world dreams of. If this be true, how important it is then to be praying for the work and the workers and these are embraced in the annual conference.

Now the question might come to us, Why should we pray for the annual conference? We should pray for it because so much depends on it and the way the work is done. If our institutions were children's play houses and those who are dependent on the annual conference were imaginary characters, then we might go to the next session and swap a few good jokes, have a lot of good things to eat, see a lot of friends and go home, saying we had done our duty. But it is impossible for us to see things in that light. Our institutions are not children's playhouses. They are real institutions and they have obligations to be met. These institutions have been established at great cost, and they mean a great deal to the church. They were established to supply a real need, and if they succeed the world will be richer, and if they fail the world will be poorer, our lives will be poorer, and the kingdom of God on earth will suffer. Until we can feel that our church, our institutions belong to God and are a part of His working force for the advancement of the kingdom, we shall not do much for them nor for anything else.

Perhaps a good way to find out whether these churches and the institutions are a part of the working force of the kingdom or not would be to find out what they do and what their functions are. Take, for instance, a local church. What is it supposed to do? Well, it is a place where the gospel is preached. What gospel? The gospel of Jesus Christ. This gospel is the "good news" that Christ died to save the sinner and that God loves us and wants us to be saved. Is that not the same kind of a gospel that Christ preached when He was here on the earth? Certainuly it is. Then if it is the same gospel that Christ preached, surely the church that preaches such a gospel has the Divine favour resting on it. But this local church does not stop there. When Christ was here he was interested in children and took them up in his arms and blessed them. Well, the modern church, through its Sunday school, is trying to do something for its children. Then there is the work of leading the young people to a decision for Christ, and the big task of getting the older ones to make a deeper consecration of their lives to Christ. Not only is there the work of the local church, but there is our College, our Children's Home, our missionary interests, our Church Extension work, our church papers. All of these are in line with the program of Christ for making this world a better place to live. Any board or institution that is trying to advance the kingdom deserves our support.

Since our work is so important and there is so much to be done, and since so much depends on the work being done in the right spirit, it does seem that this is a time when we ought to be praying for the coming annual conference. But praying for the annual conference might be too indefinite for some folks, so we might say that we ought to pray for wisdom for the stationing authorities. There will be more than eighty charges to be supplied. Much depends upon getting the right man in the right place. Not all charges are alike and not all pastors are alike. Since they are so different it is but reasonable that some ministers would suit better and be happier in one place than in some other place. It quite frequently happens that a good man is sent to a certain place but cannot do his best work there because of local conditions, whereas someone else might fit in this place. Surely this question of supplying the right charge with the right man is a tremendous one and one that is entitled to a great deal of prayer.

Then we need to be praying that the best thing might be done for our boards and institutions. And how much is involved here! A single misguided motion might spell defeat for a certain institution for a year. For motions are supposed to determine the direction in which the conference shall go during the next year. When the conference has adjourned and the members have gone home, it is usually too late to undo any mistakes that were made.

Finally, we need to be praying for Divine guidance in the problems that confront us. This is a time when representatives are to be elected to the General Conference. It would be a good thing to pray much before casting a vote. This will be much better and is a surer way of finding out the will of God than to campaign for some particular candidate with the view of "putting him over." Whether we are for union or against union, we would do well to pray about the matter and to seek the leading of the Holy Spirit. If we have His leading we shall not go wrong, but if we seek for personal preferment and gain, we are liable to do a great deal of damage to the kingdom. Let us be much in prayer.

MEMORY NOTES

Rev. W. A. Ledford

Formerly I took notes in the classroom, lecture hall, and in church services. The custom made it so easy to plagiarize, and savored so much of high school debaters that I dropped it. Now I attend lectures, hear great preachers, and even read good books without taking a note, or marking a section. If I am not sufficiently interested and impressed with things for them to "stick" in my memory, I allow them to pass into oblivion, so far as I am concerned. I am independent in some things. Once a busybody approached me with the information that certain of my members habitually slept during the sermons of my predecessor. I replied, "If I cannot make my sermons interesting enough, and deliver them loud enough to keep people awake, sleeping is their privilege."

Perhaps, the way many things are, often unconsciously done, makes one appear foolish, if not ridiculous. I overheard a young lady once playing and singing "The Home of the Soul," and when she came to the line, "While the years of eternity roll," she would say loudly and distinctly "eter-ni′-ty." Recently Gypsy Smith was leading a great congregation at Ocean Grove, N. J., in singing "The Beauty of Jesus." He suddenly paused and asked how many of us attended high school, and after having the word purity spelled and pronounced correctly, he asked again, "When you sing, why do you say 'pu-rat-ty'?" The singer ought to pronounce his words as clearly and correctly as the orator.

Gypsy Smith gave us a leaf out of his personal experience that is worthy of passing on. In substance it was as follows: "I was preparing a sermon the other day. I got to where I could go no further without help. Calling my wife, I said to her, Do you remember when I led you to Jesus? You were then 17 and I just out of my teens. Since then you have become my wife, and the mother of my children. I want to know if you see more of Jesus in me than you did when I led you to Jesus." He exhorted the preachers to pray often with their wives. I often wonder if women, after they have washed the flesh off of their fingers in a thousand dish waters for men, see as much good in them as they did the day they were led to the marriage altar. How many could say with the late Rev. J. B. Moton (just before his going home), "I love the furrows on her cheek more dearly than I did the rosy tint of her youth"?

I began this paper to pass on some good things that have "stuck" in my memory, and grow more important the deeper they penetrate, which came to me while attending camp meeting at Ocean Grove. I was born in an old-fashioned revival meeting and I hunger and thirst for one frequently. Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes, a great evangelistic preacher of the old school, and one of the foremost leaders of Methodist unification, preached twice. He is always refreshing and moving. Dr. George W. Truett, president of the Baptist World Alliance, and pastor of the First Baptist church in Dallas, Texas, for the past 35 years, was the special evening preacher. He is a large man in many ways: noble in bearing, towering in intellect, commanding in appearance, possessing a rare pulpit voice, and yet leaving the impression that he walks humbly with his God. He invariably spoke of his part on the program as his testimony. Like John the Baptist, "He is a bright and shining witness." He is pre-eminently a Scriptural preacher, following the expositoral style.

While Dr. Truett was master of the great evening assemblies, leading his audience into the secret place of the Most High, Dr. Merton S. Rice, pastor of Metropolitan M. E. church, Detroit, Mich., for the past 25 years, was doing equally as well for the morning congregations. Preacher of national repute, lecturer of great renown, voluminous writer, he has to be heard to be fully appreciated. Each sermon seemed to be his "sugar stick." Speaking primarily to ministers one day, he made this statement, adding that he was ashamed of the fact: "Insurance companies find ministers of the gospel their best, safest risks." It isn't very complimentary in the light of what Jesus said about saving one's life, and Paul's risks for the gospel.

One morning Dr. Rice read and expounded that passage of Scripture which tells of John the Baptist in prison, sending two of his disciples to Jesus to learn if he were the Coming One, or should they look for another. Some commentators hold that John's reverses had put him down in the dumps, while others think John was safe himself, but wanted to help his own disciples, whom he would soon leave behind. Most ministers whom I had heard stressed that some one had gotten on the shoals through doubt, but Dr. Rice took a hopeful, positive view, speaking reverently that even the failure of Jesus Christ would not shake the faith of John the Baptist. He would keep on looking. We might explain Jesus' tribute to John better with this emphasis.

The great preacher was making an eloquent appeal for a faith that would remain unshaken in our day. Many let little, trivial things upset their faith, and hinder them in working for God and humanity. Dr, Rice told of a brokenhearted husband and hysterical wife among his own members, whose case became so desperate that he and his chief assistant were both called in for counsel and consolation. After hearing the story of their losing all their fortune in the depression, the assistant pastor asked abruptly, "Is that all you have lost?" The lady saw the light and exclaimed that it was not so bad after all. No one is desperate with God and heaven as his very own. Faith is still the victory that overcomes the world.

McCULLOCH MEMORIAL FUND

Honor Roll

(No additions. Sorry, but can't help it. Can't put any church up here until it wins the place. If you want to have the name of your church here, it's up to you.)

"COME SEVEN, COME ELEVEN"

That's all I know about crap shooting, or any other kind of gambling. I do know that it is a term used in betting. Well, Bethel, Alamance, has sent in the seven. But I haven't seen the eleven; at least, not yet. But it's a safe bet, that we won't wind up the McCulloch Memorial Fund by conference unless the money comes in faster the next three weeks than it has in the last three months. And I, for one, would like to see it wound up by conference. I don't want to have to spend another year talking about it.

I understand some of the churches have put the McCulloch fund "in the budget." Well, I hope it comes out. We hide a lot of things in the budget, and they don't come out, or up.

And a word to the churches that haven't put it anywhere: Do you think it quite fair for some of the churches to accept this obligation, and make considerable sacrifice to meet it, and you ignore it? I'll let you answer the question. I hope you'll do so in dollars.

Amount previously reported	$1,934.89
Bethel, Alamance	7.00
Total to date	$1,941.89

This is the first remittance from Bethel, Alamance. Hope it won't be the last, because I want that church to get on the Honor Roll. Bethel—"House of God." And in it folks who seek to do the will of God. It's His will, isn't it, that we be square and honest?

"THE MESSAGE OF JEREMIAH"

The International Sunday School Lesson for Sunday, October 20, 1935

By Rev. J. Elwood Carroll

Scripture Lesson—Jeremiah 7:1-26.

Golden Text—"Hearken unto my voice, and I will be your God, and ye shall be my people."—Jeremiah 7:23.

Jeremiah lived and preached in a rapidly changing age. Last Sunday we noted the outstanding events in his life—his call (ch. 1); his first sermon (ch. 26); his imprisonment (ch. 37); and finally, his being carried captive. We now look at his message more thoroughly.

Before considering the message of Jeremiah, may we observe the book which bears his name. It is the longest of the prophetic books. Incidentally we understand that it is the only one of the prophetic books that explains its own origin: "Jeremiah called Baruch, the son of Neriah; and Baruch wrote from the mouth of Jeremiah all the words of the Lord which he had spoken unto him, upon a roll of a book" (36:4). Even if this first copy were cut into shreds by the king and burned, a second copy was made in the same order (36:32).

That manuscript dictated by Jeremiah and written down by Baruch marks the beginning of the present book of Jeremiah. Later, however, many additions were made to the book by Baruch, Jeremiah, and other scribes. As the book now stands it may be divided into four unequal parts: (1) the first twenty-five chapters contain prophetic sermons; (2) chapters 26 through 45 are mostly the memoirs of Baruch; (3) the section in chapters 46-51 is devoted to oracles spoken by Jeremiah against foreign nations; and (4) the closing chapter, 52, is an historical appendix taken largely from second Kings.

Jeremiah spoke God's message (7:2). Certainly there are words of wisdom which come from God by the working of his spirit upon the hearts of men. Jeremiah is delivering a divine message which has not been arrived at through philosophy, neither through human instruction, nor for the financial support he will receive for delivering it. It is God's impact upon his own soul. His refrain in every sermon was, "Thus saith the Lord." Yes, what a difference such a burning conviction would make in much of our modern preaching, Sunday school teaching, and even daily conduct.

God's righteousness was the foundation of Jeremiah's appeal to repentance. Surely he decried the many sins of his people. Just select most any passage in the first twenty-five chapters of the book and his spirit of denunciation is clearly proved. But who can denounce without pointing to that which is higher? Who can denounce the evils of sin without knowing the goodness of God? Jonathan Edwards of New England might scare people sick by proclaiming the thought of "Sinners in the Hands of an Angry God," but he could not get men to love such a God. The pit cannot be made dark nor the consequences of sin black without pointing the sinner to the "Light of the World." Heinous sin must be seen as the opposite of the glory of God. Thus, Jeremiah experienced in his own life and proclaimed without hesitation to the people.

The prophetic utterance of Jeremiah was set forth in the true style of any prophecy—it was based upon a condition. The outcome of the conduct of the people can be either of two things. The continuation of the present sinful acts will certainly bring destruction and captivity; or repentance for the definitely listed sins will be the only way to the continued existence of the kingdom of Judah. The alternative is, continue your present policy and go into captivity, or repent and possess your native land. The sins of the people are listed: (1) "Trust . . . in lying words" of the priests who assure you that all things will be well if you merely observe the rites of the temple regardless of the state of your individual life (7:4); (2) dealing unjustly with one's neighbor (7:5); oppressing the foreigner or tourist who comes to your country, oppressing the widow who has no husband to advise her in business affairs (7:6); (4) shedding of innocent blood; and (5) the worshipping of idols and other false gods as do the pagans (7:6). For cessation from such conduct the reward is "to dwell in this place, in the land that I gave to your fathers, from of old even for evermore" (7:7). Verses 8-11 are a repeated denunciation of the same sins just listed.

Jeremiah is historically accurate in saying that Jehovah did not institute nor command the sacrifices "in the day that (He) brought them out of the land of Egypt" (7:22). Offerings and sacrifices had existed as early as Cain and Abel's day (Genesis 4:3), but became an established custom gradually through the centuries which followed. There seems to be no particular objection to them until offerings and sacrifices became a substitute for personal righteousuness. Such an hour had come and God had raised up his man in Jeremiah to put the people right on this point. It required a captivity for the people to learn their lesson. With the destruction of the temple and the captivity, burnt offerings and sacrifices among the Hebrew people ended.

Thus, Jeremiah's message dealt with the glory of God and the shameful consequences of sin.

Questions for Discussion

1. Which of the sins listed by Jeremiah do you believe were present as causes of our depression?
2. Do you believe that we have sufficiently repented for the sins of the past and living for God thoroughly enough now to assure ourselves of a return of prosperity?
3. Do we have symbols in our churches and our ritual which have become gods in themselves to us? How about the ritual of baptism, the elements of the Lord's Supper, a crucifixion, or the rosary?
4. Which helps you to be a better Christian, the thought of punishment if you should sin, or the thought of fellowship with God if you live upright?
5. Is my personal conviction of right strong enough to make me suffer for that right?
6. Does not a true Christian minister warrant our respect as an authority in the field of morals and religion as does a doctor in the field of medicine? Why? Why not?

Miss Boyles to Wed

Last Sunday's daily papers carried the announcement that Miss Imogene Boyles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Boyles, of Thomasville, and Douglas Charles Crutchfield, also of Thomasville, are to be married in mid-winter. Miss Boyles is the Children's Home secretary for the N. C. Branch of Women's work.

It Is President Carroll Now

Those who meet Rev. J. Elwood Carroll will please learn to call him Mr. President, he having been elected president of the Greensboro Kiwanis club recently.

Grace Church's Sunday School Teachers Take Training

This week about a dozen of the Sunday school teachers of Grace church, Greensboro, are attending the Leadership Training School at the First Presbyterian church.

Calvary church in Greensboro has met both of its semi-annual payments to the Pilot Life Insurance Company this year, reducing the principal by $850, besides paying interest of more than $350.

WHY THE CHURCHES ARE OPPOSED TO WAR

The effect of the world crisis has been to strengthen the purpose of the churches to put an end to war. More than ever, the churches are convinced that the Christian religion and war do not mix. Churches in every land are denouncing the sinfulness of war; they are pointing out the incompatibility of the churches rendering moral support to nations that resort to war; they have given and are giving practical support to measures designed to promote peace and to uproot war.

And why? Why all of this concern among Christian churches regarding peace and war?

The economist opposes war because war is an economic folly. The humanitarian opposes war because of its devastating effect on human life. The statesman opposes war because war is political stupidity. The churchman opposes war not only for these reasons but for the deeper reason that war is alien to Christian faith and the very antithesis of the Christian way of life. Jesus exalted human personality as the creation of God; war degrades human personality. Jesus proclaimed the brotherhood of the human family under one Father of all; war is a denial of brotherhood. Jesus put his confidence in the constructive power of goodness; war is the enthronement of sheer might regardless of right. Jesus made primary the law of love; war makes primary the law of the jungle. Jesus taught the forgiveness of one's enemies; war makes necessary the hatred of one's enemies. What Jesus held dear, war denies; what Jesus hated, war extols. Jesus envisaged a Kingdom of God without racial or national barriers; war transforms the natural differences of race and of culture into divisive antagonisms.

The churchman opposes war also because war means the sundering of the Body of Christ. The church, as the fellowship of His disciples, is made up not of the citizens of one nation but of all the nations of the world. Of that supra-national character of the Christian church, the missionary movement, built up by the world vision sacrifice of generations, is the living expression. When war is seen as the dismembering of the Body of Christ, no Christian can tolerate it.

The churches, grounded in faith in a creative and triumphant God, do not believe that war is inevitable. They intend to utilize every constructive measure to prevent war and to establish peace with justice. Not only at home, but abroad, the churches are seeking to develop a strong anti-war sentiment and to secure effective action on the part of their respective governments, to rid humanity of the curse of war.—From Armistice Day Program, Federal Council of Churches.

How to Send Subsidy Money

In several cases recently, subsidy money for the Herald has been delayed in reaching us because people sent it to Treasurer Allen. This is to say that Mr. Allen, who is the treasurer of the annual conference, does not handle subsidy, neither does Dr. Bates handle it. It comes directly to the M. P. Herald. Mr. Allen handles the annual and general conference funds. Dr. Bates handles the McCulloch Memorial Fund, and the editor of the Herald handles subsidy. So, send it direct.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord.

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

Other Pastors Reporting

Pastor Reynolds reports that Bethel has paid all annual conference claims in full, likewise the amount accepted on World Service. He expects pastor to be paid in full at next appointment. This church is on Randolph circuit.

Pastor Pegg reports that Haw River church has paid both annual conference claims and amount accepted on World Service. Glen Raven paid all annual conference claims in full. All these churches will pay pastor in full.

Brother Trogdon reports that Worthville church has paid all annual conference claims in full; that New Salem has paid A. C. expenses, superannuates and church extension in full.

Brother Cranford reports that Vance has made a 10 per cent net gain in membership this year.

Pastors' Report Blanks All Mailed Out

We put into the mails last week report blanks to both pastors and delegates. Yours should be in your hands many days before you read this; if it is not, write me. I was unable to send report blanks to all delegates—did not have the names of some, a few others did not have the post-office address. If you failed to receive blank please write for it. It is important that you have this before you start to conference.

IT IS IMPORTANT that the questions asked on these blanks be answered—important to me, at least. Please do not pigeon-hole it nor return it to me with only two or three questions answered. I will need some of the information in preparing my report to the conference. The ministerial member of the stationing committee will need to know certain things when he begins his work. So be specific in your answers. If some pastors were as forgetful about other things as they are about reporting to the president, they would forget the way home or even forget to eat at regular meal times. The annual conference makes this one of the duties of the pastor. It certainly is no fun for the president. Neither does he consider it a mark of respect or disrespect for you to send it or fail. It just shows how little thought such a preacher has of his task.

The Honor Roll of Churches and Charges

I am exceedingly anxious to have this list completed by Tuesday after the fourth Sunday. Then I want to prepare such a list for my report, and we certainly would regret to leave out any church which has paid all annual conference claims, i.e., church extension, superannuates, A. C. debt, A. C. expenses, and High Point College apportionment. Then tell if your charge paid the amount accepted for World Service, and if it has a net gain of 10 per cent in membership. Other items will be shown in the HERALD, such as the payment of subsidy, McCulloch Memorial Fund, etc.

Just a word about Annual Conference Debt. There is a misunderstanding about this item. It was not put into the budget to remain one year, nor to take care of the unpaid balance of the Gratitude Gift which hung over since 1928; but this item takes care of other debts which were made to keep the conference going and which totaled three years ago about $6,000. We have paid off some of these debts and we expect to pay off more of them this fall, but we cannot do it if you fail to pay your apportionment. So come along and pay this for two or three years longer and it will come out of the budget. We do hope you will do this.

First Church, High Point, Rev. J. C. Madison, Pastor

We visited this church last Sunday morning. It was our first visit in two years. There was present a congregation which very near filled the auditorium. The pastor installed the officials of the church who had been elected the previous Sunday with a very appropriate form. It was a fine body of people who occupied the seats reserved for these officials. We hope they will at least do as well as they look, which would be no mean standard of service they would set for this church.

First church has had to bear a heavy burden in its debt since it went into the present building. It has hardly done more than bear it, for it has been difficult to reduce it in these days of financial depression, and besides, the church has sustained some heavy losses by death. But these people are not under the juniper tree—not they. There are some plucky spirits here who will hardly park in that place at all, certainly not now. For the church is really in better condition in every way than it has been for quite a while. The attendance is much better, and there have been received into the church quite a number of new members; not yet 10 per cent gain, but approaching it, for this church has nearly or quite 800 members. The pastor is alert and sympathetic in his approaches and contacts, and the membership is showing its appreciation by good cooperation. Yes, First church will get out of its present financial embarrassment, and then we shall expect great things denominationally from her. Of course, all claims will be met by conference.

Level Cross and Mt. Lebanon Churches, Randleman Ct., Rev. J. B. Trogdon, Pastor

We were at Level Cross in the afternoon. There appears to have been some misunderstanding about the service, I was told, so the attendance was off a little. The pastor starts a revival meeting this week in this church, and we are hoping for a fine meeting. The people say they will meet all claims and pastor's salary before conference. We had with us Bro. Lee Moser, pastor of Spencer-China Grove charge, who delivered an interesting sermon which we think was much appreciated by the people.

At night we were at Mt. Lebanon or Randleman church. The people here were quite attentive and appreciative. It was not the regular hour for worship here. The pastor expects the four churches to pay all annual conference claims and pastor's salary and much more on World Service than was paid last year. Brother Trogdon is serving his fourth year here and is deservedly well esteemed.

FROM REV. W. L. HARKEY

Dear Editor:

In looking through some of the old Heralds, which were about five years of age, I found this very interesting article. I feel that it is worthy of reprinting, since there are a great many people guilty of this act of disloyalty.

W. L. Harkey.

Weaverville, N. C.

Church Members and Hard Times

Hard times serve to reveal a difference between two classes of church members. Those of one class cut off their contributions to the church. They say to themselves, "I may not have enough for myself if I give anything to you. I will therefore withhold." They leave entirely to others the support of the church. Instead of growing in grace they shrink and shrivel. Members of the other class, if they cannot pay as much as before, still pay according to their ability, and they continue to grow in generosity and in every virtue.

Church people should remember that the church is not the cause of hard times. We would have hard times such as we never saw before if the light of the church were extinguished. Giving to the church and to its institutions is one way of giving to God. When did a man ever impoverish himself by giving to God? When was a generous righteous man ever forsaken or his children found begging bread? You can safely give to God's work your bottom dollar.

Moriah Church Pleased

Reports coming in from Moriah church, near Greensboro, indicate that the people are very much pleased with the preaching of Rev. W. M. Strickland, a student at High Point College, who has been supplying this church since Rev. W. M. Howard returned to the Seminary a few weeks ago. Brother Strickland, we believe, is a native of Louisiana.

PASTORS' REPORT BLANKS MAILED

The report blanks got in the mail this week, and you ought to have yours by now. If not, I do not have your correct address, or it has gone astray. In either case, write me.

There are no changes in the Statistical Blank. The President and the Secretary were made a committee to revise the Pastors' Personal Report Blank. We decided we could use the present blank by eliminating certatin items, and save the expense of having a new blank printed. So I've used a razor blade and a bit of "stickum." You'll do the rest.

We are asking you to help us arrange a new sort of Honor Roll this year, which, perhaps, will be as effective, and certainly much cheaper, than the form we have been using for some time. Please observe the following:

No form for reporting Honor Roll items is included in your envelope. I have even cut out the one that was on the Information Blank. Instead, please list on the back of your statistical blank all churches entitled to Honor Roll recognition; for example:

Annual Conference Expense—Harris Chapel, Gillburg, Spring Valley.

Annual Conference Debt—New Hope, Flat Rock.

And so on through the list. These are the items: Pastor's Salary, Annual Conference Expense, Annual Conference Debt, Superannuates, Church Extension, College, McCulloch Memorial Fund, Herald Quota, Subsidy, N. C. Conf. C. R. E., World Service.

How about that Journal money? Three weeks to conference and 31 charges still haven't turned in the money. Shall we report the pastors to the Committee on Official Character or the Committee on Ministerial Moral Character? If you don't know how much you owe, drop me a card; I'll let you know by return mail. Then you can drop me the money—and I'll drop the subject.

C. W. Bates, Secretary.

Send Material Early, Conference Week

In order that the editor may be at conference on Wednesday, November 6th, we have decided to make the deadline for turning in material for publication and money on Tuesday afternoon, November 5th. It may be necessary for you to mail your articles a day earlier that week than usual. If you want to reach your quota this year in the Herald campaign, just remember you must get your money to us by Tuesday afternoon, November 5th. Please do not take money to conference if you want credit for it on this year's quota.

Home-Coming at Flat Rock Church, Vance Charge

We have been asked to state that there will be a home-coming at Flat Rock church on the Vance charge next Sunday, October 20, begining at 11 o'clock. At the morning hour the address will be by Bennett Perry, attorney-at-law of Henderson. In the afternoon the time will be spent largely in singing. One special feature will be the Dixon quartet from Glen Raven. Dinner will be served on the church grounds at the noon hour.

"FOUR ACES—TEN HIGH"

As I write this note my hands are all stained with human blood—the blood of a young lady taken from the ruins of a wrecked car out on the highways where men meet, pass and repass, and sometimes never pass that way again. It was almost that way here. I had never seen any of the occupants of either car before, and since then I have often wondered if the poor girl lived through it.

They say: "Two wrongs never make one right," and I think it's just as true that two giddy-headed drivers never make a highway safe for anyone to travel. It was demonstrated in the abovenamed wreck. And it's bad enough when a sorry drunken man gets hold of a wheel, but when a mother with grown daughters takes the wheel and a few drinks—well, I guess she feels she has as much right to do it as the man.

One cannot easily forget the cries of that poor girl as she pleaded for daddy to take her away. Her face and neck were cut and gashed almost past mending, her body scarred and bruished almost beyond recognition, and her life blood poured freely before the physician arrived to help out. And yet this is just another instance of what happens on our highways every day. And you can believe it or not, I happen to have a check on things of this kind, and know that these wrecks have doubled in the eastern part of Carolina since July 1.

After the doctor had bandaged up the wounds and rushed the injured parties to the hospital, two of us looked in the cars to see if any belongings had been left there that might be taken by the curious or those minded to steal. In the back of one were a few magazines, a candy package, and a package of whiskey labeled Four Aces, whatever that is, and about half the contents had been used. In the other car were found a half dozen broken pop bottles and another package from a nearby liquor store marked Ten High—and these were the only clues the officials had as to what caused the wreck. And, of course, the whiskey was okeyed by the state and nation—and that was all right, as it had the sanction of both state and nation, and officers made no noise about the legal whiskey. But the results were seen in one of the worst wrecks on the principal highways of our state.

Alcoholic beverage control! Looks more like an Abominal Butchery Conflict, if you will get out on the highways and look. The most violated law of the state is our road laws. I travel the whole of the state east of Raleigh from Wilmington to the Virginia line and keep a check on things as I go, and I know it gets worse every day. Instead of those great A. B. C. stores doing such wonders, they have just doubled the amount of whiskey that can be purchased. They are open from morning to 6 p. m. and allow no drinking, but the bootlegger is open at night, and that doubles things up.

Is there no remedy to be found? God save us if there is not. There is no such thing as "control" for liquor—anybody knows that—but there could be a remedy for the highways, drunken drivers and road hogs. That sentence meted out by a judge down in Hertford the other day is the thing. A jail sentence, with permission to work the man on the road—a stiff fine and removal of his license. That's the thing.—J. Vincent Knight, in N. C. Christian Advocate.

THE CHURCHES AND THE WORLD CRISIS

The observance by the churches of the forthcoming Armistice season is of timely significance in view of the widespread talk of war in Europe. The Federal Council's Department of International Justice and Goodwill is inviting the churches of the United States to observe Armistice Sunday, November 10, by emphasizing afresh the place of the Christian gospel in the attainment of a warless world.

The Federal Council's 1935 Armistice pamphlet, "The Churches and the World Crisis," takes into account the threats to peace in Europe, the Far East and Africa. Christians are urged, in the light of these untoward circumstances, to study the neutrality policies recently initiated by the United States and to give their moral support to all constructive efforts designed to establish peace with justice.

The Department of International Justice and Goodwill, of which Dr. Walter W. Van Kirk is secretary, flatly denies that the Neutrality Act implies that the United States has gone isolationist. "Neutrality legislation is not interpreted by the churches as an isolationist policy," says the department in its Armistice publication. "On the contrary," it is held, "the churches believe that such legislation will conduce toward a more effective co-operation by the United States with the other nations for the prevention of war." It is further affirmed that "full support was given to this legislation by multitudes of church people who have long believed and who still believe that only through international co-operation will it be possible to rid the world of war."

This year's Armistice literature has a significant section entitled "Churches of the World Demand the Uprooting of War." Here will be found quotations from resolutions on peace recently adopted by a number of church and interchurch organizations.

The department invites the churches to consider the peril to peace implicit in the armament program of the United States and of other nations. The present-day armament race is described as "madness" and it is made clear that the churches cannot be expected to give their moral support to such war-provoking policies.

Pastors and church leaders will find in the Council's Armistice publication a genuine help in the observance of the Armistice season. Orders for this pamphlet should be sent to Walter W. Van Kirk, Federal Council of Churches, 105 East 22nd Street, New York, N. Y. The price is 5 cents for a single copy, $2 for 100 copies and $8 for 1,000 copies.

HARPOONS NEEDED

A sailor had just returned from a whaling voyage, and he was taken by a friend to hear an eloquent preacher. After the sermon he asked, "Jack, wasn't that a fine sermon?" "Yes, it was shipshape," said Jack, "the masts just high enough, the sails and rigging all right, but I did not see any harpoons. When a vessel goes on a whaling voyage, the great thing is to get whales, but they do not come because you have a fine ship; you must go after them and harpoon them. The preacher must be the whaler."—Selected.

HARD TIMES AND ROVER

"What makes Rover cry so?" asked Polly.

"I believe that dog's hungry," said Paul. "He never used to carry on like that."

Rover was the next-door neighbor's dog. He was tied to his kennel and he was howling and howling.

"Mr. Jones is out of town looking for work," said the children's mother, "and Mrs. Jones has had to go to work herself. There's nobody home but little Mary. Perhaps she has forgotten the dog. Here she comes now, on her way to school. Do you want to ask her?"

Paul ran out to meet Mary. He didn't mean to hurt her feelings. He was just thinking about Rover.

"Mary," he called, "did you forget to give Rover his breakfast?"

Little Mary hung her head.

"I didn't have anything to give him," she said. "We don't have much ourselves since hard times."

Mrs. Kane, the children's mother, heard and was very sorry for Mary, and for Rover, too.

"Never mind, Mary," said she. "Polly and Paul will take Rover some breakfast."

"Thank you, Mrs. Kane," said Mary, politely.

Polly and Paul had heard a great deal of talk about hard times.

"What's the meaning of hard times?" asked Paul.

"It means," said mother, "times when many people are out of work and cannot buy the things they need."

"What do they do then?" asked Polly.

"Other people must help them. Everybody who has work ought to do something for those who have not."

"Daddy has work," said Paul, "but I don't suppose there's anything we can do, for Polly and I just play, and we don't have any money except our pennies."

"There are lots of kind things that can be done without money," said mother. "And there is one thing you can do right now and it won't cost a cent. Can you think what it is?"

"I know," cried Polly, her eyes shining with delight. "We can feed Rover till Mr. Jones gets work."

"And we can begin right now," said mother. "There's a nice bone and a plate of scraps in the kitchen that you can take him."

The children both ran to the kitchen. The bone was on the plate with the scraps. Both Polly and Paul wanted to carry it.

"Rover will want a drink of fresh water, too," said mother. "So one of you take the plate, the other a pail of water to fill his drinking pan."

Rover jumped with joy when he saw the nice breakfast, but, hungry as he was, he took a drink of water first, for his pan had been quite dry till Polly poured the fresh water in.

"Did Jesus love dogs?" asked little Polly when they came home.

"I'm sure he did," said mother, "and when he told us to feed the hungry, I'm sure he meant the hungry animals and birds as well as people."

"May we take Rover his meals every day?" asked Paul. "It takes a lot of grub for a dog like that."

"Yes," said mother, thoughtfully, "it does. I'm sure we haven't scraps enough to feed him, and especially meat."

"If we'd each save him a bite of ours at the table, you and daddy and Paul and I, that would be four bites," said Polly.

Mother smiled. "Four bites would help, but I think Rover would need more than that."

"I'm going to ask the butcher how much it would cost to buy him a bone. We have our pennies," said Paul.

When the butcher heard, he was very kind. He said he thought he could sell the children a pretty big bone for a penny.

"We're going to do without so much candy so we can buy him a bone every day," said Paul.

When daddy came home to supper, the children, happy in their sharing, told him about Rover.

"We're going to buy him bones and carry him fresh water," said Polly, "and mother's going to save him the scraps. Don't you want to help?"

Daddy laughed. "I think I'll have to have a hand in it, too," he said. "I'll give a box of dog discuits every week to piece out when mother is short of scraps."

"It's fun having hard times," said Paul. "If all the boys and girls would hunt the hungry dogs and cats and feed them—"

"Why, Paul," interrupted Polly, "then the animals would never know anything about hard times. They wouldn't ever have to be hungry."—Selected.

THE SUNSHINE GIRL

One day everything seemed to go wrong with Helen. To begin with, when she got up in the morning she put the left shoe on the right foot, then she tangled the shoe lace and broke one in her hurry.

She was late for breakfast, so her oatmeal was cold. And just as she was ready to go to Nannie Gray's to play for an hour it began to rain, and she had to take off her hat and jacket and stay at home.

"There never was such a day!" she cried, "everything is wrong."

"I'll tell you how to make everything right," said her grandfather.

"How, Grandfather?" asked Helen, who felt quite sure that he could do almost anything.

"Just be a sunshine girl."

"Oh, Grandfather, how can I? It's raining."

"The rain needn't make any difference with you," he replied.

"Well—I'll try—to be a sunshine girl," Helen spoke doubtfully. "How do I begin?"

"First, you learn the rule for sunshine. Get some paper and write it down." Helen took her paper and pencil, and he told her to write: "When things go wrong, smile, and find a better way."

Helen was smiling already. That came easy enough, for no one was ever very gloomy where Grandfather was.

"I can't go to play with Nannie 'cause it's raining; but I can do something better right now," cried Helen. "I can begin a birthday present for Grandmother, and you can take it home to her when you go."

"Of course you can; that's the thing for you to do."

"And do you s'pose she'd like a motto painted with pretty letters on bristol board?" asked Helen.

"I suppose she would be delighted," replied her grandfather. "And if you paint it, I'll have it framed."

And the motto that Helen chose was: "When things go wrong, smile, and find a better way."

After that, when things did not go right, Helen would smile and look for a better way; and she almost always found it, too.

It is such a simple rule, not a bit hard to remember; and because Helen thought about it and put it into practice, she earned the name that Grandfather gave her, and in time her father and mother and even big brother Harry called her "Sunshine Girl."—Publisher Unknown.

THE CAPTIVE INDIAN BOY

A small band of American trappers were wending their way across the western wilderness when they suddenly came upon an Indian encampment. They were horrified to find that an Indian boy belonging to a hostile tribe had been captured and was about to be burned at the stake. He was securely bound, and the fagots were ready to be lighted. Their deepest compassion was aroused in favor of the little fellow who was so soon to feel the scorching flames amidst the fierce exultation of his savage foes, and they resolved to redeem the captive if that were possible. Advancing toward the Indian chiefs, they offered to pay ransom price to give the lad his liberty. But this offer was rejected. They were not going to deny themselves the pleasure of witnessing their captive's dying agonies as he writhed amid the flames. The white man could keep his gold.

At this junction the trappers held a hurried consultation and determined that the Indian boy must be delivered. They could not stand by and see him slowly burned to death before their eyes. If gold could not redeem him they were prepared if need be to shed the last drop of their blood to effect his rescue. They knew the risks they were taking, but they had counted the cost, and were prepared for the consequences. Approaching the redskin warriors again, they said, "The Indian boy must not be burned. If you do not take the price we have offered we will fight for the lad, although the last man of us should have to die on the spot where we stand."

It was a striking situation. The little captive had no claim whatever on the white men's compassion. He belonged to an alien race. It was in a sense no affair of theirs.

When the warriors saw the set and determined faces of these few white men, each with his rifle ready to do its deadly work, they considered matters in a more conciliatory mood, and then said, "We will take the white man's gold." Immediately the ransom price was paid, and at the same moment the sharp knife of a trapper cut the bonds that held the captive boy, and he was free. What joy would fill the little fellow's heart! He understood all that was done. He knew what he had been delivered from. How true this is also of all who have received Christ as the "Ransom of the soul," and been delivered from the condemnation of sin.

But the work of the trappers was not yet done. They were resolved to keep the little captive safe till he was clear out of danger. Taking him along with them, they continued their journey, leaving the Indian encampment far behind. On the third day a solitary Indian was seen on the distant prairie. As he drew near the boy's keen eye recognized him. "This is my father," he said. And in a few minutes the trappers had the joy of presenting the boy safe and sound to him.

This speaks to us of a day yet to come, when Jesus, the great Shepherd of the sheep, shall present each one who has been redeemed through the precious Blood to His Father in Heaven. Will you be there?—W. S., in Sunlight for the Young.

NOT FAIR

Don and Dora were on their way home from Sunday school.

"I don't think you and Ray behaved a bit nice in class today," remarked Dora. "I saw you laughing and pinching each other and teasing Will Reese while Miss Rodman was teaching the lesson. You wouldn't dare behave that way at school tomorrow."

"No, we'd be punished if we did," laughed Don. "They can't punish you at Sunday school, you know."

"Well, Don, I'm ashamed of you!" exclaimed Dora. "If you won't behave at Sunday school just because you know the teacher can't punish you or send you home, you ought to be ashamed!"

Don flushed. He had not thought about it that way before. It did seem a mean thing to do.

"I guess you're right, Dora. It isn't fair to the Sunday school, or to Miss Rodman, either, for us to act that way," he said. "Hereafter I won't do anything in Sunday school I wouldn't do in a week-day school."—Dew Drops.

THINKING TOO MUCH OF SELF

An eminent surgeon, who was also an eminent Christian, visited a lady who was a professed believer in Christ, but who was frequently troubled with imaginary diseases. The good doctor was frequently called in to prescribe for her, until at last he said, "Madam, I will give you a prescription which I am certain will make a healthy woman of you, if you follow it." "Sir," said she, "I shall be so glad to have good health that I will be sure to follow it." "Then I will send you the prescription this evening." When it arrived it consisted of these words: "Do good to somebody." She roused herself to relieve a poor neighbor, and then sought out others who needed her; and from being so constantly despondent and nervous she became a healthy, cheerful woman, for she had an object to live for, and found joy in doing good to others. —Selected.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

MRS. J. E. PRITCHARD, Editor

SOME ITEMS FROM MISSIONARY RECORD

Pine Ridge—The Store Building

Work on the store building is moving along as rapidly as the weather will permit. We appreciate the fine spirit of co-operation shown by the contributions already received. Just now we are in great need of additional funds for this work. Will you not please make a bit more of a sacrificial effort and send your contribution promptly

The secretary of benevolences in your Auxiliary can help stock this store by sending clothing. The winter is at hand and these things will help our workers at Pine Ridge and also render service to the community. Plan at your next Auxiliary meeting to send a box. Two or more Auxiliaries near enough might go in together and send a box.

Concerning Organization

"Think of the need of giving to the individual auxiliary member an intelligent understanding of the whole missionary organization of which she is an indispensable part. It is a matter of surprise to discover how many really missionary women have a very vague idea of the lines along which the Women's Work is organized.

"It is an excellent plan, at least once a year, to have some officers in the auxiliary give a talk on the relationship each member holds to the widening areas of circle, auxiliary, district, branch and worldwide service.

"Circles within an auxiliary must seek to help each other, so auxiliaries must reach out to other auxiliaries for mutual benefit. At a recent meeting of the Baltimore district of the Maryland branch the city was divided into sections and a key woman appointed in each section to work out ways of bringing the auxiliaries in her section into closer touch with each other. The first step in this plan is to ask certain auxiliaries to send representatives to visit a neighboring organization at their regular meeting to receive and to give fresh suggestions for programs, for methods of conducting business, for financial projects and other activities of common interest.

"If it should so happen that a neighboring church has no auxiliary, arrangement might be made for a visit to a Ladies' Aid or a Ladies' Bible class meeting, with the understanding that an opportunity be given for a brief presentation of the value of a Woman's Auxiliary."

Dorothy L. Warner writes from Nagoya. Japan:

"During the second week of June we had special evangelistic meetings with Rev. M. Ohashi, pastor of our church at Hiratsuka, as the speaker. He is a graduate of our Nagoya school, a young man of such pleasing personality and earnest faith that he made a great appeal to the boys. The boys who were already Christians, and members of the Christian Endeavor Society of the church, met together every morning for ten days to pray that the meetings would be a success, and that many of their classmates would decide to become Christians. As a result of those meetings, the earnest prayers of the Christian boys and teachers, and Paul's special classes for those who were interested in learning more about Christ, in early July twenty boys were baptized, and there will be more in the fall. These were some of our finest boys who stood very high in their classes."

Ethel L. Hempstead says there are 745 young men now in the Nagoya Middle School. And "this is still a Mission School. Having received the Board's consent, we have gone ahead with the plans for the Board-of-Trustee-Management (Saidan Hojin) of the school. In accordance with the requirements of the Japanese Department of Education an endowment fund of 50,000 yen is necessary. This amount has been oversubscribed, but incorporation will not take place until this amount of the pledges has been paid in. We expect to carry out our plans next year."

ASHEBORO METHODIST PROTESTANTS WIN HONORS

In the election of class officers for the senior class of the Asheboro high school, Methodist Protestants were considerably in the limelight. James Lowdermilk, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Lowdermilk and brother of our agent, Miss Beatrice Lowdermilk, was elected president; Billie Bulla, son of Prof. and Mrs. T. F. Bulla, is vice president; and Catherine Phillips, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Phillips, was elected treasurer. If our memory serves us correctly, we received all three of these young people into church membership in Asheboro only a few short years ago. We congratulate not only the students but also the parents.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HELPS

THE EFFECT OF ALCOHOL UPON SOCIETY

Isa. 28:1-8.
Topic for October 27
By E. LESTER BALLARD

Preparation

For sources for data and material on the topic, see C. E. column of the M. P. Herald October 10, first paragraph. Additional sources: The Christian Herald (New York), particularly editions of November, 1934, January and March, 1935. The Methodist Protestant-Recorder for October 11 contains splendid material.

A debate on the subject should be effective, with the proper prepaartion: "Resolved, that the social aspect of society is enhanced by the friendly cup"; or, "Resolved, that the drinker is the greatest sufferer from intoxicants"; or, "Resolved, that more people are benefited than injured—morally, physically financially—by the use of intoxicants."

The C. E. World Quarterly suggests: "Get together an exhibit of food, clothes, and other necessaries, that may be bought for about the same price as a few drinks of alcohol. Put above the exhibit the legend, 'Money Spent for Booze Can't Buy Shoes.'

"Get the retail price of a case of beer, a dozen bottles of American wine, a quart of whiskey. Compare it with your collection plate.

"Find out the amount spent for liquor in your state, and compare it with the money spent for libraries, schools, parks, etc."

Program

If a debate is used, begin with quiet music a hymn and prayer; then let the leader introduce the debaters. Close with a worship program that would serve as a dedication to Christian ideals. One similar to the following might be used:

I. Meditation: Hymn of consecration played through once—"I Am Thine, O Lord," "Take My Life and Let It Be," "O Master, Let Me Walk With Thee."

II. Call to prayer: Psalms 95:6, 7a; 19:14; 139:23, 24; John 4:24.

III. Prayer: By an Endeavorer; sentence prayers; silent prayer, followed by solo. "Just As I Am, Thine Own to Be," unannounced.

IV. Hymn: "Stand Up, Stand Up for Jesus," "Brightly Beams Our Father's Mercy," "Living for Jesus," "Jesus Calls Us."

V. Poem: "Rise Up, O Men of God" (Wm. P. Merrill); "Be Strong!" (M. D. Babcock); "Christ of the Upward Way" (W. J. Mathams).

VI. Sumamry: Brief closing remarks by pastor or leader.

VII. Hymn: One of those under above Item IV.

VIII. Benediction.

Participation

1. Alcohol and Congenial Home Life. No enemy so treacherous has ever invaded the congenial home circle with such tragic results as Demon Alcohol. Picture father, who several years ago pledged his troth in marriage to an attractive young lady "till death us do part." Mother and children are happy in each other's and father's love and loyalty. Demon Alcohol enters, seizes father in his destructible grip, and father becomes his slave. Mother receives less of father's income, so she has to cut the quality as well as the quantity of food. Decent clothes for the family become a problem. Mother's face becomes careworn and years of weariness pile upon her youthful form. The home fast becomes demoralized, and an early grave opens its mouth for one or more of this unfortunate family. A tale? Yes, but so typical of the destructiveness of Demon Alcohol.

2. Alcohol and College Life. Why is it necessary for college students to drink intoxicants at football games, dances, social gatherings, frat meetings, etc? Do they need exhilaration on these occasions, when exhilaration is already at white heat? Do they need a narcotic (not stimulant) to dull their senses to all that is decent? Are their social contacts so insipid as to require an agency that will destroy conventionalities and create abnormalities? Since it has been scientifically proven that alcohol impairs the normal functioning of the brain, surely college students should be among the most ardent total abstainers.

3. Alcohol and Citizenship. It has recently been declared that the objective of the liquor interests is to make America drunk. And they seem to be succeeding. It is almost inconceivable to think that our Christian nation —nominally at least—shall be dubbed a drinking nation! Such is preposterous. Christianity and inebriety are paradoxical terms. A drinking man or woman is by no means a good citizen, if for no other reason, because of the harmful influence he exerts upon other members of our national family.

4. Alcohol and Civilization. "An intoxicated man is a liability to society. He demands the best, offers nothing, and is a perennial jig-saw puzzle to organized society. What has an intoxicated person to offer except a problem? What has his liquor to offer except the reward (?) of degradation?"—M. P.-R. And society, "the common life of humanity in which each individual partakes," is the permeating spirit of that larger life called civilization. We are almost inclined to say that a nation or civilization stands or falls in proportion to its total abstinence or habitual drunkenness. Think it over.

YOUTH PEACE DEMONSTRATION—LET'S HELP BUILD A WARLESS WORLD!

A Call to Christian Youth

The following is the stirring call from the Joint Committee on United Youth Program for the Youth Peace demonstration now being organized all over the United States for Armistice Day, November 11, 1935:

"Youth today is faced with a world preparing for war. Our nation is steadily increasing its military expenditures and following policies which threaten to plunge the youth of the world into war. The first Armistice Day celebrated the ending of the World War and the coming of peace. Since that time Armistice Day celebrations have grown increasingly militaristic. Looking toward Armistice Day this year we would return to that first emphasis of peace.

"We feel the need for a constructive and dramatic demonstration against the rising war budget of our own nation, the further extension of civilian military training, and the economic policies which lead to war; a demonstration which will register the growing determination of youth no longer to be cannon-fodder for future wars.

"Recognizing that war and the religion of Jesus are incompatible: be it resolved that we call upon Christian youth of North America to unite in a great demonstration for peace of this coming Armistice Day."

This Youth Peace demonstration is being conducted in connection with the movement. "Christian Youth Building a New World," representing ten million Protestant youth in the United States and Canada, in fifty denominations and agencies, including Methodist Protestants.

The following supplies on the Peace demonstration are available:

Handbook entitled "Christian Youth Peace Demonstration," to help local committees plan the demonstration, 10c.

A small dodger for wide distribution, $2 per 1,000, 25c for 100, or ½c each for less than 100.

"Youth Action in Building a Warless World," a general help in peace education, 15c.

VANCE COUNTY MINISTERS STOP IN GREENSBORO

On Tuesday of this week Rev. Luther Medlin, pastor of our church in Henderson; Rev. C. L. Spencer, pastor of Granville circuit (which happens to be in Vance), and Rev. J. D. Cranford, pastor of the Vance charge, stopped for a few minutes at our office while on a journey to High Point. All of them seemed to be hopeful of finishing the year in a creditable manner. Brother Cranford brought the assuring news that his charge would reach its quota in the Herald campaign.

MEMBERS OF CONFERENCE TO BE SERVED CHICKEN

Rev. Luther Medlin, of Henderson, who is to be host to conference, informs us that the women of the Henderson church are planning to serve plenty of baked chicken at the noon hour. We predict a good attendance this year.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Union Ridge, Forsyth.—A large and enthusiastic crowd attended the 24th home-coming and reunion at Union Ridge Methodist Protestant church Sunday. The event marked the 64th anniversary of the congregation.

P. W. Mock, who has been in charge of this annual event for 24 years, presided during the impressive and enjoyable exercises. Judge G. H. Hastings and Rev. R. A. Hunter, pastor of the church, were the principal speakers, both discussing the reunion and its significance to the church and the community.

The annual memorial service was held, paying tribute to the memory of members of the church who have passed away during the past year. Four names were mentioned: Tom Rothrock, Mrs. Emma Vestal Long, George R. Knouse and Mrs. Lily Cope.

Throughout the program delightful music was rendered by visiting choirs and quartets from a number of churches in this vicinity.

The Ladies' Auxiliary held their monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. R. M. Romminger, Winston-Salem, Route 4. The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs Marbry. Prayer was offered by Rev. R. A. Hunter. Collected during the month $19.30. Delicious chicken pie was served to 25 guests.

Lena T. Bodenheimer and J. F. Snider were united in marriage September 28, 1935, at the Maple Springs M. P. parsonage with the pastor, Rev. R. A. Hunter, officiating. We wish Mr. and Mrs. Snider many years of happiness together.

Grace, Greensboro.—Rally and promotion day, with an offering for the Board of Christian Education, was observed the fifth Sunday in September. The attendance was fine, the exercises interesting.

The Baraca Class held its fall social meeting at the Odell clubhouse recently. An excellent supper was served by the Sutton Philathea Class, of which Mrs. J. M. Millikan is teacher and Mrs. O. S. Poer president. Following the supper, a few short talks were made, with a stirring plea by our pastor, Mr. Carroll, for increased activity and loyal devotion to the church. The attendance was good.

In celebration of the 400th anniversary of the translation and printing of the Coverdale Bible, Mr. Carroll is giving a series of appropriate sermons on the Bible. These sermons are proving to be very interesting and should make the church more appreciative of the Book, as well as enable the people to see at what great cost it has been preserved, and given to recent generations in such quantities as have marked its distribution.

Next Sunday, "Recognition Day" for the Boy and Girl Scouts of the Sunday school is to be observed. One of our boys, Jimmie Millikan, was promoted to the rank of first-class Scout at a Court of Honor held two weeks ago. He will make a talk on Scouting, and it is planned to give the school a clearer idea of what the Scout program undertakes to carry out than most people have at present.

Grace church is glad to welcome home Dr. and Mrs. Spahr, who have been away for the past six weeks. After attending the Pittsburgh conference, they made their annual visit to Bradford, Pa., the home of Mrs. Phillips, who is a daughter of Mrs. Spahr. The presence of Dr. and Mrs. Spahr is a benediction to our church and to our city, and we shall be ever grateful that they came to us nearly 12 years ago and have continued to make their home here. J. N. W.

◆

Orange Charge.—The fourth quarterly conference will meet at Chestnut Ridge Saturday, October 26, at 2 p. m. A full attendance of the official members is desired.

B. M. WILLIAMS, Pastor.

◆

Fair Grove Church, Haw River Charge.—Fair Grove church was glad to have the people from the other churches in the district meet with her on the fifth Sunday in September for the last district rally of the year. Quite a number were present. Draper had the largest representation. Rev. L. S. Helms, from Draper, conducted the devotionals, assisted by Rev. O. E. Easter, of Brown Summit church.

Dr. Brown, chairman of the district, preached at the 11 o'clock hour. His subject was "Finding Christ." It was most interesting and helpful.

In the afternoon Mr. H. C. Nicholson, of Mebane, gave a very interesting talk on the woman's work of the church and urged them to organize. Dr. Dixon also made a talk on the Children's Home.

We have had a very successful year under the leadership of our pastor, Rev. J. L. Trollinger. We only hope we can continue to have him with us.

We have a splendid Sunday school. Fair Grove church in the last few years, has suffered greatly in the loss of quite a number of her oldest and best members. We miss them very much and know their places can never be filled, but we only hope that the lives they lived will help the younger ones to find their own places and perhaps fill them better because of the influence of those gone on.

BARBA GRAY TROXLER, Reporter.

Laurel Hill, Fallston Charge.—What is the difference between a church and a phaeton? Give it up? Well, a phaeton goes to sleep in the winter time and a church goes to sleep in the summer time. At least that's what has happened to us at Laurel Hill. But I think we are beginning to wake up.

We have done quite a lot of repairing to our church this summer. A new roof has been added, a coat of paint on the inside and also the pews, brick pillars built and steps to the front and back. The Ladies' Auxiliary realized most of the money to have this work done.

The fourth quarterly conference will be held at Knob Creek Saturday, October 26. Rev. J. D. Morris will preach the 11 o'clock sermon. This church has made a very good financial record this year, as the record will show at the Annual Conference. Mr. Lester Huss was made delegate to the Annual Conference.

Attendance at the unified service Sunday was the best in several weeks. Sunday school attendance was about on a par with the same date last year. Not many slipped out and some more slipped in; so we had a good many present for the worship part of the morning service. At the close of the service the Lord's Supper was observed.

The Ladies' Auxiliary will meet Thursday night at 7 o'clock with Mrs. Grace Miller. We are hoping all the old members will be present and a number of new ones to join.

We ask that you remember us each Sunday in our Sunday school, that we may serve God more and grow closer to him each day and be shining lights for the kingdom of God.

Beulah, Mecklenburg Circuit.—Our pastor, Rev. P. E. Bingham, filled his regular appointment at Beulah Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. He delivered for us a wonderful sermon, which was enjoyed by all present. The conference is drawing near and we are trusting that all the salary and budgets will be paid, or most all, anyway, for we feel that our pastor needs his salary very badly. Of course this year has been a pretty bad year for us farmers, as the crops are very poor, but still we all want to do all we can in order to raise this money. Our Sunday school, we are proud to say, is still getting along fine and we are having Sunday school every Sunday morning with very good attendance, and we also have prayer meeting and Christian Endeavor every Sunday night. We will be glad to have all that will to worship with us in these services. We are sorry to say that our Ladies' Aid has not held a meeting in quite a while, as every one has been so busy, but we are expecting to hold a meeting pretty soon, for we don't want our Aid to die down.

Asheboro.—Rally Day was observed the fourth Sunday in September. A special program was rendered in the Sunday school to a large congregation.

We were very glad to receive Mr. and Mrs. Millard H. Allred as members in the morning service. The rally for our district was held in our church in the afternoon of the fifth Sunday. Dr. Andrews, president of our conference, was on the program. Dr. H. T. Stevens, of the Baptist church, made a talk on evangelism. All present were benefited by the meeting. Were so sorry all churches were not represented with a large delegation. Dr. Taylor has preached evangelistic sermons for several Sundays, leading up to the special Bible study. Evangelistic services began last Tuesday night, October 8, and will continue through Friday night, October 18. Last week the subjects dealt with "What the Bible Says About the Christian." This week, "What the Bible Says About Sin." The attendance has been good and all have been greatly helped by these services. Church visiting was observed last week and aagin this week.

Sunday, October 20, will be Joash Day. Everyone is to bring an offering and put it in the Joash box. October 27 will be "Go to Church and Membership Day." In the evening the thank-offering service of the Woman's Auxiliary will be held. This is to be a play under the direction of the thank-offering secretary, Mrs. W. F. Redding, Jr.

The Auxiliary held their meeting of the second quarter in the social room of the church last night (Monday) with a large attendance. Mrs. J. T. Pugh, president, presided. Mrs. L. F. Ross led the devotions and Miss Lollie Jones the question box. Splendid reports were given for the quarter by all the chairmen and officers. Circle No. 2 served refreshments at the close of the business meeting.

The new Sunday school officers have been elected and have taken charge of their work, also the teachers. The Sunday school is doing fine work and large numbers are attending. Last Sunday there were 296 present with an offering of $12.

The Christian Endeavor Society is also doing some fine work.

November 3, the last Sunday in the conference year, will be "Pay Up Day" for the year. Mr. L. F. Ross will represent our church as delegate at the conference in Henderson.

All of the new church officers for the coming year have been elected, but space will not permit me to name them. Mrs. Earl Henley has been elected our new reporter and I am sure she will be sending in some good reports. LOLLIE JONES.

Shady Grove, Connelly Springs Charge.—The Ladies' Aid Society of Shady Grove church met Friday, October 11, 1935, at the home of Mrs. Southerland. There were 13 members present and 2 visitors; $8.17 was taken in. We were very glad to have our pastor, Rev. J. L. Love, to have charge of the Scripture discussion. At the close of the meeting Mrs. Southerland served delicious refreshments. The society is planning to have a supper at the parsonage Saturday night, October 26, for the purpose of raising money on our piano. We will serve oysters, weiners, sandwiches and cake. The society will meet again with Mrs. Bridges November 1.

Our church work is going on very well, although we feel there is space for improvement. The church is now being placed with electric lights. We are hoping to have good lights for our prayer meeting by next Sunday night.

We are very sorry to say one of our most faithful church and society members is in the hospital, and has undergone an operation This is Mrs. Ada Watson. She seems to be improving at the present time. Hope she will soon be back with us again. We ask all praying people to pray that this work might grow stronger both spiritually and financially.

Clark's Chapel, Weaverville Charge.—I am afraid I have been a little slow about reporting in the last few weeks. However, we have not been idle.

The Ladies' Aid met at our church last Wednesday for the regular monthly meeting, with a good attendance and an interesting program. Through various projects our Ladies' Aid Society has raised money and paid $12 on the conference claims (the rest being paid through the Joash box). We also voted to pay $10 on the pastor's salary.

Our last quarterly conference will be held at the Weaverville church on next Friday night, October 18. We hope for a good representation from all the churches.

The revival services began at the Weaverville church last Sunday, October 6. The Rev. J. F. Minnis, of Asheville, is assisting our pastor, Rev. W. L. Harkey. They are having a splendid meeting there, fine preaching, and much interest is being shown. And right now I'd like to tell you about the wonderful improvements that have been made on the Weaverville church since the repair work was started a few months ago Through the untiring efforts of our pastor and the splendid co-operation of the people, it is now finished and really must be seen to be appreciated.

It has been such a blessing and a privilege to us to have had Bro. Harkey with us this past year, and we hope to have him with us many more years to come.

Philadelphia, Greensville Ct.—We are very proud of our new pastor, Rev. Eugene Lamb. He has been with us since June and we have all learned to love him and hope conference will send him back to us next year. He takes a lot of interest in the work, and with the co-operation of the people we know much good will be accomplished. He was married Saturday, October 12, and is at this time off on his bridal trip. We do not know his wife, yet we feel sure that she will be of great benefit to our church and community, and we gladly welcome her. May they have many happy years together and their young lives be blessed of God and crowned with much success.

Our revival meeting came to a close Friday night, October 4. Rev. Mr. Lamb had for the pulpit help Rev. J. T. Bowman, pastor of Denton charge. Rev. Mr. Bowman worked faithfully and untiringly in behalf of the church and lost souls in the community. It was a pleasure indeed to listen to his sermons and I am sure that the good he has sown will live on and on in the hearts of many of our people, and we do pray that the messages he has preached will cause the large number of unsaved people to realize their lost condition and accept our Lord and Savior before it is too late. Having Mr. Bowman in our homes and general association was great and we all welcome him to come our way again.

First Church, Charlotte.—Our church has had such a phenomenal growth that some of our membership were strangers to others. In fact if a member missed a single Sunday in the last year, with the exception of only six, he would have failed to see some new member come into the church. For this reason our pastor conceived the idea of having a fellowship day, or more properly a get-acquainted day. Sunday, October 6, was set for this fellowship day, and we had a wonderful time all day regardless of the inclement weather. I think all of our 400 active members were there with baskets full of fried chicken and all that goes with it.

We started the day off at 9:45 a. m. with about 350 at Sunday school, and after having met in the classrooms for roll call, all assembled in the brick tabernacle for a joint service and promotion day exercise. The boys and girls were jubilant in receiving promotion certificates and in anticipation of entering into new and higher classes. One little girl, Jacky Tadlock, 10 years old, gave a personal testimony and with tears in her little eyes preached a sermon that touched every one in the building. The regular 11 o'clock morning service was next, with Rev. Jimmie Johnson, of Cleveland, Tenn., preaching to six or seven hundred and the power of God was there and in evidence. After the sermon we had planned to spread dinner out on the lawn, but there was a drizzling cold rain falling so we moved the lunch boards into the tabernacle and placed them on top of the benches next to the center aisle so every one was comfortable and enjoyed the bountiful dinner. Each person had his or her name pinned on their coat lapel or collar and before dinner was over there was not a stranger to anyone in the building. We had several prominent church leaders of other denominations with us, including the president of the Evangelical Bible League, an interdenominational organization, of Charlotte, who are doing a wonderful work for the kingdom and under whose auspices Rev. Jimmie Johnson is now holding a full month revival meeting in a Presbyterian church here in Charlotte.

At 2:30 p. m., dinner having been over and everything rearranged, we had another season of personal testimony when no less than 50 told what Christ meant to them, then "Jimmie" gave us another stirring sermon, and after this service we just had time to go home to see that everything was in order there, then back for the night service at 7:30 and for some more personal testimonies for Christ, and it seemed that time would not permit all of them. Mr. Hendry gave his personal testimony instead of preaching a regular sermon, but it was a good sermon anyway, and was truly a revelation. God sure revealed to this man what his life work should be and he is right in the midst of it now, and what a harvest! At the night service the large chorus choir sang "This Is the Crowning Day," our pastor's favorite song, and this certainly was a crowning day for the First church. May Jesus Christ be praised. H. T. ORR.

Shiloh, Shiloh Charge.—On Sunday, October 6, our pastor filled his regular appointment and preached another good sermon. He called it "Our Family Day" by having the families sit in groups as near so as possible. His text was Genesis 44:34, "How shall I go up to my father, if the lad be not with me?" This, of course, dealt with the story of Joseph. At the close of the sermon he mentioned the reunited family and then our broken families and the final united family. At the close a special selection entitled "Will the Circle Be Unbroken?" was rendered by the Berrier sisters.

The first Sunday was also our tithe offering Sunday. The pastor called this our "march offering," and each member marched to the altar and there laid the tithe, the total being $194.55; however, some additionals have come in since.

On Saturday before the fourth Sunday in October the fourth quarterly conference will be held at Shiloh church. We hope that every member who can will be present.

The Woman's Auxiliary will present a thank-offering pageant entitled "The Lost Church" next Sunday night, October 20.

A committee composed of Mr. Ira Koonts, Mr. R. B. Sink and Mr. Ray Leatherman was appointed to nominate church officers which will be elected by the church on the first Sunday in November. On that Sunday, also, it is planned to have the church treasurer read the amount paid by each member this year. There are some who have not contributed, but we hope that those who have not will do so on or before the first Sunday, so that no one will be read as having paid nothing.

We are working and hoping for a very successful ending of this year's work. Pray for us. MABEL BERRIER, Reporter.

Rehoboth, Creswell Ct.—Brother Mabry preached his last sermons here yesterday of this conference year. He always gives us much food for thought in his good sermons. Holy communion was observed, after which an installation of the new church officers was observed. We all gathered around the altar while he talked to us about our responsibilities in each line of work; in closing we sang "A Charge to Keep I Have." The night service was a sad, impressive service, "parting of the ways," so near conference, not knowing whether he'd preach here again, made it doubly sad. He said he had learned to love us all, and I'm sure everyone has learned to love him and his little family, and we hope to have him return. Our meeting at Creswell begins tonight. I hope many from this church will attend.

Bro. Mabry commended us to God's care if we should never meet again, and asked us to pray for him wherever he might be sent to labor in the work of the Lord.

Cedar Cliff, Mt. Hermon Charge.—Our church is moving along splendidly. We met at a business meeting last Wednesday night. October 9. The list of new officials will be in next month's report. We have had new church pews ordered for a pretty good while now, and we are expecting them this week.

The fourth quarterly conference will be held at this church October 24. We are expecting and are looking forward to having Dr. Andrews, president of Annual Conference, with us. As we near the close of this conference year we are looking forward to the future year with high hopes and greater ambition.

We are sorry to report that we have a case of scarlet fever in our midst. Our daily prayers are for her improvement.

We offer our sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Cooper, Jr., since Jesus saw fit to take their baby, Elder Gray, home. It was laid to rest in the Cedar Cliff cemetery.

BERTHA BOGER, Reporter.

Asheville.—Our attendance increased by leaps and bounds on Sunday. There were 105 present for Sunday school and a larger number than formerly for church service. The splendid crowd seemed to inspire Mr. Minnis to bring us one of the best sermons of the year. His theme was "Going to Church," and he gave us many good reasons for being present each Sunday morning when services begin.

The Fawcett Bible Class and the Baraca-Philatheas are still working hard to see which can win the contest. Fawcett Bible Class led the entire school in amount of offering; Baraca-Philatheas in numbers present. Keep up the contest, folks, it creates interest.

Little Maragret Wilson had her tonsils removed yesterday, and is reported to be resting as well as could be expected today (Tuesday). We pray she may recover speedily.

The men of the church will have a supper meeting at the home of Rev. and Mrs. J. S. Williams Wednesday evening at 7:30.

The Woman's Auxiliary is to meet with Mrs. Minnis Thursday at 3 p. m. A full attendance is expected.

Church night is to be observed Wednesday evening, October 23, at the church. At this time new officers for the ensuing year are to be elected.

Mr. Minnis has been assisting with a revival at Weaverville during the past week. In his absence Sunday evening, Rev. Mr. Benfield, circuit rider of the Weaverville charge brought a good message to those present.

M. L. B.

Pleasant Grove.—Rally Day will be observed at Pleasant Grove Sunday, October 20. The children have planned an interesting program. It is hoped that the church will be greatly rallied.

The election of officers for the coming year was held last Sunday morning. The new officers will be installed the fourth Sunday, at which time the Lord's Supper will be administered.

The fourth quarterly conference will convene Wednesday at 8 p. m. All members are urged to be present.

The church is planning to install a new heating system in the next few weeks. The members are anxious to get the furnace as the heating system in the past hasn't been satisfactory.

YESABLE AND HAZEL HEDRICK.

Spring Church Charge.—On October 6 our thank-offering program was given at Lebanon church. Owing to bad weather we did not have as large a crowd as we had hoped for; however a good program was given and a thank-offering taken. At 7:30 o'clock on the evening of the same day our third and last thank-offering service was given at Pleasant Hill church and a thank-offering taken. This makes six thank-offering services for the charge this year. We believe that interest in these services is growing.

We were glad to have as visitors at Spring church yesterday Miss Katherine Crew, who is teaching at Marshville, N. C., this year; Miss Elizabeth Massey, who holds a position in the Vogue Beauty Shoppe at Roanoke Rapids; Mr. Lunsford Crew, a sophomore at Chapel Hill (these are all members of Spring church), and Mr. Teddy Boyce, of Lumberton, N. C. We always welcome our boys and girls back home and are always glad to have visitors.

Mrs. Rose Crew, who has been sick for several weeks, is still confined to her bed. She is missed very much from church and Sunday school. Mrs. Crew's daughters, Misses Aubrey and Olie, have also been absent from church and Sunday school on account of sickness. All three of these ladies are teachers in our Pleasant Hill Sunday school. Miss Olie is also organist.

Mrs. M. L. Crew, one of our faithful Auxiliary members, is in Portsmouth, Va., where she is undergoing treatment for sinus trouble. We will be glad when all these are able to be in church again.

On October 2 at 2 p. m. our circuit Auxiliary met with Mrs. Rupert M. Robinson. Due to sickness in the homes of so many of the members there were only seven active members and one honorary member present. Mrs. Robinson was devotional leader, and in a very impressive manner carried out the program as suggested in yearbook. Mr. Reese offered the prayer. Mrs. Robinson was instructed to order a new supply of Elizabeth Wade products.

The traveling overalls are still going around begging to be patched. We are very anxious for the patching to be completed so we can have the fun of tearing the pockets off and counting up the money hidden under them.

The dress committee was instructed to buy a coat and send to "our adopted girl" at the home, Esther Vuncannon. (The coat has been purchased and sent to Esther.)

Plans were discussed for first district rally to be held at Eden church October 24. Mrs. Neese had charge of the program for the day and was assisted by Mrs. H. E. Vassar.

At the conclusion of the program Mrs. Robinson invited the guests out to the scuppernong vine to eat grapes. In order to have another meeting before conference the Auxiliary will meet with Mrs. J. W. Crew October 30 at 2 p. m.

MRS. WM. H. NEESE, Cor. Sec.

Kannapolis.—Since our last report I think our reporter must have died. I don't mean in human life but in spirit of writing up a report.

Since our last report our church work has been moving along rapidly and good.

The Ladies' Auxiliary is coming along fine. All of the circles met Monday night at 7 o'clock. Circle No. 1 met with Mrs. (No name given.—Ed.) Circle No. 2 met with Mrs. Williams. The Business Girls' circle met with Miss Elva Sides, and the Young Girls' circle met with Miss Eunice Carter.

All of the circles are going along fine, especially the Young Girls' circle. The Young Girls' circle's program consisted of hymns prayers, and talks by different members of the circle. After the program the meeting was turned into a business meeting and turned over to our leader, Miss Laura Braswell. We all love her and try to do our best in trying to please her. We took in $14.85, the largest that has ever been taken in by our Auxiliary. We are trying to help in getting things that our church needs, especially a new church and some Sunday school rooms. If you don't believe that we need a new church and Sunday school rooms you come to see us sometime. We feel that our conference year is coming to a close and we surely have enjoyed having Mr. Aubert M. Smith for our pastor. We enjoyed his sermon Sunday morning which was on "Solid Foundation of Christian Life." We feel the need of your prayers every day and I assure you that you all have ours.

ANNIE MAE FAGGART.

WEST END CHURCH, GREENSBORO, CELEBRATES PASTOR'S BIRTHDAY

On Friday evening of last week the West End congreagtion in Greensboro gave their pastor, Dr. N. G. Bethea, a birthday party long to be remembered. There were many useful gifts presented and a birthday cake with 72 candles on it. In putting so many candles on a cake for so young a man, very likely they thought that a man who has had as great a variety of experiences as Brother Bethea's series of articles on "Reminiscences" would indicate must have lived at least 72 years and maybe more.

WEST END YOUNG PEOPLE TO SING

The Young People's Choir of West End church in Greensboro, under the direction of Mr. L. M. Foust, is to sing in a district Christian Endeavor meeting at Mt. Pleasant M. P. church in the southern part of Guilford county next Sunday afternoon.

A NEW EXPERIENCE

This pastor has had poundings of all kinds, he thought, but last Friday evening was a new experience.

The word got out accidentally that the 11th of October was his birthday, and although he was in Concord in revival services, he was informed that there would be a business meeting on Friday night and that he would be needed at home. A business meeting! Indeed it was. Good business for a fellow who has the needs of the home to supply.

About 8 o'clock they began to come in. The first number to come in was the largest. They asked if the writer had any objections to them celebrating with him a birthday. Well, about that time he began to realize what it was all about. Wish they had put their names on all the packages, but since they did not, will only give this: There were 64 packages consisting of a variety of things to eat that will last for many days. There were about 30 people that took part. Some who could not come sent their gifts. Some useful articles to wear besides the things to eat. Even the car was not forgotten, as a good supply of the highest grade of cylinder oil was in the lot.

A large cake weighing four pounds was presented with 72 candles on it. Well, that was a joke! Nobody here that old. But even if there was, what difference would that make? Just so you do not feel it or look it, it is all right. But the recipient had as much fun out of that as the ones who decorated with the candles. The cake was big enough and good enough to put 100 candles on.

Another joke was a supposed bottle of milk. Looked like it, a pint bottle of the dairy variety, whitewashed. But when opened it had a dollar bill in it instead. Could use several pints like that.

After a while in pleasant conversation by this happy company, the preacher and his wife were left to take inventory and to rejoice over the spirit that led these kind neighbors and members to do such a generous act. Thank you every one.

N. G. BETHEA.

GREENSBORO MINISTERS MEET

The Greensboro Methodist Protestant Ministers' Association will hold its last meeting for the conference year on October 21 at 10:30 o'clock at Grace church, Greensboro. Dr. R. M. Andrews, president of our conference, will be our speaker and will discuss the theme, "Four Essentials of an Efficient Church."

Brethren, you recall that we voted that our October meeting would carry through lunch hour. Each minister is to bring his wife and lunch. Dr. Andrews has a fine message for us and will be expecting a good attendance.

ALBEMARLE	109
HIGH POINT, FIRST	106
GIBSONVILLE	95

Those of you who have been waiting for some great event to happen certainly will not be disappointed this week, for two great things have happened. For about eleven months Albemarle and First church, High Point, have been pressing forward with their eyes fixed on a goal. It has been kind of a guiding star for them and has kept them from wandering around too much. This week both of these places have gone so far beyond that goal that they have to turn around and look away back down the road in order to see it, for they do not have any eyes in the backs of their heads. Well, congratulations. both of you. Wish we had some coats of many colors, we would put them on you.

Gibsonville still holds on to third place, but we are serving notice on her that she cannot hold to it much longer unless she gets busy, for other charges are steadily climbing. This week Fountain Place at Burlington comes up into the nineties. Others are just watching for a chance to supplant Gibsonville. Remember that next week Albemarle and First church, High Point, will be taken out of this column and will remain in the CAPITAL letters grand stand. We will need two new charges to take their places next week. The question is, Who will occupy these places?

Now for the receipts of this week. High Point, First, is away out in front. Next in order comes Graham. This church a long time ago passed its quota, but what does it care about that? It keeps right on, anyway. Quite a good many other places do some fine work this week. But wait a minute! Did you see that subsidy! If you have not already done so, you turn to the subsidy column and see what a fine list we have. That looks good to us. Let others do likewise.

The receipts are $79.96, $67.46 being on subscriptions and $12.50 on subsidy.

An Expanding Business

Business men, generally speaking, are anxious to expand their business. Many of them become dissatisfied with their narrow, cramped quarters, and want to move out where there are greater opportunities. Not many men are able to hold their business on an even level. They either go backward or forward, upward or downward. It is hard to stand still.

The work of the church might be likened to a business enterprise. And the work that has been assigned to the disciples of Christ is the biggest business in the world. It touches every individual and reaches out to every continent. All races of people and all colors are included in the task. When Christ said, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel unto every creature," he realized that it was no easy task, and lest the disciples should be overwhelmed with the greatness of it he added, "And lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world." If this task is ever accomplished, there must be some expansion in our business for the King. We cannot win the world for Christ with the amount of effort and enthusiasm we are putting into the enterprise at the present time. So long as there are large numbers of churches which go an entire year without having a convert or an accession we cannot hope to measure up to the requirements of our Lord. And the churches that are having some converts and some accessions are not gaining ground as rapidly as they could if there were a larger consecration on the part of both the ministry and the laity. If we had more money and more workers and more zeal to go along with these, we could go much further and much faster. One thing that handicaps the work of the average church is the tremendous loss that comes to it each year in the matter of people losing interest. While we are getting new ones in, others are going out. Where some are gaining in spiritual resources others are losing, so it seems hard sometimes to maintain the standard which we have already set up. The tragic thing about it is that there are so many churches as well as individuals that never get any larger. You can look at the record of these churches over a period of years and you can see that they are about the same, while in the case of the individual it is more difficult to measure his growth, yet from all outward appearances he never gets any larger. It is true that there are some notable exceptions to this rule, if it may be called a rule. The law of life is to go forward, and if we do not go forward we are on dangerous ground.

What, then, are some of the things we need to do in order to expand our part of the business that has been entrusted into our hands? In the first place, we need to redouble our efforts in the matter of evangelism. And when we speak of evangelism we need not confine ourselves to the annual revival meeting. That has been a part of our work in the past and we presume that it will be in the years that are to come. But real evangelism means more than getting religion one week and losing it the next. It must include some plan of developing and holding the new converts and of making workers out of them. So many people are satisfied simply with getting into the membership of the church. Church membership is good in so far as it goes, but it is not sufficient if we stop there. We must go on and become workers in the kingdom.
